PREFACE.

THE EXPOSITORY BIBLE is the result of an endeavour to produce a Popular Commentary suitable for all classes and denominations of Christians. With this view, while the Notes are thoroughly Evangelical, they are wholly free from the slightest taint of Sectarianism. The great object aimed at throughout has been clearly and fully to develop the elements of the Common Salvation. There is not, it is believed, a sentence or a word in the volume which will supply the smallest clew to the Writer's ecclesiastical views or religious associations. In everything, impersonality has been carried to the uttermost; nothing is permitted to appear but the pen. The constant object has been to discover and set forth the mind of the Spirit; and in harmony with that, to exhibit principles, state doctrine, illustrate experience, and delineate character, as if there were neither sect nor party in the world, leaving every reader, on all minor points, to be fully satisfied in his own mind.

With respect to the Commentary, if the object aimed at has in a fair measure been realised, it comprises the essence of Evangelical Exposition as contained in the approved and Standard Works of the Nation; while all matters, critical, doctrinal, experimental, and practical, are discussed in simple and idiomatic language, alike suited to every class and condition of society. All flat and profitless paraphrase of things sufficiently plain—all barren and useless speculation on subjects equally beyond the province of reason and of revelation—all needless and unprofitable controversies on questions which only minister to strife and division—all mere scholastic disquisition, with no direct bearing on the understanding, the heart, and the life, have been excluded. Display of every sort has been studiously avoided, as out of place in such a publication. Results are everywhere set forth, generally without reference to the processes by which they have been reached; but there is no subject, however arduous and formidable, on which an opinion of some sort has not been recorded. Difficulties of all kinds, as they turned up, have been boldly grappled with; the case has been fairly stated, and all the lights at present shining brought to bear upon it. Where absolute certainty has been unattainable, the probabilities have been weighed and stated; and where human wisdom has still been unavailing, confession to that effect has been frankly made. The reader, it is believed, will generally look in vain to the larger Commentaries for the solution of difficulties which are unexplained here. What may be considered the marrow of such works, severed from the multifarious mass of varied matter with which it is mixed up, is confined to a space which may easily be accorded to it even within the limits of this small volume. The greatest truths may be presented in the simplest language, and much matter put into a few words.

The Publisher aspired to the production of a Bible that should possess claims to the confidence of the Protestant Churches of the Realm, and prove serviceable to coming generations. For this purpose, he spared neither pains nor expense to stamp every department of the Volume with the impress of excellence. While the typography of the Text and Notes is the best the age can supply, the References—to which so much importance attaches, as the best and surest instrument of interpretation—have been expressly prepared by a Scottish Clergyman, the REV. DAVID M'MEIKAN, who has devoted himself to this laborious task with a care, a wisdom, and a perseverance deserving special acknowledgment. As examination will shew, these References are real—not merely apparent; substantial—not merely arbitrary.

It is hoped the Introduction will be generally acceptable to those classes for whom the Commentary is more especially intended; and that the Outline of Doctrine and the Epitome of Evidence there presented, will be of great and lasting service; the former by aiding inquiry and promoting settled views, and the latter by fortifying faith and enhancing reverence for the Sacred Volume.

Notwithstanding all the efforts which have been exerted in the preparation of the Volume, such is the imperfection attaching to all the labours of man, that it is sent forth with a deep sense of its manifold deficiencies. It only remains, therefore, humbly to present it to the Churches of the land, in the hope that they will receive it with candour, as a sincere attempt to advance the interests of religion, and devoutly to commend it to the blessing of the Most High, whose glory in the world it is designed to promote.

INTRODUCTION.

THE principles which have governed the preparation of the following Commentary are those of the Great Reformation ; and they are, consequently, identical with the doctrinal views of the Westminster Assembly of Divines and the Fathers of the English Church ; which, it may be safely affirmed, are in substantial accordance with the Holy Scriptures. The following Outline of Theological Truth is a full and accurate Digest of their recorded views in their respective Standards, fitted, it is presumed, to be of incalculable service to the readers of the EXPOSITORY BIBLE. It constitutes a body of spiritual light, by means of which they may find their way, with ease and certainty, to the temple of truth, avoiding the labyrinths of learning, and the quagmires of controversy, which but tend to distract thought, chill devotion, damp zeal, and impede progress in knowledge and piety. It may be taken as a compend of Scriptural Theology, thoroughly purged alike from sectarian alloy and heretical pravity. On all the great points specified it presents conceptions of Divine truth, positive, clear, and definite, everywhere exhibiting coherence, solidity, and accordance with the analogy of faith—qualities for which the Theology of the British Reformers was distinguished above that of all their European contemporaries. These elements form a rock on which the faithful may build with all confidence and safety. The mind of the Spirit, in the Inspired Volume, beyond all rational controversy, is there : in that compend they have the very essence of the Reformed Theology ; “the children of the kingdom,” therefore, may here, with the utmost advantage, commence the study of those things which belong to their peace, where the ablest, the wisest, and the best men of modern times, when called from earth to heaven, left off their inquiries, after consecrating to them the days and nights of a lifetime. The hoard of collective wisdom is all their own. The advantage of such a position is too great to be easily apprehended. Here, within a small compass, is an embodiment of doctrinal truth, which no man, whatever his zeal or capacity, wholly unaided by others, in the course of the longest life, could ever have formed for himself. The following is the Summary of which it consists :—

THE LIVING AND TRUE GOD.

There is but one living and true God, everlasting, without body, parts, or passions ; of infinite power, wisdom, and goodness ; the Maker and Preserver of all things, both visible and invisible : and, in unity of this Godhead, there are three persons, of one substance, power, and eternity ; the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost.

THE WORD WHICH WAS MADE MAN.

The Son, who is the Word of the Father, begotten from everlasting of the Father, the very and eternal God, and of one substance with the Father, took Man's nature ; so that two whole and perfect Natures—that is to say, the Godhead and manhood—were joined together in one Person never to be divided, whereof is one Christ, very God, and very Man ; who truly suffered, was crucified, dead and buried, to reconcile his Father to us, and to be a sacrifice, not only for original guilt, but also for actual sins of men.

THE HOLY SPIRIT.

The Holy Ghost, proceeding from the Father and the Son, is of one substance, majesty, and glory, with the Father and the Son, very and eternal God.

THE CREATION OF THE UNIVERSE.

It pleased God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, for the manifestation of the glory of his eternal power, wisdom, and goodness, in the beginning, to create the world, and all things therein, whether visible or invisible, in the space of six days, and all very good. After God had made all other creatures, he created man, male and female, with reasonable and immortal souls, endued with knowledge, righteousness, and true holiness, after his own image, having the law of God written in their hearts, and power to fulfil it ; and yet under a possibility of transgressing, being left to the liberty of their own will, which was subject to change. Besides this law written in their hearts, they received a command not to eat of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil ; which while they kept, they were happy in their communion with God, and had dominion over the creatures.

MANIFOLD OPERATIONS OF DIVINE PROVIDENCE.

God, the great Creator of all things, upholds, directs, disposes, and governs all creatures, actions, and events, from the greatest even to the least, by his most wise and holy providence, according to his infallible foreknowledge, and the free and immutable counsel of his own will, to the praise of the glory of his wisdom, power, justice, goodness, and mercy. Although, in relation to the foreknowledge and purposes of God, the first cause, all things come to pass immutably and infallibly ; yet, by the same providence, he orders them to fall out according to the nature of second causes, either necessarily, freely, or contingently. God in his ordinary providence makes use of means, yet is free to work without, above, and against them, at his pleasure. The almighty power, unsearchable wisdom, and infinite goodness of God, so far manifest themselves in his providence, that it extends itself even to the first fall, and all other sins of angels and men, and that not by a bare permission, but such as has joined with it a most wise and powerful bounding, and otherwise ordering and governing of them, in a manifold dispensation, to his own holy ends ; yet so as the sinfulness thereof proceeds only from the creature, and not from God ; who being most holy and righteous, neither is nor can be the author or approver of sin. The most wise, righteous, and gracious God, oftentimes leaves for a season his own children to manifold temptations, and the corruption of their own hearts, to chastise them for their former sins, or to discover to them the hidden strength of corruption, and deceitfulness of their hearts, that they may be humbled ; and to raise them to a more close and constant dependence for their support upon himself, and to make them more watchful against all future occasions of sin, and for sundry other just and holy ends. As for those wicked and ungodly men, whom God as a righteous judge, for former sins, blinds and hardens, from them he not only withholds his grace, whereby they might have been enlightened in their understandings, and wrought upon in their hearts ; but sometimes also withdraws the gifts which they had, and exposes them to such objects as their corruption makes occasion of sin ; and withal, gives them over to their own lusts, the temptations of the world, and the power of Satan : whereby it comes to pass, that they harden themselves even under those means which God useth for the softening of others. As the providence of God, in general, reaches to all creatures ; so, after a most special manner, it takes care of his Church, and disposes all things to the good thereof.

THE FALL OF MAN ; SIN, AND PUNISHMENT.

Our first parents being seduced by the subtilty of Satan, sinned in eating the forbidden fruit. This their sin God was pleased, according to his wise and holy counsel, to permit, having purposed to order it to his own glory. By this sin they fell from their original righteousness, and communion with God, and so became dead in sin, and wholly defiled in all the faculties and parts of soul and body. They being the root of all mankind, the guilt of this sin was imputed, and the same death in sin and corrupted nature conveyed to all their posterity, descending from them by ordinary generation. From this original corruption, whereby we are utterly indisposed, disabled, and made opposite to all good, and wholly inclined to all evil, proceed all actual transgressions. This corruption of nature, during this life, remains in those that are regenerated : and although it is through Christ pardoned and mortified, yet both itself, and all its motions, are truly and properly sin. Every sin, both original and actual, being a transgression of the righteous law of God, and contrary thereunto, in its own nature, brings guilt upon the sinner, whereby he is exposed to the wrath of God, and the curse of the law, and so made subject to death, with all miseries, spiritual, temporal, and eternal.

THE COVENANT OF GRACE.

The distance between God and the creature is so great, that although reasonable natures owe obedience to him as their Creator, they could never have any fruition of him as their blessedness and reward, but by some voluntary condescension on God's part, which he has been pleased to express by way of covenant. The first covenant made with man was a covenant of works, wherein life was promised to Adam, and in him to his posterity, upon condition of obedience. Man by his fall having made himself incapable of life by that covenant, the Lord was pleased to make a second, commonly called the Covenant of Grace: whereby he freely offers to sinners life and salvation by Jesus Christ, requiring of them faith in him, that they may be saved; and promising to give all those that are ordained unto life his Holy Spirit, in order to penitence and faith. This covenant of grace is frequently set forth in Scripture by the name of a Testament, in reference to the death of Jesus Christ the testator, and to the everlasting inheritance, with all things belonging to it, therein bequeathed. This covenant was differently administered in the time of the law, and in the time of the Gospel: under the law it was administered by promises, prophecies, sacrifices, circumcision, the paschal lamb, and other types and ordinances delivered to the people of the Jews, all foreshadowing Christ still to come, which were for that time sufficient and efficacious, through the operation of the Spirit, to instruct and build up the elect in faith of the promised Messiah, by whom they had full remission of sins, and eternal salvation; and is called the Old Testament. Under the Gospel, when Christ the substance is exhibited, the ordinances in which this covenant is set forth are the preaching of the Word, and the administration of Baptism and the Lord's Supper; which, though dispensed with more simplicity and less outward glory, yet in them it is held forth in more fulness, evidence, and spiritual efficacy, to all nations, both Jews and Gentiles; and is called the New Testament. There are not therefore two covenants of grace, differing in substance, but one and the same under various dispensations.

THE MEDIATOR OF THE NEW COVENANT.

It pleased God, in his eternal purpose, to choose and ordain the Lord Jesus, his only-begotten Son, to be the Mediator between God and man; the Prophet, Priest, and King; the Head and Saviour of his Church; the Heir of all things; and Judge of the world: unto whom he did from all eternity give a people to be his seed, and to be by him in time redeemed, called, justified, sanctified, and glorified. The Son of God, the second person in the Trinity, being very and eternal God, equal with the Father, when the fulness of time was come, took upon him man's nature, with all its essential properties and common infirmities, yet without sin. So that two whole, perfect, and distinct natures, the Godhead and the manhood, were inseparably joined together in one person, without conversion, composition, or confusion. Which person is very God and very man, yet one Christ, the only Mediator between God and man. The Lord Jesus, in his human nature thus united to the Divine, was sanctified and anointed with the Holy Spirit above measure; having in him all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge; in whom it pleased the Father that all fulness should dwell; to the end that, being holy, harmless, undefiled, and full of grace and truth, he might be thoroughly furnished to execute the office of a Mediator and Surety; which office he took not unto himself, but was thereunto called by his Father; who put all power and judgment into his hand, and gave him commandment to execute the same. This office the Lord Jesus most willingly undertook; which that he might discharge, he was made under the law, and perfectly fulfilled it; was crucified, and died; was buried, and remained for a season under the power of death, yet saw no corruption. On the third day he arose from the dead, with the same body in which he suffered; with which also he ascended into heaven, and there sits at the right hand of his Father, making intercession; and shall return to judge men and angels at the end of the world. The Lord Jesus, by his perfect obedience and sacrifice of himself, which he through the eternal Spirit once offered up to God, has fully satisfied the justice of his Father, and purchased not only reconciliation, but an everlasting inheritance in the kingdom of heaven, for all those whom the Father has given to him. Although the work of redemption was not actually wrought by Christ till after his incarnation, the virtue, efficacy, and benefits of it were communicated unto the elect in all ages successively from the beginning of the world, in and by those promises, types, and sacrifices, wherein he was revealed and signified to be the Seed of the woman, which should bruise the serpent's head, and the Lamb slain from the beginning of the world, being yesterday and to-day the same, and for ever. Christ, in the work of mediation, acts according to both natures; by each nature doing that which is proper to itself; yet, by reason of the unity of the person, that which is proper to one nature is sometimes, in Scripture, attributed to the person denominated by the other nature. To all those for whom Christ has purchased redemption, he certainly and effectually applies and communicates the same; making intercession for them; and revealing to them, in and by the Word, the mysteries of salvation; effectually leading them by his Spirit to believe and obey; governing their hearts by his Word and Spirit; and overcoming all their enemies by his almighty power and wisdom, in such manner and ways as are most consonant to his wonderful and unsearchable dispensation.

PREDESTINATION AND ELECTION.

Predestination to life is the everlasting purpose of God, whereby, before the foundations of the world were laid, he has constantly decreed by his counsel secret to us, to deliver from curse and damnation those whom he hath chosen in Christ out of mankind, and to bring them by Christ to everlasting salvation, as vessels made to honour. Wherefore they who are endued with so excellent a benefit of God, are called according to God's purpose, by his Spirit working in due season: they, through grace, obey the calling: they are justified freely: they are made sons of God by adoption: they are made like the image of his only-begotten Son Jesus Christ: they walk religiously in good works: and at length, by God's mercy, they attain to everlasting felicity.

ASPECT OF THE GOSPEL TOWARDS MANKIND.

The Election of Grace is purely inclusive in its operation; it shuts out none. It prevents no man's accepting "the faithful saying, worthy of all men to be received;" it only prevents all men's rejection of it. While it infallibly secures the salvation of a multitude, which no man can number, out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation, it involves not the perdition of a single individual. All mankind need the Gospel, and it is, in good faith and boundless mercy, proclaimed to them. The Lord Jesus has expressly ordered it to be preached through all the world, and to every creature. While all who hear are commanded to repent and believe, destruction is threatened to the impenitent and the infidel; and thus the voice of Divine authority comes to support the voice of Divine compassion. Jesus Christ "gave himself a ransom for all." "He is the propitiation for our sins; and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world." "By his death on the Cross, he made a full, perfect, and sufficient sacrifice, oblation, and satisfaction for the sins of the whole world." The Divine command to the human family is—"Whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." Let no man, then, say, that because others are chosen to eternal life, he is consigned to eternal death. "He that believeth shall be saved; he that believeth not shall be damned." Unbelief is a voluntary act; the unbeliever, therefore, and not the Divine decree, is the cause of his own destruction.

THE FREEDOM OF THE WILL.

God has endued the will of man with natural liberty, so that it is neither forced, nor by any absolute necessity of nature determined, to good or evil. Man, in his state of innocence, had freedom and power to will and to do that which is good and well-pleasing to God; but yet mutably, so that he might fall from it. Man, by his fall into a state of sin, has wholly lost all power of will to any spiritual good accompanying salvation; as a natural man, therefore, being altogether averse from that good, and dead in sin, he is unable, by his own strength, to convert himself, and turn to the Lord. When God converts a sinner, and translates him into the state of grace, he frees him from his natural bondage under sin, and by his grace alone enables and disposes him freely to will and to do that which is spiritually good; and yet, by reason of his remaining corruption, he does not perfectly nor only will that which is good, but does also will that which is evil. The will of man is made perfectly and immutably free to do good in the state of glory only.

EFFECTUAL CALLING OF THE ELECT.

All those whom God has predestinated unto life he is pleased, in his appointed and accepted time, effectually to call, by his Word and Spirit, out of that state of sin and death, in which they are by nature, to grace and salvation by Jesus Christ; enlightening their minds spiritually and savingly to understand the things of God; taking away their heart of stone, and giving them a heart of flesh; renewing their wills, and by his almighty power determining them to that which is good; and effectually drawing them to Jesus Christ; yet so as they come most freely, being made willing by his Spirit. This effectual call is of God's free and special grace alone, not from anything at all foreseen in man; who is altogether passive therein, until, being quickened and renewed by the Holy Spirit, he is thereby led to answer the call, and to embrace the grace offered and conveyed in it.

REPENTANCE UNTO LIFE.

Repentance unto life is an evangelical grace, the doctrine whereof is to be preached to every soul of man, as well as that of faith in Christ. By it a sinner, out of the sight and sense, not only of the danger, but also of the filthiness and odiousness of his sins, as contrary to the holy nature and righteous law of God, and upon the apprehension of his mercy in Christ to such as are penitent, so grieves for and hates his sins as to turn from them all unto God, purposing and endeavouring to walk with him in all the ways of his commandments. Although repentance is not to be rested in, as any satisfaction for sin, or any cause of the pardon thereof, which is the act of God's free grace in Christ; yet it is of such necessity to all sinners, that none may expect pardon without it. As there is no sin so small but it deserves damnation, so there is no sin so great that it can bring damnation upon those who truly repent. As every man is bound to make private confession of his sins to God, praying for the pardon thereof; upon which, and the forsaking of them, he shall find mercy; so he that scandaliseth his brother, or the Church of Christ, ought to be willing, by a private or public confession and sorrow for his sin, to declare his repentance to those that are offended; who are thereupon to be reconciled to him, and in love to receive him.

THE FAITH OF THE GOSPEL.

The grace of faith, whereby the elect believe to the saving of their souls, is the work of the Spirit of Christ in their hearts, and is ordinarily wrought by the ministry of the Word: by which also, and by the administration of the Sacraments, and prayer, it is increased and strengthened. By this faith, a Christian believes to be true whatsoever is revealed in the Word, for the authority of God himself speaking therein, and acts differently upon that which each particular passage contains; yielding obedience to the commands, trembling at the threatenings, and embracing the promises of God for this life and that which is to come. But the principal acts of saving faith are accepting, receiving, and resting upon Christ alone for justification, sanctification, and eternal life, by virtue of the covenant of grace. This faith is different in degrees, weak or strong; may be often and many ways assailed and weakened, but gets the victory; growing up in many to the attainment of a full assurance through Christ, who is both its author and finisher.

EVANGELICAL JUSTIFICATION.

Those whom God effectually calls, he also freely justifies; not by infusing righteousness into them, but by pardoning their sins, and by accounting and accepting their persons as righteous: not for anything wrought in them, or done by them, but for Christ's sake alone: not by imputing faith itself, the act of believing, or any other evangelical obedience, to them as their righteousness; but by imputing the obedience and satisfaction of Christ unto them, they receiving and resting on him and his righteousness by faith: which faith they have not of themselves; it is the gift of God. Faith, thus receiving and resting on Christ and his righteousness, is the alone instrument of justification; it is not alone, however, in the person justified, but is always accompanied with the other saving graces, and is no dead faith, but works by love. Christ, by his obedience and death, fully discharged the debt of all those that are thus justified, and made a proper, real, and full satisfaction to his Father's justice in their behalf. Yet, inasmuch as he was given by the Father for them, and his obedience and satisfaction accepted in their stead, and both freely, not for anything in them, their justification is only of free grace; that both the exact justice and rich grace of God might be glorified in the justification of sinners. God, from all eternity, decreed to justify all the elect; and Christ, in the fulness of time, died for their sins, and rose again for their justification: nevertheless they are not justified, until the Holy Spirit in due time actually apply Christ unto them. God continues to forgive the sins of those that are justified: and although they can never fall from the state of justification, yet they may by their sins fall under God's fatherly displeasure, and not have the light of his countenance restored unto them, until they humble themselves, confess their sins, beg pardon, and renew their faith and repentance. The justification of believers under the Old Testament was, in all these respects, one and the same with the justification of believers under the New Testament.

ADOPTION INTO THE FAMILY OF GOD.

All those that are justified, God vouchsafes, in and for the sake of his only Son Jesus Christ, to make partakers of the grace of adoption: by which they are taken into the number, and enjoy the liberties and privileges of the children of God ; have his name put upon them ; receive the Spirit of adoption ; have access to the throne of grace with boldness ; are enabled to cry, Abba, Father ; are pitied, protected, provided for, and, when necessary, chastened by him as by a father, yet never cast off, but sealed to the day of redemption, and inherit the promises, as heirs of everlasting salvation.

SANCTIFICATION OF BELIEVERS.

They who are effectually called and regenerated, having a new heart and a right spirit created in them, are farther sanctified, really and personally, through the virtue of Christ's death and resurrection, by his Word and Spirit dwelling in them ; the dominion of the whole body of sin is destroyed, and the several lusts thereof are more and more weakened and mortified, and they more and more quickened and strengthened in all saving graces, to the practice of true holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord. This sanctification is throughout in the whole man, yet imperfect in this life ; there abide still some remnants of corruption in every part : whence arises a continual and irreconcilable war ; the flesh lusting against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh ; in which war, although the remaining corruption for a time may much prevail, yet, through the continual supply of strength from the sanctifying Spirit of Christ, the regenerate part overcomes : and so the saints grow in grace, perfecting holiness in the fear of God.

THE GOOD WORKS OF BELIEVERS.

Good works are only such as God hath commanded in his Holy Word, and not such as, without the warrant thereof, are devised by men out of blind zeal, or upon any pretence of good intention. These good works, done in obedience to God's commandments, are the fruits and evidences of a true and lively faith : and by them believers manifest their thankfulness, strengthen their assurance, edify their brethren, adorn the profession of the Gospel, stop the mouths of the adversaries, and glorify God, whose workmanship they are, created in Christ Jesus thereunto ; that, having their fruit unto holiness, they may have the end eternal life. Their ability to do good works is not at all of themselves, but wholly from the Spirit of Christ ; and that they may be enabled thereunto, besides the graces they have already received, there is required an actual influence of the same Holy Spirit to work in them to will and to do of his good pleasure : yet are they not hereupon to grow negligent, as if they were not bound to perform any duty unless upon a special motion of the Spirit ; but they ought to be diligent in stirring up the grace of God that is in them. They who in their obedience attain to the greatest height which is possible in this life, are so far from being able to do more than God requires, that they fall short of much which in duty they are bound to do. We cannot, by our best works, merit pardon of sin, or eternal life, at the hand of God, by reason of the great disproportion that is between them and the glory to come, and the infinite distance that is between us and God, whom by them we can neither profit nor satisfy for the debt of our former sins ; but when we have done all we can, we have done but our duty, and are unprofitable servants ; and because, as they are good, they proceed from his Spirit, and as they are wrought by us, they are defiled and mixed with so much weakness and imperfection, that they cannot endure the severity of God's judgment. Yet, notwithstanding, the persons of believers being accepted through Christ, their good works also are accepted in him ; not as though they were in this life wholly unblamable and unreprovable in God's sight, but that he, looking upon them in his Son, is pleased to accept and reward that which is sincere, although accompanied with many weaknesses and imperfections. Works done by unregenerate men, although, for the matter of them, they may be things which God commands, and of good use both to themselves and others ; yet, because they proceed not from a heart purified by faith, from love to Christ, and a regard to the glory of God, they are therefore sinful, and cannot please God.

PERSEVERANCE OF THE SAINTS IN FAITH AND HOLINESS.

They whom God hath accepted in his Beloved, effectually called and sanctified by his Spirit, can neither totally nor finally fall away from the state of grace ; but shall certainly persevere therein to the end, and be eternally saved. This perseverance of the saints depends not upon their own free will, but upon the immutability of the Divine purpose, flowing from the free and unchangeable love of God the Father, upon the efficacy of the merit and intercession of Jesus Christ, the abiding of the Spirit, and of the seed of God within them, and the nature of the covenant of grace : from all which ariseth also the certainty and infallibility thereof. Nevertheless they may, through the temptations of Satan and of the world, the prevalence of corruption remaining in them, and the neglect of the means of their preservation, fall into grievous sins, and for a time continue therein: whereby they incur God's displeasure, and grieve his Holy Spirit; come to be deprived of some measure of their graces and comforts; have their hearts hardened, and their consciences wounded; hurt and scandalise others, and bring temporal chastisements upon themselves.

ASSURANCE OF GRACE AND SALVATION.

Such as truly believe in the Lord Jesus, and love him in sincerity, endeavouring to walk in all good conscience before him, may in this life be certainly assured that they are in the state of grace, and may rejoice in the hope of the glory of God; which hope shall never make them ashamed. This certainty is not a mere conjectural and probable persuasion, grounded upon a fallible hope; but an infallible assurance of faith, founded upon the divine truth of the promises of salvation, the inward evidence of those graces unto which these promises are made, the testimony of the Spirit of adoption witnessing with our spirits that we are the children of God: which Spirit is the earnest of our inheritance, whereby we are sealed to the day of redemption. This infallible assurance does not so belong to the essence of faith, but that a true believer may wait long, and maintain a conflict with many difficulties, before he be partaker of it: yet, being enabled by the Spirit to know the things which are freely given him of God, he may, without extraordinary revelation, in the right use of ordinary means, attain to it; and, therefore, it is the duty of every one to give all diligence to make his calling and election sure; that thereby his heart may be enlarged in peace and joy in the Holy Ghost, in love and thankfulness to God, and in strength and cheerfulness in the duties of obedience, the proper fruits of this assurance. True believers may have the assurance of their salvation divers ways shaken, diminished, and intermitted; as, by negligence in preserving of it; by falling into some special sin, which wounds the conscience, and grieves the Spirit; by some sudden or vehement temptation; yet are they never utterly destitute of that seed of God and life of faith, that love of Christ and the brethren, that sincerity of heart and conscience of duty, out of which, by the operation of the Spirit, this assurance may in due time be revived, and by the which, in the meantime, they are supported from utter despair.

THE LAW OF GOD IN THE EVANGELICAL ECONOMY.

God gave to Adam a law, as a covenant of works, by which he bound him, and all his posterity, to perfect and perpetual obedience, promised life upon the fulfilling, and threatened death upon the breach of it; and endued him with power and ability to keep it. This law, after his fall, continued to be a perfect rule of righteousness, and, as such, was delivered by God upon mount Sinai in ten commandments, and written in two tables; the first four commandments containing our duty towards God, and the other six our duty to man. Besides this law, commonly called moral, God was pleased to give to the people of Israel, as a church under age, ceremonial laws, containing several typical ordinances, partly of worship, prefiguring Christ, his graces, actions, sufferings, and benefits; and partly holding forth divers instructions of moral duties, all which ceremonial laws are now abrogated under the New Testament. To them also, as a body politic, he gave sundry judicial laws, which expired together with the state of that people, not obliging any other now, further than general equity may require. The moral law doth for ever bind all, as well justified persons as others, to the obedience thereof; and that not only in regard of the matter contained in it, but also in respect of the authority of God, the Creator, who gave it. Neither doth Christ in the Gospel any way dissolve, but much strengthen this obligation. Although true believers are not under the law as a covenant of works, to be thereby justified or condemned; yet it is of great use to them, as well as to others, in that, as a rule of life, informing them of the will of God and their duty, it directs and binds them to walk accordingly; discovering also the sinful pollutions of their nature, hearts, and lives, so as, examining themselves thereby, they may come to further conviction of, humiliation for, and hatred against sin; together with a clearer sight of the need they have of Christ, and the perfection of his obedience. It is likewise of use to the regenerate, to restrain their corruptions, in that it forbids sin; and the threatenings of it serve to shew what even their sins deserve, and what afflictions in this life they may expect for them, although freed from the curse thereof threatened in the law. The promises of it, in like manner, shew them God's approbation of obedience, and what blessings they may expect upon obedience, although not as due to them by the law as a covenant of works : so as a man's doing good and refraining from evil, because the law encourages to the one and deters from the other, is no evidence of his being under the law, and not under grace. Neither are the forementioned uses of the law contrary to the grace of the Gospel, but do sweetly comply with it; the Spirit of Christ subduing and enabling the will of man to do that freely and cheerfully, which the will of God revealed in the law requireth to be done.

CHRISTIAN LIBERTY, AND LIBERTY OF CONSCIENCE.

The liberty which Christ hath purchased for believers under the Gospel, consists in their freedom from the guilt of sin, the condemning wrath of God, the curse of the moral law; and in their being delivered from this present evil world, bondage to Satan, and dominion of sin, from the evil of afflictions, the sting of death, the victory of the grave, and everlasting damnation; as also in their free access to God and their yielding obedience unto him, not out of slavish fear, but a child-like love, and willing mind. All which were common also to believers under the law; but under the New Testament, the liberty of Christians is further enlarged, in their freedom from the yoke of the ceremonial law to which the Jewish Church was subjected, and in greater boldness of access to the throne of grace, and in fuller communications of the free Spirit of God, than believers under the law did ordinarily partake of. God alone is lord of the conscience, and hath left it free from the doctrines and commandments of men which are in anything contrary to his word, or beside it, in matters of faith or worship. So that to believe such doctrines, or to obey such commandments out of conscience, is to betray true liberty of conscience; and the requiring of an implicit faith, and an absolute and blind obedience, is to destroy liberty of conscience, and reason also. They who, upon pretence of Christian liberty, practise any sin, or cherish any lust, thereby destroy the end of Christian liberty; which is, that, being delivered out of the hands of our enemies, we might serve the Lord without fear, in holiness, and righteousness before him, all the days of our life. And because the powers which God hath ordained, and the liberty which Christ has purchased, are not intended by God to destroy, but mutually to uphold and preserve one another; they who, upon pretence of Christian liberty, oppose any lawful power, or the lawful exercise of it, whether it be civil or ecclesiastical, resist the ordinance of God; and for their publishing of such opinions, or maintaining of such practices, as are contrary to the light of nature or to the known principles of Christianity, whether concerning faith, worship, or conversation; or to the power of godliness; or such erroneous opinions or practices, as either in their own nature, or in the manner of publishing or maintaining them, are destructive to the external peace and order which Christ hath established in the Church; they may lawfully be called to account, and dealt with as the Word of God and the law of the land directs.

RELIGIOUS WORSHIP, AND THE LORD'S DAY.

The light of Nature sheweth that there is a God who hath lordship and sovereignty over all, is good, and doeth good unto all, and is therefore to be feared, loved, praised, called upon, trusted in, and served with all the heart, and with all the soul, and with all the might. But the acceptable way of worshipping the true God is instituted by himself, and so limited by his own revealed will that he may not be worshipped according to the imaginations and devices of men, or the suggestions of Satan, under any visible representation, or any other way not prescribed in the Holy Scripture. Religious worship is to be given to God, the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost; and to him alone: not to angels, saints, or any other creature; and, since the fall, not without a Mediator, nor in the mediation of any other but of Christ alone. Prayer, with thanksgiving, being one special part of religious worship, is by God required of all men; and, that it may be accepted, it is to be made in the name of the Son, by the help of his Spirit, according to his will, with understanding, reverence, humility, fervency, faith, love, and perseverance; and, if vocal, in a known tongue. Prayer is to be made for things lawful, and for all sorts of men. The reading of the Scriptures with godly fear; the sound preaching and devout hearing of the Word, in obedience unto God, with understanding, faith, and reverence; singing of psalms, hymns, and spiritual songs, with grace in the heart; as also the due administration and worthy receiving of the Supper instituted by Christ;—are all parts of the ordinary religious worship of God, besides solemn fastings and thanksgivings upon special occasions, which are, in their several times and seasons, to be used in a holy and religious manner. Neither prayer, nor any other part of religious worship, is now, under the Gospel, either confined to, or made more acceptable by, any place in which it is performed, or towards which it is directed;

but God is to be worshipped everywhere in spirit and in truth; as in private families daily, and in secret each one by himself; so more solemnly in the public assemblies, which are not carelessly or wilfully to be neglected or forsaken, when God, by his word or providence, calls thereunto. As it is of the law of Nature, that, in general, a due proportion of time be set apart for the worship of God; so, in his Word, by a positive, moral, and perpetual commandment, binding all men, in all ages, he hath particularly appointed one day in seven for a Sabbath, to be kept holy unto him: which, from the beginning of the world to the resurrection of Christ, was the last day of the week; and, from the resurrection of Christ, was changed into the first day of the week, which in Scripture is called the Lord's day, and is to be continued to the end of the world, as the Christian Sabbath. This Sabbath is then kept holy unto the Lord, when men, after a due preparing of their hearts, and ordering of their common affairs beforehand, do not only observe a holy rest all the day from their own works, words, and thoughts about their worldly employments and recreations; but also are taken up the whole time in the public and private exercises of his worship, and in the duties of necessity and mercy, and in endeavours to promote the salvation of souls.

THE CHURCH UNIVERSAL.

The catholic or universal church, which is invisible, consists of the whole number of the Elect that have been, are, or shall be gathered into one, under Christ the Head thereof; and is the spouse, the body, the fulness of Him that filleth all in all. The visible church, which is also catholic or universal under the Gospel, not confined to one nation, as before under the law, consists of all those throughout the world that profess the true religion, together with their children; and is the kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ, the house and family of God. To this catholic visible church Christ has given the ministry, oracles, and ordinances of God, for the gathering and perfecting of the saints in this life, to the end of the world; and doth by his own presence and Spirit, according to his promise, make them effectual thereunto. This catholic church hath been sometimes more, sometimes less visible; and particular churches, which are members thereof, are more or less pure, according as the doctrine of the Gospel is taught and embraced, ordinances administered, and public worship performed more or less purely in them. The purest churches under heaven are subject both to mixture and error; and some have so degenerated as to become no churches of Christ, but synagogues of Satan. Nevertheless, there shall be always a church on earth to worship God according to his will. There is no other Head of the Church but the Lord Jesus Christ: nor can the Pope of Rome in any sense be head thereof; but is that Antichrist, that Man of Sin, and Son of Perdition, that exalteth himself in the Church against Christ, and all that is called God.

THE COMMUNION OF SAINTS.

All saints that are united to Jesus Christ their Head by his Spirit, and by faith, have fellowship with him in his graces, sufferings, death, resurrection, and glory; and being united to one another in love, they have communion in each other's gifts and graces, and are obliged to the performance of such duties, public and private, as do conduce to their mutual good, both in the inward and outward man. Saints, by profession, are bound to maintain a holy fellowship and communion in the worship of God, and in performing such other spiritual services as tend to their mutual edification; as also in relieving each other in outward things, according to their several abilities and necessities; which communion, as God offereth opportunity, is to be extended to all those who in every place call upon the name of the Lord Jesus.

THE CHRISTIAN SACRAMENTS.

Sacraments are holy signs and seals of the covenant of grace, immediately instituted by God, to represent Christ and his benefits, and to confirm our interest in him; as also to put a visible difference between those that belong to the Church and the rest of the world; and solemnly to engage them to the service of God in Christ, according to his Word. There is in such ordinances a spiritual relation, or sacramental union, between the sign and the thing signified; whence it comes to pass, that the names and effects of the one are attributed to the other. The grace which is exhibited in or by the sacraments, rightly used, is not conferred by any power in them; neither doth the efficacy of a sacrament depend upon the piety or intention of him that administers it, but upon the work of the Spirit, and the word of institution; which contains, together with a precept authorising its use, a promise of benefit to worthy receivers. There are only two sacraments ordained by Christ our Lord in the Gospel—that is to say, Baptism, and the Supper of the Lord. The sacraments of the Old Testament, in regard of the spiritual things thereby signified and exhibited, were, for substance, the same with those of the New.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM.

Baptism is a sacrament of the New Testament, ordained by Jesus Christ, not only for the solemn admission of the party baptized into the visible Church, but also to be unto him a sign and seal of the covenant of grace, of his ingrafting into Christ, of regeneration, of remission of sins, and of his giving up to God through Jesus Christ, to walk in newness of life. The outward element to be used in this sacrament is water, wherewith the party is to be baptized in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Baptism may be administered by pouring, or sprinkling, or immersion, whether to adult believers or their children, according to the conscientious views and convictions of the parties concerned.

THE LORD'S SUPPER.

Our Lord Jesus, in the night wherein he was betrayed, instituted the sacrament of his body and blood, called the Lord's Supper, to be observed in his Church unto the end of the world, for the perpetual remembrance of the sacrifice of himself in his death, the sealing all benefits thereof to true believers, their spiritual nourishment and growth in him, their further engagement to all duties which they owe to him, and to be a bond and pledge of their communion with him, and with each other, as members of his mystical body. In this sacrament Christ is not offered up to his Father, nor any real sacrifice made at all for remission of sins of the quick or dead; but only a commemoration of that one offering up of himself, by himself, upon the cross, once for all, and a spiritual oblation of all possible praise unto God for the same; so that the Popish sacrifice of the mass, as they call it, is most abominably injurious to Christ's one only sacrifice, the alone propitiation for all the sins of the elect. The Lord Jesus hath, in this ordinance, appointed his ministers to declare his word of institution to the people, to pray, and give thanks for the bread and wine, and thereby to set them apart from a common to a holy use; and to take and break the bread, to take the cup, and to give both to the communicants. Private masses, or receiving this sacrament by a priest, or any other, alone; as likewise the denial of the cup to the people; worshipping the elements, the lifting them up, or carrying them about for adoration, and the reserving them for any pretended religious use, are all contrary to the nature of this sacrament, and to the institution of Christ. The outward elements in this sacrament, duly set apart to the uses ordained by Christ, have such relation to him crucified, as that truly, yet sacramentally only, they are sometimes called by the name of the things they represent—to wit, the body and blood of Christ; albeit, in substance and nature, they still remain truly and only bread and wine, as they were before. That doctrine which maintains a change of the substance of bread and wine into the substance of Christ's body and blood, commonly called Transubstantiation, by consecration of a priest, is repugnant not to Scripture alone, but even to common sense and reason; overthrowing the nature of the sacrament; and has been and is the cause of manifold superstitions, yea, of gross idolatries. Worthy receivers, outwardly partaking of the visible elements in this sacrament, also inwardly by faith, really and indeed, yet not carnally and corporally, but spiritually, receive and feed upon Christ crucified, and all benefits of his death; the body and blood of Christ being then not corporally or carnally in, with, or under the bread and wine; yet as really, but spiritually, present to the faith of believers in that ordinance, as the elements themselves are to their outward senses. Although ignorant and wicked men receive the outward elements in this sacrament, yet they receive not the thing signified thereby; but by their unworthy coming thereunto are guilty of the body and blood of the Lord. Wherefore all ignorant and ungodly persons, as they are unfit to enjoy communion with him, so are they unworthy of the Lord's table, and cannot, without great sin against Christ, while they remain such, partake of these holy mysteries, or be admitted thereunto.

DEATH AND RESURRECTION.

The bodies of men after death return to dust, and see corruption; but their souls, which neither die nor sleep, having an immortal subsistence, immediately return to God who gave them. The souls of the righteous, being then made perfect in holiness, are received into the highest heavens, where they behold the face of God in light and glory, waiting for the full redemption of their bodies ; and the souls of the wicked are cast into hell, where they remain in torments and utter darkness, reserved to the judgment of the great day. Besides these two places for souls separated from their bodies, the Scripture acknowledgeth none. At the last day, such as are found alive shall not die, but be changed : and all the dead shall be raised up with the self-same bodies, and none other, although with different qualities, which shall be united again to their souls for ever. The bodies of the unjust shall, by the power of Christ, be raised to dishonour ; the bodies of the just, by his Spirit, unto honour, and be made conformable to his own glorious body.

THE DAY OF JUDGMENT.

God hath appointed a day wherein he will judge the world in righteousness by Jesus Christ, to whom all power and judgment is given of the Father. In which day, not only the apostate angels shall be judged, but likewise all persons that have lived upon earth shall appear before the tribunal of Christ, to give an account of their thoughts, words, and deeds, and to receive according to what they have done in the body, whether good or evil. The end of God's appointing this day is for the manifestation of the glory of his mercy in the eternal salvation of the Elect, and of his justice in the damnation of the wicked for their impenitence and unbelief. For then shall the righteous go into everlasting life, and receive that fulness of joy which shall come from the presence of the Lord ; but the wicked, who know not God, and obey not the Gospel of Jesus Christ, shall be cast into eternal torments, and be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power. As Christ has given men to understand that there shall be a day of judgment, both to deter all men from sin, and for the greater consolation of the godly in their adversity, so has he left that day unknown to men, that they may shake off all carnal security, and be always watchful, because they know not at what hour the Lord will come ; and may be ever prepared to say, Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly. Amen.

The foregoing Outline is not offered either as intended to bind individual conscience, or to supersede personal inquiry, but simply as an invaluable assistance. The reader is earnestly counselled, following the example of the " noble Bereans," to " search the Scriptures whether these things be so." This is due alike to reason and to religion. One of the most important points of Protestantism, as opposed to Popery, is the " right of private judgment," and that right let no man surrender. But even this high privilege will prove worthless unless it be properly exercised. It positively interdicts the taking of aught on such subjects for granted, or upon authority, and insists on personal investigation. The reader, indeed, is here presented with the results of the most learned, laborious, patient, and profound examination of the Sacred Volume ever carried on in this or any other country ; but even that, although to be received with profound reverence, is not to be taken as the standard of truth, but simply as a help to personal endeavour in searching after it. The reader is advised, entreated, urged, by devout study, to work out for himself conscientious convictions of the truth or the error of these theological conclusions. He has here, so to speak, a map, with notes of a tour, prepared with extraordinary care, by travellers of acknowledged ability, veracity, and industry ; let him test the same by taking his own bearings as to both latitude and longitude, examining for himself hill and dale, river, lake, and sea—climate, soil, and products—men, manners, institutions, and everything that enters into the subject. The man who shall thus thoroughly scrutinise the foregoing Articles, under the lights of Inspiration, when he shall have concluded, will be himself a divine of no mean order. By that time, it may be presumed, that the word of Christ will dwell in him richly in all wisdom, and that he will excel in spiritual understanding. The Articles are the Commentary concentrated, or the Commentary is the Articles expanded ; in both, the primary object has been to diminish language and augment thought—to comprise the largest amount of matter in the smallest number of words.

The prefixing of these Articles, it is believed, may serve ends of the utmost importance. That they will obtain from multitudes a frequent perusal is certain, and the benefits which may thus accrue to personal piety and evangelical truth it is impossible to calculate. They will help to guide the simple, to correct the erring, to confirm the wavering, and to strengthen the weak, putting all in the way to proceed with their own inquiries, till they " understand righteousness, and judgment, and equity, and every good path."

At no period since the Reformation, was there such an aversion to Systematic Theology in every form, as at the present hour ; and the consequences are extensively apparent. Multitudes of professed Christians now-a-days, as compared with their Reforming ancestors, are but babes in knowledge, both as to the Sacred Scriptures and the human heart. Modern wisdom pronounces this exact and comprehensive thinking antiquated, a stereotyping of opinion, and a fettering of mind! Much, too, is said about the march of intellect and the advancement of Theological science, the wants of the age, and the necessity of keeping up with the times. The desire is great for something new; and the term, as used, implies the omission of much that is old, extending back to the days of the apostles and the prophets. There lies the peril of the times we live in! The spirit from which all this sprang was first manifested by an outcry against Catechisms, Creeds, Confessions of Faith, and Articles of Religion, and all this under the specious pretext of a concern for mental freedom, and progress in religious inquiry!

It is natural to ask—Why this aversion and this hostility to “forms of sound words?” What mischief to religion has come out of them? Have they tended to quench zeal, repress devotion, shake faith, and foster unbelief? Quite the contrary! Assuredly, these digests, compends, and systems, were not the offspring of an age of intellectual stagnation and spiritual death; and it is exceedingly improbable that they should tend to produce a state of things the very reverse of that in which they originated. They were the precious fruit of such a revival of the work of God as had not been known since the foundation of Christianity, and proceeded from the pens of men not unworthy to have been associated with the Apostle of the Gentiles—men with whom the ablest of their modern despisers are not, for a moment, to be compared, or compared only as children to persons of full stature. The source whence these things sprang, was intense mental activity, fervent devotion to the study of the Scriptures, and holy zeal for the maintenance of Gospel doctrine in its purity, and the spread of the knowledge of it throughout the earth. These things were but the Holy Scriptures analysed with a view to facilitate public instruction. They were alike adapted to exhibit truth, and to expose error; they were the ramparts of the Reformation! Their value might best be learned from the fear and the hate with which they were viewed by the Pope and his clergy, who were duly alive to their power and importance as an element in the system they were called to contend against. None so much rejoice as the representatives of Rome, in the present disposition to break in pieces these bulwarks of the ancient and true faith. This, they well know, is a great step towards the ultimate extinction of the light of the glorious Gospel. All positive, definite, and settled views of Divine truth once given up, the path of error will once more be opened, by which the enemy may come in like a flood, amidst shouts of welcome from the traitors in the camp of the Lord of Hosts!

It might somewhat tend to elicit truth on this matter, to compare the authors and the opponents of positive and settled doctrine. Take the former as parents, pastors, patriots, and philanthropists, and let truth say how far the latter will gain by the process. The rejection of reason bodes ill for improvement in religion. In almost every branch of art and of science we have Catechisms, Outlines, and Systems, and their utility is not only not questioned, but everywhere acknowledged. The authors of such works are viewed, not as obstructives, but as promoters of art and science, and the benefactors of their country. There is something very suspicious, therefore, in this outcry against Creeds, Confessions, and Articles, not as Creeds binding the conscience, but as Symbols of Reformed opinion touching the testimony borne on the several subjects by the Holy Scriptures. If the principle be a sound one, why not extend it to everything analogous? Why not call for the surrender of all Catechisms, Outlines, Systems, and Syllabuses connected with Mineralogy, Botany, Chemistry, Medicine, Law, and every branch of human knowledge? The very idea of so doing would be treated as a jest, or as something indicative of mental aberration, or a token of sympathy with the Goths and Vandals of former times, rather than with Newton and the adepts in modern philosophy! No: such follies are never heard of in the regions of pure intellect and secular knowledge; they are reserved for the Church of the living God, where errors of all sorts, when driven from the world, have but too often found a refuge.

The same spirit which calls for the obliteration of the ancient landmarks in the domain of Theology demands the revision of established opinions on the subject of Inspiration. This is the great question of our times, which it becomes the Church of God vigilantly to watch and carefully to consider. The authority of the Sacred Scriptures is founded on their Inspiration. Whatever shakes the one, to that extent shakes the other. As evil proceeds from small beginnings, it is a matter of the utmost moment to guard against the first step. Between the two extreme points of full inspiration and mere reason there are many stages at which men, according to taste and temperament, may halt on their way to the goal of Infidelity. At each there is danger, which increases with every step in advance. There is no safety to such as have once entered on the downward path! Learning, falsely so called, may boast, and vain philosophy may minister to its arrogance, but the foundation of human hope standeth sure: "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness; that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." Surely the doctrine of inspiration cannot be more explicitly stated, nor the perfect sufficiency of the Scriptures more impressively set forth. The declaration covers every portion of the Holy Volume. Whatever inspiration may imply, it extends to every utterance of the Bible, and hence the propriety of the designation, "the Word of God."

Under these circumstances, then, it is of the utmost importance to understand the precise import of the term. There are those who readily accept the Word as expounded by themselves: setting aside the distinguishing doctrines of Revelation, they harmonise their system with a suitable definition of inspiration, which is just—reason. Others profess to view the Scriptures as inspired in places where the writers avowedly deliver the Word of God; but in other places, more particularly in the historical parts, they ascribe to them no higher authority than is due to the writings of well-informed and upright men. This, however, is a distinction wholly without foundation in the account the Sacred Penmen themselves have given of their own writings. If they were not constantly under infallible guidance, it is impossible to know in what particular cases they were so. No man can draw the line which separates the Divine from the human portions of the Book. To deny the plenary inspiration of the Scriptures is entirely to unsettle the foundations of faith, and to invest the subject with doubt, perplexity, and danger. If in these cases—as is the fact—we are referred to reason and feeling, then the human understanding is invested with an authority superior to that of inspiration! The Sacred Writers themselves make short work of all such untaught and arbitrary distinctions. They know them not!

Inspiration, in the highest sense, may be designated Divine dictation—the communication of supernatural ideas to the human soul. The Sacred Writers wrote under so full, perfect, and immediate an influence of the Holy Spirit, that he was the mind supplying the matter, which their pen recorded. They not merely spake in God's name, but God's words: the result was to secure the inspired writers from all error, either as to their subjects or their language; everything bore the stamp of perfection. Of much that is written, they could not possibly know anything of their own knowledge: here, therefore, the inspiration bore the highest form; it was absolute. In other cases, where they possessed personal knowledge, they were under Divine superintendence, which preserved them from error in all things appertaining to facts, doctrines, promises, or precepts—in everything which appertained to salvation.

The conclusion, then, to which we are conducted is, that every part both of the Old and of the New Testament is to be viewed as the testimony of God in the special sense in which it is offered as the truth. It is obvious to infer from this that all the Inspired Penmen were on a perfect level—none either superior or inferior to the others. They, one and all, spoke or wrote "as they were moved by the Holy Ghost." This sublime fact perfectly harmonises with the varieties of style which characterise their several compositions, and which naturally resulted from diversity of talent, culture, occupation, and circumstances. The Spirit of the Lord acted in accordance with these personal peculiarities, and at the same time excluding all impropriety, whether of thought or expression. Nothing can be more decisive than the following language of the Apostle, when, referring to his instructions, he says—"which things we speak, not in words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth." It is impossible more expressly and indisputably to set forth the doctrine of full, absolute, perfect inspiration: the words mean that, or nothing.

What is termed "verbal inspiration"—that is, inspiration of the precise words employed—has been the subject of much controversy. One class of writers hold that, in the choice of words, the Inspired Penmen were left to their own discretion, so that the language is human, while the matter is divine. It is easy to argue on behalf of such a position, but it is difficult to see how it can be made to harmonise with the declaration cited above, in which it is distinctly declared that they expressed themselves, not in words which man's wisdom taught, but which the Holy Ghost taught. Reference is of course here made to the original language, and not to the translations. The power of the Scriptures, therefore, as applied by the Spirit, arises from their matter, and not from the vehicle of communication. Another class of writers argue, in harmony with the foregoing scripture, that the Inspired Penmen received, not merely the sentiments, but the language, from the Holy Spirit. They contend that, as a large portion of the Scriptures consists of direct revelation, the matter must necessarily have been communicated to them by the Holy Spirit in language, so that both the sentiments and the words were inspired. In support of this view, it is argued that it was wholly impossible to communicate the ideas apart from language; that as this is the only way in which one created mind can communicate with another, so it is the only way in which the Father of all can communicate with his offspring. In all the accounts we have of intercourse with Heaven, language is always employed. The inference drawn, therefore, is, that in every portion of the Holy Bible, written by direct revelation, the language was inspired equally with the matter. Such must incontestably have been the case with respect to all those portions which the writers themselves did not understand. In these circumstances, the penmen could not by possibility have supplied the diction; they could not express what they did not comprehend. They might be likened to men writing in a tongue they understood not, who required to have spelled to them every word they wrote. In the utter ignorance of a subject, no man can possibly write upon it with intelligence, unless he be supplied with the words which express the things. It is clear, from a variety of representations, that the prophets to a large extent were wholly unacquainted with the meaning of what they wrote. To this it is that Peter refers, when he represents them as "inquiring and searching diligently what, or what manner of time, the Spirit of Christ which was in them did signify, when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow." In these cases the language, beyond all controversy, was not supplied by them, but by the Holy Spirit. Again, let it be remembered, that the Lord Jesus charged his disciples, when they should be brought before kings and governors for his sake, to take no thought how or what they should speak, since it should be given them in that same hour what they should speak; for it was not they that spake, but the Spirit of their Father which spake in them. Both the matter and the language were wholly his. The whole man was taken possession of by the Holy Spirit for the purpose of communicating with mankind. Their position was that of mere instruments in the Divine hand. There is a principle contained in this statement which applies to everything written and spoken by inspired men. From the nature of the case, it was clearly necessary that they should be supplied with language, in order to express precisely and correctly the Divine mind.

The conclusion, then, to which the whole leads, is, that the Original Scriptures were inspired both as to matter and language, so that every part and portion of the Divine Record is composed of the "true sayings of God." We shall perhaps be reminded, however, that, even granting the verbal inspiration of the Hebrew and Greek of the Original Scriptures, the integrity of the Book has been greatly impaired by the errors and interpolations which have crept in through the negligence of the transcribers. The importance of this circumstance must not be over-estimated, for it is, after all, a matter of very minor account. These things affect the sense in a manner so imperceptible, that only the most laborious students are able to discover them. There is no subject on which so much learned labour has been expended. All the existing manuscripts of the Hebrew Bible have been collated, compared, and examined; but the results have been such as to demonstrate that nothing of the slightest importance has occurred. In vast multitudes of passages it amounts only to the insertion, or the omission, of a single letter. Although one thousand six hundred and ninety-eight Hebrew manuscripts have been compared, they have not served to correct one important passage. The result is certainly, in a high degree, satisfying. It is now positively ascertained that this mass of copies of the ancient Scriptures are in full accordance with each other, and, to all intents and purposes, with our English translation.

While such is the case with the Old, it is, if possible, even more gratifying as to the New Testament. It so happens that the manuscripts of it are more numerous than those of any of the ancient classics, whether Greek or Latin. One distinguished critic collated no fewer than three hundred and fifty of them, all written in different and distant parts of the world, a portion of them more than twelve hundred years old, and the harmony between them, on everything of the slightest moment, is complete. The thirty thousand various readings in the manuscripts collated by Mill, and the hundred and fifty thousand in Griesbach's edition, in no degree affect the integrity of the text. These various readings consist in matters so minute and insignificant, that not one hundredth part of them makes any material alteration in the sense of any version. They are made up almost wholly of palpable mistakes in transcription, grammatical and verbal differences, the substitution of one word for another of the same import, and occasionally the transposition of a word or two in a sentence. Nor is this all: even the more important alterations extend to no passage of a fundamental character; they are confined to passages of history, geography, collateral affairs, and things comparatively of no moment.

In the passages we have already quoted, the Scriptures assert their own inspiration, but this self-assertion does not constitute the grounds of their claim to a supernatural character. The range of proof is both diversified and comprehensive; the several parts necessarily vary in cogency, but the whole united constitute such a body of evidence as exists upon no other subject. Something might be said of the general character of the Divine volume, and the special providence which has led to its preservation. The Book, or rather body of books, is inconceivably superior, in point of moral excellence, to everything which has come down from antiquity. It opens up to us fields of knowledge, previously sealed from human vision; emerging from the darkness of heathenism, with its "lords many, and its gods many," it reveals the glorious person of "the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God," developing his paternal character in all its beauty, excellence, and glory. It unfolds the mystery of creation, declaring to us when and how this great system was brought into existence. The origin of man, the image he bore, the character he sustained, and the catastrophe which befell him, with its terrible consequences, are all set forth with clearness and certainty. These great facts, in which man has so deep an interest, are not otherwise to be ascertained; the Scriptures are the sole and exclusive source of information. Not only is man's ruin made known, but his recovery, the means by which it is achieved, and the glory to which it leads. We are also brought to the knowledge of beings of a higher order than man—great, powerful, and happy—and apprised that a portion of them fell from their high estate, became depraved and wicked, and effected the destruction of the human race. The question naturally occurs, Whence have these men this wonderful wisdom? There is nothing in their history, character, or position, to account for it. They move mostly in the humblest walks of life, and pursue callings having no necessary connection with intellectual superiority, and yet they infinitely surpass the wisest and greatest of this world's sages. We have here upwards of sixty different books, written by various authors, in different languages, throughout the long period of fifteen hundred years, and upwards. These men are the historians of empires, of which otherwise we should scarcely have known the existence. But this is not all; it informs us of the history as well as origin of mankind; and, in particular, it records the facts of the narrative of the most interesting and extraordinary people that ever lived—a people which has been honoured to furnish these mysterious and marvellous writers.

These observations mainly apply to the writers of the Old Testament, but they may, in divers respects, also be extended to those of the New. Nothing can explain the conduct of either, but their inspiration, and their entire conviction of the perfect truth of their testimony. By the course they pursued, they had everything to lose, except their souls, and nothing earthly to gain. Nearly all the prophets were slain by their godless countrymen, and the apostles shared a similar fate from either Jews or Gentiles. Their sole recompense for their unparalleled labours and their inconceivable benefactions, was hunger, nakedness, imprisonment, torture, and death! No proof of sincerity in the faith professed, which it is possible for man to give, was wanting; but whatever force may belong to these considerations, they occupy in the scale of evidence but a secondary place. Both the Old and the New Testament dispensation was founded in miracles: "What sign shewest thou?" was a question which both Moses and Jesus answered by "signs, and wonders, and mighty deeds." Nothing less sufficed to confirm a Divine mission than a display of Divine power. The expectation of something of this sort is founded in the human constitution. Even the heathen of our own time frequently demand that the Christian missionary shall confirm his doctrine by a miracle. It does not appear that there is any other method whereby a mission can be stamped with the Divine approbation. If, after appealing to the power by whom he is sent, he shall raise the dead, heal the sick, and give sight to the blind, he cuts short all controversy. Such power may well be taken as demonstrative proof of the divinity, both of the mission and of the message. It is God's own hand setting his seal to his own work.

Miracles, then, are in the order of nature the first, as well as, in their own character, the most decisive proof of inspiration. A revelation from Heaven cannot be rationally received or enforced on any other condition. The false religions of the world do homage to the principle; they abound with alleged miraculous interpositions of the divinities; but this is in order not to institute but to uphold the system. The revelation of the Divine will, though less palpable, is in itself not less miraculous than the raising of the dead; but, from its invisible nature, it requires to be confirmed by acts which appeal to the senses. All-important as were the miracles of Moses, those of Jesus came more home to the heart. He himself, from the outset of his public ministry, uniformly appealed to them in proof of his mission. They constituted so many visible and incontrovertible manifestations of the Divine approval, which could not have been extended to an imposture. That his miracles might answer the great purpose for which they were performed, it was necessary that they should be public, decisive, and open to examination, and such was the fact. In this matter the course of Jesus materially differed from that of Moses; Jesus not only performed miracles himself, but imparted the power of so doing to his servants, both while with them and after his ascension to glory. After his resurrection that event became one of the great facts to be testified and confirmed; for its truth they had the evidence of their own senses; they, therefore, became his witnesses, the Holy Spirit confirming their testimony by signs following. This resurrection was in itself a miracle of the highest order, constituting the broad seal of Heaven upon his mediatorial mission; no event within the whole range of sublunary knowledge was ever so thoroughly attested as the resurrection. It were quite as rational to deny that he ever existed as that he rose from the dead.

Miracles must be actually witnessed, in order to a right estimate of their power as evidence. The testimony of such as have been spectators of them is doubtless valuable for conviction, but not at all to be compared with actual observation. But the evidence of miracle, if weakened in the first, it is still more so in the second and each successive stage of transmission, until, in process of time, it dwindles into a venerated sound. To meet this case, Infinite Wisdom employed prophecy; which also is a miracle of the very highest order—indicating a knowledge which is infinite. Miracle and prophecy are the two great departments of inspired evidence; they stand in contrast—the one supplying the deficiencies of the other. The miracle is performed at once; it is its own evidence. Prophecy is uttered at once; but, apart from miracle, it possesses no self-evidencing power; its appeal is to time. Prophecy, therefore, viewed as a whole, gains by time precisely in proportion as miracles lose. There is something inconceivably grand in Scripture prophecy, which is the history of individuals, empires, and the world written by anticipation! Prophecy, more especially in its bearing on the person, work, and offices of the Lord Jesus, is marked by inconceivable grandeur; so minute and exact are the predictions, that they form the Gospels in epitome. The history supplies little that is really new; it is merely an expansion of the prophecy. Nothing but inspiration can account for these predictions, which infinitely exceed the highest stretch of human sagacity. Prophecy, as a rod and staff, has been the support of the heart of the Church in every age; and there is every reason to believe that its later fulfilments will, in a manner the most extraordinary, display the Divine power and glory. The conversion of the Jews, with that of the Gentile nations, and the destruction of Antichrist, will be events of sufficient magnitude and splendour to astonish the whole world. The evidence of the inspiration of the Sacred Volume will, by these means, be exceedingly augmented; it will receive a further increase from the rise of the Millennial sun, and the universal establishment of a reign of truth, justice, and love. Nor will that be all; the evidence of inspiration will have been perfected only after the resurrection and the judgment, when the Lord Jesus shall have delivered up the kingdom to the Father, and God shall have become all in all. In the meantime prophecy, to those who rightly use it, serves great and important purposes—confirming faith and hope, and promoting edification. Nothing so deeply impresses the mind that there is verily a God, by whom all things were created, and are upheld, ruled, and regulated. The doctrine of Divine providence is also most powerfully illustrated. It shews, in a manner not to be disputed, that the “Heavens do rule,” that the potentates of the earth are but worms of the dust, and that in His hand their breath is, and that his are all their ways. How dread the thought, that we are ever in the eye of Him to whom the end is known even from the beginning! What more fitted to sustain the confidence of the faithful! leading them to commit themselves, with all their concerns for both worlds, to Him who is Lord of both—to whom all things are naked and open, and from whom no secrets can be hid!

While “the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy,” the minor departments of evidence are not to be lightly thought of. If, as compared with miracle and prophecy, they be weak; viewed absolutely, they are exceedingly strong. What has been often termed the “internal evidence,” presents a delightful subject of contemplation. It is drawn from the consideration of the principles of the Evangelical economy, which everywhere proclaim the divinity of the Book. The character of the Most High, as there delineated, comprises all conceivable excellence, without the shadow of an imperfection. No objects can be more unlike than the character of God, and the character of the heathen deities, as drawn by their own worshippers. Nothing so debasing and abominable as the latter—nothing so pure and glorious as the former! The worship of those deities was simply organised and established iniquity, of the most atrocious and revolting character! Only inspired men could have drawn the portraiture presented of God the Father. That alone suffices to stamp the Divine character, and consequent inspiration, of the said writings. Next to this, in importance to ourselves, is the analysis of human nature, which is as obviously true as it is deplorably humiliating. In vain do we look to the records of heathen wisdom for anything to be compared with these appalling developments. The Bible is emphatically the Book of the heart; the writers clearly knew what was in man. Every individual has only to pass his eye from the inspired page to his own heart, to discover the truth of every statement. The Book which has made such a transcription of the innermost soul must be Divine. But this is not all; the Book possesses a power to wound and a power to heal, such as belongs to no other book known to mankind. It is the only book invested with the mysterious capability of renovating the human soul. It has but to do for all what it has already done for countless multitudes, to establish its claims to a supernatural superiority to everything human. When every man shall have become the subject of repentance toward God, and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ—filled with peace, and hope, and joy, and shining in the beauties of holiness—all will become living epistles of the Lord Jesus. The spirit of the New Testament worked out in the immortal man, all made free from sin, and become the servants of God, and having their fruit unto holiness, the ends of redemption will have been answered; and nothing will remain for them but to hold fast the beginning of their confidence, and occupy till the Master come.

In dealing with the question of inspiration, the response of the human heart must not be overlooked. There is in that book a quality to be found in no other book, and in the hearts of holy men a sense to be found in no other hearts, and that sense never fails to perceive that quality. Men regenerated by the Spirit of God, and in whose soul that Spirit dwells, concur in receiving the Bible as divine. This, however, is the result, with regard to a large body of them, not merely of spiritual perception, but of Scriptural study. Multitudes of them have laboured as for life in sifting the evidence in all its departments, and have reached the conclusion that it is in very deed the Word of God. Their uniform conduct has proved the sincerity of their convictions; in life and death, expiring in the midst of friends or flames of fire, they have held their testimony without wavering. All have been entirely convinced that it is the Spirit of God who speaks in the Holy Volume, and believing his testimony, they have been filled with joy and peace, and fired with a hope of a glorious immortality. There are, indeed, those—and their name is legion—who reject the Holy Scriptures, professedly, after investigation, denying them to be the Word of God; and the character of this, as well as of the opposing class, has sustained the sincerity of the profession: but the characters of the two classes, respectively, are as unlike as light and darkness. As are their characters, so their courses; their ways are as their end. The light in which men view the Scriptures may generally be taken as a sure and certain index to their moral character. The wicked themselves feel this; they have no confidence in each other, and no moral bond to bind them together. They know and confess, that those alone who believe in the divinity of the Bible may safely be trusted. They secretly confess that "the righteous is more excellent than his neighbour." Not only are all holy men united touching the inspiration of the Sacred Volume, but its leading contents. Whatever diversity of judgment may exist as to things of secondary importance, concerning Redemption, and all that the glorious term imports or implies, they are perfectly agreed. There is no mere secular question, of general interest to mankind, on which there is anything approaching to a corresponding harmony.

Truth, on every subject, is one; and in proportion as it is discovered, men are united. This fact is of great importance as it relates to the proof of inspiration. If in very deed the Book be inspired—if the writers have been simply so many penmen to the one living and true God—real and obvious oneness must characterise every part of the manifold and multiform communication. Clashing and contradiction would be utterly fatal to the claim of inspiration. Let the Sacred Books, then, be examined by this test, and the result will be a corroboration of the fact that they all spake by one Spirit. The harmony which prevails among the inspired writers has, in every age, been the wonder of reflecting men, who have always felt that it could only be accounted for by its true cause. Rightly to appreciate the value and cogency of this argument, it must be remembered that the various writers lived throughout the lengthened period of fifteen hundred years,—that they occupied every variety of position, from the humblest to the highest rank in society—noblemen and shepherds, warriors and statesmen, priests and kings,—that their talents and education were as varied as their habits and occupations,—that their compositions were of the most diversified description, comprising laws, history, prophecy, biography, parables, proverbs, poetry, speeches, epistles, controversy,—and that, notwithstanding, there is throughout the most exact agreement concerning the works and ways of God, the state, character, and relations of man, the Law and the Gospel, sin and salvation, this world and that which is to come; all hold and advocate the same doctrines, labour to propagate the same principles—to recover the lost, to preserve the saved, and so to promote human happiness and the Divine glory. The small discrepancies which may occasionally appear are more apparent than real: a very little knowledge suffices for the entire removal of most of them; and such as remain are of small moment. These also, with a little more light, might be obviated. Of this we have striking illustrations in the Gospels, which blend considerable diversity with perfect harmony. The small inconsistencies which there appear, viewed in relation to evidence, possess a peculiar value: they demonstrate the absence of concert and collusion. In courts of justice, evidence is not the less satisfactory when witnesses, from viewing things in different aspects, seem slightly to disagree, since it goes to prove the independent character of the testimony.

There is one thing above all others, of a personal character, to be considered—the portrait drawn of perfect humanity in the person of the Lord Jesus Christ. That this is done is undeniable: even infidels themselves have confessed it, and avowed their admiration. Various attempts at delineating the character of a faultless man had previously been made, but that of the Gospel history was the first, and it is the only instance of complete success. This, however, on the part of the writers, was not the result of a purpose. Nothing was further from their minds than the thought. It is a character solely composed of facts—the very reverse of a fancy picture. These facts they state without comment, or the slightest effort at ornament or effect. In the most wonderful part of their narrative, they manifest no surprise; nor do they lay their account with objections from their readers. They speak as men whose exclusive business is to bear witness, leaving the world to treat the testimony as they think proper. It is only necessary to put together the facts of the history, to see that the character united every excellence, to the exclusion of every defect; the holiness, the devotion, the instruction, the morality, all is perfect, and radiant with beauty and glory! Wisdom, meekness, humility, patience, fortitude, benevolence, compassion, and everything that entered into character, bore the stamp of full perfection. The question, then, as bearing on inspiration is, how this came to be effected on the part of the humble men who performed it? It seemed, speaking after the manner of men, the result of chance; there appears to have been neither concert nor communication with each other. To exalted genius and human learning they laid no claim, and yet they have achieved a work which exceeded the powers of the world's collective wisdom! The marvel is explained only by the inspiration from which the whole proceeded.

One more proof remains to be noticed, which, notwithstanding its hidden character, merits particular notice, from the importance which attaches to it—that is, the personal experience of the power of the Gospel of Christ. All the world knows the importance of experiment in modern philosophy. There is, indeed, an experience in everything moral which bears on the welfare of human kind; it is, therefore, to be viewed as a most material thing in the matter of personal piety. As the term signifies, it means knowledge acquired by trial of some sort in relation to some subject; it is the feelings that result from the knowledge and belief of certain facts and doctrines. Wherever a religious truth is believed, it produces an effect corresponding with its own nature. Although it is not the whole, it is a most material part of religion—the golden link which connects doctrines with morality. The character of a man's religion is just the character of his experience; if he enjoys clear, full, and Scriptural views of the Gospel, and believes them, he will be the subject of exactly corresponding impressions. In the absence of experience, whatever may be the knowledge of the letter, there can be no faith, and evangelical works cannot possibly follow. Wherever the Spirit of the Lord is putting forth regenerating power—enlightening, convincing, and converting—evangelical experience will accompany the great work, and prove his indwelling presence; righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost will constitute the kingdom of God in the soul.

It will, then, appear how unreasonable, unphilosophic, and preposterous is the conduct of those who pour contempt on Christian experience, as something foolish, fanciful, and enthusiastic, with no foundation in truth. Such people have but to confer with wise and holy men, or to consult the records of departed piety, or carefully to examine the Scriptures of truth, to be convinced of their error, and to see that religion is not simply a thing of form, but of power. In the absence of all feeling, there is no proof of religion. It is proper, however, to observe, that in this, as in everything, the false may combine with the true; but the exception only proves the rule. No experience is contended for apart from inspired truth. It is an apostolic injunction that the believer shall be ready to give, to every one that asks, a reason of the hope that is in him. Blind impulses, strong imaginations, dreams and visions, make no part of Christian experience. Nothing is to be regarded as such which does not accord with revealed truth. The Spirit of God works neither without his own truth nor against it; it is the things of Christ he takes and shews to his people, and according to the nature of those things will be the impression produced by the faith of them. Generally the result is love to God and to his people, spirituality of mind and pleasure in heavenly exercises, delight in the reading and exposition of the Divine Word, and a readiness to embark in whatever tends to promote his glory. Such are the only competent judges of the real character of the Inspired Volume. No writings merely human can produce such effects in the soul. All such distinctly proclaim their own origin, and whatever the grasp of reason, comprehension of view, power of eloquence, or splendour of colouring, that may mark them, they impart no life to the dead soul, no peace to the troubled conscience; they never prove "the power of God to salvation." This species of evidence of the inspiration of the Scriptures, and the divinity of the Gospel, is, with the millions of God's people, of greater practical importance than any other. They have no time, nor are they by education duly qualified, to deal with the stupendous subjects of miracle and prophecy, and the historical argument; but they all have hearts to feel, love, hope, and rejoice. In days of darkness, when the flames of persecution have raged, and they have been destroyed in multitudes, this experimental evidence has exerted a power which made the weakest strong, and the strong as lions. The cross, the rack, the stake, and the wild beasts, had no terrors for these children of the kingdom, heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ. The religion of those men was a living power, a quenchless flame; the doctrines of the Gospel had become incorporated with their very nature. While they walked the earth their conversation was in heaven. Such people have in themselves the most convincing of all proofs that "all Scripture is given by inspiration of God."

If, then, God has spoken, and if his words constitute the Scriptures of the Old and New Testament, the fact suffices to lift that Book as high above all others, as the heavens are high above the earth. The Book composed of these Scriptures is not to be viewed just as one of many books, more or less ancient and venerable, but of the same origin, and bearing the same essential character, but as a volume altogether different, and infinitely superior. The fact once determined that the Sacred Scriptures are a revelation from God, little need be said as to its necessity or its sufficiency. These points might, indeed, be elaborated in a manner adapted to instruct and to edify; but it is foreign to our object so to do. It is enough that we have a book from God; that idea swallows up every other; suggesting somewhat so momentous, that setting aside every other consideration, we hasten to open it, that we may ascertain its contents, and see how far it affects our present condition. If He, "who is the blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords; who only hath immortality, dwelling in the light which no man can approach unto; whom no man hath seen, nor can see"—hath opened a communication with the human race, let silence reign throughout the universe, and let the nations hear their God! It is their primary duty, and their highest interest, to obtain a knowledge of the Divine will. They who deny the inspiration of the Bible, neglect, if not with impunity, yet with consistency; not so they who profess to believe its heavenly origin and imperial character. Such conduct on their part is alike contradictory, irrational, and impious. The Divine character of the Book, and the nature of its communication, invest it with an authority of which it behoves the whole earth to stand in awe. Now that the book exists—involving the interests of life and death to mankind—to be without it is the heaviest calamity with which they can be visited; while to possess, and yet neglect it, is the greatest error they can commit. The bulk of the Christian world, there seems reason to conclude, is greatly at fault on this score. They seem to have but a faint conviction of the true character, and consequent claims of the Bible; they but imperfectly realise the great fact of its inspiration. They respect it as an element of worship, and generally as an important instrument of religion, but not as a book expressly dictated by the Spirit of God. In words, as a matter of course, they may assent to its inspiration; but the fact is not believed, and consequently it is not felt.

This state of things is largely accounted for by the existing circumstances of society. The invention of printing, while a great, is by no means an unmixed blessing. The deluge of books which, by its means, has been poured forth upon the world, has been attended with the most unhappy consequences. The Bible is but one book among millions of books, all competing for notice, and adapting themselves to the tastes, prejudices, and passions of the human family. The effect of this is great beyond calculation or conception. The bent of human nature, uninfluenced by the grace of God, is such, that men will read anything and everything rather than the Bible, which is able to make them wise unto salvation. Even the renewed heart has but too much of a hankering after this species of intellectual employment. The temptation to which, on all sides, Christians are exposed is very strong, and they have, to a fearful extent, fallen before it. A very large portion of the time not consumed in labour and business, is, by those who read at all, devoted to books but little fitted to promote Divine knowledge, or to further the ends of piety. Much of our popular literature is by no means favourable to personal religion. The taste it creates and cultivates is worldly in the extreme, and as such it strongly indisposes for devotional reading, the study of the Scriptures, and spiritual exercises; at the same time destroying the relish for thoroughly Scriptural and Evangelical preaching. This is a most alarming state of things, as it is fraught with the most fatal consequences. Its natural and sure effect is to diffuse an element of carnality throughout the Church, deadening piety, debasing the soul, and thus obstructing devotion. It may be safely affirmed that nothing has so largely contributed to the low state of piety which now prevails in every section of the Church of Christ. It is only within the last quarter of a century that the powers of the Printing Press, in this direction, began to be fully developed; about that time the leprosy broke out, and it has gone on increasing to the present hour. The Spirit of God dwelling in the heart is the only source of heavenly-mindedness, the well-spring of true devotion; therefore whatever tends to quench the Spirit, tends in the same degree to depress piety, and ultimately to destroy it. This, therefore, is a point which demands the solemn attention of individuals, families, and churches, since in this way the progress of true religion may by degrees be fairly arrested, and the foundation laid for its ultimate overthrow.

The first duty of every man is to ascertain the will of God, on which depends his highest interests both for time and eternity. Most people are eager to pry into the invisible and the future, and but too ready to listen to the voice of imposture, when it promises to gratify their curiosity; and yet, when Divine compassion places in their hands the only Book that discloses both the invisible and the future, they are reluctant to open it! This conduct most impressively demonstrates the fearful extent to which man has been morally damaged by the fall. The cause is obvious—carnality of mind. Everything is distasteful to the human heart in proportion as it is spiritual. Direct communion with God is foreign to his tastes and feelings; such, indeed, is his aversion, that, left to himself, he would never seek to God. The deceitful heart, at every turn, endeavours to break away from beholding an object so holy, beautiful, and glorious.

The same carnality extends to all the exercises of devotion. Nothing but a rich supply of the Spirit of grace can enable even the soul that is born again to "continue instant in prayer." He who has in a fair measure attained to this is in a happy condition, since he clearly approaches the fulness of the stature of a perfect man in Christ Jesus. Of this the Lord himself furnished the perfect example. The spirit of life in him was pre-eminently the spirit of prayer. While on earth, his moral nature was entirely fit for heaven. This carnality is further manifested in listening to the voice of God in the Holy Scriptures. Instead of exclaiming with David, "O how love I thy law! it is my meditation all the day," the carnal mind recoils, and cleaves to books congenial to itself. To read a portion of the Inspired Volume as a duty, or as a task—all heart-concern excluded—is not difficult; but, if easy, it is also useless, it ministers neither to happiness nor to holiness. It is a matter of mere form, partaking of the character of dry and distasteful drudgery. Nothing can less resemble the case of the Royal Psalmist, to whom the Word of the Lord was as "honey and the honeycomb." Here, then, is a point after which Christians are to strive, and by this they may measure their progress.

There is a great and serious error extensively prevalent among the people of God on this subject. Their study of the Scriptures does not deserve the name; it is little more than grave trifling with a supreme duty, a holy privilege. They deal with it in fragments; and after thus nibbling for a life-time, they finish their course, knowing little more of the riches of Revelation than when they took up their profession of religion. The mass of adult Christians, there is reason to believe, are not in a condition to pass honourably even a very superficial examination. This state of things has, in no small measure, been promoted by the publication of a class of books intended to furnish godly people with a daily "portion" of religious instruction, consisting of a verse, a phrase, or a word of Scripture, with a few sentences by way of "remarks" thereon, and a scrap of sacred poetry. These things, in a small way, serve to comfort and to edify the babes of the divine family. That is the utmost that can be said for them. Their strong tendency is to prevent the thorough study of the Word of God, and thus to damage the interests of a scriptural and healthful piety. These ready-made morsels are utterly insufficient to feed and nourish the souls of the faithful; they leave the understanding in a state of dull repose, deeply stamping it with the impress of spiritual childhood! Every Christian ought to aspire to a thorough knowledge of the Word of God; and with a very moderate degree of devout endeavour, he may succeed. Never till then will things be as they should, in the family, the school, and the congregation of the faithful. Never till then will the Church be "fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners."

An intimate acquaintance with the letter of all the books of the Sacred Volume is within the easy reach of every one. This only requires that the several books shall be read—no matter in what order—again and again, till the main facts and the general outline be deeply impressed on the mind. But this is not to be viewed as the study of the Scriptures, properly considered, which is quite another thing; this is only preparatory to that process. All that is meant here is a somewhat thoughtful perusal, with, it may be, a noting of particular passages which strike the mind as specially important. In this way a whole book may frequently be read at a sitting, which, wherever it is practicable, is greatly to be desired, as bringing, at one view, before the mind, all its parts and all its points, which is highly favourable to a thorough grasp of the subject—which can never be gained by fragmentary readings. Let not the reader start at the idea of such a demand; it does not even approach to the average amount of reading performed almost daily by myriads of people, according to their several tastes, in light literature, history, and philosophy; to say nothing of the journals of the day, and of fiction, ravenously devoured by the volume!

While the course here indicated is every way a valuable exercise, it is by no means enough; it is but surface work, which can never make the doer of it "mighty in the Scriptures." To "search the Scriptures," implies vastly more, as clearly appears from Inspiration itself. This implies the careful examination of the words, the sentences, the scope and bearing of the whole. In addition to this, there must be a comparison of Scripture with Scripture, which, properly conducted, will be attended with the happiest results. To this end the References are of the utmost value, as contributing to make the Bible, to a large extent, its own interpreter. But when all helps have been called in, their combined aid will leave us infinitely short of the eminence to which we aspire. There is light wanted, which can be obtained only from Heaven. The Father himself is the teacher of his own family: "They shall all be taught of God," is a promise full of importance, and to be had in lasting remembrance. Luther laid it down as a maxim, in preparation for the pulpit, that "to have studied well is to have prayed well." The great Reformer further states, that, on his knees, he has often, in a moment, obtained an insight into the meaning of Scripture, which, by mere study, he had employed hours and days in vain endeavours to penetrate. Why should not all act on the principle here laid down, and put it to the test of experiment? If Christian mind and heart are ever to be cultivated to purpose, there must be an end to an indolent reliance on mere external helps, and efforts put forth to the full extent of individual capacity in the way of self-culture. This is an unalterable condition of success. Whatever may be the gifts and the graces which adorn the pulpit, they will go for nothing among the thoughtless subjects of a slothful passivity. Self-reliance, under God, is indispensable to growth in Scripture knowledge, and progress in the divine life. In efforts to that end, the first place is due to prayer and supplication, and the second to meditation, by day and night, on the Inspired Records. Hear the assurance of the Spirit—"If thou wilt receive my words, and hide my commandments with thee; so that thou incline thine ear unto wisdom, and apply thine heart to understanding; yea, if thou criest after knowledge, and liftest up thy voice for understanding; if thou seekest her as silver, and searchest for her as for hid treasures; then shalt thou understand the fear of the Lord, and find the knowledge of God." In these emphatic words the two ideas of Search and Supplication are strikingly embodied, and presented in a manner full of encouragement to every inquirer after the truth as it is in Jesus.

THE FIRST BOOK OF MOSES, CALLED GENESIS.

This Book gives an account of Creation, of the Fall and Redemption of Man, of the Former World, of the Deluge, and the events which followed, comprising the history both of the Church and of the World during 2369 years, reaching within 1635 years of the birth of Christ. It is the sole and only record of the stupendous facts which form its subject. Without this Book, mankind would have been left in total darkness: with it, the humblest Sabbath scholar in Great Britain possesses a knowledge infinitely surpassing the collective wisdom of the whole Heathen World.

CHAPTER I.

1 The creation of heaven and earth: 26 of man in the image of God. 22 The appointment of food.

IN the beginning ^aGod created the heaven and the earth.

2 And the earth was ^bwithout form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep: ^cand the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters.

3 ¶ And ^dGod said, ^eLet there be light: and there was light.

4 And God saw the light, that it was good: and God ^fdivided the light from the darkness.

5 And God called the light ^gDay, and the darkness he called Night. ^hAnd the evening and the morning were the first day.

6 ¶ And God said, Let there be a ⁱfirmament in the midst of the waters, and let it divide the waters from the waters.

7 And God made the firmament, and divided the waters which were under the firmament from the waters which were ^jabove the firmament: and it was so.

8 And God called the firmament Heaven. And the evening and the morning were the second day.

9 ¶ And God said, ^kLet the waters under the heaven be gathered together unto one place, and let the dry land appear: and it was so.

10 And God called the dry land Earth; and the gathering together of the waters called he Seas: ^land God saw that it was good.

11 And God said, ^mLet the earth bring forth ⁿgrass, the herb yielding seed, and the fruit-tree yielding fruit after his kind, 12 And the earth brought forth grass, and herb yielding seed after his kind, and the tree yielding fruit, whose seed was in itself, after his kind: and God saw that it was good.

13 And the evening and the morning were the third day.

14 ¶ And God said, ¹Let there be lights in the firmament of the heaven, to divide ²the day from the night; and let them be for signs, and for seasons, and for days, and years:

15 And let them be for lights in the firmament of the heaven, to give light upon the earth: and it was so.

16 And God made two great lights; the greater light ³to ⁴rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night: he made the stars also.

17 And God ⁵set them in the firmament of the heaven, to give light upon the earth, 18 And to rule over the day and over the night, and to divide the light from the darkness: and God saw that it was good.

21 And God created ¹¹great whales, and every living creature that moveth, which the waters brought forth abundantly, after their kind, and every winged fowl after his kind: and God saw that it was good.

22 And ¹²God blessed them, saying, Be fruitful, and multiply, and fill the waters

Chap. I. 1, 2. "Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear." Thus, the first fact in knowledge, and the first sentence in history, unite in demanding of man an exercise of faith. God, the sole doer, was the sole witness of his own work; and it only remains for man to receive his testimony, which is powerfully supported by Creation itself, since "that which may be known of God is manifest in them; for God hath shewed it unto them: for the invisible things of him, even his eternal power and Godhead, from the creation of the world, are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made." It is distinctly taught, then, that matter was spoken into being by the Son of God, "for all things were made by him, and without him was not anything made that was made." It stands to reason that matter must either have been eternal, or self-originated, or created. Reason recoils alike from the first and the second, refusing to separate cause from effect, means from ends, displays of skill from intelligent power; but Moses steps in, and, speaking as the mouth of God, ends the strife. He is silent as to the preposterous notions of a benighted world; he refers neither to its wisdom nor its folly; nor does he make any display of his own superiority to heathen philosophers; he simply narrates the facts, leaving men to deal with them as they please. The doctrine of the Divine Spirit is thus set forth at the very outset, as replenishing the void, and ordering confusion; a meet figure of his work in the regeneration of the human soul, which is affectingly represented by the state of chaos. Ver. 3-25. After creation, light became necessary to every stage of the subsequent development; He spake, and it was! Light springs forth; light, the perfection of created beauty, the glory of the universe, supplying a simile to illustrate the character of the Most High: "God is light," and "the Father of Lights;" and Christ is "the Light of the world;" then the firmament, the earth, the sea, vegetation, the sun, the moon, and the stars. The water next brings forth its countless and multifarious population; and earth follows with its vast and varied progeny. Ver. 26-31. The world thus made ready, Man, in the seas, and let fowl multiply in the earth.

23 And the evening and the morning were the fifth day.

24 ¶ And God said, ^r Let the earth bring forth the living creature after his kind, cattle, and creeping thing, and beast of the earth after his kind: and it was so.

25 And God ^s made the beast of the earth after his kind, and cattle after their kind, and every thing that creepeth upon the earth after his kind: and God saw that it was good.

26 ¶ And God said, ^t Let us make man ^u in our image, after our likeness; and let them ^v have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth.

27 So God created man in his own image: in the image of God created he him; ^v male and female created he them.

28 And ^w God blessed them: and God said unto them, Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it; and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that ^x moveth upon the earth.

29 ¶ And God said, Behold, ^y I have given you every herb ^z bearing seed, which ^a is upon the face of all the earth, and every tree, in the which ^b is the fruit of a tree yielding seed; ^b to you it shall be for meat.

30 And ^c to every beast of the earth, and to every fowl of the air, and to every thing that creepeth upon the earth, wherein there is ^d life, I have given every green herb for meat: ^e and it was so.

31 And God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was ^f very good. And the evening and the morning were the sixth day.

CHAPTER II.

1 The first sabbath. 8 The garden of Eden. 17 The tree of knowledge only forbidden. 21 The making of woman, and the Divine institution of marriage.

THUS ^g the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the host of them.

2 And ^h on the seventh day God ended his work which he had made; and he rested on the seventh day from all his work which he had made.

its Ruler, was created, and a gift of provision made for all. Thus man found everything made before himself. How matter came to exist he could not tell. Of the progress of creation he knew nothing; he was alike ignorant of the time employed in it. What his own senses reported to him at the moment of his own creation, he knew, but nothing antecedent. The place assigned to Man is one of supremacy; all was made for him, and he for God. He was clothed with all power and authority over the world around him; and his capacities were equal to his station. Representing God, he was made in the "image" of God; as if the more deeply to impress this fact on the mind, it is repeated. That image was the perfection of power, honour, and glory. Alas! where is it now? The "glory is departed;" but, thanks be to God, provision is made for its recovery! Thus, at the outset of creation, the doctrine of a plurality of persons in the Godhead, Father, Son, and Spirit, is distinctly set forth; the Father as speaking, the Son and the Spirit as working.

3 And God ^e blessed the seventh day, and sanctified it; because that in it he had rested from all his work which God ^f created and made.

4 ¶ These are the generations of the heavens and of the earth when they were created, in the day that the LORD God made the earth and the heavens.

5 And every plant of the field before it was in the earth, and every herb of the field before it grew: for the LORD God ^g had not caused it to rain upon the earth, and there was not a man to till the ground.

6 But ^h there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground.

7 And the LORD God formed man ⁱ of the ^j dust of the ground, and ^k breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became ^l a living soul.

8 ¶ And the LORD God planted a garden eastward in Eden; and there he put the man whom he had formed.

9 And out of the ground made the LORD God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food; ^m the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, and ⁿ the tree of knowledge of good and evil.

10 ¶ And ^o a river went out of Eden to water the garden; and from thence it was parted, and became into four heads.

11 The name of the first is ^p Pison: that is it which compasseth the whole land of ^q Havilah, where there is gold;

12 And the gold of that land is good: there is ^r bdellium and ^s the onyx stone.

13 And the name of the second river is ^t Gihon: the same is it that compasseth the whole land of ^u Ethiopia.

14 And the name of the third river is ^v Hyddel: that is it which goeth ^w toward the east of ^x Assyria. And the fourth river is ^y Euphrates.

15 ¶ And the LORD God took ^z the man, and put him into the garden of Eden, to dress it and to keep it.

16 And the LORD God commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden ^a thou mayest ^b freely eat;

17 But ^c of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof ^d thou shalt ^e surely die.

18 ¶ And the LORD God said, It is not

Chap. II. 1-8. Six days sufficed to complete the mighty system of things, which was perfect in all its parts, and harmonious in all its action. The Seventh Day, as the first that witnessed the consummation, was blessed; and Man was invited to share in its repose. The institution of the Sabbath is one of the most extraordinary features of the Divine economy, full of compassion to both man and beast. The preservation of the Lord's Day is essential, not merely to the progress of religion, but to its very existence. Ver. 16, 17. The tree of life was probably the pledge of immortality, and its fruit the seal of life and bliss, to love and obedience. By creation Adam had the experience of good; and the continuance of it was connected with loyalty to his Lord. He is told that to eat will be to die. Duty was, therefore, plain: he had but to obey and live. Ver. 18-25. The creation of Woman is entitled to special notice. Instead of being formed, like females of the lower creation, from the common mould, as was Adam himself, his body supplied the 19 And ¹out of the ground the LORD God formed every beast of the field, and every fowl of the air, and brought them unto Adam, to see what he would call them: and whatsoever ¹Adam called every living creature, that was the name thereof.

20 And Adam ²gave names to all cattle, and to the fowl of the air, and to every beast of the field: but for Adam there was not found an help meet for him.

21 ¶ And the LORD God caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept: and he took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof.

22 And the rib, which the LORD God had taken from man, ²made he a woman, and ¹brought her unto the man.

23 And Adam said, This is now ¹bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called ¹Woman, because she was taken out of ⁶Man.

24 Therefore shall a man ¹leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife; and ¹they shall be one flesh.

25 And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed.

CHAPTER III.

¹ The woman, tempted by the serpent, eats the forbidden fruit, and induces Adam to do the same. ¹⁴ Sentence is denounced against them, and they are expelled from Eden.

NOW ¹the serpent was more subtile than any beast of the field which the LORD God had made. And he said unto the woman, ¹Yea, ¹hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden?

4 And the serpent said unto the woman, ¹Ye shall not surely die:

material of her structure, which most impressively sets forth the doctrine of their oneness. It is sin that causes shame. Clothing is the remembrancer, not of innocence, but of guilt. Pride of dress is simply pride in the badge of dishonour.

Chap. III. 1-7. The native subtlety of the serpent rendered it the more suitable as an instrument of the Tempter. Satan, in the serpent, began with the weaker vessel, well knowing that, once overcome, she would most successfully deal with her husband. His craft is manifest; as a first step he merely hints a doubt as to the prohibition, thus insinuating the first element of unbelief. Having thus prepared the way, he flatly contradicts the Most High. Thus he became "a liar, and the father of it;" and "a murderer from the beginning." He appeals to pride and selfishness. How fine a thing to know good and evil! By transgression they know both, and are undone! Ver. 8-19. Sin begets fear; but nothing can hide the sinner from God. Purity is the garment of the soul; that gone, it is filled with shame and confusion. Transgression admits of no defence. Eve's plea was foolish and sinful: disbelieving God, she put faith in a reptile. For the serpent there was no mercy; and, therefore, no inquiry: his portion was a curse. The woman's "seed," Christ the Lord, would prove his destruction. The word of doom fell on both Satan and the serpent, according to their several natures. The woman was to be chastened by affliction, and the man was to be subjected to toil and to trouble, but not unto death. Through the blood of the Second Adam, they were both to be pardoned, restored, and glorified. Ver. 20-24. Fig-leaves are a meet emblem of human righteousness, and skins of the righteousness of faith. The matter of the garden is somewhat figurative; the spirit of the passage amounts to this: former tokens of the Divine favour were withdrawn, and as much eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return.

20 And Adam called his wife's name Eve; because she was the mother of all living.

21 Unto Adam also, and to his wife, did the LORD God make coats of skins, and clothed them.

22 ¶ And the LORD God said, Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil: and now, lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever:

23 Therefore the LORD God sent him forth from the garden of Eden, to till the ground from whence he was taken.

24 So he drove out the man: and he placed at the east of the garden of Eden cherubims and a flaming sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life.

CHAPTER IV.

1 Cain and Abel are born. 4 Abel's offering is accepted, and Cain's rejected. 8 Cain murders Abel, and is condemned and banished. 17 His descendants. 25 Seth is born.

AND Adam knew Eve his wife; and she conceived, and bare Cain, and said, "I have gotten a man from the LORD.

2 And she again bare his brother Abel. And Abel was a keeper of sheep, but Cain was a tiller of the ground.

3 And in process of time it came to pass, that Cain brought of the fruit of the ground an offering unto the LORD.

4 And Abel, he also brought of the firstlings of his flock, and of the fat thereof. And the LORD had respect unto Abel, and to his offering:

5 But unto Cain, and to his offering, he had not respect. And Cain was very wroth, and his countenance fell.

6 And the LORD said unto Cain, "Why art thou wroth? and why is thy countenance fallen?

7 If thou doest well, shalt thou not be accepted? and if thou doest not well, sin lieth at the door. And unto thee shall be his desire, and thou shalt rule over him.

8 ¶ And Cain talked with Abel his brother: and it came to pass, when they beyond reach as if protected by cherubim and flaming sword.

Chap. IV. 1-8. Eve appears to have thought that she had born the promised "seed," and "gotten a man, the Lord," as it is properly rendered. Parents little know who of their children shall be a comfort, and who a cross. The birth of Abel, a model of excellence, seems to have excited no particular joy. Cain viewed the Most High simply as the God of nature: insensible to guilt, he sought no mercy; he came merely acknowledging that the earth was the Lord's and the fulness thereof. Abel was mainly concerned about grace and salvation: the great Atonement chiefly occupied his mind. He felt that, as a sinner, he deserved to die; and he rejoiced in the salvation provided for him by sovereign mercy. If Cain loved the Lord with all his soul, and heart, and strength, and mind, he needed no atonement; but, if otherwise, he had only, through sacrifice, to repair to the throne of mercy. The word was nigh him, and the were in the field, that Cain rose up against Abel his brother, and slew him.

9 And the LORD said unto Cain, "Where is Abel thy brother? And he said, "I know not. Am I my brother's keeper?

10 And he said, "What hast thou done? the voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground.

11 And now art thou cursed from the earth, which hath opened her mouth to receive thy brother's blood from thy hand.

12 When thou tillest the ground, it shall not henceforth yield unto thee her strength. A fugitive and a vagabond shalt thou be in the earth.

13 And Cain said unto the LORD, "My punishment is greater than I can bear.

14 Behold, thou hast driven me out this day from the face of the earth; and from thy face shall I be hid; and I shall be a fugitive and a vagabond in the earth: and it shall come to pass, that every one that findeth me shall slay me.

15 And the LORD said unto him, "Therefore, whosoever slayeth Cain, vengeance shall be taken on him seven-fold. And the LORD set a mark upon Cain, lest any finding him should kill him.

16 ¶ And Cain went out from the presence of the LORD, and dwelt in the land of Nod, on the east of Eden.

17 ¶ And Cain knew his wife; and she conceived, and bare Enoch: and he builded a city, and called the name of the city, after the name of his son, Enoch.

18 And unto Enoch was born Irad: and Irad begat Methusael: and Methusael begat Lamech.

19 ¶ And Lamech took unto him two wives: the name of the one was Adah, and the name of the other Zillah.

20 And Adah bare Jabal: he was the father of such as dwell in tents, and of such as have cattle.

21 And his brother's name was Jubal: he was the father of all such as handle the harp and organ.

22 And Zillah, she also bare Tubal-cain, an instructor of every artificer in brass and iron: and the sister of Tubal-cain was Naamah.

23 And Lamech said unto his wives, sacrifice as well as the sin lay at the door. He had but to walk in the footsteps of Abel to find the same favour. He ought, moreover, to have known that Abel's religion would not affect the relation between them as brothers; the younger would still respect the elder. Ver. 9-18. Cain, with the same breath, utters a falsehood, and insults his God! But it is to no purpose; "The voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me" smote him as a thunder-bolt. The charge is immediately followed by a sentence of condemnation, which prostrates, but does not melt him. He thinks only of the penalty; "My punishment is greater than I can bear." Not a word of the guilt! He felt indeed that he had deserved death, and he dreaded finding an executioner in every man he met. What the "mark" was it is impossible to determine; it may have been an expression of countenance, by which he was rendered an object of pity and contempt to all who saw him. Ver. 19. This descendant of Cain was the first transgressor of the law of marriage, ultimately so extensively disregarded. Ver. 20-22. It thus appears that men from

Adah and Zillah, hear my voice; ye wives of Lamech, hearken unto my speech: for ¹I have slain a man to my wounding, and a young man ²to my hurt:

24 If Cain shall be avenged seven-fold, truly Lamech ³seventy and seven-fold.

25 ¶ And Adam knew his wife again; and she bare a son, ⁴and called his name ⁵Seth: For God, said she, hath appointed me another seed instead of Abel, whom Cain slew.

26 And to Seth, to him also there was born a son; and he called his name ⁶Enos: then began men to ⁷call upon the name of the LORD.

the beginning have been born with a genius for certain pursuits, to which they have been led as if by instinct. Ver. 23, 24. Lamech seems, in self-defence, to have killed a man; and his speech was intended, on that account, to soothe his wives. If the Divine protection was extended to Cain, the murderer, how much more would it be to him, who only committed homicide in defence of his own life! Ver. 26. Social worship was now established. Abel was the representative of the Church, Cain of the World; the one relying solely on mercy, and the other on works; both recognising the living and true God, for Atheism had not yet had time to manifest itself.

Chap. V. 1. That is, the persons born of him from Seth to Noah—ten generations. The original state of man is a point concerning which the wisdom of this world can give us no information. This matter, notwithstanding, lies at the foundation of education, law, and religion. He was made perfect, but his nature has since undergone a change the most disastrous, and, as the consequence, his whole character has been utterly deteriorated, and deeply debased. Every soul of man now bears the image of Adam after he had lost the image of God: this it is which renders it necessary that man should be born again, that he may recover his Divine sonship, and be prepared to enter the kingdom of heaven. Ver. 22. To "walk with God" is an expression significant of the most exalted piety. Then, as now, the best died first. Enoch did not live half the days of his fathers; he was cut off, as we would say, in his prime: but his removal was in the highest degree glorious,—a thing differing from aught that had ever previously taken place, and illustrating the great doctrine of another world, and a future state of human existence. How vain a thing was life even then! As compared with these patriarchs, however, death is now universally an affair of infancy. We never get beyond the cradle of an earlier day; but then, as now, death always came at last: "and he died," was part of the memorial of all flesh.

CHAPTER VI.

1 The worshippers of God intermarry with the ungodly: wickedness increases; and the Lord determines to destroy the earth. 13 Noah is warned of an approaching deluge; and instructed to prepare an ark.

AND it came to pass, when men began to multiply on the face of the earth, and daughters were born unto them,

2 That ^athe sons of God saw the daughters of men ^bthat they were fair: ^cand they took them wives of all which they chose.

3 And the LORD said, ^dMy Spirit shall not always strive with man, for that he also is ^eflesh: yet his days shall be an hundred and twenty years.

4 There were giants in the earth in those days; and also after that, when the sons of God came in unto the daughters of men, and they bare children to them, the same became mighty men which were of old, ^fmen of renown.

5 And ^gGOD saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that ^hevery ⁱimagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil ^jcontinually.

7 And the LORD said, I will destroy man, whom I have created, from the face of the earth; ^mboth man and beast, and the creeping thing, and the fowls of the air: for it repenteth me that I have made them.

8 But Noah ⁿfound grace in the eyes of the LORD.

9 ¶ These are the generations of Noah: Noah was a ^ojust man, and ^pperfect in his generations, and Noah walked with God.

10 And Noah begat three sons, Shem, Ham, and Japheth.

11 The earth also was corrupt before God; and the earth was ^qfilled with violence.

12 And God ^rlooked upon the earth, and, behold, it was corrupt: for all flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth.

13 And God said unto Noah, ^sThe end of all flesh is come before me; for the earth is filled with violence through them: and, behold, I will destroy them ^twith ^uthe earth.

Chap. VI. 1-13. The "sons of God" were the professed saints of the time, who married into worldly families; the sons of Seth united themselves with the descendants of Cain. Like too many professing godliness now, captivated by personal beauty, they made light of grace; and thus early mixed marriages became the ruin of the Church, which ceased to be the salt of the earth and the light of the world. The Spirit "strove" by testifying, preaching, warning, entreating, in the person of inspired men; by checks of conscience, and by events of Providence. The term "giants" signifies not so much men of great physical stature as men of great mental power—stirring, ambitious, prompt to deeds of violence and oppression, the opposite of the "sons of God." They were concerned not to be good, but to be great, to be "men of renown." About this time wickedness reached a climax: at no period since has the earth been by any means so fearfully polluted. Ver. 5-11 present the most awful description of depravity that can be conceived. God's ordinance of civil government has in various degrees of strength been everywhere established, repressing the wickedness of men. Divine wisdom, uniting with Divine justice, made short work in the earth in those days, by sweeping away the entire race at a single stroke. Within a very brief space the whole world perished. That was emphatically the day of death! No other such day has been, and only one such will ever be. Ver. 14-22. Now came the trial of Noah's faith and obedience; had he not believed in the coming deluge, he would not have built the ark at such an expense of toil and money. The magnitude of the vessel gives some idea of its cost. The length was about 500 feet, the breadth 100, the depth of the hold 50, the burden upwards of 81,000 tons, carrying about as much as eighteen or more of our largest ships of war. How vast the undertaking! Such was the expense at which one family, with a portion of the brute creation, were saved from drowning. How great, then, the value of that which was paid for the ransom of a world with all its generations! Noah must clearly have been a man of immense wealth, prospered of the Lord with a special view to the coming enterprise; and it is probable that every shilling of his fortune was required for the completion of this wonderful work. The obedience of Noah is specially pointed out. The ark in one view represents the Church, in another, the Lord of Glory; life within, death without! Noah suffered the loss of all things, but he secured for himself and his household deliverance from destruction, and at the close of the deluge received a world to himself.

15 And they went in unto Noah into the ark two and two of all flesh, wherein is the breath of life.

16 And they that went in, went in male and female of all flesh, as God had commanded him: and ^bthe LORD shut him in.

17 ¶ And the flood was forty days upon the earth; and the waters increased, and bare up the ark, and it was lift up above the earth.

18 And the waters prevailed, and were increased greatly upon the earth; and the ark went upon the face of the waters.

19 And the waters prevailed exceedingly upon the earth; and ^aall the high hills that were under the whole heaven were covered.

20 Fifteen cubits upward did the waters prevail; and the mountains were covered.

21 ¶ And ^aall flesh died that moved upon the earth, both of fowl, and of cattle, and of beast, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth, and every man:

22 All in whose nostrils was ^athe breath of life, of all that was in the dry land, died.

23 And ^aevery living substance was destroyed which was upon the face of the ground, both man, and cattle, and the creeping things, and the fowl of the heaven; and they were destroyed from the earth: ^aand Noah only remained alive, and they that were with him in the ark.

24 ¶ And the waters prevailed upon the earth ^aan hundred and fifty days.

CHAPTER VIII.

1 The waters asswage. 18 Noah goeth forth of the ark, 20 buildeth an altar, and offereth sacrifice. 21 God's promise to curse the earth no more.

AND ^aGod remembered Noah, and every living thing, and all ^bthe cattle that was with him in the ark: and God made

Memiah. The creatures were to enter the ark by sevens; that was three pairs of each, and one additional which would serve for sacrifice on leaving the ark. They came forward as if moved by instinct, but they were brought by a Divine hand. The flood began 1656 years from the creation, so that Noah had lived through a large portion of the whole period. It is plain from ver. 19 that the flood was not partial, as some have urged, but universal, wrapping the whole globe in one sheet of water. Even where the flood was the most shallow, still the depth was 24 feet, shewing the exactness with which the supply of water corresponded with the demands of the globe. Shells and skeletons of fishes are now found on the tops of the highest mountains of the world. The lowest computation which has been made of the population of the earth at that time is so great, as, to those who have not considered the subject, would seem fabulous. It has even been estimated as high as two millions of millions. The inhabitants of all climes commingled, animals, natives of America, have been found buried in India; elephants in England, crocodiles in Germany, and shell-fish in the midst of islands and continents. To disbelieve the doctrine of the Deluge is to lend a deaf ear to the voice of universal nature. It explains facts, stupendous and innumerable, to be accounted for in no other way. Young people, therefore, must not be misled by a godless geology. That science, rightly understood, is one of the prime corroborators of Revelation. Moses, so demonstrably true in his account of the Deluge, may well be trusted in his account of creation, and all that followed. Ver. 16. The Lord "shut him in!" The idea is great and impressive. There are two doors, each of which will be shut by God's own hand, and none can open them. The impenitent and unbelieving, once in hell, can get out no more; the faithful, once in heaven, no enemy can enter to disturb their repose, or impair their felicity.

Chap. VIII. 1-5. Hot winds possess a power of removing water wholly inconceivable to people living in these islands. A gentleman who had been solacing himself in the Tigris, states, that he came out just as the hot wind passed over, and both he and his clothes were dried in a moment! Mount Ararat is situated in the greater Armenia: the Turks, Armenians, and Persians all agree in the tradition, that the Ark rested there. Who can doubt that it was conducted thither by a Divine hand, as to the first place of repose that earth could supply? Ararat is 1500 feet higher than Mont Blanc; the summit is 160 feet in circumference. It is a remarkable fact, that it has two heads; and it is probable that the Ark rested between them, as if placed in the stocks of a dock prepared for the purpose. Ver. 15-22. As the sea will give up its dead, the Ark, like a mighty tomb, surrendered its precious treasure—a world in epitome! God never resorts to miracles where ordinary means will suffice. With a word he could have created all the creatures afresh, but it was more for his glory to preserve them. Here we have the first mention of an altar by name; but the thing, doubtless, was as old as sacrifice. Here, in the burnt-offering, faith in the coming Christ, and the great Atonement, are clearly set forth. Faith in the promised Saviour rendered the sacrifice ^aa wind to pass over the earth, and the waters asswaged :

2 The ^dfountains also of the deep, and the windows of heaven, were stopped, and ^ethe rain from heaven was restrained :

3 And the waters ¹returned from off the earth continually : and after the end of the hundred and fifty days the waters were abated.

4 ¶ And the ark rested in the seventh month, on the seventeenth day of the month, upon the mountains of Ararat.

5 And the waters ²decreased continually until the tenth month : in the tenth month, on the first day of the month, were the tops of the mountains seen.

6 ¶ And it came to pass at the end of forty days, that Noah opened the window of the ark which he had made :

7 And he sent forth ^aa raven, which went forth ³to and fro, until the waters were dried up from off the earth.

8 Also he sent forth ^aa dove from him, to see if the waters were abated from off the face of the ground :

9 But the dove ^bfound no rest for the sole of her foot, ¹and she returned unto him into the ark ; for the waters ^{were} on the face of the whole earth : then he put forth his hand, and took her, and ⁴pulled her in unto him into the ark.

10 And he ^kstayed yet other ¹seven days ; and again he sent forth the dove out of the ark :

11 And the dove came in to him in the evening ; and, lo, in her mouth ^{was} ^man olive-leaf pluckt off. So Noah knew that the waters were abated from off the earth.

12 And ⁿhe stayed yet other ^oseven days, and sent forth the dove, which returned not again unto him any more.

13 ¶ And it came to pass in the six hundredth and first year, in the first month, the first day of the month, the waters were dried up from off the earth ; and Noah removed the covering of the ark, and looked, and, behold, the face of the ground was dry.

14 And in the second month, on the seven and twentieth day of the month, was the earth dried.

15 ¶ And God spake unto Noah, saying,

16 ^pGo forth of the ark, thou, and thy wife, and thy sons, and thy sons' wives with thee.

17 Bring forth with thee every living thing that ^{is} with thee, of all flesh, ^{both} of fowl, and of cattle, and of every creeping acceptable, and Noah commences the world afresh under the Divine blessing. It bodes well for the success of young people, taking up house, when an altar to God is erected at the outset. A praying man will, in the best sense, be a prosperous man. Let all new couples remember this : no piece of furniture is so cheap as the altar, none so profitable, and therefore none ought to be so precious.

Chap. IX. 1-4. Animal food is now permitted, but the eating of blood is strictly forbidden. Under the law it was not allowed, as it pointed to the blood of the Atonement : and for the same reason it is not now permitted to Christians, Acts xv. 29. It also interdicts the thing that creepeth upon the earth ; that they may ^qbreed abundantly in the earth, and be fruitful, and multiply upon the earth.

18 And Noah went forth, and his sons, and his wife, and his sons' wives with him :

19 Every beast, every creeping thing, and every fowl, ^{and} whatsoever creepeth upon the earth, after their ^rkinds, went forth out of the ark.

20 ¶ And Noah ^tbuilt an altar unto the LORD, and took of every ^sclean beast, and of every clean fowl, and offered ^tburnt-offerings on the altar.

21 And the LORD ^usmelled a sweet savour ; and the LORD said in his heart, I will not again ^vcurse the ground any more for man's sake ; ^wfor ^vthe imagination of man's heart ^{is} evil from his youth : ^xneither will I again smite any more every thing living, as I have done.

22 ^yWhile the earth remaineth, ^zseed-time and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and day and night, shall not ^bcease.

CHAPTER IX.

1 God blesseth Noah. 4 Blood and murder are forbidden. 8 God's covenant signified by the rainbow. 21 Noah is drunken, 25 curseth Canaan, 29 and dieth.

AND God ^ablessed Noah^a and his sons, and said unto them, Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth.

2 And ^bthe fear of you, and the dread of you, shall be upon every beast of the earth, and upon every fowl of the air, upon all that moveth ^{upon} the earth, and upon all the fishes of the sea : into your hand are they delivered.

3 ^cEvery moving thing that liveth shall be meat for you ; even ^das the green herb have I given you all things.

4 But flesh with ^ethe life thereof, ^{which} is the blood thereof, shall ye not eat.

5 And surely your blood of your lives will I require : at the hand of ^fevery beast will I require it, and ^gat the hand of man ; at the hand of every man's ^hbrother will I require the life of man.

6 Whoso sheddeth man's blood, ⁱby man shall his blood be shed : for ^kin the image of God made he man.

7 And you, be ye fruitful, and multiply ; bring forth abundantly in the earth, and multiply therein.

8 ¶ And God spake unto Noah, and to his sons with him, saying,

9 And I, behold, I ^lestablish my cove-cruel practice of cutting portions of the flesh from live cattle as it is wanted for food. Ver. 5, 6. This clearly shews, that the crime of murder is to be punished with death ; and therefore, that the attempt to abolish that punishment for that crime is just an attempt to abolish a Divine law. The case of Cain must not be pleaded against this declaration. There were special reasons for permitting him to live. That was the exception, this the rule. Here the law is positive. Ver. 8-17. Covenants are merciful promises. The rainbow previously existed, and was the effect of the operation of natural causes ; but it was then given for a sign to comfort Noah and his posterity. The Deluge is proved not only by the Organic Remains of the old world, but by the tradition of all 29 And all the days of Noah were nine hundred and fifty years: and he died.

CHAPTER X.

1 Noah's generations. 2 The sons of Japheth and Ham. 8 Nimrod the first monarch. 21 The sons of Shem.

NOW these are the generations of the sons of Noah, Shem, Ham, and Japheth: and unto them were sons born after the flood.

2 The sons of Japheth; Gomer, and Magog, and Madai, and Javan, and Tubal, and Meshech, and Tiras.

3 And the sons of Gomer; Ashkenaz, and Riphath, and Togarmah.

4 And the sons of Javan; Elishah, and Tarshish, Kittim, and Dodanin.

5 By these were the isles of the Gentiles divided in their lands; every one after his tongue, after their families, in their nations.

6 ¶ And the sons of Ham; Cush, and Mizraim, and Phut, and Canaan.

7 And the sons of Cush; Seba, and Havilah, and Sabtah, and Raamah, and Sabtechah: and the sons of Raamah; Sheba, and Dedan.

8 And Cush begat Nimrod: he began to be a mighty one in the earth.

9 He was a ^smighty hunter before the LORD: wherefore it is said, ^tEven as Nimrod the mighty hunter before the LORD.

10 And the beginning of his kingdom was ^uBabel, and Erech, and Accad, and ^vCalneh, in the land of ^wShinar.

11 Out of that land ^xwent forth ^yAsshur, and builded ^zNineveh, and the city ^aRehoboth, and Calah, 12 And Resen between Nineveh and Calah: the same is a great city.

13 And Mizraim begat ^bLudim, and Ananim, and Lehabim, and Naphtuhim, 14 And ^cPathrusim, and Casluhim, (out of whom came ^dPhilistim,) and ^eCaphortorim.

15 ¶ And Canaan begat ^fSidon his first-born, and ^gHeth.

16 And the ^hJebusite, and the Amorite, and the Girgasite, nations. Ver. 18-29. Although Noah fell this once, it is not to be inferred that it was his habit; there is no ground whatever for such an assumption. It was probably a mere surprise, followed by penitence, sincere, deep, and bitter. One unhappy act must not be confounded with a settled course of life. The curse here denounced was fulfilled in the Canaanites, whose unexampled wickedness was foreseen. The slavery of the descendants of Ham, as the inhabitants of Africa, is here most distinctly foretold. The enlargement of Japheth is a matter of history. He had seven sons, Ham only four. His posterity occupied not only Europe, but Asia

Minor, and other vast regions in the North, every way and incalculably superior to the lot of Ham. To promote or proclaim the dishonour of parents, is a crime of the deepest dye, and sure to be visited with the severest penalties. On the contrary, to honour father and mother is the first commandment with promise; and they who observe it never fail to prosper.

Chap. X. 1-7. The sons of Noah had no families till after the flood,—a circumstance which illustrates the Divine wisdom and goodness. Families would have greatly increased their labour, anxiety, and suffering

17 And the ^aHivite, and the Arkite, and the Sinite,

18 And the ^bArvadite, and the ^cZemartite, and the ^dHamathite: and afterward were the families of the Canaanites spread abroad.

19 And ^ethe border of the Canaanites was from Sidon, as thou comest to Gerar, unto ^fGaza; as thou goest unto ^gSodom, and Gomorrah, and Admah, and Zeboim, even unto Lasha.

20 These are the sons of ^hHam, after their families, after their tongues, in their countries, and in their nations.

21 ¶ Unto Shem also, ⁱthe father of all the children of Eber, the brother of Japheth the elder, even to him were children born.

22 The ^jchildren of Shem; ^kElam, and Aashur, and ^lArphaxad, and ^mLud, and ⁿAram.

23 And the children of Aram; ^oUz, and Hul, and Gether, and Mash.

24 And Arphaxad begat ^pSalah; and Salah begat Eber.

25 And unto Eber were born two sons: the name of one was ^qPeleg; for in his days was the earth divided; ^rand his brother's name was Joktan.

26 And Joktan begat Almodad, and Sheleph, and Hazarmaveth, and Jerah, 27 And Hadoram, and Uzal, and Diklah,

28 And Obal, and Abimael, and ^sSheba,

29 And ^tOphir, and ^uHavilah, and Jobab: all these were the sons of Joktan.

30 And their dwelling was from Mesha, as thou goest unto Sephar, a mount of the east.

31 These are the sons of Shem, after their families, after their tongues, in their lands, after their nations.

32 These are the families of the sons of Noah, after their generations, in their nations: and by these were the nations divided in the earth after the flood.

CHAPTER XI.

1 One language in the world. 3 Babel built. 7 Languages confounded. 10 The generations of Shem, 27 and of Terah, Abram's father.

AND the whole earth ^awas of one ^blanguage, and of one ^cspeech.

2 And it came to pass, as they journeyed ^dfrom the east, that they found a plain in the land of ^eShinar; and they dwelt there.

3 ¶ And ^fthey said one to another, Go to, let us make brick, and ^gburn them thoroughly. And they had brick for stone, and slime had they for mortar.

4 And they said, Go to, let us build us a city, and a tower whose top may reach unto heaven; ^hand let us make us a name, ⁱlest we be scattered abroad upon the face of the whole earth.

5 And the LORD ^jcame down to see the city and the tower, which the children of men builded.

6 And the LORD said, ^kBehold, ^lthe people is one, and they have all one language; and this they begin to do: and now nothing will be restrained from them, which they have ^mimagined to do.

7 Go to, ⁿlet us go down, and there ^oconfound their language, that they ^pmay not understand one another's speech.

8 So the ^qLORD scattered them abroad from thence upon the face of all the earth: and they left off to build the city.

9 Therefore is the name of it called ^rBabel; because the LORD did there confound the language of all the earth: and from thence did the LORD scatter them abroad upon ^sthe face of all the earth.

10 ¶ These are ^tthe generations of Shem: Shem was an hundred years old, and begat Arphaxad two years after the flood.

11 And Shem lived, after he begat Arphaxad, five hundred years, and begat sons and daughters.

12 And Arphaxad lived five and thirty years, and begat Salah.

throughout the awful period of their residence on the waters. This chapter explains the origin of nations,—a fact wholly unknown to heathen historians. Ham signifies burned, or black, which indicates the nature of the regions allotted to his offspring. Ver. 8-11. Nimrod, also called Belus, was the builder of Babylon. Ashur, the builder of Nineveh, was the founder of the Assyrian Empire, his people bearing his name. Ver. 21-24. Shem, the ancestor of the promised seed, obtained the finest regions of Upper and Middle Asia as his allotment. The term Hebrews is derived from Eber, the grandson of Shem. Ver. 25-32. The division of the earth succeeded the confusion of tongues, to be afterwards mentioned. After this dates the origin of races and the foundation of empires. The genealogy enables us correctly to ascertain the fulfilment of Noah's prediction concerning his three sons; and at this early period we have special information as to the people who were to form the Church, and of whom Christ was to come in the flesh. We here see the original unity of the race and the brotherhood of mankind. God is the Father of all; and all should love as members of the common family. Difference in language, clime, colour, or in degree of civilisation, are no more substantial reasons for hatred than are differences of stature, complexion, or circumstances. All this consists with the most perfect oneness of heart. The recollection of this idea will work the extinction of injustice, cruelty, slavery, and war.

Chap. XI. 1-3. Language, like man, was at the beginning one. At the confusion of tongues, the original language would seem to have remained with the family of Eber; and hence the use of the term Hebrew as their language. Hebrew writers confirm the account here given of the brick and slime. Ver. 4. All that is meant is a tower of great height. By "name" is meant a large city as a centre of a great empire. Ver. 5. This is an Eastern mode of expression for taking notice. The spirit of idolatry began thus early to manifest itself; it was therefore time to restrain it. The language here, as in that concerning the creation of man, signifies a plurality of persons in the Godhead. The nations of the earth were determined by the several languages; these became the bond of union among the various groups that constituted their elements. They who understood each other naturally went together. We are solely indebted to Scripture for all our knowledge of these facts. Heathen writers give no information whatever concerning them. Ver. 9. Herodotus, the father of Grecian history, has testified to this wild but stupendous project. He tells us its height was 660 feet; that is 170 feet higher than the greatest of the Egyptian pyramids, and about 160 feet higher than the cross of St Paul's, London. It consisted of eight square towers, one above another. Strabo calls it a pyramid. The winding path is said to have been four miles in length. Ver. 11-17. It thus appears that Shem was long a contemporary with 13 And Arphaxad lived, after he begat Salah, four hundred and three years, and begat sons and daughters.

14 And Salah lived thirty years, and begat Eber.

15 And Salah lived, after he begat Eber, four hundred and three years, and begat sons and daughters.

16 And Eber lived four and thirty years, and begat Peleg.

17 And Eber lived, after he begat Peleg, four hundred and thirty years, and begat sons and daughters.

18 And Peleg lived thirty years, and begat Reu.

19 And Peleg lived, after he begat Reu, two hundred and nine years, and begat sons and daughters.

20 And Reu lived two and thirty years, and begat Serug.

21 And Reu lived, after he begat Serug, two hundred and seven years, and begat sons and daughters.

22 And Serug lived thirty years, and begat Nahor.

23 And Serug lived, after he begat Nahor, two hundred years, and begat sons and daughters.

24 And Nahor lived nine and twenty years, and begat Terah.

25 And Nahor lived, after he begat Terah, an hundred and nineteen years, and begat sons and daughters.

26 And Terah lived seventy years, and begat Abram, Nahor, and Haran.

27 ¶ Now these are the generations of Terah: Terah begat Abram, Nahor, and Haran; and Haran begat Lot.

28 And Haran died before his father Terah in the land of his nativity, in Ur of the Chaldees.

29 And Abram and Nahor took them wives: the name of Abram's wife was Sarai; and the name of Nahor's wife Milcah, the daughter of Haran, the father of Milcah, and the father of Ischah.

30 But Sarai was barren; she had no child.

31 ¶ And Terah took Abram his son, and Lot the son of Haran his son's son, and Sarai his daughter-in-law, his son Abram's wife; and they went forth with them from Ur of the Chaldees, to go into the land of Canaan: and they came unto Haran, and dwelt there.

32 And the days of Terah were two hundred and five years: and Terah died in Haran.

Abram, and that Eber was the longest lived of all the patriarchs from after the flood. Notwithstanding the example of Divine vengeance against sin, supplied by the flood, the posterity of Noah soon began to degenerate, daily waxing worse and worse, till idolatry once more became rampant. But there was light even then amid the darkness. The generations of Shem remained: the family of God never dies out. All the descendants of Shem are now offered the fullest bliss the Gospel can supply; neither are those of Ham and Japheth cast out. The voice of mercy reaches to the whole family of man.

CHAPTER XII.

1 God calleth Abram, and blesseth him with a promise of Christ. 4 His departure from Haran. 7 Canaan is promised to him in a vision. 10 He is driven by a famine into Egypt.

NOW the LORD had said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will shew thee:

2 And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing:

3 And I will bless him that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee: and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed.

4 ¶ So Abram departed, as the LORD had spoken unto him; and Lot went with him: and Abram was seventy and five years old when he departed out of Haran.

5 And Abram took Sarai his wife, and Lot his brother's son, and all their substance that they had gathered, and the souls that they had gotten in Haran; and they went forth to go into the land of Canaan; and into the land of Canaan they came.

6 ¶ And Abram passed through the land unto the place of Sichem, unto the plain of Moreh. And the Canaanite was then in the land.

7 And the LORD appeared unto Abram, and said, Unto thy seed will I give this land: and there builded he an altar unto the LORD, who appeared unto him.

8 And he removed from thence unto a mountain on the east of Beth-el, and pitched his tent, having Beth-el on the west, and Hai on the east: and there he builded an altar unto the LORD, and called upon the name of the LORD.

9 And Abram journeyed, going on still toward the south.

10 ¶ And there was a famine in the land: and Abram went down into Egypt to sojourn there; for the famine was grievous in the land.

11 And it came to pass, when he was come near to enter into Egypt, that he said unto Sarai his wife, Behold now, I know that thou art a fair woman to look upon:

12 Therefore it shall come to pass, when the Egyptians shall see thee, that they shall say, This is his wife; and they will kill me, but they will save thee alive.

13 Say, I pray thee, thou art my sister: that it may be well with me for thy sake; and my soul shall live because of thee.

tion of the separate nation out of which the Messiah was to spring. We have now before us the Father of the Faithful himself, the great pattern to all believers. The command was accompanied by a promise exceedingly adapted to encourage him in the course of obedience; he is to be made a blessing to all mankind: and the promise has already, to a vast extent, been realized. This was to be brought about through Christ, and by means of his glorious Gospel, Acts iii. 25; Gal. iii. 8-16. Ver. 6. The land belonged to the posterity of Shem, although the offspring of Canaan had seized it; as descendants of Ham, Africa was their lot, but they took up their abode on the way in the most fertile regions. The land, by promise, belonged to Abraham; the removal of the Ca-

14 ¶ And it came to pass, that, when Abram was come into Egypt, the Egyptians beheld the woman, that she was very fair.

15 The "princes also of Pharaoh saw her, and commended her before Pharaoh: and the woman was ^btaken into Pharaoh's house.

16 And he ^centreated Abram well for her sake: and he had sheep, and oxen, and he-asses, and men-servants, and maid-servants, and she-asses, and camels.

17 And the LORD ^dplagued Pharaoh and his house with great plagues because of Sarai, Abram's wife.

18 And Pharaoh called Abram, and said, "What is this that thou hast done unto me? why didst thou not tell me that she was thy wife?"

19 Why saidst thou, She is my sister? so I might have taken her to me to wife: now therefore behold thy wife, take her, and go thy way.

20 And Pharaoh commanded his men 'concerning him: and they sent him away, and his wife, and all that he had.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 Abram and Lot return out of Egypt. 7 By disagreement they part asunder. 14 God's promise renewed to Abram.

AND Abram went up out of Egypt, he, and his wife, and all that he had, and Lot with him, ^ainto the south.

2 And Abram was very ^brich in cattle, in silver, and in gold.

3 And he went on his journeys from the south even to Beth-el, unto the place where his tent had been at the beginning, between Beth-el and Hai;

4 Unto ^cthe place of the altar, which he had made there at the first: and there Abram ^dcalled on the name of the LORD.

5 ¶ And Lot also, which went with Abram, had flocks, and herds, and tents.

6 And the land was not able to ^ebear them, that they might dwell together: for their substance was great, so that they could not dwell together.

naanites by Joshua, therefore, was not robbery, but recovery. Ver. 7. The religion of the patriarch was much distinguished by direct communication with God, the Messiah, the Angel of the Covenant; and the appearance was always the signal of some good thing to man. Abraham followed the appearance by the erection of an altar with sacrifice and prayer. Ver. 8. Here again we have a fresh altar, and renewed worship. The journey of the great patriarch might almost be traced by his altars,—an act in which he presents a striking example to his children. Ver. 13. In one view, she was his sister, the daughter of his father, but not the daughter of his mother, chap. xx. 12; but a wrong impression was made on the mind of Pharaoh. Fear led the patriarch to suggest the suppression of part of the truth from a man who had no right to know it. It seems to have been overlooked by Abraham, however, that if this course would save his life, it might peril her honour. The call of Abraham is a striking illustration of the doctrine of the election of grace. Nothing could have been more free and sovereign, gracious and merciful; and substantially the same it is with all God's children.

Chap. XIII. 1-3. Bethel, which is famous in the sacred narrative, was only twelve miles from Jerusalem. Ver. 7-13. It is well when servants are zealous for the 12 Abram dwelt in the land of Canaan, and Lot dwelt in the cities of the plain, and ^hpitched his tent toward Sodom.

13 But ⁱthe men of Sodom were wicked, and sinners ^jbefore the LORD exceedingly.

14 ¶ And the LORD said unto Abram, Lift up now thine eyes, and look from the place where thou art northward, and southward, and eastward, and westward;

15 For all the land which thou seest, ^kto thee will I give it, and to thy seed for ever.

16 And ^lI will make thy seed as the dust of the earth: so that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then shall thy seed also be numbered.

interests of their masters. When friends, partners in business, or sharers in property, cannot agree, they should part in peace, and in the spirit of equity. The course of Abraham was generous and noble: that of Lot mean and selfish. Lot betrayed much of a worldly disposition, and for the sake of a little grass, was near to losing his life, with all that belonged to him. Christians should take warning from him. Ver. 14-18. Here again the Lord appears to his servant; and the appearance is followed, as usual, by another altar, with sacrifice and prayer; and this, it is to be remembered, in the midst of an idolatrous people. It requires great faith and some grace to preserve the soul from being injured by great wealth; grace, however, can accomplish even this, as is shewn in the case of Abraham, who was in no respect injured by his prosperity. Peace is sometimes to be purchased at the expense of our rights; the case of Abraham, however, is often misapplied in the matter of rights and privileges. True piety does not require the sacrifice of either reason or equity. Some people, however, are often but too ready to preach surrender to the lawful owner, when they should call on the aggressor to desist. In the case of Abraham, moreover, it was not an affair of much and nothing, but of better and of worse, of greater and of less; yea, an affair in which the right was common.

CHAPTER XIV.

1 The battle of the kings. 12 Lot taken; 14 is rescued by Abram. 18 Melchizedek blesseth Abram, 20 who giveth him tithes.

AND it came to pass, in the days of Amraphel king of ^aShinar, Arioch king of ^bEllasar, Chedorlaomer king of ^cElam, and Tidal king of nations;

2 That these made war with Bera king of ^dSodom, and with Birsha king of Gomorrah, Shinab king of ^eAdmah, and Shebeber king of Zeboim, and the king of Bela, which is Zoar.

3 All these were joined together in the vale of Siddim, which is the salt sea.

4 Twelve years they served Chedorlaomer, and in the thirteenth year they rebelled.

5 And in the fourteenth year came Chedorlaomer, and the kings that were with him, and smote the ^fRephaims in ^gAshteroth Karnaim, and the ^hZuzims in Ham, and the ⁱEmims in ^jShaveh Kiriathaim,

6 And the ^kHorites in their mount Seir, unto ^lEl-paran, which is by the wilderness.

7 And they returned, and came to Enmishpat, which is ^mKadesh, and smote all the country of the ⁿAmalekites, and also the Amorites that dwelt in ^oHazezon-tamar.

8 And there went out the king of Sodom, and the king of Gomorrah, and the king of Admah, and the king of Zeboim, and the king of Bela (the same is Zoar;) and they joined battle with them in the vale of Siddim;

9 With Chedorlaomer the king of Elam, and with Tidal king of nations, and Amraphel king of Shinar, and Arioch king of Ellasar; four kings with five.

10 And the vale of Siddim was full of slime-pits; and the kings of Sodom and Gomorrah fled, and fell there; and they that remained fled to the mountain.

11 And they took all the goods of Sodom and Gomorrah, and all their victuals, and went their way.

12 And they took Lot, Abram's brother's son, (who dwelt in Sodom,) and his goods, and departed.

13 And there came one that had escaped, and told Abram ^pthe Hebrew; for he dwelt in the plain of Mamre the Amorite, brother of Eshcol, and brother of Aner: and these were confederate with Abram.

Chap. XIV. 1-16. While aggressive war is wickedness, defensive war is sometimes a duty. Here are nine kings, with their people, shedding each other's blood; and Lot, in the course of their desolations, paid dearly for his covetous choice. What must have been his feelings as he was led captive by those who had carried away the whole of his property, as well as his people, when he remembered that his danger arose from his selfishness! He had, in a measure, forfeited every claim to sympathy and succour on the part of his uncle; but the Father of the Faithful, setting aside thoughts of merit, had regard only to his nephew's necessities. He therefore, with great courage and promptitude, resorted to force, and succeeded in recovering Lot, with his people and his goods, and so heaped coals of fire on his head. Ver. 17-24. Melchizedek has been the subject of much elaborate 21 ¶ And the king of Sodom said unto Abram, Give me the ^{ah}persons, and take the goods to thyself.

22 And Abram said to the king of Sodom, I have ^{ai}lift up mine hand ^{aj}unto the LORD, ^{ak}the most high God, the possessor of heaven and earth,

23 That ^{al}I will not take from a thread even to a shoe-latchet, and that I will not take any thing that is thine, ^{am}lest thou shouldest say, I have made Abram rich:

24 Save only that which the young men have eaten, and the portion of the men which went with me, Aner, Eshcol, and Mamre; ^{an}let them take their portion.

CHAPTER XV.

1 God encourageth Abram. 2 Abram complaineth for want of an heir. 3 God promisseth him a son, and a multiplying of his seed. 6 Abram is justified by faith. 7 Canaan is promised again.

AFTER these things the word of the LORD came unto Abram ^{ao}in a vision, saying, ^{ap}Fear not, Abram: I am ^{aq}thy shield, and thy ^{ar}exceeding great reward.

2 And Abram said, Lord God, what wilt thou give me, seeing I go ^{as}childless, and ^{at}the steward of my house is this Eliezer of Damascus?

3 And Abram said, ^{au}Behold, to me thou speculation. The whole, however, may be reduced to two points: a few think he was the Son of God; the great majority, however, hold that he was a pious king, and a type of Christ. Be this as it may—and it is impossible to settle the point with certainty—nothing can be more magnanimous and noble than the conduct of Abraham. How careful was he to maintain his personal dignity and independence! At this remote period how well the narrative reads! He thought of the thing that was of “good report,” and his children do well to imitate his dignified example.

Chap. XV. 1-6. Abraham might well fear that the successors of the kings should wreak their vengeance on him, and hence the importance of the gracious promise here given for his support and comfort. Abraham found it difficult to reconcile the promises with the providences of Jehovah, and hence he took the liberty of a child to hast given no seed: and, lo, one born in my house is mine heir.

4 ¶ And, behold, the word of the LORD came unto him, saying, This shall not be thine heir; but he that shall come forth out of thine own bowels shall be thine heir.

5 And he brought him forth abroad, and said, Look now toward heaven, and tell the stars, if thou be able to number them. And he said unto him, 'So shall thy seed be.

6 ¶ And he believed in the LORD; and he counted it to him for righteousness.

7 ¶ And he said unto him, I am the LORD that brought thee out of Ur of the Chaldees, to give thee this land to inherit it.

8 And he said, Lord God, whereby shall I know that I shall inherit it?

9 And he said unto him, Take me an heifer of three years old, and a she-goat of three years old, and a ram of three years old, and a turtle-dove, and a young pigeon.

10 And he took unto him all these, and divided them in the midst, and laid each piece one against another; but the birds divided he not.

11 And when the fowls came down upon the carcases, Abram drove them away.

12 ¶ And when the sun was going down, a deep sleep fell upon Abram; and, lo, an horror of great darkness fell upon him.

13 And he said unto Abram, Know of a surety that thy seed shall be a stranger in a land that is not theirs, and shall serve them; and they shall afflict them four hundred years:

14 And also that nation, whom they shall serve, will I judge; and afterward shall they come out with great substance.

15 And thou shalt go to thy fathers in peace; thou shalt be buried in a good old age.

16 But in the fourth generation they shall come hither again: for the iniquity of the Amorites is not yet full.

17 And it came to pass, that, when the sun went down, and it was dark, behold a smoking furnace, and a burning lamp that passed between those pieces.

18 In that same day the LORD made a covenant with Abram, saying, 'Unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates:

CHAPTER XVI.

1 Sarai giveth Hagar to Abram, 6 who, flying from her mistress, 9 is sent back by an angel. 15 Ishmael is born.

NOW Sarai, Abram's wife, bare him no children: and she had an handmaid, an Egyptian, whose name was Hagar.

2 And Sarai said unto Abram, Behold now, the LORD hath restrained me from bearing: I pray thee, go in unto my maid; it may be that I may obtain children by her. And Abram hearkened to the voice of Sarai.

3 And Sarai, Abram's wife, took Hagar her maid, the Egyptian, after Abram had dwelt ten years in the land of Canaan, and gave her to her husband Abram to be his wife.

4 ¶ And he went in unto Hagar, and she conceived: and when she saw that she had conceived, her mistress was despised in her eyes.

5 And Sarai said unto Abram, My wrong be upon thee: I have given my maid into thy bosom; and when she saw that she had conceived, I was despised in her eyes: the LORD judge between me and thee.

6 But Abram said unto Sarai, Behold, thy maid is in thy hand: do to her as it pleaseth thee. And when Sarai dealt hardly with her, she fled from her face.

7 ¶ And the angel of the LORD found her by a fountain of water in the wilderness, by the fountain in the way to Shur.

8 And he said, Hagar, Sarai's maid, whence camest thou? and whither wilt thou go? And she said, I flee from the face of my mistress Sarai.

9 And the angel of the LORD said unto her, Return to thy mistress, and submit thyself under her hands.

10 And the angel of the LORD said unto her, I will multiply thy seed exceedingly, that it shall not be numbered for multitude.

11 And the angel of the LORD said unto her, Behold, thou art with child, and shalt bear a son, and shalt call his name Ishmael; because the LORD hath heard thy affliction.

12 And he will be a wild man; his hand utter his gentle complaints in the ear of his kind Father, the Lord who had appeared in vision. The answer to his complaint was a renewal of the promise, which, with all his heart, he continued to believe: and in so doing he was justified. Justified! Yes, justified by faith, and that without work or merit of any kind. The law had nothing to do with it; for the law had not then been promulgated, and only existed in the human heart. The object of the promise was Christ, and through belief in Christ Abraham was justified. He was accounted righteous; that is, he was treated as if he had been a righteous person. He was made "the righteousness of God in Christ." Mark the analogy; Adam's sin is the believer's by imputation, not by personal transgression; so the merit of Christ's work and suffering is the believer's, though he had nothing to do with it. Ver. 7-14. The bondage of Egypt is very clearly predicted, and the time of deliverance fixed to a year. Known unto God is the end of all things from the beginning. Ver. 15. As Abraham's body was not interred in the sepulchre of his fathers, it follows that his soul was to join them in paradise. Such fathers, therefore, must be the patriarchs who died in the Lord.

Chap. XVI. 1-16. The conduct of Hagar was reprehensible, but the deportment of Sarai towards her was by no means lovely. This is the first account we have of an angel's appearance to man. From ver. 10 it is clear that the Angel of the Covenant was none other than the Saviour of the world. The descendants of Ishmael, down to the present day, bear a character exactly corresponding with that which is here drawn of himself.

15 ¶ And ¹Hagar bare Abram a son: and Abram called his son's name, which Hagar bare, Ishmael.

16 And Abram ¹was fourscore and six years old when Hagar bare Ishmael to Abram.

CHAPTER XVII.

1 The covenant is renewed. 5 Abram's name changed. 10 Circumcision is instituted. 16 Isaac is promised.

17 Then Abraham fell upon his face, and laughed, and said in his heart, Shall ¹"a child be born unto him that is an hundred years old? and shall Sarah, that is ninety years old, bear?

18 And Abraham said unto God, ¹"O that Ishmael might live before thee!

21 But ¹"my covenant will I establish with Isaac, which Sarah shall bear unto thee at this set time in the next year.

22 And he left off ¹"talking with him, and God went up from Abraham.

23 ¶ And Abraham took Ishmael his son, and all that were born in his house, and all that were bought with his money, every male among the men of Abraham's house, and ¹"circumcised the flesh of their

Their life is one of uninterrupted hostility with all around. The territory they occupy is great, amounting to about 1800 miles in length, and 900 miles in breadth. They have ever set at defiance the greatest powers that have come against them. They were never subdued. The Persians, the Grecians, the Romans, the Tartars, and the Turks, have all tried, but never succeeded, to enthrall them. Few predictions of the Word of God are more remarkable, and fitted to impress the reflecting mind.

Chap. XVII. 1-14. The course of Abraham was very plain: it was for him carefully to remember the precept, and God would, without fail, remember the promise; and thus it is with all his children, whose wisdom it will ever be to walk in his steps. The covenant here referred to is pronounced "everlasting." The seals and the dispensations have varied, but the covenant itself is ever the same. The everlasting covenant secures the everlasting possession. Circumcision is the sign, the seal, and pledge of the Divine promise, and the memorial of human duty. It betokens the operation of grace in purifying the soul. The circumcision of the heart is an inward seal that the believer is justified. Ver. 15-27. Abraham was ever cheered by the promise, which now assumed a definite form; though he wondered, he did not disbelieve. The prayer of Abraham for Ishmael is full of beauty. Although not the promised seed, he was yet very dear to his father. The paternal prayer was general, but the gracious answer was specific; in his own way he was not only to live, but to be one of the greatest of men. Happy are they who have parents to pray for them, that they may live before the Lord! Ishmael was now thirteen years old, and had become an object of most endeared interest to his father. It is a remarkable fact, that the descendants of Ishmael down to the present hour circumcise their youth in their thirteenth year. How confirming are all these things of the truth of Inspiration!

foreskin in the self-same day, as God had said unto him.

24 And Abraham was ninety years old and nine when he was circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin.

25 And Ishmael his son was thirteen years old when he was circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin.

26 ¹In the self-same day was Abraham circumcised, and Ishmael his son ;

27 And all the men of his house, born in the house, and bought with money of the stranger, were circumcised with him.

CHAPTER XVIII.

AND the LORD ^aappeared unto him in the plains of Mamre : and he sat in the tent door in the heat of the day ;

2 And he lift up his eyes and looked, and, lo, three men stood by him : and, when he saw them, he ran to meet them from the tent door, and ^bbowed himself toward the ground,

3 And said, My Lord, if now I have found favour in thy sight, pass not away, I pray thee, from thy servant.

5 And I will fetch a morsel of bread, and ^dcomfort ye your hearts ; after that ye shall pass on : for therefore ^eare ye come to your servant. And they said, So do as thou hast said.

6 And Abraham hastened into the tent unto Sarah, and said, ^fMake ready quickly ^gthree measures of fine meal, knead it, and make cakes upon the hearth.

7 And Abraham ^hran unto the herd, and fetched a calf tender and good, and gave it unto a young man ; and he hasted to dress it.

8 And he took butter and milk, and the calf which he had dressed, and set it before them ; ⁱand he stood by them under the tree, ^jand they did eat.

9 ^k¶ And they said unto him, Where is Sarah thy wife ? And he said, Behold, ^lin the tent.

10 And ^mhe said, I will certainly return unto thee ⁿaccording to the time of life ; and, lo, ^oSarah thy wife shall have a son. And Sarah heard it in the tent door, which was behind him.

11 Now Abraham and Sarah were ^pold, and well stricken in age ; and it ceased to be with Sarah after the manner of women.

12 Therefore Sarah ^alaughed within herself, saying, After I am waxed old shall I have pleasure, ^bmy lord being old also ?

13 And the LORD said unto Abraham, Wherefore did Sarah laugh, saying, Shall I of a surety bear a child, which am old ?

14 Is ^cany thing too hard for the LORD ? At the time appointed ^dI will return unto thee, according to the time of life, and Sarah shall have a son.

15 Then Sarah ^edenied, saying, I laughed not : for she was afraid. And he said, ^fNay ; but thou didst laugh.

16 And the men rose up from thence, and looked toward Sodom : and Abraham went with them, to bring them on the way.

17 ^g¶ And the LORD said, ^hShall I hide from Abraham that thing which I do ;

18 Seeing that Abraham shall surely ⁱbecome a great and mighty nation, and all the nations of the earth shall be blessed in him ?

19 For ^jI know him, that he will ^kcommand his children and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of the LORD, to do justice and judgment ; ^lthat the LORD may bring upon Abraham that which he hath spoken of him.

20 And the LORD said, Because ^mthe cry of Sodom and Gomorrah is great, and because their sin is very grievous, 21 I will ⁿgo down now, and ^osee whether they have done altogether according to the cry of it, which is come unto me ; and if not, ^pI will know.

26 And the LORD said, ^zIf I find in Sodom fifty righteous within the city, then I will spare all the place for their sakes.

27 And Abraham answered and said, Behold now, ^{aa}I have taken upon me to speak unto the LORD, which am but ^{ab}dust and ashes :

Chap. XVIII. 1-16. Was ever the spirit of hospitality more strikingly exemplified ? We have here politeness in perfection, benevolence in its most finished form. Abraham had a multitude of servants, but his guests are more honoured in being served by himself. In the East the most distinguished princes wait upon their guests ; the greatest dignitaries will assist in husbandry, and kill a lamb ; and princesses will dress it. When a guest enters a house, the master is the first to wash his feet. The pride of life has but little place among them. How full of truth and nature is the account here given of Sarah ! In spirit she did not prevaricate. Her accusation for the moment filled her with confusion, and the Angel of the Covenant treated her with great tenderness.

He who reads the heart can distinguish between infirmity excited by surprise, and deliberate transgression. Ver. 17-33. The testimony here borne to Abraham as the father of a household is very extraordinary, and presents a lasting example to mankind. While the Father of the Faithful taught, helikewise commanded. Truth and authority were essential to each other. Great was the honour shewn in the communication given relative to the destruction of Sodom ; and wonderful was the prayer presented by the man of God on the occasion. Next to the prayer of our Lord in the Gospel of John, the most remarkable example of intercession in the Sacred Scriptures is here presented. It is impossible to conceive of encouragement to such prayer greater than that which is here supplied.

28 Peradventure there shall lack five of the fifty righteous: wilt thou destroy all the city for lack of five? And he said, If I find there forty and five, I will not destroy it.

29 And he spake unto him yet again, and said, Peradventure there shall be forty found there. And he said, I will not do it for forty's sake.

30 And he said unto him, Oh let not the LORD be angry, and I will speak: Peradventure there shall thirty be found there. And he said, I will not do it if I find thirty there.

31 And he said, Behold now, I have taken upon me to speak unto the LORD: Peradventure there shall be twenty found there. And he said, I will not destroy it for twenty's sake.

32 And he said, Oh let not the LORD be angry, and I will speak yet but this once: Peradventure ten shall be found there. And he said, I will not destroy it for ten's sake.

33 And the LORD went his way, as soon as he had left communing with Abraham: and Abraham returned unto his place.

CHAPTER XIX.

1 Lot entertaineth two angels. 4 The vicious Sodomites are stricken with blindness. 12 Lot is sent for safety into the mountains. 24 Sodom and Gomorrah are destroyed. 26 Lot's wife is a pillar of salt.

AND there came two angels to Sodom at even; and Lot sat in the gate of Sodom: and Lot, seeing them, rose up to meet them; and he bowed himself with his face toward the ground:

2 And he said, Behold now, my lords, turn in, I pray you, into your servant's house, and tarry all night, and wash your feet, and ye shall rise up early, and go on your ways. And they said, Nay; but we will abide in the street all night.

3 And he pressed upon them greatly; and they turned in unto him, and entered into his house: and he made them a feast, and did bake unleavened bread, and they did eat.

4 But, before they lay down, the men of the city, even the men of Sodom, compassed the house round, both old and young, all the people from every quarter.

5 And they called unto Lot, and said unto him, Where are the men which came in to thee this night? bring them out unto us, that we may know them.

6 And Lot went out at the door unto them, and shut the door after him,

7 And said, I pray you, brethren, do not so wickedly.

8 Behold now, I have two daughters which have not known man; let me, I pray you, bring them out unto you, and do ye to them as is good in your eyes: only unto these men do nothing; for therefore came they under the shadow of my roof.

9 And they said, Stand back. And they said again, This one fellow came in to sojourn, and he will needs be a judge: now will we deal worse with thee than with them. And they pressed sore upon the man, even Lot, and came near to break the door.

10 But the men put forth their hand, and pulled Lot into the house to them, and shut to the door.

11 And they smote the men that were at the door of the house with blindness, both small and great; so that they wearied themselves to find the door.

12 And the men said unto Lot, Hast thou here any besides? son-in-law, and thy sons, and thy daughters, and whatsoever thou hast in the city, bring them out of this place:

13 For we will destroy this place, because the cry of them is waxen great before the face of the LORD; and the LORD hath sent us to destroy it.

14 And Lot went out, and spake unto his sons-in-law, which married his daughters, and said, Up, get you out of this place; for the LORD will destroy this city. But he seemed as one that mocked unto his sons-in-law.

15 And when the morning arose, then the angels hastened Lot, saying, Arise, take thy wife, and thy two daughters, which are here; lest thou be consumed in the iniquity of the city.

16 And, while he lingered, the men laid hold upon his hand, and upon the hand of his wife, and upon the hand of his two daughters, the LORD being merciful unto Chap. XIX. 1-15. This chapter demonstrates the rapidity with which the human family deteriorated after the flood. It seems almost incredible that impiety should so soon have reached a frightful and unexampled maturity. It is difficult to conceive of a place more properly to be designated a hell upon earth. It was well fitted to make Lot rue the choice which in a moment of covetousness he had made. He seems, however, to have retained his principles unshaken, and to have preserved his character unstained. He appears to have repaired to the open air with the benevolent intention of shewing kindness to strangers, little imagining that he should have angels for his guests, and that they should preserve his life from destruction. The picture of iniquity here drawn is alike revolting and terrible. The reason of man and the judgments of God seem to have been alike thrown away on these wicked men. The most affecting thing in the fearful narrative is the behaviour of Lot's sons-in-law; very different conduct was to have been looked for from them; but evil society corrupts the minds of the best men; they ridiculed the ideas of the destruction of the city, just as men now pour contempt on the doctrine of a future judgment. Ver. 16-29. Lot was subjected to severe trial, in being called to flee from the city. His infirmity was love of the world; and he was forthwith to be divested of every particle of his property; life alone was to be left him. But for the urgency of the angels he would probably have perished. It is difficult to say how much men still owe to their compassionate agency. Never since the sun has shone did he look down upon so terrible a spectacle as the cities of the Plain presented, while brimstone and fire were pouring down from heaven. The wife of Lot probably shared her husband's spirit; and so she became the victim of the perishing property she had left behind her. Ver. 30-38. Lot's daughters appear to have been injured by the society of their husbands; their example but too awfully corresponds with the character of the people of the doomed cities. The narrative of their transgressions is one of the most dreadful upon record. But the inspired penman, ever faithful to the truth of history, has deemed it proper to perpetuate the remembrance of the fact for the good of mankind. The statement is a beacon, the sight of which should work the deepest humiliation.

him: and they ^abrought him forth, and set him without the city.

17 And it came to pass, when they had brought them forth abroad, that he said, ^bEscape for thy life; ^clook not behind thee, neither stay thou in all the plain: escape to the mountain, lest thou be consumed.

18 And Lot said unto them, ^dOh! not so, my Lord.

19 Behold now, thy servant hath found grace in thy sight, ^eand thou hast magnified thy mercy, which thou hast shewed unto me in saving my life; and I cannot escape to the mountain, ^flest some evil take me, and I die.

20 Behold now, ^gthis city is near to flee unto, and it is a little one: Oh! let me escape thither, ^h(is it not a little one?) ⁱand my soul shall live.

21 And he said unto him, See, ^jI have accepted ^kthee concerning this thing also, that I will not overthrow this city, for the which thou hast spoken.

22 Haste thee, escape thither; ^lfor I cannot do any thing till thou be come thither: therefore the name of the city was ^mcalled ⁿZoar.

23 The sun was ^orisen upon the earth when Lot entered into Zoar.

24 ¶ Then ^pthe LORD rained upon Sodom and upon Gomorrah brimstone and fire from the LORD out of heaven:

25 And he overthrew those cities, and all the plain, and all the inhabitants of the cities, and that which grew upon the ground.

26 ¶ But his wife ^qlooked back from behind him, and she became a pillar of salt.

27 ¶ And Abraham gat up early in the morning to the place where he stood before the LORD:

28 And he looked toward Sodom and Gomorrah, and toward all the land of the plain, and beheld, ^rand, lo, the smoke of the country went up as the smoke of a furnace.

29 And it came to pass, when God destroyed the cities of the plain, that ^sGod remembered Abraham, and sent Lot out of the midst of the overthrow, when he overthrew the cities in the which Lot dwelt.

30 ¶ And Lot went up out of Zoar, and dwelt in the mountain, and his two daughters with him; for ^the feared to dwell in Zoar: and he dwelt in a cave, he and his two daughters.

31 ¶ And the first-born said unto the younger, Our father is old, and there is not a man in the earth to ^ucome in unto us after the manner of all the earth:

32 Come, let us make our father ^vdrink

CHAPTER XX.

1 Abraham sojourneth at Gerar. 2 Denieth his wife, and loveth her. 3 Abimelech is reproved for her in a dream. 9 He rebuketh Abraham: 14 restoreth Sarah: 16 and reproveth her.

AND Abraham journeyed from ^{ad}thence toward the south country, and dwelled between ^{ae}Kadesh and Shur, and sojourned in Gerar.

2 And Abraham ^{af}said of Sarah his wife, She is my sister: and Abimelech king of Gerar sent and took Sarah.

3 But God came to Abimelech in ^{ag}a dream by night, and said to him, Behold, thou art ^{ah}but ^{ai}a dead man, for the woman which thou hast taken; for she is ^{aj}a man's wife.

4 But Abimelech had not come near her: and he said, LORD, wilt thou slay also a righteous nation?

5 Said he not unto me, She is my sister? and she, even she herself said, He is my brother. ^{ak}In the ^{al}integrity of my heart, ^{am}and innocency of my hands, have I done this.

6 And God said unto him in a dream, Yea, I know that thou didst this in the integrity of thy heart; for I also ^{an}withheld thee from sinning against me: therefore suffered I thee not ^{ao}to touch her.

7 Now therefore restore the man ^{ap}his wife; for he is a ^{aq}prophet, and he shall ^{ar}pray for thee, and thou shalt live: and if thou restore ^{as}her not, know thou that thou shalt ^{at}surely die, thou, and all that are thine.

8 Therefore Abimelech rose early in the Chap. XX. 1-16. "Man's extremity is God's opportunity." Never was the adage more remarkably exemplified than in the case of Abraham in relation to Abimelech. Abraham, in this case, strikingly illustrates the Scripture, that the "fear of man bringeth a snare." There was no need to pursue the course he adopted; it had been infinitely better for him to speak the whole truth to the king, and to trust in the Lord, who would not have failed to honour his confidence. The king appears to great advantage in his subsequent conduct. He even seems to have been considerably under the influence of the fear of God. His kindness received a very large recompense in answer to the supplications of Abraham, whose prayer had lost none of its power with God, who conferred upon his servant honour, as also, doubtless, gratification, in making him the means of so much mercy to the family of his royal benefactor.

morning, and called all his servants, and told all these things in their ears: and the men were sore afraid.

9 ¶ Then Abimelech called Abraham, and said unto him, °What hast thou done unto us? and what have I offended thee, that thou hast brought on me and on my kingdom °a great sin? thou hast done deeds unto me that °ought not to be done.

10 And Abimelech said unto Abraham, What sawest thou, that thou hast done this thing?

11 And Abraham said, Because I thought, °Surely the fear of God is not in this place; and they will °slay me for my wife's sake.

12 And °yet indeed she is my sister: she is the daughter of my father, but not the daughter of my mother; and she became my wife.

13 And it came to pass, when °God caused me to wander from my father's house, that I said unto her, °This is thy kindness which thou shalt shew unto me; at every place whither we shall come, say of me, He is my brother.

14 ¶ And Abimelech took sheep, and oxen, and men-servants, and women-servants, and gave them unto Abraham, and restored him Sarah his wife.

15 And Abimelech said, Behold, °my land is before thee: dwell °where it pleaseth thee.

16 And unto Sarah he said, Behold, I have given °thy brother a thousand pieces of silver: behold, he is to thee a covering of the eyes, unto all that are with thee, and with all other. °Thus she was reproved.

17 ¶ So Abraham °prayed unto God: and God healed Abimelech, and his wife, and his maid-servants; and they bare children.

18 For the LORD had fast closed up all the wombs of the house of Abimelech because of Sarah, Abraham's wife.

CHAPTER XXI.

2 Isaac is born. 9 Hagar and Ishmael are cast forth. 22 Abimelech's covenant with Abraham.

AND the LORD °visited Sarah as he had said, and the LORD did unto Sarah °as he had spoken.

2 For Sarah °conceived, and bare Abraham a son in his old age, °at the set time of which God had spoken to him.

3 And Abraham °called the name of his son that was born unto him, whom Sarah bare to him, Isaac.

4 And Abraham circumcised his son Isaac, °being eight days old, as God had commanded him.

5 And Abraham was an hundred years old when his son Isaac was born unto him.

6 ¶ And Sarah said, °God hath made me to laugh, so that all that hear will laugh with me.

7 And she said, °Who would have said unto Abraham that Sarah should have given children suck? for I have born him a son in his old age.

8 And the child grew, and was weaned: and Abraham made a great feast the same day that Isaac was weaned.

9 ¶ And °Sarah saw the son of Hagar the Egyptian, which she had born unto Abraham, °mocking.

10 Wherefore she said unto Abraham, °Cast out this bond-woman and her son: for the son of this bond-woman shall not be heir with my son, even with Isaac.

11 And the thing was very grievous in Abraham's sight °because of his son.

12 And God said unto Abraham, Let it not be grievous in thy sight because of the lad, and because of thy bond-woman; in all that Sarah hath said unto thee, °hearken unto her voice; °for in Isaac shall thy seed be called.

13 And also °of the son of the bond-woman will I make a nation, because he is thy seed.

14 And Abraham rose up early in the morning, and took bread and a bottle of water, and gave it unto Hagar, (putting it on her shoulder,) and the child, and sent her away: and she departed, and °wandered in the wilderness of Beer-sheba.

15 And °the water was spent in the bottle, and she cast the child under one of the shrubs.

16 And she went, and sat her down over against him a good way off, as it were a bowshot; for she said, Let me not see the death of the child. And she sat over against him, and lift up her voice, and wept.

17 And God °heard the voice of the lad: and °the angel of God called to Hagar out of heaven, and said unto her, What aileth thee, Hagar? °fear not; for God hath heard the voice of the lad where he is.

18 Arise, lift up the lad, and hold him in thine hand; for °I will make him a great nation.

19 And °God opened her eyes, and she saw a well of water: and she went and filled the bottle with water, and gave the lad drink.

20 And °God was with the lad; and he grew, and dwelt in the wilderness, and became °an archer.

21 And he dwelt °in the wilderness of Paran: and his mother took him °a wife out of the land of Egypt.

22 ¶ And it came to pass at that time,

Chap. XXI. 1-8. The promise was at length fulfilled, to the unspeakable joy of Abraham, whose faith was thus honoured and rewarded in the face of all future times. The command to circumcise the child was obeyed with cheerful punctuality. The fulfilment of the promise should always endear the precept. He who makes the best use of mercy received, is in the fairest way to obtain further blessing. Ver. 9-21. When comforts come, crosses are never far behind. The affair of Ishmael was a great affliction to his father. The whole was overruled, however, to the Divine glory, even for the good of the parties themselves. The patronage of Providence sufficed to meet the wants both of Hagar and her son. "God was with the lad!" That was enough. May He be with every youthful reader of these pages! Ver. 22-34. Masters are not always to be condemned on account of their servants, till it be seen how far improper conduct has been authorised. Wherever Abraham travelled or sojourned, he never forgot his altar and his God. Let every reader walk in his footsteps.

that Abimelech, and Phichol the chief captain of his host, spake unto Abraham, saying, God is with thee ^din all that thou doest.

23 Now therefore ^eswear unto me here by God, ^fthat thou wilt not deal falsely with me, nor with my son, nor with my son's son: but according to the kindness that I have done unto thee, thou shalt do unto me, and to the land wherein thou hast sojourned.

24 And Abraham said, I will swear.

25 And Abraham ^greproved Abimelech because of a well of water, which Abimelech's ^hservants had violently taken away.

26 And Abimelech said, I wot not who hath done this thing; neither didst thou tell me, neither yet heard I of it, but to-day.

27 And Abraham ⁱtook sheep and oxen, and gave them unto Abimelech: and both of them ^jmade a covenant.

28 And Abraham set seven ewe-lambs of the flock by themselves.

29 And Abimelech said unto Abraham, ^kWhat mean these seven ewe-lambs which thou hast set by themselves?

30 And he said, For these seven ewe-lambs shalt thou take of my hand, ^lthat they may be a witness unto me that I have digged this well.

31 Wherefore he called that place ^mBeer-sheba; because there they sware both of them.

32 Thus they made a covenant at Beer-sheba: then Abimelech rose up, and Phichol the chief captain of his host, and they returned into the land of ⁿthe Philistines.

33 ¶ And Abraham planted a ^ogrove in Beer-sheba, and ^pcalled there on the name of the LORD, the ^qeverlasting God.

34 And Abraham ^rsojourned in the Philistines' land many days.

CHAPTER XXII.

3 Abraham offering Isaac, 12 is stayed by an angel. 15 He is blessed again. 20 The generations of Nahor unto Rebekah.

AND it came to pass after these things, that ^sGod did tempt Abraham, and said unto him, Abraham. And he said, ^tBehold, here I am.

2 And he said, ^uTake now thy son, thine only son Isaac, whom thou lovest, and get thee into the land of Moriah; ^vand offer him there for a burnt-offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of.

two of his young men with him, and Isaac his son, and clave the wood for the burnt-offering, and rose up, and went unto the place of which God had told him.

4 Then on the ^xthird day Abraham lifted up his eyes, and saw the place afar off.

5 And Abraham said unto his young men, Abide ye here with the ass; and I and the lad will go yonder and worship, and ^ycome again to you.

6 And Abraham took the wood of the burnt-offering, and ^zlaid it upon Isaac his son; and he took the fire in his hand, and a knife; and they went both of them together.

7 And Isaac spake unto Abraham his father, and said, ^{aa}My father: and he said, ^{ab}Here am I, my son. And he said, Behold the fire and the wood; but where is the ^{ac}lamb for a burnt-offering?

8 And Abraham said, My son, ^{ad}God will provide himself a lamb for a burnt-offering: so they went both of them together.

9 And they came to the place which God had told him of; and Abraham built an altar there, and laid the wood in order, and ^{ae}bound Isaac his son, and laid him on the altar upon the wood.

10 And Abraham ^{af}stretched forth his hand, and took the knife to slay his son.

11 ¶ And the angel of the LORD called unto him out of heaven, and said, ^{ag}Abraham, Abraham. And he said, Here am I.

12 And he said, ^{ah}Lay not thine hand upon the lad, neither do thou any thing unto him: for ^{ai}now I know that thou fearest God, ^{aj}seeing thou hast not withheld thy son, thine only son from me.

13 And Abraham lifted up his eyes, and looked, and behold, behind him a ram caught in a thicket by his horns: and Abraham went and took the ram, and offered him up for a burnt-offering ^{ak}in the stead of his son.

14 And Abraham ^{al}called the name of that place ^{am}Jehovah-jireh: as it is said to this day, ^{an}In the mount of the LORD it shall be seen.

15 ¶ And the angel of the LORD called unto Abraham out of heaven the second time,

16 And said, ^{ao}By myself have I sworn, saith the LORD; for because thou hast done this thing, and hast not withheld thy son, thine only son;

17 That ^{ap}in blessing I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of the heaven, and as the sand which is upon the sea-shore; ^{aq}and

Chap. XXII. 1-14. Already the faith of Abraham had been long and severely tested, but a trial far greater yet awaited him. Moriah is famous among the mountains of the earth. There Solomon built the Temple, with its architectural glory, and its typical theology; there, too, Christ suffered on Calvary, which was a part of the mount; and there Abraham was commanded to offer up his son. The conjuncture of these facts is not a little extraordinary. It has been thought that the deliverance of Isaac on the third day was typical of Christ's resurrection from the dead. The most notable thing here is the unquestioning promptitude with which Abraham obeyed the dreadful commandment. He seemed alike superior to the misgivings of unbelief and the feelings of humanity. He was elevated by an unseen influence, which rendered his soul every way equal to the fearful test to which he was now being subjected. God's provision of a lamb for himself was clearly figurative of the "Lamb of God," who was to "take away the sins of the world." The ram caught on the occasion was a striking type of Christ, who was a sacrifice provided, not by man, but by God himself. Ver. 15-24. Here again the glorious promise was renewed, and even expanded. In blessing, the Lord would bless him, and in multiplying, multiply his seed; and in that seed "all the nations of the earth were to be blessed," because of his obedience to the Divine command. How exalted the honour thus conferred upon the faith of the "friend of God!"

18 And ⁷in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed ; because thou hast ^aobeyed my voice.

19 So Abraham returned unto his young men ; and they rose up, and went together to Beer-sheba : and Abraham dwelt at Beer-sheba.

20 ¶ And it came to pass after these things, that it was told Abraham, saying, Behold, Milcah, she hath also born children unto thy brother ^aNahor ;

21 Huz his first-born, and Buz his brother, and Kemuel the father of Aram, 22 And Chesed, and Hazo, and Pildash, and Jidlaph, and Bethuel.

23 And ^bBethuel begat ^cRebekah : these eight Milcah did bear to Nahor, Abraham's brother.

24 And his concubine, whose name was Reumah, she bare also Tebah, and Gaham, and Thahash, and Maachah.

CHAPTER XXIII.

1 Sarah's age and death. 3 The purchase of Machpelah, 19 where Sarah was buried.

AND Sarah was an hundred and seven and twenty years old : these were the years of the life of Sarah.

2 And Sarah died in ^aKirjath-arba ; the same is Hebron in the land of Canaan : and Abraham came to ^bmourn for Sarah, and to weep for her.

3 ¶ And Abraham stood up from before his dead, and spake unto the sons of ^cHeth, saying,

4 I am a ^dstranger and a sojourner with you : give me a possession of a ^eburying-place with you, that I may bury my dead out of my sight.

5 And the children of Heth answered Abraham, saying unto him,

6 Hear us, ^fmy lord : thou art ^{1a}mighty ^gprince among us ; in the choice of our sepulchres bury thy dead : none of us shall withhold from thee his sepulchre, but that thou mayest bury thy dead.

7 And Abraham stood up, and ^bbowed himself to the people of the land, even to the children of Heth.

8 And he communed with them, saying, If it be your mind that I should bury my dead out of my sight, hear me, and ^centreat for me to Ephron the son of Zohar, 9 That he may give me the cave of Machpelah, which he hath, which is in the end of his field : for ^{2a}as much money as it is worth he shall give it me, for a possession of a burying-place amongst you.

10 And Ephron dwelt amongst the children of Heth. And Ephron the Hittite answered Abraham in the ^aaudience of the children of Heth, even of ^aall that went in at the gate of his city, saying, 11 Nay, ¹my lord, hear me : The field give I thee, and the cave that is therein, I give it thee ; in the presence of the sons of my people give I it thee : bury thy dead.

12 And Abraham bowed down himself before the people of the land.

13 And he spake unto Ephron, in the audience of the people of the land, saying, But if thou wilt give it, I pray thee, hear me : ^mI will give thee money for the field ; take it of me, and I will bury my dead there.

14 And Ephron answered Abraham, saying unto him,

15 My lord, hearken unto me : The land is worth four hundred shekels of silver ; what is that betwixt me and thee ? bury therefore thy dead.

16 And Abraham hearkened unto Ephron ; and Abraham ⁿweighed to Ephron the silver, which he had named in the audience of the sons of Heth, ^ofour hundred shekels of silver, current money with the merchant.

17 And ^pthe field of Ephron, which was in Machpelah, which was before Mamre, the field, and the cave which was therein, and all the trees that were in the field, that were in all the borders round about, were ^qmade sure 18 Unto Abraham for a possession, in the presence of the children of Heth, before all that went in at the gate of his city.

19 ¶ And after this, Abraham ^rburied Sarah his wife in the cave of the field of Machpelah, before Mamre : the same is Hebron in the land of Canaan.

20 And the field, and the cave that is therein, were made sure unto Abraham, for a possession of a burying-place, by the sons of Heth.

CHAPTER XXIV.

1 Abraham sendeth his servant to get a wife for his son Isaac. 58 He obtaineth Rebekah. 63 Isaac meeteth her.

AND Abraham was ^aold, and ^bwell stricken in age : and the LORD had ^cblessed Abraham in all things.

2 And Abraham said unto his eldest servant of his house, that ^druled over all that he had, Put, I pray thee, thy hand under my thigh ;

3 And I will make thee ^eswear by the LORD, ^fthe God of heaven, and the God of the earth, ^gthat thou shalt not take a wife unto my son of the daughters of the Canaanites, among whom I dwell :

4 But thou shalt go unto my country, and ^hto my kindred, and take a wife unto my son Isaac.

5 And the servant said unto him, Per-

Chap. XXIII. 1-17. Sarah was permitted for a considerable time to survive the birth of her son, but the days of her pilgrimage were at last numbered. She is the only woman in Scripture whose exact age is recorded. Her loss was deeply felt, and Abraham greatly honoured her precious dust. His deportment towards the sons of Heth is in a very high degree dignified and independent. He would not inter his dead in ground which cost him nothing. The amount paid was about 50*l*. of our money ; a great sum in those days. But Abraham, while determined to purchase, also made sure of possession—an act to which he was led by the faith he exercised, that the land would one day become the property of his posterity. The most endeared friends, after the most protracted unions, must part ; and it is well to live on such terms, that, when the separation comes, there shall be no un-availing regrets.

Chap. XXIV. 1-14. Abraham had much to remind him of the lapse of time and the end of his life ; and he was anxious to see the comfortable settlement of his son. The manager of his house, therefore, received a commisadventure the woman will not be willing to follow me unto this land : must I needs bring thy son again unto the land from whence thou camest?

6 And Abraham said unto him, ^bBeware thou that thou bring not my son thither again.

7 The ¹LORD God of heaven, which took me from my father's house, and from the land of my kindred, and ^kwhich spake unto me, and that sware unto me, saying, Unto thy seed will I give this land; he shall send his ^langel before thee, and thou shalt take a wife unto my son from thence.

8 And if the woman will not be willing to follow thee, then thou shalt be ^mclear from this my oath : only bring not my son thither again.

9 And the servant put his hand under the thigh of Abraham his master, and sware to him concerning that matter.

10 ¶ And the servant took ten camels, of the camels of his master, and departed ; (²for all the goods of his master were in his hand;) and he arose, and went to ⁿMesopotamia, unto the city of Nahor.

11 And he made his camels to kneel down without the city by a well of water at the time of the evening, even the time that ³women go out to draw water.

12 ¶ And he said, °O LORD God of my master Abraham, ^pI pray thee, send me good speed this day, and shew kindness unto my master Abraham.

13 Behold, I stand here by the well of water; and the daughters of the men of the city come out to draw water :

14 And let it come to pass, that the damsel to whom I shall say, Let down thy pitcher, I pray thee, that I may drink; and she shall say, Drink, and I will give thy camels drink also; let the same be she that thou hast appointed for thy servant Isaac; ^qand thereby shall I know that thou hast shewed kindness unto my master.

15 ¶ And it came to pass, ^rbefore he had done speaking, that, behold, Rebekah came out, who was born to Bethuel, son of Milcah, the wife of Nahor, Abraham's brother, with her ^spitcher upon her shoulder.

16 And the damsel was very ^tfair to look upon, a virgin; neither had any man known her: and she went down to the well, and filled her pitcher, and came up.

17 And the servant ran to meet her, and said, ^uLet me, I pray thee, drink a little water of thy pitcher.

18 And she said, ^vDrink, my lord : and she hastened, and let down her pitcher upon her hand, and gave him drink.

19 And when she had done giving him drink, she said, I will draw water for thy camels also, until they have done drinking.

20 And she hastened, and emptied her pitcher into the trough, and ran again unto the well to draw water, and drew for all his camels.

21 And the man, wondering at her, held his peace, to wit whether the LORD had made his journey prosperous or not.

22 ¶ And it came to pass, as the camels had done drinking, that the man ^ttook a golden ^uear-ring of half a shekel weight, and two bracelets for her hands of ten ^vshekels weight of gold, 23 And said, Whose daughter art thou? tell me, I pray thee. Is there room in thy father's house for us to lodge in?

24 And she said unto him, I am the daughter of Bethuel the son of Milcah, which she bare unto Nahor.

25 She said, moreover, unto him, ^wWe have both straw and provender enough, and room to lodge in.

26 And the man ^xbowed down his head, and worshipped the LORD.

27 And he said, ^yBlessed be the LORD God of my master Abraham, who hath not left destitute my master ^zof his mercy and his truth : I being in the way, ^athe LORD led me to the house of my master's brethren.

28 And the damsel ran, and told them of her mother's house these things.

29 ¶ And Rebekah had a brother, and his name was Laban : and Laban ran out unto the man unto the well.

30 And it came to pass, when he saw the ear-ring, and bracelets upon his sister's hands, and when he heard the words of Rebekah his sister, saying, Thus spake the man unto me, that he came unto the man; and, behold, he stood by the camels at the well.

31 And he said, Come in, ^bthou blessed of the LORD; wherefore standest thou without? for I have prepared the house, and room for the camels.

32 ¶ And the man came into the house : and he ungirded his camels, and gave straw and provender for the camels, and water to ^cwash his feet, and the men's feet that were with him.

33 And there was set meat before him to eat : but he said, ^dI will not eat, until I have told mine errand. And he said, Speak on.

34 ¶ And he said, I am Abraham's servant.

35 And ^ethe LORD hath blessed my master greatly, and he is become great; and he hath given him ^fflocks, and herds, and silver, and gold, and men-servants, and maid-servants, and camels, and asses.

sion to go and provide for Isaac a wife. The conduct of that servant is deserving of particular notice : nothing could exceed his fidelity and zeal on behalf of his master. He presents a very striking example of the blessed exercise of ejaculatory prayer, shewing that it is adapted to all times, places, and circumstances. He was a servant every way worthy of his master—a man of faith and prayer. He acknowledged God in all his ways, and his steps were directed in the minutest matter. Ver. 15-60.

The developments which followed the servant's inquiries were such as to shew that his prayer had been heard, and that his errand would be accomplished in a manner the most satisfactory. Laban's character here comes out in a striking manner. The sight of gold charmed his avaricious heart. The indubitable signs of wealth which the commissioner displayed, immediately set at rest all doubts upon the subject. "The thing proceedeth from the Lord : we cannot speak unto thee bad or good." So 36 And ¹Sarah, my master's wife, bare a son to my master when she was old; and unto him hath he given all that he hath.

37 And my master made me swear, saying, Thou shalt not take a wife to my son of the daughters of the Canaanites, in whose land I dwell:

38 But thou shalt go unto my father's house, and to my kindred, and take a wife unto my son.

39 And I said unto my master, Peradventure the woman will not follow me.

40 And he said unto me, The LORD, ¹before whom I walk, ¹will send his angel with thee, and prosper thy way; and thou shalt take a wife for my son of my kindred, and of my father's house.

41 Then shalt thou be clear from this my oath, when thou comest to my kindred; and if they give not thee one, thou shalt be clear from my oath.

42 And I came this day unto the well, and said, O LORD God of my master Abraham, if now thou do ^mprosper my way which I go:

43 Behold, I stand by the well of water; and it shall come to pass, that when the virgin cometh forth to draw water, and I say to her, Give me, I pray thee, a little water of thy pitcher to drink;

44 And she say to me, Both drink thou, and I will also draw for thy camels: let the same be ²the woman whom the LORD hath appointed out for my master's son.

45 And ^obefore I had done ^pspeaking in mine heart, behold, Rebekah came forth with her pitcher on her shoulder; and she went down unto the well, and drew water: and I said unto her, Let me drink, I pray thee.

46 And she made haste, and let down her pitcher from her shoulder, and said, Drink; and I will give thy camels drink also; so I drank, and she made the camels drink also.

47 And I asked her, and said, Whose daughter art thou? And she said, The daughter of Bethuel, Nahor's son, whom Milcah bare unto him: and ^qI put the ear-ring upon her face, and the bracelets upon her hands.

48 And I bowed down my head, and worshipped the LORD, and blessed the LORD God of my master Abraham, which had ^rled me in the right way, to take my master's brother's daughter unto his son.

49 And now, ^rif ye will deal kindly and truly with my master, tell me: and if not, tell me; ^rthat I may turn to the right hand, or to the left.

50 Then ²Laban and Bethuel answered and said, The thing proceedeth from the LORD: ²we cannot speak unto thee bad or good.

51 Behold, Rebekah is before thee, take her, and go, and let her be thy master's son's wife, as the LORD hath spoken.

52 And it came to pass, that, when Abraham's servant heard their words, he ^rworshipped the LORD, bowing himself to the earth.

53 And the servant brought forth ⁶jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment, and gave them to Rebekah: he gave also to her brother and to her mother ⁷precious things.

54 And they did eat and drink, he and the men that were with him, and tarried all night: and they rose up in the morning; and he said, ^aSend me away unto my master.

55 And her brother and her mother said, Let the damsel abide with us a few ⁷days, at the least ten; after that she shall go.

56 And he said unto them, ^bHinder me not, seeing the LORD hath prospered my way; send me away, that I may go to my master.

57 And they said, We will call the damsel, and enquire at her mouth.

58 And they called Rebekah, and said unto her, ^cWilt thou go with this man? And she said, I will go.

59 And they sent away Rebekah their sister, and her nurse, and Abraham's servant, and his men.

60 And ^dthey blessed Rebekah, and said unto her, Thou art our sister, be thou the mother of thousands of millions, and let thy seed possess the gate of those which hate them.

61 ⁷And Rebekah arose, and her damsels, and they rode upon the camels, and followed the man; and the servant took Rebekah, and went his way.

62 And Isaac came from the way of the well Lahai-roi: for he dwelt in the south country.

63 And Isaac went out ⁸to ^omeditate in the field at the even-tide; and he lifted up his eyes, and saw, and, behold, the camels were coming.

64 And Rebekah lifted up her eyes; and when she saw Isaac, she ¹lighted off the camel.

65 For she had said unto the servant, What man is this that walketh in the field to meet us? And the servant had said, It is my master: therefore she took a ²vail, and covered herself.

66 And the servant told Isaac all things that he had done.

67 And Isaac brought her into his mother Sarah's tent, ³and took Rebekah, and she became his wife; and he loved her: and Isaac was ⁴comforted after his mother's death.

it is still with worldly men. The will of the Lord is generally taken for granted in the case of a wealthy suitor, however defective in spiritual attributes; whereas a man but poor in this world's goods, although rich in the faith of God's elect, an heir of God, and a joint heir with Christ, will often be rejected with scorn! The promptitude with which the servant determined to return and report to his master, does him the highest credit, and will serve as an example to persons employed in important undertakings to the end of time. Ver. 61-67. The decision of Rebekah was honourable to her. Having seen and heard for herself, to the all-important question, "Wilt thou go with this man?" she replied, "I will go." There is something peculiarly devout and staid in the deportment of Isaac, who received her as the gift of God. She went in the strength of the Most High; and in conformity with the blessing pronounced upon her, she became the mother of "thousands of millions."

CHAPTER XXV.

1 The sons of Abraham by Keturah. 7 His age and death. 24 The birth of Esau and Jacob. 29 Esau selleth his birthright.

THEN again Abraham took a wife, and her name was Keturah.

2 And she bare him Zimran, and Jokshan, and Medan, and Midian, and Ishbak, and Shuah.

3 And Jokshan begat Sheba and Dedan. And the sons of Dedan were Ashurim, and Letushim, and Leummim.

4 And the sons of Midian; Ephah, and Ephraim, and Hanoth, and Abidah, and Eldaah. All these were the children of Keturah.

5 ¶ And Abraham gave all that he had unto Isaac.

6 But unto the sons of the concubines, which Abraham had, Abraham gave gifts, and sent them away from Isaac his son, (while ye yet lived,) eastward, unto the east country.

7 ¶ And these are the days of the years of Abraham's life which he lived, an hundred threescore and fifteen years.

8 Then Abraham gave up the ghost, and died in a good old age, an old man, and full of years; and was gathered to his people.

9 And his sons Isaac and Ishmael buried him in the cave of Machpelah, in the field of Ephron the son of Zohar the Hittite, which is before Mamre;

10 The field which Abraham purchased of the sons of Heth: there was Abraham buried, and Sarah his wife.

11 ¶ And it came to pass after the death of Abraham, that God blessed his son Isaac: and Isaac dwelt by the well Lahai-roi.

12 ¶ Now these are the generations of Ishmael, Abraham's son, whom Hagar the Egyptian, Sarah's handmaid, bare unto Abraham.

13 And these are the names of the sons of Ishmael, by their names, according to their generations: The first-born of Ishmael, Nebajoth; and Kedar, and Adbeel, and Mibsam,

14 And Mishma, and Dumah, and Massa,

15 Hadar, and Tema, Jetur, Naphish, and Kedemah.

16 These are the sons of Ishmael, and these are their names, by their towns, and by their castles; twelve princes according to their nations.

17 And these are the years of the life of Ishmael, an hundred and thirty and seven years: and he gave up the ghost, and died, and was gathered unto his people.

18 And they dwelt from Havilah unto Shur, that is before Egypt, as thou goest toward Assyria: and he died in the presence of all his brethren.

19 ¶ And these are the generations of Isaac, Abraham's son: Abraham begat Isaac.

20 And Isaac was forty years old when he took Rebekah to wife, the daughter of Bethuel the Syrian of Padan-aram, the sister to Laban the Syrian.

21 ¶ And Isaac entreated the LORD for his wife, because she was barren: and the LORD was entreated of him, and Rebekah his wife conceived.

22 And the children struggled together within her: and she said, If it be so, why am I thus? And she went to enquire of the LORD.

23 And the LORD said unto her, Two nations are in thy womb, and two manner of people shall be separated from thy bowels; and the one people shall be stronger than the other people; and the elder shall serve the younger.

24 ¶ And when her days to be delivered were fulfilled, behold, there were twins in her womb.

25 And the first came out red, all over like an hairy garment; and they called his name Esau.

26 And after that came his brother out, and his hand took hold on Esau's heel; and his name was called Jacob: and Isaac was threescore years old when she bare them.

27 ¶ And the boys grew: and Esau was a cunning hunter, a man of the field; and Jacob was a plain man, dwelling in tents.

28 And Isaac loved Esau, because he did eat of his venison; but Rebekah loved Jacob.

29 ¶ And Jacob sod pottage: and Esau came from the field, and he was faint.

30 And Esau said to Jacob, Feed me, I pray thee, with that same red pottage; for I am faint: therefore was his name called Edom.

31 And Jacob said, Sell me this day thy birthright.

32 And Esau said, Behold, I am at the point to die: and what profit shall this birthright do to me?

33 And Jacob said, Swear to me this day: and he sware unto him: and he sold his birthright unto Jacob.

34 Then Jacob gave Esau bread and pottage of lentiles; and he did eat and drink, and rose up, and went his way, Thus Esau despised his birthright.

Chap. XXV. 1-18. Notwithstanding that Abraham married again, "he gave all that he had unto Isaac," nevertheless providing for his second family, which were dependent upon him. It is to be noted that Isaac and Ishmael united in burying the dust of their departed father in the same grave with Sarah his wife. Ver. 19-28. There was a great drawback to the happiness of Isaac, which, nevertheless, was removed in answer to prayer: a drawback, doubtless, ordered by Providence, that it might be so removed, and that thereby the sense of increased obligation might be implanted in the mind of the patriarch. Men are in all things but too prone to exclude the hand of God, and to set every event down to natural causes, exclusive of all Divine control. Ver. 29-34. The portraiture of the two brothers here drawn is far from lovely. There is something most unbrotherly in the conduct of Jacob. However much Esau might have been wrong, Jacob led the way. The birthright was typical of spiritual privileges which Esau ought not to have surrendered, and which Jacob ought not to have extorted in consideration of a morsel of bread.

CHAPTER XXVI.

1 Isaac goeth to Gerar. 2 God blesseth him. 26 Abimelech's covenant with him. 34 Esau's wives.

AND there was a famine in the land, beside ^athe first famine that was in the days of Abraham. ^bAnd Isaac went unto ^cAbimelech king of the Philistines unto Gerar.

2 And the LORD ^dappeared unto him, and said, Go not down into Egypt; ^edwelt in the land which I shall tell thee of.

3 ^fSojourn in this land, and ^gI will be with thee, and will bless thee: for ^hunto thee, and unto thy seed, I will give all these countries; and I will perform the ⁱoath which I swore unto Abraham thy father:

4 And I will make thy seed to ^kmultiply as the stars of heaven, and will give unto thy seed all these countries: and in thy ^lseed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed;

5 Because that Abraham ^mobeyed my voice, and kept my charge, my commandments, my statutes, and my laws.

6 ⁿ¶ And Isaac dwelt in Gerar.

7 And the men of the place asked ^ohim of his wife; and he said, ^pShe is my sister: for he feared to say, ^qShe is my wife; lest, ^rand he, the men of the place should kill me for Rebekah; because she ^swas ^tfair to look upon.

8 And it came to pass, when he had been there a long time, that Abimelech king of the Philistines looked out at ^ua window, and saw, and, behold, Isaac ^vwas ^wsporting with Rebekah his wife.

9 And Abimelech called Isaac, and said, Behold, of a surety she is thy wife; and how saidst thou, She is my sister? And Isaac said unto him, Because I said, Lest I die for her.

10 And Abimelech said, ^xWhat is this thou hast done unto us? one of the people might lightly have lien with thy wife, and thou shouldest have brought guiltiness upon us.

11 And Abimelech charged all his people, saying, He that ^ytoucheth this man, or his wife, shall surely be put to death.

12 ^z¶ Then Isaac sowed in that land, and ^{aa}received in the same year ^{ab}an hundredfold; and the LORD ^{ac}blessed him.

13 And the man waxed great, and ^{ad}went forward, and grew, until he became very great:

14 For he had ^{ae}possession of flocks, and possession of herds, and great store of ^{af}servants: and the Philistines ^{ag}envied him.

15 For all the wells which ^{ah}his father's servants had digged in the days of Abraham his father, the Philistines had stopped them, and filled them with earth.

17 ^b¶ And Isaac departed thence, and pitched his tent in the valley of Gerar, and dwelt there.

18 And Isaac digged again the wells of water which they had digged in the days of Abraham his father; for the Philistines had stopped them after the death of Abraham: and he called their names after the names by which his father had called them.

19 And Isaac's servants digged in the valley, and found there a well of ^cspringing water.

20 And the herdmen of Gerar did strive with Isaac's herdmen, saying, The water is ours: and he called the name of the well ^dEsek; because they strove with him.

21 And they digged another well, and strove for that also: and he called the name of it ^eSitnah.

22 And he removed from thence, and digged another well; and for that they strove not: and he called the name of it ^fRehoboth; and he said, For now ^gthe LORD hath made room for us, and we shall be fruitful in the land.

23 ^h¶ And he went up from thence to ⁱBeer-sheba.

25 And he ^lbuilded an altar there, and called upon the name of the LORD, and pitched his tent there: and there Isaac's servants digged a well.

26 ^m¶ Then ⁿAbimelech went to him from Gerar, and Ahuzzath one of his friends, and Phicol the chief captain of his army.

27 And Isaac said unto them, Wherefore come ye to me, ^oseeing ye hate me, and have sent me away from you?

28 And they said, ^pWe saw certainly that the LORD was with thee: and we said, ^qLet there be now an oath betwixt us, ^reven betwixt us and thee, and let us make a covenant with thee;

29 ^sThat thou wilt do us no hurt, as we have not touched thee, and as we have done unto thee nothing but good, and have sent thee away in peace: thou art now ^tthe blessed of the LORD.

30 And he ^umade them a feast, and they did eat and drink.

31 And they rose up ^vbetimes in the morning, and swore one to another: and Isaac sent them away, and they departed from him in peace. ^w

32 And it came to pass the same day, that Isaac's servants came, and told him

Chap. XXVI. 1-5. Isaac, like his father, enjoyed the renewal of promises, with a mixture of temporal trials. It is remarkable that Isaac should have fallen into the same snare as did his father Abraham in the matter of his wife, instead of profiting by his defective example. The same prosperity attended Isaac as his father.

Wealth, then as now, brought envy, and envy trouble. Ver. 17-35. Esau did not improve his fortunes by the unsuitable marriages which he contracted with two of the daughters of the land. He was clearly a man influenced by the fear of God, who sought happiness in the society of worldly people. His parents marked his course concerning the well which they had digged, and said unto him, We have found water.

33 And he called it ¹Shebah: therefore the name of the city is ²Beer-sheba unto this day.

34 ¶ And Esau was forty years old when he took to wife Judith ³the daughter of Beeri the Hittite, and Bashemath the daughter of Elon the Hittite; 35 °Which were a ⁴grief of mind unto Isaac and to Rebekah.

CHAPTER XXVII.

¹ Isaac sendeth Esau for venison. ⁶ Jacob, instructed by Rebekah, obtaineth the blessing. ⁴¹ Esau threatening him, ⁴² is prevented.

AND it came to pass, that when Isaac was old, and his eyes were ¹dim, so that he could not see, he called Esau his eldest son, and said unto him, My son. And he said unto him, Behold, here am I.

2 And he said, Behold now, I am old, ³I know not the day of my death.

3 Now therefore ⁴take, I pray thee, thy weapons, thy quiver and thy bow, and go out to the field, and ⁵take me some venison;

4 And make me savoury meat, such as I love, and bring it to me, that I may eat; ⁶that my soul may bless thee before I die.

5 And Rebekah heard when Isaac spake to Esau his son. And Esau went to the field to hunt for venison, and to bring it.

6 ¶ And Rebekah spake unto Jacob her son, saying, Behold, I heard thy father speak unto Esau thy brother, saying,

7 Bring me venison, and make me savoury meat, that I may eat, and bless thee ⁸before the LORD before my death.

8 Now therefore, my son, ⁹obey my voice, according to that which I command thee.

9 Go now to the flock, and fetch me from thence ¹⁰two good kids of the goats; and I will make them savoury meat for thy father, such as he loveth.

10 And thou shalt bring it to thy father, that he may eat, and that he may bless thee before his death.

11 And Jacob said to Rebekah his mother, Behold, Esau my brother is a ¹²hairy man, and I am a smooth man:

12 My father peradventure will feel me, and I shall seem to him as ¹³a deceiver; ¹⁴and I shall bring a curse upon me, and not a blessing.

13 And his mother said unto him, ¹⁵Upon me be thy curse, my son; only obey my voice, and go fetch me them.

with unavailing grief, well knowing the consequences to which it would lead. Marriage is generally the making or the marring of a man; and he rarely marries wisely, or well, who proceeds in defiance of the protests, and without the approval of judicious and godly parents.

Chap. XXVII. 1-30. A father desiring to bless his son before he die is an affecting spectacle. All the patriarchs thus blessed their children, as in after-times the priesthood blessed the people. The conduct of Rebekah was calculated to produce the most distressing consequences. The remonstrance of Jacob was entirely proper; but his mother met it in a spirit far from commendable. She more resembled a reckless and desperate schemer of the other sex than a wise and tender woman. His conduct exposed him to temptation and falsehood;

Rom. 9. 12.

14 And he went, and fetched, and brought them to his mother: and his mother ¹made savoury meat, such as his father loved.

15 And Rebekah took ²goodly raiment of her eldest son Esau, which were with her in the house, and put them upon Jacob her younger son.

16 And she put the skins of the kids of the goats upon his hands, and upon the smooth of his neck.

17 And she gave the savoury meat and the bread, which she had prepared, into the hand of her son Jacob.

18 ¶ And he came unto his father, and said, My father. And he said, Here am I; who art thou, my son?

19 And Jacob said unto his father, ¹I am Esau thy first-born; I have done according as thou badest me: arise, I pray thee, sit and eat of my venison, that thy soul may bless me.

20 And Isaac said unto his son, How is it that thou hast found it so quickly, my son? And he said, ²Because the LORD thy God brought it ³to me.

21 And Isaac said unto Jacob, Come near, I pray thee, that I may feel thee, my son, whether thou be my very son Esau or not.

22 And Jacob went near unto Isaac his father; and he felt him, and said, The voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau.

23 And he discerned him not, because his hands were hairy, as his brother Esau's hands. So he blessed him.

24 And he said, Art thou my very son Esau? And he said, ¹I am.

25 And he said, Bring it near to me, and I will eat of my son's venison, that my soul may bless thee. And he brought it near to him, and he did eat: and he brought him wine, and he drank.

26 And his father Isaac said unto him, Come near now, and kiss me, my son.

27 And he came near, and kissed him: and he smelled the smell of his raiment, and blessed him, and said, See, ¹the smell of my son is as the smell of a field ²which the LORD hath blessed:

28 Therefore God give thee ³of the dew of heaven, and ⁴the fatness of the earth, and ⁵plenty of corn and wine:

29 ¹Let people serve thee, and nations bow down to thee: ²be lord over thy brethren, and let thy mother's sons bow and he fell under it, ascribing to God success in obtaining that by hunting which he had procured from the flock. The blessing, although falsely secured, was an unalterable reality. Ver. 31-45. The scene between the deceived father and the injured son is unspeakably affecting, and ought to have caused the utmost grief and shame to both the mother and the brother; but for an overruling Providence, the deed would have issued in murder. Esau was not a man to be safely trifled with. Nothing could quench the rage consequent on his wrong but vengeance; and, as a sequel to the burial of his aged father, he resolutely made up his mind to slay his brother. In that awful event, the mother would have had to trace the tragedy to her own unprincipled partiality. The dexterity of the mother, however, was blessed to avert so dreadful a catastrophe. Rebekah's spirit was greatly down to thee: ^{cursed be every one that} curse thee, and ^{blessed be he that} bless thee.

30 ¶ And it came to pass, as soon as Isaac had made an end of blessing Jacob, and Jacob was yet scarce gone out from the presence of Isaac his father, that Esau his brother came in from his hunting.

31 And he also had made savoury meat, and brought it unto his father, and said unto his father, Let my father arise, and eat of his son's venison, that thy soul may bless me.

32 And Isaac his father said unto him, Who art thou? And he said, I am thy son, thy first-born, Esau.

33 And Isaac ^{trembled} very exceedingly, and said, Who? where is he that hath ^{taken} venison, and brought it me, and I have eaten of all before thou camest, and have blessed him? ^{yea, and he shall be blessed.}

34 And when Esau heard the words of his father, ^{he} cried with a great and exceeding bitter cry, and said unto his father, Bless me, ^{even} me also, O my father!

35 And he said, ^{Thy} brother came with subtilty, and hath taken away thy blessing.

36 And he said, Is not he rightly named ^{Jacob}? for he hath supplanted me these two times: he took away my birthright; and, behold, now he hath taken away my blessing. And he said, Hast thou not reserved a blessing for me?

37 And Isaac answered and said unto Esau, Behold, ^I have made him thy lord, and all his brethren have I given to him for servants; and with corn and wine have I ^{sustained} him: and what shall I do now unto thee, my son?

38 And Esau said unto his father, ^{Hast} thou but one blessing, my father? bless me, ^{even} me also, O my father! And Esau lifted up his voice, and wept.

39 And Isaac his father answered and said unto him, Behold, thy dwelling shall be ^{the} fatness of the earth, and of the dew of heaven from above;

40 And by ^{thy} sword shalt thou live, and shalt ^{serve} thy brother: and it shall come to pass, when thou shalt have the dominion, that ^{thou} shalt break his yoke from off thy neck.

41 ¶ And Esau ^{hated} Jacob, because of the blessing wherewith his father blessed him: and Esau said in his heart, ^{The} days of mourning for my father are at hand; ^{then} will I slay my brother Jacob.

42 ¶ And these words of Esau her elder son were told to Rebekah. And she sent and called Jacob her younger son, and said unto him, Behold, thy brother Esau, as touching thee, doth ^{comfort} himself, ^{purposing} to kill thee.

43 Now therefore, my son, ^{obey} my voice; and arise, flee thou to Laban my brother, to ^{Haran};

44 And tarry with him ^a few days, until thy brother's fury turn away;

45 Until thy brother's anger turn away from thee, and he forget ^{that} which thou hast done to him: ^{then} I will send and fetch thee from thence: ^{why} should I be deprived also of you both in one day?

46 And Rebekah said to Isaac, ^I am weary of my life ^{because} of the daughters of Heth: if Jacob take a wife of the daughters of Heth, such as these ^{which} are of the daughters of the land, what good shall my life do me?

CHAPTER XXVIII.

1 Jacob is blessed, and sent to Padan-aram. 10 His vision.
18 The stone of Beth-el. 20 Jacob's vow.

AND Isaac called Jacob, and ^{blessed} him, and charged him, and said unto him, ^{Thou} shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan.

2 Arise, go to ^{Padan-aram}, to the house of Bethuel thy mother's father, and take thee a wife from thence of the daughters of ^{Laban} thy mother's brother.

3 And ^{God} Almighty bless thee, ^{and} make thee fruitful, and multiply thee, that thou mayest be ^a multitude of people;

4 And give thee ^{the} blessing of Abraham, to thee, and to thy seed with thee; that thou mayest inherit the land ^{where} in thou art a stranger, ^{which} God gave unto Abraham.

5 And Isaac sent away Jacob: and he went to Padan-aram unto Laban, son of Bethuel the Syrian, the brother of Rebekah, Jacob's and Esau's mother.

6 ¶ When ^{Esau} saw that Isaac had blessed Jacob, and sent him away to Padan-aram, to take him a wife from thence; and that, as he blessed him, he gave him a charge, saying, Thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan;

7 And ^{that} Jacob obeyed his father and his mother, and was gone to Padan-aram;

8 And Esau seeing that ^{the} daughters of Canaan ^{pleased} not Isaac his father;

9 Then went Esau ^{unto} Ishmael, and took unto the wives which he had ^{Mahalath} the daughter of Ishmael, Abraham's son, the sister of Nebajoth, to be his wife.

10 ¶ And Jacob went out from Beer-sheba, and ^{went} toward ^{Haran}.

chafed by the wives of Esau, while Jacob was still young and single; and that circumstance very probably tended to wean her from the one and to produce an undue attachment to the other.

Chap. XXVIII. 1-15. The mission of Jacob, which was probably prompted by his mother, was approved by his aged father; and both concurred in enjoining his departure. Esau, seeing how things went, sought to conciliate his parents, already grieved by his former marriages, by taking another wife, a relation of his own.

The journey of Jacob was one of the most interesting events of his life. His vision was memorable as an emblem of Providence—a type of the Saviour in whom both worlds meet. At this time Jacob, smarting in his conscience, doubtless greatly required the comfort which the dream imparted, as shewing him that he was still under the care of Divine Providence. Ver. 16-22. The practice of raising pillars was common among the patriarchs, who erected them as memorials of the Divine goodness. These transactions illustrate the great importance which attaches to the settlement of children, and the heavy cala-

11 And he lighted upon a certain place, and tarried there all night, because the sun was set; ^oand he took of the stones of that place, and put them for his pillows, and lay down in that place to sleep.

12 And ^phe dreamed, and behold a ^qladder set up on the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven; and behold the angels of God ascending and descending on it.

13 And, behold, ^rthe LORD stood above it, and said, ^s*I am* the LORD God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac: ^tthe land whereon thou liest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed;

14 And ^uthy seed shall be as the dust of the earth; and thou shalt ^vspread abroad ^wto the west, and to the east, and to the north, and to the south: ^xand in thee, and in thy seed, shall all the families of the earth be blessed.

15 And, behold, ^y*I am* with thee, and will keep thee in all ^zplaces whither thou goest, and will bring thee again into this land; for I will not leave thee, ^auntil I have done that which I have spoken to thee of.

16 ^b¶ And Jacob awaked out of his sleep, and he said, Surely the LORD is in this place, ^cand I knew it not.

17 And ^dhe was afraid, and said, How dreadful is this place! this is none other but ^ethe house of God, and this is the gate of heaven.

18 And Jacob rose up early in the morning, and took the stone that he had put for his pillows, and ^fset it up for a pillar, and ^gpoured oil upon the top of it.

19 And he called ^hthe name of that place ⁱBeth-el: but the name of that city was called Luz at the first.

20 ^j¶ And Jacob ^kvowed a vow, saying, ^lIf God will be with me, and will keep me in this way that I go, and ^mwill give me bread to eat, and raiment to put on,

21 So that I come again to my father's house in peace, ⁿthen shall the LORD be my God:

22 And this stone, which I have set for a pillar, shall be ^oGod's house: and of all that thou shalt give me, ^pI will surely give the tenth unto thee.

CHAPTER XXIX.

1 Jacob cometh to the well of Haran: 13 is entertained by Laban. 18 Jacob covenanteth for Rachel: 23 and is deceived with Leah: 28 but marrieth Rachel also.

many of mixed marriages. "Two cannot walk together except they be agreed." There can be no fellowship between light and darkness. Grapes cannot be had from thorns, nor figs from thistles. It is probable that Esau's policy only tended to aggravate his own misery, while it could but very little contribute to assuage the grief of his parents.

Chap. XXIX. 1-20. Jacob's good offices formed a favourable introduction to the family of Laban his uncle. The interview between the young people was highly touching, and the conduct of Laban was such as became the occasion, and more than might have been expected from his character. "Surely thou art my bone and my flesh," said he, and it had been well had he remembered

2 And he looked, and behold ^aa well in the field, and, lo, ^bthere were three flocks of sheep lying by it; for out of that well they watered the flocks: and a great stone was upon the well's mouth.

3 And thither were all the flocks gathered: and they rolled the stone from the well's mouth, and watered the sheep, and put the stone again upon the well's mouth in his place.

4 And Jacob said unto them, My brethren, whence be ye? And they said, ^cOf Haran are we.

5 And he said unto them, Know ye Laban the son of Nahor? And they said, We know him.

6 And he said unto them, ^d*Is* ^ehe well? And they said, ^f*He* is well; and, behold, Rachel his daughter cometh with the sheep.

7 And he said, ^gLo, ^hit is ⁱyet high day, neither is ^jit time that the cattle should be gathered together: water ye the sheep, and go and feed them.

8 And they said, We cannot ^kuntil all the flocks be gathered together, and ^ltill they roll the stone from the well's mouth; then we water the sheep.

9 ^m¶ And while he yet spake with them, ⁿRachel came with her father's sheep; for she kept them.

10 And it came to pass, when Jacob saw Rachel, the daughter of Laban his mother's brother, and the sheep of Laban his mother's brother, that Jacob went near, ^oand rolled the stone from the well's mouth, and watered the flock of Laban his mother's brother.

11 And Jacob ^pkissed Rachel, and lifted up his voice, and wept.

12 And Jacob told Rachel that he was her father's ^qbrother, and that he was Rebekah's son: ^rand she ran and told her father.

13 And it came to pass, when Laban heard the ^stidings of Jacob his sister's son, that he ^tran to meet him, and embraced him, and ^ukissed him, and brought him to his house. And he told Laban all these things.

14 And Laban said to him, Surely thou ^vart my bone and my flesh. And he abode with him the space ^wof a month.

15 ^x¶ And Laban said unto Jacob, Because thou ^yart my brother, shouldst thou therefore serve me for nought? ^ztell me, what ^ashall thy wages be?

16 And Laban had two daughters: the the fact in his subsequent transactions with Jacob. Laban was at once prepared to enter into the matrimonial arrangement, which was calculated to promote his own interests. It is still common in the East, in many parts, for the bridegroom virtually to purchase the woman he wishes to marry by property, or by servitude, or by both. Ver. 21-35. The seven years having elapsed, Laban now began to shew his true character. Nothing was too base for him; he was ready to peril the peace of his own house and the comfort of his children to further his worldly interests. There was, nevertheless, some truth in his declaration that the younger might not be married before the elder. Among the Hindoos the same law remains to the present day; but Laban at the outset 17 Leah ^{was} tender-eyed; but [†]Rachel ^{was} beautiful and well-favoured.

18 And Jacob [†]loved Rachel; and said, [†]I will serve thee seven years for Rachel thy younger daughter.

19 And Laban said, [†]It is better that I give her to thee, than that I should give her to another man: abide with me.

20 And Jacob served seven years for Rachel; and they seemed unto him ^{but} a few days, [†]for the love he had to her.

21 [†]And Jacob said unto Laban, Give me my wife, for my days are fulfilled, that I may go in unto her.

22 And Laban gathered together all the men of the place, [†]and made a feast.

23 And it came to pass in the evening, that he took Leah his daughter, and [†]brought her to him; and he went in unto her.

24 And Laban gave unto his daughter Leah [†]Zilpah his maid for an handmaid.

25 And it came to pass, that, in the morning, behold, it ^{was} Leah; and he said to Laban, What ^{is} this thou hast done unto me? did not I serve with thee for Rachel? [†]wherefore then hast thou beguiled me?

26 And Laban said, It must not be so done in our country, to [†]give the younger before the first-born.

27 Fulfil her [†]week, and [†]we will give thee this also, for the service which thou shalt serve with me yet seven other years.

28 And Jacob did so, and fulfilled her week; and he gave him Rachel his daughter to wife also.

29 And Laban gave to Rachel his daughter [†]Bilhah his handmaid to be her maid.

30 And he went in also unto Rachel, and [†]he loved also Rachel more than Leah, and [†]served with him yet seven other years.

31 [†]And when the LORD saw that Leah ^{was} hated, [†]he opened her womb; but Rachel ^{was} barren.

32 And Leah conceived, and bare a son; and she called [†]his name [†]Reuben: for she said, Surely the LORD hath [†]looked upon my affliction; now therefore my husband will love me.

33 And she conceived again, and bare a son; and said, [†]Because the LORD hath heard that I ^{was} hated, he hath therefore given me this son also: and she [†]called his name [†]Simeon.

34 And she conceived again, and bare a son; and said, Now this time will my husband be joined unto me, because I

AND when [†]Rachel saw that she bare [†]Jacob no children, [†]Rachel envied her sister; and said unto Jacob, Give me children, [†]or else I die.

2 And Jacob's [†]anger was kindled against Rachel; and he said, [†]Am I in God's stead, who hath [†]withheld from thee the fruit of the womb?

3 And she said, Behold my maid Bilhah, go in unto her; and [†]she shall bear upon my knees, that I may also [†]have children by her.

4 And she gave him Bilhah her handmaid [†]to wife; and Jacob went in unto her.

5 [†]And Bilhah conceived, and bare Jacob a son.

6 And Rachel said, [†]God hath judged me, and hath also heard my voice, and hath given me a son: therefore called she his name [†]Dan.

7 And Bilhah, Rachel's maid, conceived again, and bare Jacob a second son.

8 And Rachel said, With [†]great wrestlings have I wrestled with my sister, and I have prevailed: [†]and she called his name [†]Naphtali.

9 When Leah saw that she had left bearing, she took Zilpah her maid, and gave her Jacob to wife.

10 And Zilpah, Leah's maid, bare Jacob a son.

11 And Leah said, A troop cometh: and [†]she called his name [†]Gad.

12 And Zilpah, Leah's maid, bare Jacob a second son.

13 And Leah said, [†]Happy am I, for the daughters [†]will call me blessed: [†]and she called his name [†]Asher.

14 [†]And Reuben went, in the days of wheat-harvest, and found [†]mandrakes in the field, and brought them unto his mother Leah. Then Rachel said to Leah, Give me, I pray thee, of thy son's mandrakes.

15 And she said unto her, [†]Is it a small matter that thou hast taken my husband? and wouldest thou take away my son's mandrakes also? And Rachel said, Therefore he shall lie with thee to-night for thy son's mandrakes.

16 And Jacob came out of the field in the evening, and Leah went out to meet ought to have told Jacob so. In Jacob's case, however, as he had sowed, he reaped; having formerly deceived his brother, he is now in turn deceived by his uncle. The case of Jacob exemplifies the power of love, which could reduce seven long years to "a few days." It was a maxim with the ancients that love overcame all things. Love is the great impelling power in the Christian character. Love led the Saviour to give himself to the world; and love leads men, in return, to give themselves to the Saviour.

Chap. XXX. 1-43. The position assigned in Providence to Jacob was one of great importance. Of the third generation, he was nearer the fulfilment of the promise than his grandfather Abraham. The temper of Rachel was severely tried, and her less favoured sister, Leah, had ground for triumph over her. In time, however, Rachel obtained the desire of her heart, and was made the joyful mother of Joseph, the loveliest of Jacob's sons. Laban, true to his selfish nature, when him, and said, Thou must come in unto me; for surely I have hired thee with my son's mandrakes. And he lay with her that night.

17 And ¹God hearkened unto Leah, and she conceived, and bare Jacob the fifth son.

18 And Leah said, God hath given me my hire, because I have given my maiden to my husband; ²and she called his name ³Issachar.

19 And Leah conceived again, and bare Jacob the sixth son.

20 And Leah said, God hath endued me with a good dowry; ¹now will my husband dwell with me, because I have born him six sons: ²and she called his name ³Zebulun.

21 And afterwards she bare a daughter, ²and called her name ¹Dinah.

22 ¹And God ²remembered Rachel, and God hearkened to her, ³and opened her womb.

23 And she conceived, and bare a son; and said, God hath ²taken away my reproach:

24 And ¹she called his name ²Joseph; and said, The LORD shall add to me another son.

25 ¹And it came to pass, when Rachel had born Joseph, that Jacob said unto Laban, Send me away, that I may go unto mine own place, and ²to my country.

26 Give me ¹my wives and my children, for whom I have served thee, and let me go: for ²thou knowest my service which I have done thee.

27 And Laban said unto him, I pray thee, if I have found ¹favour in thine eyes, tarry: for I have learned by experience that ²the LORD hath blessed me for thy sake.

28 And he said, ¹Appoint me thy wages, and I will give it.

29 And he said unto him, ¹Thou knowest how I have served thee, and how thy cattle was with me.

30 For it was little which thou hadst before I came, and it is now ²increased unto a multitude; ³and the LORD hath blessed thee ⁴since my coming; and now, ¹when shall I provide for mine own house also?

31 And he said, What shall I give thee? And Jacob said, ¹Thou shalt not give me any thing. If thou wilt do this thing for me, I will again feed and keep thy flock.

32 I will pass through all thy flock to-day, removing from thence all the speckled and spotted cattle, and all the brown cattle among the sheep, and the spotted and speckled among the goats; and ²of such shall be my hire.

33 So shall my ¹righteousness answer for me ²in time to come, when it shall come for my hire before thy face: every one that is not speckled and spotted among the goats, and brown among the sheep, that shall be counted stolen with me.

34 And Laban said, Behold, ¹I would it might be according to thy word.

35 And he removed that day the he-goats that were ring-straked and spotted, and all the she-goats that were speckled and spotted, and every one that had some white in it, and all the brown among the sheep, and gave them into ²the hand of his sons.

36 And he set three days' journey betwixt himself and Jacob: and Jacob fed the rest of Laban's flocks.

37 ¹And ²Jacob took him rods of green poplar, and of the hazel and chestnut-tree, and piled white strakes in them, and made the white appear which was in the rods.

38 And he set the rods which he had piled before the flocks in the gutters in the watering-troughs, when the flocks came to drink, that they should conceive when they came to drink.

39 And the flocks conceived before the rods, and ²brought forth cattle ring-straked, speckled, and spotted.

40 And Jacob did separate the lambs, and set the faces of the flocks toward the ring-straked and all the brown in the flock of Laban; and he put his own flocks by themselves, and put them not unto Laban's cattle.

41 And it came to pass, whensoever the stronger cattle did conceive, that Jacob laid the rods before the eyes of the cattle in the gutters, that they might conceive among the rods.

42 But when the cattle were feeble, he put them not in: so the feeble were Laban's, and the stronger Jacob's.

43 And the man ¹increased exceedingly, and had much cattle, and maid-servants, and men-servants, and camels, and asses.

CHAPTER XXXI.

¹Jacob departeth from Laban. ²²Laban pursueth him.
⁴⁴Their covenant at Galed.

AND he heard the words of Laban's sons, saying, ²Jacob hath taken away all that was our father's; and of that which Jacob was intent on returning to his native country, devised means to retain him. Laban had abundantly prospered for Jacob's sake; and he was clearly convinced that to him, instrumentally, he owed the blessing. Godly men, who understand their business, are always advantageous to their employers. Pity it was that so good a servant should have had so churlish and hard-handed a master. Both the pain and the pity are increased by the fact, that his master had become his father-in-law. Providence, however, overruled everything for good, and promoted the ends of justice. The purposes of Laban were thwarted by God's own hand being stretched forth to redress the wrongs of his servant.

Chap. XXXI. 1-24. Events had now ripened for a rupture. The condition of Jacob had become intolerable. The countenance is the mirror of the mind. It is difficult, with success, to mask hatred. The Lord, who saw the movement, provided for Jacob's deliverance, and sustained him by a gracious promise. His condition was one of great affliction. "Ten times had his wages been changed," but Providence judged between him and his cruel oppressor. The mode of departure was far from pleasant for either party; but it was the result of circumstances; the breach was complete, and nothing could heal it. The pursuit by Laban was as unseemly as to Jacob it was alarming; but Jacob's was our father's hath he gotten all this glory.

2 And Jacob beheld the countenance of Laban, and, behold, it was not toward him as before.

3 And the LORD said unto Jacob, Return unto the land of thy fathers, and to thy kindred; and I will be with thee.

4 And Jacob sent and called Rachel and Leah to the field unto his flock,

5 And said unto them, I see your father's countenance, that it is not toward me as before; but the God of my father hath been with me.

6 And ye know, that with all my power I have served your father.

7 And your father hath deceived me, and changed my wages ten times: but God suffered him not to hurt me.

8 If he said thus, The speckled shall be thy wages; then all the cattle bare speckled: and if he said thus, The ring-straked shall be thy hire; then bare all the cattle ring-straked.

9 Thus God hath taken away the cattle of your father, and given them to me.

10 And it came to pass at the time that the cattle conceived, that I lifted up mine eyes, and saw in a dream, and, behold, the rams which leaped upon the cattle were ring-straked, speckled, and grised.

11 And the angel of God spake unto me in a dream, saying, Jacob. And I said, Here am I.

12 And he said, Lift up now thine eyes and see, all the rams which leap upon the cattle are ring-straked, speckled, and grised: for I have seen all that Laban doeth unto thee.

13 I am the God of Beth-el, where thou anointedst the pillar, and where thou vowedst a vow unto me: now arise, get thee out from this land, and return unto the land of thy kindred.

14 And Rachel and Leah answered and said unto him, Is there yet any portion or inheritance for us in our father's house?

15 Are we not counted of him strangers? for he hath sold us, and hath quite devoured also our money.

16 For all the riches which God hath taken from our father, that is ours, and our children's: now then, whatsoever God hath said unto thee, do.

17 ¶ Then Jacob rose up, and set his sons and his wives upon camels:

18 And he carried away all his cattle, and all his goods which he had gotten, the cattle of his getting, which he had gotten in Padan-aram, for to go to Isaac his father in the land of Canaan.

19 And Laban went to shear his sheep:

and Rachel had stolen the images that were her father's.

20 And Jacob stole away unawares to Laban the Syrian, in that he told him not that he fled.

21 So he fled with all that he had; and he rose up, and passed over the river, and set his face toward the mount Gilead.

22 And it was told Laban on the third day, that Jacob was fled.

23 And he took his brethren with him, and pursued after him seven days' journey; and they overtook him in the mount Gilead.

24 And God came to Laban the Syrian in a dream by night, and said unto him, Take heed that thou speak not to Jacob either good or bad.

25 ¶ Then Laban overtook Jacob. Now Jacob had pitched his tent in the mount: and Laban with his brethren pitched in the mount of Gilead.

26 And Laban said to Jacob, What hast thou done, that thou hast stolen away unawares to me, and carried away my daughters, as captives taken with the sword?

27 Wherefore didst thou flee away secretly, and steal away from me, and didst not tell me, that I might have sent thee away with mirth, and with songs, with tabret, and with harp?

28 And hast not suffered me to kiss my sons and my daughters? Thou hast now done foolishly in so doing.

29 It is in the power of my hand to do you hurt: but the God of your father spake unto me yesternight, saying, Take thou heed that thou speak not to Jacob either good or bad.

30 And now, though thou wouldest needs be gone, because thou sore longedst after thy father's house, yet wherefore hast thou stolen my gods?

31 And Jacob answered and said to Laban, Because I was afraid: for I said, Peradventure thou wouldest take by force thy daughters from me.

32 With whomsoever thou findest thy gods, let him not live: before our brethren discern thou what is thine with me, and take it to thee. For Jacob knew not that Rachel had stolen them.

33 And Laban went into Jacob's tent, and into Leah's tent, and into the two maid-servants' tents; but he found them not. Then went he out of Leah's tent, and entered into Rachel's tent.

34 Now Rachel had taken the images, and put them in the camel's furniture, and sat upon them. And Laban searched all the tent, but found them not.

35 And she said to her father, Let it not displease my lord that I cannot rise up before thee; for the custom of women is

God, ever faithful, who watched all that was going on, gave Laban, at the proper moment, a check by which he was overwhelmed and subdued before his injured son. Ver. 25-42. The speech of Laban was excellent, correctly describing what ought to have been the manner of their separation; but that it was not so was his own blame. The candour of Laban is remarkable in confessing the vision which he had the previous night, and correctly reporting the message of the Most High. The reply of Jacob was pungent in a very high degree, and all the upon me. And he searched, but found not the images.

36 ¶ And Jacob was ¹wroth, and chode with Laban: and Jacob answered and said to Laban, What ²is my trespass? what ³is my sin, that thou hast so hotly pursued after me?

37 Whereas thou hast searched all my stuff, what hast thou found of all thy household stuff? ⁴set it here before my brethren and thy brethren, that they may judge betwixt us both.

38 This ⁵twenty years have I been with thee; thy ⁶ewes and thy she-goats have not cast their young, and ⁷the rams of thy flock have I not eaten.

39 That which was ⁸torn of beasts I brought not unto thee; ⁹I bare the loss of it: of my hand didst thou require it, whether stolen by day, ¹⁰or stolen by night.

40 Thus I was; ¹¹in the day the drought consumed me, and the frost by night; and my sleep departed from mine eyes.

41 Thus have I been twenty years in thy house: I served thee ¹²fourteen years for thy two daughters, and six years for thy cattle; and thou hast changed my wages ¹³ten times.

42 ¹⁴Except the God of my father, the God of Abraham, and the ¹⁵Fear of Isaac, had been with me, surely thou hadst sent me away now empty. God ¹⁶hath seen mine affliction, and the labour of my hands, and rebuked thee yesternight.

43 ¶ And Laban answered and said unto Jacob, These daughters are my daughters, and these children are my children, and these cattle are my cattle, and all that thou seest is mine: and what can I do this day unto these my daughters, or unto thy children which they have born?

44 Now therefore come thou, ¹⁷let us make a covenant, I and thou; and let it be for ¹⁸a witness between me and thee.

45 And Jacob took a ¹⁹stone, and set it up for a pillar.

46 And Jacob said unto his brethren, ²⁰Gather stones; and they took stones, and made an heap: and they did eat there upon the heap.

47 And Laban called it ²¹Jegar-sahadutha: but Jacob called it ²²Galeed.

48 And Laban said, This heap ²³is a witness between me and thee this day. Therefore was the name of it called Galeed;

49 And ²⁴Mizpah: for he said, The LORD watch between me and thee, when we are absent one from another.

more so because of its truth. Ver. 43-55. The rejoinder of Laban was conceived in a praiseworthy spirit, presenting a valuable example to friends among whom strifes have arisen. It deserves special notice, that from first to last, not a word of confession or apology for past misdoings escapes the lips of Laban. His ruthless hardness remained to the last; his heart seemed utterly steeled against even the approach of tenderness and generosity. He expatiated with great energy regarding the duty of Jacob not to afflict his daughters, taking "God to witness;" but there was nothing of this appeal to the eye of the Omniscient during the long course of his grinding

CHAPTER XXXII.

1 Jacob's vision. 3 His message, 13 and present to Esau. 24 Wrestling with an angel, he is called Israel.

AND Jacob went on his way, and the ¹angels of God met him.

2 And when Jacob saw them, he said, This is ²God's host: and he called ³the name of that place ⁴Mahanaim.

3 ¶ And Jacob sent messengers before him to Esau his brother, unto the land of ⁵Seir, the ⁶country of ⁷Edom.

4 And he commanded them, saying, Thus shall ye speak unto ⁸my lord Esau; Thy ⁹servant Jacob saith thus, I have sojourned with Laban, and stayed there until now:

5 And ¹⁰I have oxen, and asses, flocks, and men-servants, and women-servants: and I have sent to tell my lord, that I ¹¹may find grace in thy sight.

6 ¶ And the messengers returned to Jacob, saying, We came to thy brother Esau, and also he cometh to meet thee, ¹²and four hundred men with him.

7 Then Jacob was ¹³greatly afraid and distressed: and he divided the people that ¹⁴was with him, and the flocks, and herds, and the camels, into two bands;

8 And said, ¹⁵If Esau come to the one company, and smite it, then the other company which is left shall escape.

9 ¶ And ¹⁶Jacob said, ¹⁷O God of my father Abraham, and God of my father Isaac, the LORD ¹⁸which saidst unto me, Return unto thy country, and to thy exactions upon Jacob. The matter, however, finished well. It was seemly in Jacob to offer sacrifice, and also in Laban to kiss his sons and his daughters, and to bless them.

Chap. XXXII. 1-32. The approach of the angels of God looked well for the success of the journey; but the memory of the past now began to trouble him; Esau still lived, his wrongs still remained unredressed and unforgiven. The aspect of things was terrible, the thought of Esau approaching with 400 armed men, overwhelmed him. In this awful hour one resource alone kindred, and I will deal well with thee:

10 I am ³not ⁴worthy of the least of all the mercies, and of all the ¹truth, which thou hast shewed unto thy servant; for with ⁵my staff I passed over this Jordan, and now I am become ⁶two bands.

11 "Deliver me, I pray thee, from the hand of my brother, from the hand of Esau: for I fear him, lest he will come and smite me, and ²the mother ⁴with the children.

12 And ⁷thou saidst, "I will surely do thee good, and make thy seed as the sand of the sea, which cannot be numbered for multitude.

13 ¶ And he lodged there that same night; and took of that "which came to his hand ⁸a present for Esau his brother;

14 Two ⁹hundred she-goats and twenty he-goats, two hundred ewes and twenty rams, 15 Thirty milch camels with their colts, forty kine and ten bulls, twenty she-asses and ten foals.

16 And he delivered them into the hand of his servants, every drove by themselves; and said unto his servants, Pass over before me, and put a space betwixt drove and drove.

17 And he commanded the foremost, saying, When Esau my brother meeteth thee, and asketh thee, saying, ¹⁰Whose art thou? and whither goest thou? and those are these before thee?

18 Then thou shalt say, They ¹¹be thy servant Jacob's; it is a present sent unto my lord Esau: and, behold, also he is behind us.

19 And so commanded he the second, and the third, and all that followed the droves, saying, On this manner shall ye speak unto Esau, when ye find him.

20 And say ye moreover, Behold, thy servant Jacob is behind us. For he said, "I will appease him with the present that goeth before me, and afterward I will see his face; ¹²peradventure he will accept ⁵of me.

21 So went the present over before him; and himself lodged that night in the company.

22 And he rose up that night, and took ¹³his two wives, and his two women-servants, and his eleven sons, and passed over the ford ¹⁴Jabbok.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

1 The kindness of Jacob and Esau at their meeting. 18 Jacob buyeth a field at Shelem, and buildeth an altar.

AND Jacob lifted up his eyes, and looked, and, behold, ¹Esau came, and with him four hundred men. ²And he divided the children unto Leah, and unto Rachel, and unto the two handmaids.

2 And he put the handmaids and their children foremost, and Leah and her children after, and ³Rachel and Joseph hindmost.

3 And he ⁴passed over before them, and ⁵bowed himself to the ground seven times, until he came near to his brother.

4 And Esau ran to meet him, and ⁶embraced him, and ⁷fell on his neck, and kissed him: and they wept.

5 And he lifted up his eyes, and saw the women and the children, and said, Who are those ⁸with thee? And he said, The ⁹children which God hath graciously given thy servant.

remained—prayer to the God of Abraham; and after adopting all proper means, he gave himself in a manner the most extraordinary to supplication. Never had human being spent such a night of agonising prayer; never was prayer offered with more signal success. This mysterious wrestling has led to a great variety of conjectures which, however they may amuse, do not edify. Some have considered the whole thing a dream, others an Orientalism expressive of earnest prayer; but the fact and the reason of the thing alike demand that it shall be taken literally. We have already seen that God the Son often appeared in human form prior to his incarnation. Jacob, moreover, clearly perceiving that it was a divine person, sued for his blessing accordingly. Then the touch, whereby he was lamed for life, is demonstrative of the exercise of a power adequate to produce such an effect. Of all the Old Testament examples of the availing power of fervent prayer, this is the most remarkable, and full of encouragement to every child of God under all emergencies.

Chap. XXXIII. 1-16. The lion is turned into a lamb. Behold him kissing the man he had intended in early days, perhaps but yesterday, to "slay," and shedding tears over a man whose blood he meant to shed! How great a change! To Jacob how blessed the deliverance! In this altered state of things Jacob, with profound humility and adoring gratitude, acknowledged the hand of God who had given him favour in the sight of his injured and exasperated brother. The entire conduct of Esau is manly and magnanimous, presenting an example full of beauty and instruction to all injured brothers, and all

6 Then the handmaidens came near, they and their children, and they bowed themselves:

7 And Leah also with her children came near, and bowed themselves: and after came Joseph near and Rachel, and they bowed themselves.

8 And he said, ²What meanest thou by ¹all this drove which I met? And he said, These are to find grace in the sight of my lord.

9 And Esau said, I have enough, ²my brother; ¹keep that thou hast unto thyself.

10 And Jacob said, Nay, I pray thee, ¹if now I have found grace in thy sight, then receive my present at my hand; for therefore ²I have seen thy face, as though I had seen the face of God, and thou wast pleased with me.

11 Take, I pray thee, ²my blessing that is brought to thee; because God hath dealt graciously with me, ¹and because I have ⁴enough. And he ²urged him, and he took it.

12 And he said, Let us take our journey, and let us go, and I will go before thee.

13 And he said unto him, My lord knoweth that the ¹children are tender, and the flocks and herds with young are with me; and if men should overdrive them one day, all the flock will die.

14 Let my lord, I pray thee, pass over before his servant; and I will lead on softly, according ⁶as the cattle that goeth before me and the children ¹be able to endure, until I come unto my lord ²unto Seir.

15 And Esau said, Let me now ⁶leave with thee some of the folk that are with me. And he said, ¹What needeth it? let me ¹find grace in the sight of my lord.

16 ¶ So Esau returned that day on his way unto Seir.

17 And Jacob journeyed to ²Succoth, and built him an house, and made booths for his cattle: therefore the name of the place is called ²Succoth.

18 ¶ And Jacob came to ²Shalem, a city of ¹Shechem, which is in the land of Canaan, when he came from ²Padan-aram, and pitched his tent before the city.

19 And he ²bought a parcel of a field, where he had spread his tent, at the hand of the children of ¹Hamor, Shechem's father, for an hundred ²pieces of money.

20 And he erected there an ²altar, and called it ¹El-elohe-Israel.

2 And when ¹Shechem the son of Hamor the Hivite, prince of the country, ²saw her, he took her, and lay with her, and ¹defiled her.

3 And his soul clave unto Dinah the daughter of Jacob; and he loved the damsel, and spake ²kindly unto the damsel.

4 ¶ And Shechem spake unto his father Hamor, saying, ¹Get me this damsel to wife.

5 And Jacob heard that he had defiled Dinah his daughter; (¹now his sons were with his cattle in the field;) and Jacob held his peace until they were come.

6 ¶ And Hamor the father of Shechem went out unto Jacob to commune with him.

7 And the sons of Jacob came out of the field when they heard it: and the men were grieved; and they were very wroth, because he had ²wrought folly in Israel, in lying with Jacob's daughter; which ¹thing ought not to be done.

8 And Hamor communed with them, saying, ¹The soul of my son Shechem longeth for your daughter: I pray you give her him to wife.

9 And ²make ye marriages with us, and give your daughters unto us, and take our daughters unto you.

10 And ye shall dwell with us: ¹and the land shall be before you; dwell and trade ye therein, and get you possessions therein.

11 And Shechem said unto her father, and unto her brethren, Let me find grace in your eyes, and what ye shall say unto me I will give.

12 Ask me never so much ²dowry and gift, and I will give according as ye shall say unto me: but give me the damsel to wife.

13 ¶ And the sons of Jacob answered Shechem and Hamor his father ²deceitfully, and said, (because he had defiled Dinah their sister:)

14 And they said unto them, We cannot do this thing, to give our sister to one that is ¹uncircumcised; for that were a reproach unto us:

15 But in this will we consent unto you: ²If ye will be as we be, that every male of you be circumcised;

16 Then will we give our daughters unto you, and we will take your daughters to us, and we will dwell with you, and we will become one people.

17 But if ye will not hearken unto us, to be circumcised; then will we take our daughter, and we will be gone.

18 And their words pleased Hamor, and Shechem, Hamor's son.

19 And the young man deferred not to do the thing, ¹because he had delight in injured men towards penitent evil doers. Ver. 17-20. The removal of heavy heart-burdens is the best preparation for both public and private duties. Jacob now proceeds with energy and comfort to make the necessary arrangements for the settlement of his little colony; but busy though he was, like his father Abraham he found time for devotion, and hence, among the first things he attended to, was the rearing of an altar to his God.

Chap. XXXIV. 1-19. Great trials are seldom far distant from great mercies. The conduct of Hamor, under the circumstances, was highly creditable to him; whereas Jacob's daughter: and he was more ¹honourable than all the house of his father.

20 ¶ And Hamor and Shechem his son came unto ²the gate of their city, and communed with the men of their city, saying, 21 These men are peaceable with us: therefore let them dwell in the land, and trade therein; for the land, behold, it is large enough for them; let us take their daughters to us for wives, and let us give them our daughters.

22 Only herein ³will the men consent unto us for to dwell with us, to be one people, if every male among us be circumcised, as they are circumcised.

23 Shall ⁴not their cattle, and their substance, and every beast of theirs, be ours? only let us consent unto them, and they will dwell with us.

24 And unto Hamor, and unto Shechem his son, hearkened all that went out of the gate of his city; and ⁵every male was circumcised, all that went out of the gate of his city.

25 ¶ And it came to pass on the third day, when they were ⁶sore, that two of the sons of Jacob, ⁷Simeon and Levi, Dinah's brethren, took each man his sword, and came upon the city boldly, and slew all the males.

26 And they slew Hamor and Shechem his son with the ⁸edge of the sword, and took Dinah out of Shechem's house, and went out.

27 The sons of Jacob came upon the slain, and ⁹spoiled the city, because ¹⁰they had defiled their sister.

28 They took their sheep, and their oxen, and their asses, and that which was in the city, and that which was in the field,

29 And all their wealth, and all their little ones, and their wives took they captive, and spoiled even all that was in the house.

30 ¶ And Jacob said to Simeon and Levi, ¹¹Ye have troubled me, to make me ¹²to stink among the inhabitants of the land, among the Canaanites and the Perizzites: ¹³and I being few in number, they shall gather themselves together against me, and slay me; ¹⁴and I shall be destroyed, I and my house.

31 And they said, ¹⁵Should he deal with our sister as with an harlot?

CHAPTER XXXV.

1 God sendeth Jacob to Beth-el. 2 He purgeth his house of idols, 6 and buildeth an altar at Beth-el. 28 Isaac's death.

AND God said unto Jacob, Arise, go up to Beth-el, ¹and dwell there; and make there an altar unto God, that appeared unto thee ²when thou fleddest from the face of Esau thy brother.

2 Then Jacob said ³unto his household, and to all that were with him, Put away the ⁴strange gods that are among you, and be ⁵clean, and change your garments:

3 And let us arise, and go up to Beth-el; and I will make there an altar unto God, ⁶who answered me in the day of my distress, and ⁷was with me in the way which I went.

4 And they gave unto Jacob all the strange gods which were in their hand, and all their ⁸ear-rings which were in their ears; and Jacob ⁹hid them under ¹⁰the oak which was by Shechem.

5 And they journeyed: and ¹¹the terror of God was upon the cities that were round about them, and they did not pursue after the sons of Jacob.

6 ¶ So Jacob came to ¹²Luz, which is in the land of Canaan, (that is, Beth-el,) he, and all the people that were with him.

7 And he ¹³built there an altar, and called the place ¹⁴El-beth-el; because there God appeared unto him, when he fled from the face of his brother.

8 But Deborah, ¹⁵Rebekah's nurse, died, and she was buried beneath Beth-el ¹⁶under an oak: and the name of it was called ¹⁷Allon-bachuth.

9 ¶ And ¹⁸God appeared unto Jacob again, when he came out of Padan-aram, and blessed him.

10 And God said unto him, Thy name is Jacob: ¹⁹thy name shall not be called any more Jacob, but Israel shall be thy name; and he called his name Israel.

11 And God said unto him, I am ²⁰God Almighty; be fruitful and multiply: ²¹a nation, and a company of nations, shall be of thee, ²²and kings shall come out of thy loins;

12 And the land which I gave Abraham and Isaac, to thee I will give it, and to thy seed after thee will I give the land.

13 And ²³God went up from him in the place where he talked with him.

that of Jacob's sons was most reprehensible. While the injury was very great, it furnished no ground for deceitful falsehood, and cruel treachery. Great as was the crime of Shechem, he was at heart a man of worth, and "more honourable than all the house of his father." The whole of his after conduct corresponds with this testimony. Ver. 20-30. The men of the city displayed every laudable cordiality in the arrangements proposed by Hamor their king. Under the circumstances, the procedure of Simeon and Levi was deceitful, barbarous, and wicked, beyond expression. Jacob was cut to the heart by their conduct, and their blood-stained criminality rested a burden on his spirit to the day of his death. On his dying bed, as if unable to rest in his grave until he had recorded his protest, he pronounced a curse on their wrath because it was fierce, and their anger because it was cruel. Their deeds will expose them to the execration of the latest posterity. Dinah presents a warning to young females to take care of their company, to bridle their curiosity, and never to go unprotected amidst ungodly strangers.

Chap. XXXV. 1-15. The promptitude of Jacob is praiseworthy; he lost not a moment in obeying the divine command. He was deeply penetrated by a sense of the goodness of the Lord who "answered him in the day of his distress." It was not a little remarkable that there should have been strange gods in his family; this shews remissness on his part; but at last he is roused to a sense of duty, and issues an authoritative command on the subject, which is promptly obeyed. The murderous cruelty of Simeon and Levi was greatly fitted to bring destruction on the whole of the little colony; but the "terror of God" fell on the surrounding cities, and pre-

14 ¶ And Jacob ⁷set up a pillar in the place where he talked with him, even a pillar of stone; and he poured a drink-offering thereon, and he poured oil thereon.

15 And Jacob called the name of the place where God spake with him, Beth-el.

16 ¶ And they journeyed from Beth-el; and there was but ^aa little way to come to ^aEphrath: and Rachel travailed, and she had ^ahard labour.

17 And it came to pass, when she was in hard labour, that the midwife said unto her, ^bFear not; thou shalt have this son also.

18 And it came to pass, as ^cher soul was in departing, (for she died,) that she called his name ^aBen-oni: but his father called him ^bBenjamin.

19 And Rachel died, and was buried in the way to Ephrath, which is Beth-lehem.

20 And Jacob set a pillar upon her grave: that is ^dthe pillar of Rachel's grave unto this day.

21 And Israel journeyed, and spread his tent beyond the tower of Edar.

22 ¶ And it came to pass, when Israel dwelt in that land, that Reuben went and ^elay with Bilhah his father's concubine: and Israel heard it. ^fNow the sons of Jacob were twelve.

23 The ^gsons of Leah; Reuben, Jacob's first-born, and Simeon, and Levi, and Judah, and Issachar, and Zebulun.

24 The ^hsons of Rachel; Joseph and Benjamin.

25 And ⁱthe sons of Bilhah, Rachel's handmaid; Dan and Naphtali.

26 And ^kthe sons of Zilpah, Leah's handmaid; Gad and Asher. These are the sons of Jacob, which were born to him in Padan-aram.

27 ¶ And Jacob came unto Isaac his father unto ^mMamre, unto the city of Arba, (which is Hebron,) where Abraham and Isaac sojourned.

28 ¶ And the days of Isaac were ⁿan hundred and fourscore years.

29 And Isaac ^ogave up the ghost, and died, and was gathered unto his people, being old and full of days: and ^phis sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

ter of Anah, the daughter of Zibeon the Hivite;

3 And ^cBashemath, Ishmael's daughter, sister of Nebajoth.

4 And ^dAdah bare to Esau Eliphaz; and Bashemath bare Reuel;

5 And Aholibamah bare Jeush, and Jaalam, and Korah. These are the sons of Esau, which were born unto him in the land of Canaan.

6 And Esau took his wives, and his sons, and his daughters, and all the ¹persons of his house, and his cattle, and all his beasts, and all his substance, which he had got in the land of Canaan, and ^ewent into the country from the face of his brother Jacob.

7 For ^ftheir riches were more than that they might dwell together; and the land wherein they were strangers could not bear them because of their cattle.

8 Thus dwelt Esau in ^gmount Seir. Esau is Edom.

9 ¶ And these are the generations of Esau, the father of the ^hEdomites, in mount Seir.

10 These are the names of Esau's sons; Eliphaz the son of Adah the wife of Esau; Reuel the son of Bashemath the wife of Esau.

11 And the sons of Eliphaz were Teman, Omar, ⁱZepho, and Gatam, and Kenaz.

12 And Timna was concubine to Eliphaz, Esau's son; and she bare to Eliphaz ^jAmalek: these were the sons of Adah, Esau's wife.

13 And these are the sons of Reuel; Nahath, and Zerah, Shammah, and Mizzah: these were the sons of Bashemath, Esau's wife.

14 ¶ And these were the sons of ^kAholibamah, the daughter of Anah, the daughter of Zibeon, Esau's wife; and she bare to Esau Jeush, and Jaalam, and Korah.

15 ¶ These were dukes of the sons of Esau: the sons of Eliphaz, the first-born son of Esau; ^lduke Teman, duke Omar, duke Zepho, duke Kenaz.

16 Duke Korah, duke Gatam, and duke Amalek. These are the ^mdukes that came of Eliphaz in the land of Edom: these were the sons of Adah.

17 ¶ And these are the sons of ⁿReuel, Esau's son; duke Nahath, duke Zerah, duke Shammah, duke Mizzah. These are the dukes that came of Reuel in the land of Edom: these are the sons of Bashemath, Esau's wife.

served him. The earrings were, probably, those of his Syrian servants, and stamped with the symbols of idolatry. As in the case of Abraham, Jacob was honoured, guided, and strengthened by one divine appearance after another, each accompanied by a renewal of the promise. The family band was to expand itself into a "company of nations." Ver. 16-20. Amid Jacob's prosperity death soon stepped in, once and again reminding him that this was not his rest. The inordinate desire of Rachel was at last gratified, but at the expense of her life. The days of Isaac at length were numbered: but not till he had seen his sons reconciled, so that both attended his burial.

These days were unexpectedly lengthened: he lived forty years after making arrangements for his departure, and blessing his sons. His whole span extended to the long period of 180 years.

Chap. XXXVI. 1-8. Esau displays a laudable spirit of generosity in giving place to Jacob of his own accord. The separation in this case was made, not as in that of the herdsmen of Abraham and Lot, through a quarrel among their respective servants. Although Esau lost his birthright, he was eminently blessed as to the present world. As compared with Jacob, he enjoyed a quiet and 18 And these are the sons of °Aholibamah, Esau's wife; duke Jeush, duke Jaalam, duke Korah: these were the dukes that came of Aholibamah, the daughter of Anah, Esau's wife.

19 These are the sons of Esau, (°who is Edom.) and these are their dukes.

20 ¶ These are the sons of °Seir the Horite, who inhabited the land; Lotan, and Shobal, and Zibeon, and Anah, 21 And Dishon, and Ezer, and Dishan. These are the dukes of the Horites, the children of Seir in the land of Edom.

22 And the children of Lotan were Hori, and °Heman: and Lotan's sister was Timna.

23 And the children of Shobal were these; °Alvan, and Manahath, and Ebal, Shepho, and Onam.

24 And these are the children of Zibeon; both Ajah and Anah: this was that Anah that °found the mules in the wilderness, as he fed the asses of Zibeon his father.

25 And the children of Anah were these; Dishon, and Aholibamah the daughter of °Anah.

26 And these are the children of Dishon; °Hemdan, and Eshban, and Ithran, and Cheran.

27 The children of °Ezer are these; Bilhan, and Zaavan, and °Akan.

28 The children of Dishan are these; °Uz, and Aran.

29 These are the dukes that came of the Horites; °duke Lotan, duke Shobal, duke Zibeon, duke Anah, 30 Duke Dishon, duke Ezer, duke Dishan. These are the dukes that came of Hori, among their dukes in the land of Seir.

31 ¶ And these are °the kings that reigned in the land of Edom, before there reigned any king over the children of Israel.

32 And Bela the son of Beor reigned in Edom: and the name of his city was Dinhabah.

33 And Bela died; and Jobab the son of Zerah of °Bozrah reigned in his stead.

34 And Jobab died; and Husham of the land of °Temani reigned in his stead.

35 And Husham died; and Hadad the son of Bedad, (who smote Midian in the field of Moab,) reigned in his stead: and the name of his city was Avith.

36 And Hadad died; and Samlah of Masrekah reigned in his stead.

37 And Samlah died; and Saul of °Rehoboth by the river reigned in his stead.

38 And Saul died; and Baal-hanan the son of Achibor reigned in his stead.

39 And Baal-hanan the son of Achibor died; and °Hadar reigned in his stead:

CHAPTER XXXVII.

2 Joseph is hated of his brethren. 5 His two dreams. 18 His brethren conspire his death. 36 He is sold to Potiphar in Egypt.

AND Jacob dwelt in the land °wherein his father was a stranger, in the land of Canaan.

2 These are °the generations of Jacob. Joseph, being seventeen years old, was feeding the flock with his brethren; and the lad was with the sons of Bilhah, and with the sons of Zilpah, his father's °wives: and Joseph brought unto his father their °evil report.

3 Now Israel loved Joseph more than all his children, because he was the °son of his old age: and he made him °a coat of many °colours.

4 And when his brethren saw that their father loved him more than all his brethren, they °hated him, and could not speak peaceably unto him.

5 ¶ And Joseph °dreamed a dream, and he told it his brethren: and they hated him yet the more.

6 And he said unto them, °Hear, I pray you, this dream which I have dreamed:

7 For, behold, we were binding sheaves in the field, and, lo, my sheaf arose, and also stood upright; and, behold, your sheaves stood round about, and made obeisance to my sheaf.

8 And his brethren said to him, °Shalt thou indeed reign over us? or shalt thou indeed have dominion over us? And they hated him yet the more for his dreams, and for his words.

9 ¶ And he dreamed yet °another dream, and told it his brethren, and said, Behold, I have dreamed a dream more; and, behold, °the sun, and the moon, and the eleven stars, made obeisance to me.

10 And he told it to his father, and to his brethren: and his father rebuked him, and said unto him, What is this dream that thou hast dreamed? °Shall I, prosperous course; but he had his "portion in this life." His glory as to his descendants, however, was but local and temporary; that of Jacob was destined to be universal and permanent. To the faithful in Christ Jesus, the future is everything; they but gain with time, and their bliss will be perfected in eternity. The people of God enjoy both the life that now is and that which is to come.

Chap. XXXVII. 1-4. Joseph's early piety and regular conduct brought him into early trouble. His character, other circumstances apart, rendered him the object of love and confidence to his father, which, having the air of partiality, excited the hatred of his irreligious brothers. Ver. 5-28. Prudence would have concealed the dream, but the purposes of God required it to be made known.

and thy mother, and thy brethren, indeed come to bow down ourselves to thee to the earth?

11 And his brethren ^eenvied him; but his father ^pobserved the saying.

12 ¶ And his brethren went to feed their father's flock ⁱin Shechem.

13 And Israel said unto Joseph, Do not thy brethren feed the flock in Shechem? ^rcome, and I will send thee unto them. And he said to him, ^aHere am I.

14 And he said to him, Go, I pray thee, ^ssee whether it be well with thy brethren, and well with the flocks; and bring me word again. So he sent him out of the vale of ^tHebron, and he came to Shechem.

15 And a certain man found him, and, behold, ^uhe was wandering in the field: and the man asked him, saying, ^xWhat seekest thou?

16 And he said, I seek my brethren: ^ytell me, I pray thee, where they feed their flocks.

17 And the man said, They are departed hence; for I heard them say, Let us go to ^zDothan. And Joseph went after his brethren, and found them in Dothan.

18 ¶ And when they saw him afar off, even before he came near unto them, they ^aconspired against him to slay him.

19 And they said one to another, Behold, ^bthis dreamer cometh.

20 Come now therefore, ^cand let us slay him, and cast him into some pit; and we will say, Some evil beast hath devoured him: ^dand we shall see what will become of his dreams.

21 And ^eReuben heard it, and he delivered him out of their hands; and said, Let us not kill him.

22 And Reuben said unto them, Shed no blood, ^fbut cast him into this pit that is in the wilderness, and lay no hand upon him; that he might rid him out of their hands, to deliver him to his father again.

23 ¶ And it came to pass, when Joseph was come unto his brethren, that they ^gstripped Joseph out of his coat, his coat of many ^hcolours, that was on him;

24 And they took him, and cast him into a pit: and ⁱthe pit was empty, there was no water in it.

25 And ^jthey sat down to eat bread: and they lifted up their eyes, and looked, and, behold, a company of ^kIshmeelites came from ^lGilead, with their camels bearing spicery, and balm, and myrrh, going to carry it down to Egypt.

26 And Judah said unto his brethren,

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

1 ^{Judah begoteth Er, Onan, and Shelah.} 6 ^{Er marrieth Tamar.} 8 ^{The trespass of Onan.} 12 ^{Judah's incest with Tamar.}

AND it came to pass at that time, that Judah went down from his brethren, and ^dturned in to a certain ^eAdullamite, whose name was Hirah.

2 And Judah ^fsaw there a daughter of a certain Canaanite, whose name was ^gShuah; and he took her, and went in unto her.

3 And she conceived, and bare a son; and he called his name ^hEr.

4 And she conceived again, and bare a son; and she called his name Onan.

5 And she yet again conceived, and bare

Its importance was obvious, and Jacob clearly saw that the hand of God was in it; therefore "he observed the saying." He felt assured that it portended great events in his family, and waited with prayerful patience its further development. How prompt and unanimous was the proposal of the brothers to "slay" Joseph! In all that followed how strikingly the wrath of man is made to praise God, and the remainder restrained! One brother is made to preserve Joseph's life, and another to effect his sale into Egypt—a great element in the fulfilment of the prediction that had gone before. The sum amounted to only about 3*l.* sterling: a small price for so great a crime. Ver. 29-36. The conduct of Reuben is honourable to his feelings. The deliberation with which the brothers concocted the cruel falsehood, strikingly demonstrates the depth of human depravity. While the venerable patriarch was plunged in hopeless sorrow, the cruel deceivers, his sons, with an air of innocence and sympathy, "rose up to comfort him." Lord, what is man!

Chap. XXXVIII. 1-30. This is a chapter of moral horrors. The whole is deeply stamped with human depravity. Judah transgresses in marrying an "accursed" a son; and called his name 'Shelah: and he was at Chezib when she bare him.

6 And Judah ^atook a wife for Er his first-born, whose name was Tamar.

7 And Er, Judah's first-born, ^bwas wicked in the sight of the LORD; and the LORD slew him.

8 And Judah said unto Onan, 'Go in unto thy brother's wife, and marry her, and raise up seed to thy brother.

9 And Onan knew that the seed should not be his: and it came to pass, when he went in unto his brother's wife, that he spilled ^cit on the ground, ^d'lest that he should give seed to his brother.

10 And the thing which he did ^edispleased the LORD; wherefore he slew him also.

11 Then said Judah to Tamar his daughter-in-law, Remain a widow at thy father's house, 'till Shelah my son be grown: (for he said, Lest peradventure he die also, as his brethren did.) And Tamar went and dwelt in her father's house.

12 ¶ And, ²in process of time, the daughter of Shuah, Judah's wife, died: and Judah was ³comforted, and went up unto his ⁴sheep-shearers to Timnath, he and his friend Hirah the Adullamite.

13 And it was told Tamar, saying, Behold, thy father-in-law goeth up to ⁵Timnath to shear his sheep.

14 And she put her widow's garments off from her, and covered her with a vail, and wrapped herself, ⁶and sat in ⁷an open place, which ⁸is by the way to Timnath: for she saw ⁹that Shelah was grown, and she was not given unto him to wife.

15 When Judah saw her, he thought her to be an harlot; because she had covered her face.

16 And he turned unto her by the way, and said, Go to, I pray thee, let me come in unto thee; (for he knew not that she was his daughter-in-law.) And she said, 'What wilt thou give me, that thou mayest come in unto me?

17 And he said, 'I will send thee ⁴a kid from the flock. And she said, 'Wilt thou give me a pledge till thou send it?

18 And he said, What pledge shall I give thee? And she said, 'Thy signet, and thy bracelets, and thy staff that ¹⁰is in thine hand: and he ¹¹gave it her, and came in unto her; and she conceived by him.

19 And she arose, and went away, and laid by her vail from her, and put on the ¹²garments of her widowhood.

20 And Judah sent the kid by the hand of ¹³his friend the Adullamite, to receive his pledge from the woman's hand; but he found her not.

21 Then he asked the men of that place, saying, Where ¹⁴is the harlot that ¹⁵was ¹⁶openly by the way-side? And they said, There was no harlot in this place.

22 And he returned to Judah, and said, I cannot find her; and also the men of the place said, ¹⁷that there was no harlot in this place.

23 And Judah said, Let her take it to her, ¹⁸'lest we ¹⁹be shamed: behold, I sent this kid, and thou hast not found her.

24 ¶ And it came to pass, about three months after, that it was told Judah, saying, Tamar thy daughter-in-law hath ²⁰played the harlot; and also, behold, she is with child by whoredom. And Judah said, Bring her forth, and ²¹let her be burnt.

25 When she was brought forth, she sent to her father-in-law, saying, By the man whose these ²²are ²³am I with child: and she said, ²⁴Discern, I pray thee, whose ²⁵are these, the signet, and bracelets, and staff.

26 And Judah acknowledged ²⁶them, and said, ²⁷'She hath been more righteous than I; ²⁸'because that I gave her not to Shelah my son: ²⁹'and he knew her again no more.

27 ¶ And it came to pass, in the time of her travail, that, behold, twins ³⁰were in her womb.

28 And it came to pass, when she travailed, that the ³¹one put out his hand; and the midwife took and bound upon his hand a scarlet thread, saying, This came out first.

29 And it came to pass, as he drew back his hand, that, behold, his brother came out; and she said, ³²'How hast thou broken forth? ³³this breach ³⁴by upon thee: therefore ³⁵his name was called ³⁶Pharez.

30 And afterward came out his brother, that had the scarlet thread upon his hand; ³⁷and his name was called Zarah.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

1 Joseph advanced in Potiphar's house, 7 resisteth his mistress's temptation: 13 he is falsely accused, 20 and cast into prison.

AND Joseph ¹was brought down to Egypt; and Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh, captain of the guard, an Egyptian, bought him of the hands of ²the Ishmeelites, which had brought him down thither.

2 And ³the LORD was with Joseph, and he was a prosperous man; and he was in the ⁴house of his master the Egyptian.

3 And his master ⁵saw that the LORD

Canaanite, and the offspring of the unhallowed union but too faithfully transmits the turpitude. The whole course of Judah was marked by iniquity; towards his daughter-in-law he was unjust, which prompted her wickedly to lay a snare for him—a snare into which he disgracefully fell. His grave proposal, on discovering the results, that she should be burned for a crime to which he himself had been a chief party, shews how conscience may slumber, while the judicial faculty remains active and efficient. The ways of the Lord are a great deep. It was appointed that the Saviour should proceed through this corrupt line, which strikingly displays the sovereignty of God, the riches of whose grace are magnified towards the most worthless of mankind.

Chap. XXXIX. 1-20. Everything in Egypt was arranged, in the course of Providence, for the fulfilment of prophecy, and Joseph was at once called to enter on the wonderful career that had been marked out for him. "The Lord was with him," explained all that subsequently occurred. His virtue, which nobly sustained the severest ordeal, seemed, at first sight, to threaten his was with him, and that the LORD made all that he did to prosper in his hand.

4 And Joseph found grace in his sight, and he served him: and he made him overseer over his house, and all that he had he put into his hand.

5 And it came to pass, from the time that he had made him overseer in his house, and over all that he had, that the LORD blessed the Egyptian's house for Joseph's sake; and the blessing of the LORD was upon all that he had in the house, and in the field.

6 And he left all that he had in Joseph's hand; and he knew not ought he had, save the bread which he did eat: and Joseph was a goodly person, and well-favoured.

7 ¶ And it came to pass after these things, that his master's wife cast her eyes upon Joseph; and she said, Lie with me.

8 But he refused; and said unto his master's wife, Behold, my master wotteth not what is with me in the house, and he hath committed all that he hath to my hand:

9 There is none greater in this house than I; neither hath he kept back any thing from me but thee, because thou art his wife: how then can I do this great wickedness, and sin against God?

10 And it came to pass, as she spake to Joseph day by day, that he hearkened not unto her, to lie by her, or to be with her.

11 And it came to pass about this time, that Joseph went into the house to do his business; and there was none of the men of the house there within.

12 And she caught him by his garment, saying, Lie with me: and he left his garment in her hand, and fled, and got him out.

13 And it came to pass, when she saw that he had left his garment in her hand, and was fled forth,

14 That she called unto the men of her house, and spake unto them, saying, See, he hath brought in an Hebrew unto us to mock us; he came in unto me to lie with me, and I cried with a loud voice:

15 And it came to pass, when he heard that I lifted up my voice and cried, that he left his garment with me, and fled, and got him out.

16 And she laid up his garment by her until his lord came home.

17 And she spake unto him according to these words, saying, The Hebrew servant, which thou hast brought unto us, came in unto me to mock me:

destruction; but it was the chief means of leading to his extraordinary exaltation. Ver. 21-23. In the prison the same favour attended him as in the house of Potiphar. He, nevertheless, deeply felt the cruel wrong to which he was subjected, as we learn from Psalm cv.; but he had the testimony of a good conscience, and his sufferings, even there, were mitigated to the uttermost. Man's great concern should ever be, at all costs, to do the thing that is right, leaving consequences with the 20 And Joseph's master took him, and put him into the prison, a place where the king's prisoners were bound: and he was there in the prison.

21 ¶ But the LORD was with Joseph, and shewed him mercy, and gave him favour in the sight of the keeper of the prison.

22 And the keeper of the prison committed to Joseph's hand all the prisoners that were in the prison; and whatsoever they did there, he was the doer of it.

23 The keeper of the prison looked not to any thing that was under his hand; because the LORD was with him, and that which he did, the LORD made it to prosper.

CHAPTER XL.

1 The butler and baker of Pharaoh are imprisoned: 4 Joseph hath charge of them: 5 he interpreteth their dreams.

AND it came to pass after these things, that the butler of the king of Egypt and his baker had offended their lord the king of Egypt.

2 And Pharaoh was wroth against two of his officers, against the chief of the butlers, and against the chief of the bakers.

3 And he put them in ward in the house of the captain of the guard, into the prison, the place where Joseph was bound.

4 And the captain of the guard charged Joseph with them, and he served them; and they continued a season in ward.

5 ¶ And they dreamed a dream both of them, each man his dream in one night, each man according to the interpretation of his dream, the butler and the baker of the king of Egypt, which were bound in the prison.

6 And Joseph came in unto them in the morning, and looked upon them, and, behold, they were sad.

7 And he asked Pharaoh's officers, that were with him in the ward of his lord's house, saying, Wherefore look ye so sadly to-day?

8 And they said unto him, We have dreamed a dream, and there is no interpreter of it. And Joseph said unto them, Do not interpretations belong to God? tell me them, I pray you.

9 And the chief butler told his dream

God of truth and justice, who will never fail to overrule the most adverse circumstances to the good of his servants and his own glory.

Chap. XL. 1-4. While innocence led to the incarceration of Joseph, transgression conducted two of the king's servants to the same place. Notwithstanding the very different destinies of these two men, they were both eminently concerned in ultimately fixing the attention of the to Joseph, and said to him, In my dream, behold, ^aa vine was before me;

10 And in the vine were three branches: and it was as though it budded, and her blossoms shot forth; and the clusters thereof brought forth ripe grapes:

11 And Pharaoh's cup was in my hand: and I took the grapes, and pressed them into Pharaoh's cup, and I gave the cup into Pharaoh's hand.

12 And Joseph said unto him, ["]This is the interpretation of it: ["]The three branches are three days.

13 Yet within three days ["]shall Pharaoh ["]lift up thine head, and restore thee unto thy place; and thou shalt deliver Pharaoh's cup into his hand, after the former manner when thou wast his butler.

14 But ["]think ["]on me when it shall be well with thee, ["]and shew kindness, I pray thee, unto me; and make mention of me unto Pharaoh, and bring me out of this house:

15 For indeed I was ["]stolen away out of the land of ["]the Hebrews; and here also have I ["]done nothing that they should put me into the dungeon.

17 And in the uppermost basket there was of all manner of ["]bake-meats for Pharaoh; and the birds did eat them out of the basket upon my head.

18 And Joseph answered and said, This is the interpretation thereof: ["]The three baskets are three days.

19 Yet ["]within three days shall Pharaoh ["]lift up thy head from off thee, and shall ["]hang thee on a tree; ["]and the birds shall eat thy flesh from off thee.

20 ¶ And it came to pass the third day, which was Pharaoh's ["]birth-day, that he made a feast unto all his servants: and he ["]lifted up the head of the chief butler and of the chief baker among his servants.

21 And he restored the chief butler unto his butlership again; and he ["]gave the cup into Pharaoh's hand:

22 But he ["]hanged the chief baker, as Joseph had interpreted to them.

23 Yet did not the chief butler remember Joseph, ["]but forgot him.

CHAPTER XLI.

1 Pharaoh's two dreams. 25 Joseph interpreteth them. 33 He giveth Pharaoh counsel. 38 Joseph is advanced. 50 He begetteth Manasseh and Ephraim. 64 The famine beginneth.

AND it came to pass at the end of two full years, ["]that Pharaoh dreamed; and, behold, he stood by ["]the river.

2 And, behold, ["]there came up out of the river seven well-favoured kine, and fat-fleshed; and they fed in a meadow.

3 And, behold, seven other kine came up after them out of the river, ill-favoured, and lean-fleshed; and stood by the other kine upon the brink of the river.

4 And the ill-favoured and lean-fleshed kine did eat up the seven well-favoured and fat kine. So Pharaoh awoke.

5 And he slept, and dreamed the second time: and, behold, seven ears of corn came up upon one stalk, ["]rank and good.

6 And, behold, seven thin ears, and ["]blasted with the east wind, sprung up after them.

7 And the seven thin ears devoured the seven rank and full ears. And Pharaoh awoke, and, behold, it was a dream.

8 And it came to pass in the morning, that ["]his spirit was troubled; and he sent and called for all the ["]magicians of Egypt, and all ["]the wise men thereof: and Pharaoh told them his dreams; but ["]there was none that could interpret them unto Pharaoh.

9 ¶ Then spake the chief butler unto Pharaoh, saying, ["]I do remember my faults this day.

10 Pharaoh was wroth with his servants, and put me in ward in the captain of the guard's house, both me and the chief baker:

11 And we ["]dreamed a dream in one night, I and he: we dreamed each man according to the interpretation of his dream.

12 And there was there with us a young man, an Hebrew, ["]servant to the captain of the guard; and we told him, and he ["]interpreted to us our dreams: to each man according to his dream he did interpret.

13 And it came to pass, as he interpreted to us, so it was; ["]me he restored unto mine office, and him he hanged.

14 ¶ Then Pharaoh ["]sent and called Joseph, ["]and they ["]brought him hastily sovereign on Joseph; and thus paving the way for his subsequent enlargement and honour. The favour which had been so graciously granted to him in the sight of the jailer was refused to them; but that favour, in his case, brought him and them into close and constant contact; a circumstance essential to the furtherance of the Divine plan. Ver. 6-19. The dreams were unusually explicit, and remembered with all the fidelity of a written record. Joseph's interpretation was characterised by the same explicitness: the vague and the indefinite had no place therein. The short time, moreover, which was to elapse between the interpretation and the fulfilment, served at once to put to the test his veracity, and the result clearly showed that he spoke as guided by the light of Heaven. Ver. 20-23. The conduct of the butler might, at first sight, seem incredible; but the event was made subservient to future objects of great importance. Oblivious of the kindness which Joseph had shewn him, and the speedy relief, amidst his anguish, which the interpretation had brought him, through a culpable apathy he kept the innocent youth in bondage. Safe and comfortable himself, he was careless about his benefactor. In this man's conduct we see drawn in deep lines some of the unloveliest features of human nature.

Chap. XLI. 1-8. Pharaoh himself, in turn, was to be visited with a dream, which would be attended with consequences of the utmost importance both to himself and his people, and also to the youthful interpreter. The morning after this eventful night was one of the deepest interest to the palace and all its inmates, as well as to the wise men of the kingdom, all of whom were lost in confusion in their attempts to relieve the anxieties of their royal master. During this hour of solicitude the out of the dungeon: and ⁹he shaved himself, and changed his raiment, and came in unto Pharaoh.

15 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, I have dreamed a dream, and there is none that can interpret it: and ¹I have heard say of thee, ²that thou canst understand a dream to interpret it.

16 And Joseph answered Pharaoh, saying, ¹It is not in me: God shall give Pharaoh an answer of peace.

17 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, ¹In my dream, behold, I stood upon the bank of the river:

18 And, behold, there came up out of the river seven kine, ¹fat-fleshed, and well-favoured; and they fed in a meadow.

19 And, behold, seven other kine came up after them, poor, and very ill-favoured, and lean-fleshed, such as I never saw in all the land of Egypt for badness:

20 And the lean and the ill-favoured kine did eat up the first seven fat kine.

21 And when they had ¹eaten them up, it could not be known that they had eaten them; but they were still ill-favoured, as at the beginning. So I awoke.

22 And I saw in my dream, and, behold, seven ears came up in one stalk, full and good:

23 And, behold, seven ears, ¹withered, thin, ²and blasted with the east wind, sprung up after them:

24 And the thin ears devoured the seven good ears. And I told this unto the magicians; but there was none that could declare it to me.

25 ¶ And Joseph said unto Pharaoh, The dream of Pharaoh is one: ¹God hath shewed Pharaoh what he is about to do.

26 The seven good kine are seven years; and the seven good ears are ²seven years: ¹the dream is one.

27 And the seven thin and ill-favoured kine that came up after them, are seven years: and the seven empty ears, blasted with the east wind, shall be seven years of famine.

28 This is the thing which I have spoken unto Pharaoh: ¹What God is about to do he sheweth unto Pharaoh.

29 Behold, there come seven years of great plenty throughout all the land of Egypt:

30 And there shall arise after them ¹seven years of famine: and all the plenty ²shall be forgotten in the land of Egypt; and the famine shall ³consume the land:

31 And the plenty shall not be known in the land by reason of that famine following; for it shall be very ⁴grievous.

32 And for that the dream was ¹doubled unto Pharaoh twice; ²it is because the 36 And that food shall be for store to the land against the seven years of famine, which shall be in the land of Egypt; ¹that the land ²perish not through the famine.

37 ¶ And ¹the thing was ²good in the eyes of Pharaoh, and in the eyes of all his servants.

38 And Pharaoh said unto his servants, Can we find such a one as this is, a man ¹in whom the Spirit of God is?

39 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, Forasmuch as ¹God hath shewed thee all this, there is none so discreet and wise as thou art:

40 Thou ¹shalt be over my house, and according unto thy word shall all my people ¹be ruled: only in the throne will I be greater than thou.

41 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, ¹See, I have set thee over all the land of Egypt.

42 And Pharaoh took off ¹his ring from his hand, and put it upon Joseph's hand, and arrayed him in vestures of ²fine linen, and put ¹a gold chain about his neck:

43 And he made him to ride in the second chariot which he had; and they cried before him, ²Bow the knee: and he made him ¹ruler over all the land of Egypt.

44 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, I am Pharaoh, and without thee shall no man ¹lift up his hand or foot in all the land of Egypt.

45 And Pharaoh called Joseph's name ¹Zaphnath-paaneah; and he gave him to wife Asenath, the daughter of Poti-pherah ²priest of On. And Joseph went out over all the land of Egypt.

46 ¶ (And Joseph was ¹thirty years old when ²he stood before Pharaoh king of Egypt.) And Joseph went out from the presence of Pharaoh, and went throughout all the land of Egypt.

47 And in the seven plenteous years the earth brought forth by ¹handfuls.

48 And ¹he gathered up all the food of the seven years, which were in the land of Egypt, and laid up the food in the cities:

memory of the butler was stirred up to the forgotten facts of the prison-house. The promptitude with which he confessed his error was creditable to him; he lost no time in apprising his royal master of what had occurred to himself and the baker. The deportment of Joseph was highly praiseworthy; he frankly confessed that it was not in him to give the answer, but that God would do so. In this, as in the case of the dreams of the offending officers, not a moment was lost in giving the interpretation. Joseph, with all the certainty of intuition, declared at once, minutely and specifically, the import of the dream. His counsel, moreover, bespoke a wisdom entitling him to confidence, proclaiming him at once a "man in whom the Spirit of God was." As a reward the food of the field, which was round about every city, laid he up in the same.

49 And Joseph gathered corn ^{as} the sand of the sea, very much, until he left numbering: for it was without number.

50 ¶ And ^{unto} Joseph were born two sons before the years of famine came, which ^{Asenath}, the daughter of Poti-pherah ^{priest} of On, bare unto him.

51 And Joseph ^{called} the name of the first-born ^{Manasseh}: For God, said he, hath made me forget all my toil, and all my father's house.

52 And the name of the second ^{called} he ^{Ephraim}: For God hath caused me to be fruitful in ^{the} land of my affliction.

53 ¶ And ^{the} seven years of plenteousness that was in the land of Egypt were ended.

54 And ^{the} seven years of dearth began to come, ^{according} as Joseph had said: ^{and} the dearth was in all lands; but in all the land of Egypt there was bread.

55 And when all the land of Egypt was ^{famished}, the people cried to Pharaoh for bread: and Pharaoh said unto all the Egyptians, ^{Go} unto Joseph; what he saith to you, do.

56 And the famine was over all ^{the} face of the earth. And Joseph opened all the ^{storehouses}, and ^{sold} unto the Egyptians; and the famine waxed sore in the land of Egypt.

57 And ^{all} countries came into Egypt to Joseph for to buy corn; because that the famine was so sore in all lands.

CHAPTER XLII.

1 Jacob sendeth his ten sons to buy corn in Egypt. 6 They are imprisoned by Joseph for spies. 21 Their remorse.

NOW ^{when} Jacob ^{saw} that there was corn in Egypt, Jacob said unto his sons, ^{Why} do ye look one upon another?

2 And he said, Behold, I have heard that there is corn in Egypt; ^{get} you down thither, and buy for us from thence; ^{that} we may live, and not die.

3 ¶ And Joseph's ten brethren went down to buy corn in Egypt.

4 But ^{Benjamin}, Joseph's brother, Jacob sent not with his brethren: for he said, ^{Lest} peradventure mischief befall him.

5 And the sons of Israel came to buy corn among those that came: ^{for} the famine was in the land of Canaan.

6 And Joseph was the ^{governor} over the land, ^{and} he it was that sold to all the people of the land: and Joseph's brethren came, and ^{they} bowed down themselves before him with their faces to the earth.

7 And Joseph saw his brethren, and he knew them, but made himself strange unto them, and spake ^{roughly} unto them; and he said unto them, Whence come ye? And they said, From the land of Canaan to buy food.

8 And Joseph knew his brethren, ^{but} they knew not him.

9 And Joseph ^{remembered} the dreams which he dreamed of them, and said unto them, ^{Ye} are spies; to see the ^{nakedness} of the land ye are come.

10 And they said unto him, Nay, ^{my} lord; but to buy food are thy servants come.

11 We are all one man's sons: we are ^{true} men, thy servants are no spies.

12 And he said unto them, Nay, but to see the nakedness of the land ye are come.

13 And they said, ^{Thy} servants are twelve brethren, the sons of one man in the land of Canaan; and, behold, the youngest is this day with our father, and ^{one} is not.

14 And Joseph said unto them, ^{That} is it that I spake unto you, saying, Ye are spies.

15 Hereby ye shall be proved: ^{By} the life of Pharaoh ye shall not go forth hence, ^{except} your youngest brother come hither.

16 Send one of you, and let him fetch your brother, and ye shall be ^{kept} in prison, ^{that} your words may be proved, whether there be any truth in you: or else, by the life of Pharaoh, surely ye are spies.

17 And he ^{put} them all together into ^{ward} three days.

18 And Joseph said unto them the third day, This do, and live; ^{for} I fear God.

19 If ye be true men, let one of your brethren be bound in ^{the} house of your prison: go ye, ^{carry} corn for the famine of your houses:

20 But ^{bring} your youngest brother unto me; so shall your words be verified, and ye shall not die. ^{And} they did so.

21 ¶ And ^{they} said one to another, We are verily guilty concerning our brother, in that ^{we} saw the anguish of his soul, when he besought us, and we would not hear; therefore is ^{this} distress come upon us.

22 And Reuben answered them, saying, ^{Spake} I not unto you, saying, Do not sin against the child? and ye would not hear; for his discovery, which his God had enabled him to make, he was forthwith exalted to office and honour, and clothed with the power necessary to the further elevation of his father's house. Never was exaltation more deserved; never was honour more meekly borne. Whatever difficulties may cross the path of the upright, all will be well at last.

Chap. XLII. 1-20. Through the instrumentality of famine, Joseph and his brothers were brought face to face. The whole ten, his previous enemies, appeared in his presence, where, according to custom, they not only bowed the knee, but prostrated their whole bodies, thus literally fulfilling Joseph's dream respecting the obeisance which their sheaves made to his. Joseph knew his brethren at once, whereas they knew not him; on his departure for Egypt they had reached mature manhood, whereas he was still a youth. Now developed into maturity, arrayed in the robes of office, and wielding the power of Egypt, it was impossible they should recognise their brother. The whole of the subsequent intercourse furnished a remarkable illustration of the working of human nature. The conscience of this cruel band of brothers had long slept; but it is now awakened with a therefore, behold, also ^mhis blood is required.

23 And they knew not that Joseph understood them; for ^hhe spake unto them by an interpreter.

24 And he turned himself about from them, and ⁿwept; and returned to them again, and communed with them, and took from them ^oSimeon, and bound him before their eyes.

25 ¶ Then Joseph ^pcommanded to fill their sacks with corn, and to restore every man's money into his sack, and ^qto give them provision for the way: ^rand thus did he unto them.

26 And they laded their asses with the corn, and departed thence.

27 And as one of them opened his sack, to give his ass provender in ^sthe inn, he espied his money; for, behold, it was in his sack's mouth.

28 And he said unto his brethren, My money is restored; and, lo, it is even in my sack: and ^ttheir heart ^ufailed them, and they were afraid, saying one to another, ^v"What is this that God hath done unto us?"

29 ¶ And they came unto Jacob their father unto the land of Canaan, and told him all that befell unto them: saying,

30 The man, who is the lord of the land, spake ^wroughly to us, and took us for spies of the country.

31 And we said unto him, We are true men; we are no spies.

32 We be twelve brethren, sons of our father: one is not, and the youngest is this day with our father in the land of Canaan.

33 And the man, the lord of the country, said unto us, Hereby shall I know that ye are true men; leave one of your brethren here with me, and take food for the famine of your households, and be gone;

34 And bring your youngest brother unto me: then shall I know that ye are no spies, but that ye are true men: so will I deliver you your brother, and ye shall ^xtraffick in the land.

35 ¶ And it came to pass, as they emptied their sacks, that, behold, ^yevery man's bundle of money was in his sack: and when both they and their father saw the bundles of money, they were afraid.

vengeance, speaking terror to every soul! It made the past present to them, and taught them that there is verily a God who judgeth the earth, to whom vengeance belongs. Nothing can exceed the tact and wisdom with which Joseph conducted the proceedings: every act accomplished its object; and the whole led to a successful development of the purposes of Providence. The history supplied an occasion of further trial to the venerable patriarch, who was deeply afflicted by the successive communications made to him from the court of Egypt.

Chap. XLIII. 1-14. The history here reaches the very climax of tenderness. The deportment of the afflicted patriarch is transcendently beautiful for meek submission and holy solicitude. "God Almighty give you mercy before the man, that he may send away your other brother and Benjamin," is a prayer which even now will touch the heart of every devout reader. When he adds, CHAPTER XLIII.

1 Jacob is hardly persuaded to send Benjamin. 25 Joseph entertaineth his brethren. 31 And maketh them a feast.

AND ^athe famine was sore in the land.

2 And it came to pass, when they had eaten up the corn which they had brought out of Egypt, their father said unto them, ^bGo again, buy us a little food.

3 And Judah spake unto him, saying, The man did ^csolemnly protest unto us, saying, Ye shall not ^dsee my face except your brother be with you.

4 If thou wilt send our brother with us, we will go down and buy thee food:

5 But if thou wilt not send him, we ^ewill not go down: for the man said unto us, Ye shall not see my face, except your brother be with you.

6 And Israel said, Wherefore dealt ye so ill with me, as to tell the man whether ye had yet a brother?

7 And they said, The man ^fasked us straitly of our state, and of our kindred, saying, ^gIs your father yet alive? have ye another brother? and we told him according to the ^htenor of these words. ⁱCould we certainly know that he would say, Bring your brother down?

8 And Judah said unto Israel his father, Send the lad with me, and we will arise and go; ^jthat we may live, and not die, both we and thou, and ^kalso our little ones.

9 I ^lwill be surety for him; ^mif my hand shalt thou require him: if I bring him not unto thee, and set him before thee, then let me bear the blame for ever:

"If I be bereaved of my children, I am bereaved," he reveals the depth of his sorrow and his fears for the future. Ver. 15-25. The sight of Benjamin moved the heart of Joseph to its lowest depths; and the proposal to dine appears much to have troubled the brothers. It was not the custom in the East to admit persons into the interior part of the house; and therefore they feared some plot for their destruction, little knowing the yearnings of the spirit of the great man who excited their alarm, and how close the relation they sustained to him. Ver. 26-34. Here again they verify the dream which originally gave them so much umbrage. While Joseph beheld the eleven bending at his feet, he doubtless recalled the memorable morning when he rehearsed the events of the preceding night. Joseph was enabled to look on the rest with comparative composure, inasmuch as they were but his half-brothers; but when he saw Benjamin, his full brother, his courage failed him.

10 For except we had lingered, surely now we had returned ⁵this second time.

11 And their father Israel said unto them, ¹If it must be so now, do this; Take of the best fruits in the land in your vessels, and ¹carry down the man a present, ²a little balm, and a little honey, ³spices and myrrh, nuts and almonds.

12 And take ⁴double money in your hand: and the money that was brought again in the mouth of your sacks, carry it again in your hand; peradventure it was an oversight.

13 Take also your brother, and arise, go again unto the man:

14 And ⁵God Almighty give you mercy before the man, that he may send away your other brother, and Benjamin. ⁶If I be bereaved of my children, I am bereaved.

15 ¶ And the men took that present, and they took double money in their hand, and Benjamin; and rose up, and went down to Egypt, and stood before Joseph.

16 And when Joseph saw Benjamin with them, he said to ⁷the ruler of his house, Bring ⁸these men home, and ⁹slay, and make ready: for ¹⁰these men shall ¹¹dine with me at noon.

17 And the man did as Joseph bade: and the man brought the men into Joseph's house.

18 And ¹²the men were afraid, because they were brought into Joseph's house; and they said, Because of the money that was returned in our sacks at the first time are we brought in; that he may ¹³seek occasion against us, and fall upon us, and take us for bond-men, and our asses.

19 ¶ And they came near to the steward of Joseph's house, and they communed with him at the door of the house,

20 And said, O sir, ¹⁴we came indeed down at the first time to buy food:

21 And it came to pass, when we came to the inn, that we opened our sacks, and, behold, ¹⁵every man's money was in the mouth of his sack, our money in full weight; and ¹⁶we have brought it again in our hand.

22 And other money have we brought down in our hands to buy food: we cannot tell who put our money in our sacks.

23 And he said, ¹⁷Peace be to you, fear not; your God, and the God of your father, hath given you treasure in your sacks: ¹⁸I had your money. And he brought Simeon out unto them.

26 ¶ And when Joseph came home, they brought him the present which was in their hand into the house, and ¹bowed themselves to him to the earth.

27 And he asked them of ²their welfare, and said, ³Is your father well, the old man of whom ye spake? is he yet alive?

28 And they answered, Thy servant our father is in good health, he is yet alive: ⁴and they bowed down their heads, and ⁵made obeisance.

29 And he lifted up his eyes, and saw his brother Benjamin, his ⁶mother's son, and said, Is this your younger brother, of whom ye spake unto me? And he said, God be gracious unto thee, ⁷my son.

30 And Joseph made haste; for ⁸his bowels did yearn upon his brother: and he sought ⁹where to weep; and he entered into ¹⁰his chamber, and ¹¹wept there.

31 And he washed his face, and went out, and ¹²refrained himself, and said, Set on bread.

33 And they sat before him, the first-born according to his birthright, and the youngest according to his youth: and the men marvelled one at another.

34 And he took and sent ¹⁴messes unto them from before him: but Benjamin's mess ¹⁵was five times so much as any of theirs. And they drank, and ¹⁶were merry with him.

CHAPTER XLIV.

1 Joseph's policy to stay his brethren. 14 Judah's humble supplication to Joseph.

AND he commanded ¹the steward of his house, saying, ²Fill the men's sacks with food, as much as they can carry, and put every man's money in his sack's mouth.

2 And put my ³cup, the silver cup, in the sack's mouth of the youngest, and his corn-money. And he did according to the word that Joseph had spoken.

3 As soon as the morning was light, the men were sent away, they and their asses.

"His bowels did yearn upon his brother, and he sought where to weep; and he entered into his chamber, and wept there." There is a beauty and a tenderness in tears which exceeds all other beauty. There is a power in tears exceeding all other power. Tears are the language of emotion, which leave all other language behind. Tears must not be viewed as tokens of weakness, but of strength. The heroes of poetry have never been superior to tears, and Jesus himself wept. The condition of the guilty brothers at this moment was unprecedented, and has never had a parallel. Their consciences became their tormentors. Their much-injured brother appeared to the eye of every mind, none supposing that he was still alive and stood before them. His questions respecting "the old man" were touching in the extreme, and must have been deeply felt by the guilty brotherhood.

Chap. XLIV. 1-13. By means of these cups the Egyptians thought they could divine, by various refractions of light on the moulding; and sometimes they put polished trinkets into the water, still the more to diversify the light. There has been a notion in the East, that there was a cup, by looking into which they would see the whole world and all the things that were going

4 And when they were gone out of the city, and not yet far off, Joseph said unto his steward, Up, follow after the men; and when thou dost overtake them, say unto them, ^cWherefore have ye rewarded evil for good?

5 Is not this it in which my lord drinketh, and whereby indeed he ^ddivineth? Ye have done evil in so doing.

6 ¶ And he overtook them, and he spake unto them these same words.

7 And they said unto him, ^dWherefore saith my lord these words? God forbid that thy servants should do according to this thing.

8 Behold, ^ethe money which we found in our sacks' mouths we brought again unto thee out of the land of Canaan: ^fhow then should we steal out of thy lord's house silver or gold?

9 With whomsoever of thy servants it be found, ^gboth let him die, ^hand we also will be my lord's bond-men.

10 And he said, Now also let it be according unto your words: ⁱhe with whom it is found shall be my servant; and ye shall be blameless.

11 Then they speedily took down every man his sack to the ground, and opened every man his sack.

12 And he searched, and ^kbegan at the eldest, and left at the youngest; ^land the cup was found in Benjamin's sack.

13 Then they ^mrent their clothes, and laden every man his ass, and returned to the city.

14 ¶ And Judah and his brethren came to Joseph's house; (for ⁿhe was yet there;) and they ^ofell before him on the ground.

15 And Joseph said unto them, ^pWhat deed is this that ye have done? ^qwot ye not that such a man as I can certainly ^rdivine?

16 And ^rJudah said, "What shall we say unto my lord? what shall we speak? or how shall we clear ourselves? ^sGod hath found out the iniquity of thy servants: behold, we ^tare my lord's servants, both we, and ^uhe also with whom the cup is found.

17 And he said, "God forbid that I should do so: ^vbut the man in whose hand the cup is found, ^whe shall be my servant; and as for you, get you up ^xin peace unto your father.

18 ¶ Then Judah came near unto him, and said, Oh my lord, ^ylet thy servant, I pray thee, speak a word in my lord's ears, and let not thine ^aanger burn against thy servant: for thou ^bart even ^cas Pharaoh.

19 My lord ^casked his servants, saying, Have ye a father, or a brother?

20 And we said unto my lord, We have a father, an old man, and ^da child of his old age, a little one; ^eand his brother is dead, and ^fhe alone is left of his mother, and his father loveth him.

21 And thou saidst unto thy servants, ^gBring him down unto me, that I may set mine eyes upon him.

22 And we said unto my lord, The lad cannot leave his father: for ^hif he should leave his father, ⁱhis father would die.

23 And thou saidst unto thy servants, ^jExcept your youngest brother come down with you, ye shall see my face no more.

24 And it came to pass, when we came up unto thy servant my father, ^kwe told him the words of my lord.

25 And our father said, ^lGo again, and buy us a little food.

26 And we said, ^mWe cannot go down: if our youngest brother be with us, then will we go down: for we may not see the man's face, except our youngest brother be with us.

27 And thy servant my father said unto us, Ye know that ⁿmy wife bare me two sons:

28 And the one went out from me, and I said, Surely he is torn in pieces; and I saw him not since:

29 And if ^oye take this also from me, and mischief befall him, ye shall bring down my gray hairs with sorrow to the grave.

30 Now therefore, when I come to thy servant my father, and the lad be not with us; (seeing that ^phis life is bound up in the lad's life;)

31 It shall come to pass, ^qwhen he seeth that the lad is not ^rwith us, that he will die: and thy servants ^sshall bring down the gray hairs of thy servant our father with sorrow to the grave.

32 For thy servant became surety for the lad unto my father, saying, If I bring him not unto thee, then I shall bear the blame to my father for ever.

33 Now therefore, ^tI pray thee, let thy servant abide instead of the lad a bondman to my lord; and let the lad go up with his brethren.

34 For how shall I go up to my father, and the lad be not with me? ^uI lest peradventure I see the evil that shall ^vcome on my father.

on in it. Norden was told by an Arabian traveller that he knew well what sort of people he and his companion were, for he had "consulted his cup." Joseph, acting on the accredited faith of his countrymen, affected the power of divination. His conduct in this case has been reprobated by Calvin; but the language must not be taken for more than it is worth, since there is some doubt as to the exact import of the expression. Joseph appears to have been anxious to ascertain beyond doubt how his brethren stood affected to Benjamin, his full brother, and their father, on his account, and hence the stringent character of his questions. Ver. 14-34. The conduct of Judah was praiseworthy; he seemed moved by the thought of the aggravated affliction which would thus be brought on his aged father. How Joseph must have felt when Judah said, "His brother is dead; and he alone is left of his mother; and his father loveth him!" Joseph thus distinctly came to know the light in which his father viewed himself: it was not doubted that he was "torn in pieces." It would seem as if Joseph felt that his brethren were too light-hearted for men who had been guilty of so much fraternal cruelty and of so great a neglect of filial duty; and hence the severity of the tests to which he subjected them. The touching language and decorous conduct of Judah appear at length to have brought matters to an issue.

CHAPTER XLV.

¹ Joseph maketh himself known to his brethren: ⁹ he sendeth for his father, ³⁷ who is revived at the news.

THEN Joseph ^acould not refrain himself before all them that stood by him; and he cried, ^bCause every man to go out from me. And there stood no man with him while Joseph made himself known unto his brethren.

² And he ¹wept aloud: and the Egyptians and the house of Pharaoh heard.

⁴ And Joseph said unto his brethren, Come near to me, I pray you. And they came near. And he said, ^eI am Joseph your brother, whom ye sold into Egypt.

⁵ Now therefore ^fbe not grieved ³nor angry with yourselves that ye sold me hither; for ^gGod did send me before you to preserve life.

⁷ And God sent me before you ⁴to preserve you a posterity in the earth, and ^lto save your lives by a great deliverance.

⁸ So now, ^mit was not you that sent me hither, but God: and he hath made me a ⁿfather to Pharaoh, and lord of all his house, and a ruler throughout all the land of Egypt.

⁹ Haste ye, and go up to my father, and say unto him, Thus saith thy son Joseph, God hath made me lord of all Egypt; come down unto me, tarry not:

¹⁰ And thou shalt dwell ^oin the land of Goshen, ^pand thou shalt be near unto me, thou, and thy children, and thy children's children, and thy flocks, and thy herds, and all that thou hast:

¹¹ And there ^qwill I nourish thee, (for yet ^rthere are five years of famine,) lest thou, and thy household, and all that thou hast, come to poverty.

¹² And, behold, ^syour eyes see, and the eyes of my brother Benjamin, that ^tit is my mouth that speaketh unto you.

¹³ And ye shall tell my father of all ^umy glory in Egypt, and of all that ye have seen; and ye shall haste and bring down my father hither.

¹⁴ And he fell upon his brother Benjamin's neck, and wept; and Benjamin wept upon his neck.

¹⁵ Moreover, ¹he kissed all his brethren, and wept upon them: and after that his brethren talked with him.

¹⁶ ¶ And the fame thereof was heard in Pharaoh's house, saying, Joseph's brethren are come. And ²it pleased Pharaoh well, and his servants.

¹⁷ And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, Say unto thy brethren, This do ye; lade your beasts, and go, get you unto the land of Canaan;

¹⁸ And take your father, and your households, and come unto me: and I will give you the good of the land of Egypt, and ye shall eat ³the fat of the land.

¹⁹ Now thou art commanded, this do ye; Take you waggons out of the land of Egypt for your little ones, and for your wives, and bring your father, and come.

²⁰ Also ⁴regard not your stuff: for ⁵the good of all the land of Egypt is yours.

²² To all of them he gave ⁸each man changes of raiment; but to Benjamin he gave three hundred ⁹pieces of silver, and five changes of raiment.

²⁴ So he sent his brethren away, and they departed: and he said unto them, ¹¹See that ye fall not out by the way.

²⁵ ¶ And they went up out of Egypt, and came into the land of Canaan unto Jacob their father, ²⁶ And told him, saying, Joseph is yet alive, and he is governor over all the land of Egypt. And ¹²Jacob's heart fainted, ¹³for he believed them not.

²⁷ And they told him all the words of Joseph, which he had said unto them: and when he saw the waggons, which Joseph had sent to carry him, ¹⁴the spirit of Jacob their father revived.

²⁸ And Israel said, ¹⁵It is enough; Joseph my son is yet alive: I will go and see him before I die.

Chap. XLV. 1-15. While true piety invariably softens the hardest heart, it adds increased loveliness to that which is lovely by nature. Joseph was eminently distinguished by manliness and generosity; and the occasion here supplied for their display had never a parallel. He became the interpreter of Providence, that he might soothe the anguish and the fearful forebodings of his once cruel and remorseless brethren. Nothing can exceed the magnanimity with which he addressed the trembling malefactors, who stood abashed and confounded before him. So vivid was the remembrance of their cruelties, and so deep their sense of guilt, that it was difficult to bring them to composure. It was not till he had wept and wept again, fallen upon the neck of Benjamin with tears, kissed all the rest, and wept over them, that they could "talk with him." His kindness, tenderness, forgiveness of injury, and overflowing affection beyond all precedent, tend to redeem and to magnify human nature. No Old Testament saint more strikingly reflects the principal attributes of the Son of God. Joseph's character is beyond comparison the most unexceptionable, beautiful, exquisite, and perfect. Ver. 16-28. The event might well excite the society in the palace, and even find its way to the ears of the king. Pharaoh's conduct on the occasion reflects credit on him, and shews the extent to which he respected Joseph. The invitation thus transmitted to Jacob to come down to Egypt, with an assurance that he should "eat the fat of the land," was another step in the great plan of Providence. Little thought the generous sovereign that he was at that moment ministering to the fulfilment of the purposes and the prophecies of the God of Abraham.

1 Jacob is comforted by God at Beer-sheba. 5 He goeth into Egypt. 8 The number of his family. 29 Joseph meeteth him.

AND Israel took his journey with all that he had, and came to Beer-sheba, and offered sacrifices unto the God of his father Isaac.

2 And God spake unto Israel in the visions of the night, and said, "Jacob, Jacob." And he said, Here am I.

3 And he said, I am God, the God of thy father: fear not to go down into Egypt; for I will there make of thee a great nation.

4 I will go down with thee into Egypt; and I will also surely bring thee up again: and Joseph shall put his hand upon thine eyes.

5 And Jacob rose up from Beer-sheba: and the sons of Israel carried Jacob their father, and their little ones, and their wives, in the waggons which Pharaoh had sent to carry him.

6 And they took their cattle, and their goods, which they had gotten in the land of Canaan, and came into Egypt, Jacob, and all his seed with him:

7 His sons, and his sons' sons with him, his daughters, and his sons' daughters, and all his seed, brought he with him into Egypt.

8 And these are the names of the children of Israel which came into Egypt, Jacob and his sons: Reuben, Jacob's first-born.

9 And the sons of Reuben; Hanoch, and Phallu, and Hezron, and Carmi.

10 And the sons of Simeon; Jemuel, and Jamin, and Ohad, and Jachin, and Zohar, and Shaul the son of a Canaanitish woman.

11 And the sons of Levi; Gershon, Kohath, and Merari.

12 And the sons of Judah; Er, and Onan, and Shelah, and Pharez, and Zarah: but Er and Onan died in the land of Canaan. And the sons of Pharez were Hezron and Hamul.

13 And the sons of Issachar; Tola, and Phuvah, and Job, and Shimron.

14 And the sons of Zebulun; Sered, and Elon, and Jahleel.

15 These be the sons of Leah, which she bare unto Jacob in Padan-aram, with his daughter Dinah: all the souls of his sons and his daughters were thirty and three.

16 And the sons of Gad; Ziphion, and Haggi, Shuni, and Ezbon, Eri, and Arodi, and Areli.

27 And the sons of Joseph, which were born him in Egypt, were two souls: all the souls of the house of Jacob, which came into Egypt, were threescore and ten.

28 And he sent Judah before him unto Joseph, to direct his face unto Goshen; and they came into the land of Goshen.

29 And Joseph made ready his chariot, and went up to meet Israel his father, to Goshen, and presented himself unto him; and he fell on his neck, and wept on his neck a good while.

30 And Israel said unto Joseph, Now let me die, since I have seen thy face, because thou art yet alive.

31 And Joseph said unto his brethren, and unto his father's house, I will go up, and shew Pharaoh, and say unto him, My brethren, and my father's house, which were in the land of Canaan, are come unto me:

32 And the men are shepherds, for their trade hath been to feed cattle; and they have brought their flocks, and their herds, and all that they have.

33 And it shall come to pass, when Pharaoh shall call you, and shall say, What is your occupation?

34 That ye shall say, Thy servants' trade hath been about cattle from our whelming surprise which the information concerning Joseph created, said, "I will go and see him before I die." He went, and with his own eyes looked on the face of the beloved son whom he believed to have been "torn in pieces." The meeting was one of a most affecting character; the son was even more overcome than the father. The sight of Joseph was the completion of Jacob's wishes. It was enough. "Now," said he, "let me die since I have seen thy face; because thou art alive." He was not yet, however, to die, but for a season to live and see the goodness of the Lord towards his family in the land of Goshen. The old man now saw how great was his error, when he supposed that all the things that were occurring were "against him." What he deemed heavy calamities turned out in the end to be pre-eminent blessings. Thus it is still with the people youth even until now, both we and also our fathers; that ye may dwell in the land of Goshen: ^ofor every shepherd is an abomination unto the Egyptians.

CHAPTER XLVII.

¹ Joseph presenteth five of his brethren, 7 and his father, before Pharaoh. ¹¹ He giveth them habitation and maintenance.

THEN ^aJoseph came and told Pharaoh, and said, My father, and my brethren, and their flocks, and their herds, and all that they have, are come out of the land of Canaan; and, behold, they are ^bin the land of Goshen.

⁴ They said, moreover, unto Pharaoh, ^eFor to sojourn in the land are we come; for thy servants have no pasture for their flocks; for the famine is sore in the land of Canaan: now therefore, we pray thee, let thy servants dwell in the land of Goshen.

⁵ And Pharaoh spake unto Joseph, saying, Thy father and thy brethren are come unto thee:

land, in the land of Rameses, as Pharaoh had commanded.

¹² And Joseph nourished ^mhis father, and his brethren, and all his father's household, with bread, ⁿaccording to their families.

¹³ ¶ And there was no bread in all the land: for the famine was very sore, ^oso that the land of Egypt, and all the land of Canaan, ^pfainted by reason of the famine.

¹⁴ And Joseph gathered up all ^qthe money that was found in the land of Egypt, and in the land of Canaan, for the corn which they bought: and ^rJoseph brought the money into Pharaoh's house.

¹⁵ And when money failed in the land of Egypt, and in the land of Canaan, all the Egyptians came unto Joseph, and said, ^sGive us bread: for why should we die in thy presence? for the money faileth.

¹⁶ And Joseph said, Give your cattle; and I will give you for your cattle, if money fail.

¹⁸ When that year was ended, they came unto him the second year, and said unto him, ^vWe will not hide it from my lord, how that our money is spent; my lord also hath our herds of cattle: there is not ought left in the sight of my lord, but our bodies and our lands:

¹⁹ Wherefore shall we die before thine eyes, both we and our land? ^wbuy us and our land for bread, and we and our land will be servants unto Pharaoh; ^xand give us seed, that we may live, and not die, that the land be not desolate.

²⁰ And Joseph bought all the land of Egypt for Pharaoh; for the Egyptians sold every man his field, because the famine prevailed over them: so the land became Pharaoh's.

²² Only the land of the ^zpriests bought he not: ^{aa}for the priests had a portion assigned ^{ab}them of Pharaoh, and did eat their of God; it is always dangerous to judge by separate events; the plans of God are a whole, consisting of many parts; and it is only when they are completed that the relation of those parts to each other, and the whole to the promises, can be completely apprehended.

Chap. XLVII. 1-10. The conduct of Pharaoh was generous and king-like; but even the king appears a humble personage in the presence of the patriarch. The aspect of Jacob in blessing the monarch was truly grand and patriarchal. In this case, verily, "the less was blessed of the greater." The appointment of the sons of Jacob to superintend the royal herds was agreeable and honourable employment. The Eastern kings raised part of their revenue from cattle; and so did the Egyptians, who had some chief officers to oversee the lower sorts of shepherds. The Arabians, Ethiopians, and others were either a worthless class of people, or were forbidden by the law of Egypt to enter there. The vocation of the shepherd, however, was ultimately by no means a reputable one, since it was a proverb that "every shepherd was an abomination in Egypt." There is reason, however, to believe that such was not the fact before the advent of Jacob's sons, but after the emancipation of the children of Israel,—an event which was attended with so much public calamity. Ver. 11-26. The purposes of Providence now began to be developed, and the great events of Pharaoh's dream to be demonstrated. At no previous period was the position of Joseph so exalted, nor the sense of his public beneficence so deeply felt. Through the foresight accorded to him, and the plans of operation he suggested, the horrors of famine were in a great measure averted from that highly privileged land. Ver. 27-31. The prosperity promised to Jacob's offspring still continued. The seventeen years which the patriarch survived after his entrance into Egypt, were so portion which Pharaoh gave them; wherefore they sold not their lands.

23 ¶ Then Joseph said unto the people, Behold, I have ^abought you this day, and your land, for Pharaoh: lo, ^bhere is seed for you, and ye shall sow the land.

24 And it shall come to pass, in the increase, that ye shall give ^cthe fifth part unto Pharaoh; and four parts shall be your own, for seed of the field, and for your food, and for them of your households, and for food for your little ones.

25 And they said, ^dThou hast saved our lives: ^elet us find grace in the sight of my lord, and we will be Pharaoh's servants.

26 And Joseph made it a law over the land of Egypt unto this day, ^fthat Pharaoh should have the fifth part; ^gexcept the land of the ^hpriests only, ⁱwhich became not Pharaoh's.

27 ¶ And Israel dwelt in the land of Egypt, in the country of Goshen; and they had possessions therein, and ^jgrew, and multiplied exceedingly.

28 And Jacob lived in the land of Egypt ^kseventeen years: so ^lthe whole age of Jacob was an hundred forty and seven years.

29 And the time drew nigh that Israel ^mmust die: and he called his son Joseph, and said unto him, If now I have found grace in thy sight, ⁿput, I pray thee, thy hand under my thigh, and ^odeal kindly and truly with me: ^pbury me not, I pray thee, in Egypt:

30 But I will ^qlie with my fathers; and thou shalt carry me out of Egypt, and bury me in their burying-place. And he said, I will do as thou hast said.

31 And he said, Swear unto me. And he swore unto him. ^rAnd Israel bowed himself upon the bed's head.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

1 Joseph with his sons visiteth his sick father. 2 Jacob strengtheneth himself to bless them. 3 He repeateth the promise. 4 He taketh Ephraim and Manasseh as his own. 5 He blesseth Ephraim and Manasseh.

AND it came to pass after these things, that ^sone told Joseph, Behold, ^tthy father is sick: and he took with him ^uhis two sons, Manasseh and Ephraim.

2 And ^vone told Jacob, and said, Behold, thy son Joseph cometh unto thee. And Israel ^wstrengthened himself, and sat upon the bed.

3 ¶ And Jacob said unto Joseph, ^xGod Almighty ^yappeared unto me at ^zLuz in the land of Canaan, and blessed me,

4 And said unto me, Behold, ^{aa}I will make thee fruitful, and multiply thee,

5 And now thy ^{aw}two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh, which were born unto thee in the land of Egypt, before I came unto thee into Egypt, ^{ax}are mine: as ^{ay}Reuben and Simeon, they shall be mine.

6 And thy issue, which thou begetteth after them, shall be thine, and shall be called after the name of their brethren in their inheritance.

7 And as for me, when I came from Padan, ^{az}Rachel died by me in the land of Canaan in the way, when yet ^{ba}there was but a little way to come unto ^{bb}Ephrath: and I buried her there in the way of Ephrath; the same is Beth-lehem.

8 ¶ And Israel beheld Joseph's sons, and said, Who ^{bc}are these?

9 And Joseph said unto his father, They ^{bd}are ^{be}my sons, whom God hath given me in this ^{bf}place. And he said, Bring them, I pray thee, unto me, and I will ^{bg}bless them.

10 (Now ^{bh}the eyes of Israel were ^{bi}dim for age, so that he could not see.) And he brought them near unto him; and he ^{bj}kissed them, and embraced them.

11 And Israel said unto Joseph, ^{bk}I had not thought to see thy face; and, lo, God hath shewed me also thy seed.

12 and Joseph brought them out from between his knees, and he ^{bl}bowed himself with his face to the earth.

13 And Joseph took them both, Ephraim in his right hand toward Israel's left hand, and Manasseh in his left hand toward Israel's right hand, and brought ^{bm}them near unto him.

14 And Israel stretched out his right hand, and ^{bn}laid it upon Ephraim's head, who ^{bo}was the younger, and his left hand upon Manasseh's head, ^{bp}guiding his hands wittingly; for Manasseh was the first-born.

15 ¶ And he ^{bq}blessed Joseph, and said, God, before whom my fathers Abraham and Isaac ^{br}did walk, the God which ^{bs}fed me all my life long unto this day, 16 The ^{bt}Angel which ^{bu}redeemed me from all evil, bless the lads; and let ^{bv}my name be named on them, and the name of my fathers Abraham and Isaac; and let them ^{bw}grow into ^{bx}a multitude in the midst of the earth.

17 And when Joseph saw that his father laid his right hand upon the head of Ephraim, it ^{by}displeased him: and he held many years of peace and prosperity to his family. When the summons arrived which was to call him home, he sent for his beloved Joseph, for the purpose of a last interview, and to give him instructions concerning his own dust. Nothing, in point of pathos, can exceed the promise he exacted from his son concerning his sepulture: "Deal kindly and truly with me; bury me not, I pray thee, in Egypt." What faith is here displayed on the brink of eternity! He had the fullest confidence that his posterity would return to the promised land; and hence his solicitude to anticipate that great event by having his dust transferred thither

Chap. XLVIII. 1-14. Jacob's conduct upon all occasions was marked by simplicity, modesty, and dignified propriety. This was peculiarly manifested while on his death-bed, receiving the visits of his family. On that solemn occasion the presence of Joseph drew forth all his heart, leading to the utterance of a most affecting prayer on behalf of his family. The portraiture of the ancient man, as he poured out his benediction on the head of Joseph's sons, is inexpressibly touching. Ver. 15-23. The prayer presented here is truly patriarchal. How humbly and devoutly he acknowledges the providential goodness of God, and what sympathy he manifests for up his father's hand, to remove it from Ephraim's head unto Manasseh's head.

18 And Joseph said unto his father, ¹Not so, my father: ²for this is the first-born; put thy right hand upon his head.

19 And his father refused, and said, ¹I know it, my son, I know it: he also shall become a people, and he also shall be great; but truly his younger brother shall be greater than he, and his seed shall become ⁴a multitude of nations.

20 And he blessed them that day, saying, In thee shall Israel bless, saying, God make thee as Ephraim, and as Manasseh. ¹And he set Ephraim before Manasseh.

21 ¶ And Israel said unto Joseph, ¹Behold, I die; but ²God shall be with you, and bring you again unto the land of your fathers.

22 Moreover, I have ^mgiven to thee one portion above thy brethren, which I took out of the hand of ²the Amorite with my sword and with my bow.

CHAPTER XLIX.

AND Jacob called unto his sons, and said, ¹Gather yourselves together, that I may tell you ²that which shall befall you in ³the last days.

2 Gather yourselves together, and hear, ye sons of Jacob; and ¹hearken unto Israel your father.

3 ¶ Reuben, thou ^{art} my first-born, ⁴my might, and the beginning of my strength, the excellency of dignity, and the excellency of power:

4 ¹Unstable as water, ¹thou shalt not excel; because thou wentest up to thy father's bed; then defilest thou it: ²he went up to my couch.

5 ¶ Simeon and Levi are brethren; ¹instruments of cruelty are in their habitations.

6 O my soul, ¹come not thou into their secret; unto their assembly, mine honour, be not thou united! for in their anger they slew a man, and in their self-will they ⁴digged down a wall.

7 Cursed ¹be their anger, for it was fierce; and their wrath, for it was cruel: ¹I will divide them in Jacob, and scatter them in Israel.

8 ¶ Judah, thou ^{art} he whom thy brethren ¹shall praise: ¹thy hand shall be in ^mthe neck of thine enemies; thy father's children shall bow down before thee.

those who were to survive him! The spirit of inspiration was strong upon him with regard to the position which the sons of Joseph were respectively to hold in the future. His faith at that moment was gloriously strong. "Behold, I die; but God shall be with you, and bring you again to the land of your fathers." May every reader, when he reaches the banks of the Jordan, be partaker of a corresponding faith with respect to the world beyond the flood!

Chap. XLIX. 1-4. The history of Jacob has now reached its climax and its close. His sons, the heads of the tribes of Israel, surround his death-bed, when he addresses them in a style at once sublime and prophetic. By right, the first-born were entitled to a double portion, to the priesthood, and to the chief authority; but here the first was given to Joseph, the second to Levi, the third to Judah, because of Reuben's improper conduct. Ver. 5-33. The language of the patriarch concerning Judah merits particular notice, as signifying that a form of government should continue in the tribe until the coming of the Messiah. This authority did not cease or suffer suspension, like that of kings, until the Messiah came, when the Jews were dispersed, and it ceased for ever. The separate blessings have proved, in the course of Providence, so many predictions, all of which have head of Joseph, and on the crown of the head of him that ^bwas separate from his brethren.

27 ¶ Benjamin shall ¹ravin as a wolf: in the morning he shall devour the prey, and ²at night he shall divide the spoil.

28 ¶ All these ^{are} ¹the twelve tribes of Israel: and this ^{is} ^{it} that their father spake unto them, and blessed them; every one according to his blessing he blessed them.

29 And he charged them, and said unto them, I am to be ^mgathered unto my people: bury me with my fathers in the cave that ^{is} in the field of Ephron the Hittite;

30 In the cave that ^{is} in the field of Machpelah, which ^{is} before Mamre, in the land of Canaan, which Abraham bought with the field of Ephron the Hittite, for a possession of a burying-place.

31 There ²they buried Abraham and Sarah his wife; there they buried Isaac and Rebekah his wife; and there I buried Leah.

32 The purchase of the field, and of the cave that ^{is} therein, ^{was} from the children of Heth.

33 And when Jacob had made an end of commanding his sons, he gathered up his feet into the bed, ^{and} yielded up the ghost, and ^{was} gathered unto his people.

9 And there went up with him both ²chariots and horsemen: and it was a very great company.

10 And they came to the thrashing-floor of Atad, which ^{is} beyond Jordan; and there they mourned with a great and very sore lamentation: and he made a mourning for his father ¹seven days.

11 And when the inhabitants of the land, ^{the} Canaanites, saw the mourning in the floor of Atad, they said, This ^{is} a grievous mourning to the Egyptians: wherefore the name of it was called ²Abel-mizraim, which ^{is} ²beyond Jordan.

12 And his sons did unto him ²according as he commanded them:

13 For his sons carried him into the land of Canaan, and buried him in ²the cave of the field of Machpelah, which Abraham bought with the field, for a possession of a burying-place, of Ephron the Hittite, before Mamre.

14 ¶ And Joseph returned into Egypt, he, and his brethren, and all that went up with him to bury his father, after he had buried his father.

15 ¶ And when Joseph's brethren saw that ²their father was dead, they said, ¹Joseph will peradventure hate us, and will certainly requite us all the evil which we did unto him.

16 And they ³sent a messenger unto Joseph, saying, Thy father did command before he died, saying,

17 So shall ye say unto Joseph, ²Forgive, I pray thee now, the trespass of thy brethren, and their sin; for ²they did unto thee evil: and now, we pray thee, forgive the trespass of the ²servants of the God been confirmed by history. The whole course of Jacob's life is fraught with instruction; but by far the most impressive scene is that which closes his career. He was full of years and of honours. He desired no more of either. The love of the world was overcome; he left his family in peace and comfort; his faith in the promises which refer to the future, was amply strengthened by the experience of the past; he had no anxieties relative to his posterity, he felt that everything was safe in the hands of the God of Abraham. He discoursed of death with the most perfect composure, giving instructions respecting his dust, as he would have done concerning any article of property. As the grandson of Abraham the Faithful, his spirit and deportment were every way worthy of the honourable relation.

Chap. L. 1-13. Embalming was a process in which the Egyptians excelled. It was performed by extracting the brains by the nostrils with a crooked iron. The bowels were also taken out, washed with palm wine, perfumed, and the inside having been filled up with myrrh and cassia, and other odours, was sewed up again. It was then salted with nitre seventy days, washed again, rolled up in fine linen, besmeared with gum resembling glue; afterwards it was put into a wooden coffin and placed in a repository in the house, where it was set up against the wall. This was the work, not of the undertakers, but of the physicians; and the expense, among the great, amounted to about 300*l.* sterling. The death of the father of the great benefactor of the Egyptians naturally excited public interest. The sympathy which was shewn on the occasion reflected honour on the people. The power of conscience, in cases of extreme guilt, is very great. The brothers of Joseph could hardly look on themselves as pardoned men; they felt that they deserved punishment which had not yet been inflicted, and of thy father. And Joseph ²wept when they spake unto him.

18 And his brethren also went and ³fell down before his face; and they said, Behold, we be thy servants.

19 And Joseph said unto them, ⁴Fear not; ⁵for am I in the place of God?

20 But as for you, ⁶ye thought evil against me; but ⁷God meant it unto good, to bring to pass, as it is this day, to save much people alive.

21 Now therefore fear ye not: ⁸I will nourish you, and your little ones. And he comforted them, and spake ⁹kindly unto them.

22 ¶ And Joseph dwelt in Egypt, he and his father's house: and Joseph lived an hundred and ten years.

23 And Joseph saw Ephraim's children of the third generation: ¹the children also of Machir, the son of Manasseh, were ²brought up upon Joseph's knees.

24 And Joseph said unto his brethren, I die; and God will surely visit ³you, and bring ⁴you out of this land unto the land which he sware to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob.

26 ¶ So Joseph died, ¹being an hundred and ten years old: and they embalmed him, and he was put in a coffin in Egypt.

THE SECOND BOOK OF MOSES, CALLED EXODUS.

As in the case of Genesis, the subject of the Book of Exodus suggested its name, which signifies going forth, or departing. It comprises the history of about 145 years, from the death of Joseph to the consecration of the Tabernacle, and illustrates the exact accomplishment of the promises made to Abraham. The Book abounds with types of Christ; it is a typical history of the World's redemption.

CHAPTER I.

1 The children of Israel multiply; 8 they are oppressed by a new king. 15 The midwives save the males alive.

NOW ¹these are the names of the children of Israel, which came into Egypt: every man and his household came with Jacob.

2 Reuben, Simeon, Levi, and Judah,

3 Issachar, Zebulun, and Benjamin,

4 Dan and Naphtali, Gad and Asher.

5 And all the souls that came out of the ¹loins of Jacob were ²seventy souls: for Joseph was in Egypt already.

6 And ¹Joseph died, and all his brethren, and all that generation.

7 And the children of Israel were ¹fruitful, and increased abundantly, and multiplied, and waxed exceeding mighty; and the land was filled with them.

8 ¶ Now there arose up ¹a new king over Egypt, which knew not Joseph.

9 And he said unto his people, Behold, ¹the people of the children of Israel are more and mightier than we:

10 ¹Come on, let us deal ²wisely with them; lest they multiply, and it come to pass, that, when there falleth out any war, they join also unto our enemies, and fight against us, and so get them up out of the land.

11 Therefore they did set over them taskmasters ¹to afflict them with their ²burdens. And they built for Pharaoh treasure-cities, Pithom and ³Raamses.

12 But ¹the more they afflicted them, the more they multiplied and grew. And they were ²grieved because of the children of Israel.

13 And the Egyptians made the children of Israel to serve with rigour.

14 And they made ¹their lives bitter with hard bondage, ²in mortar, and in brick, and in all manner of service in the field: all their service, wherein they made them serve, ³was with rigour.

15 ¶ And the king of Egypt spake to the Hebrew midwives; (of which the name of the one was Shiprah, and the name of the other Puah;)

16 And he said, When ye do the office of a midwife to the Hebrew women, and see them upon the stools, if it be a son, ¹then ye shall kill him; but if it be a daughter, then she shall live.

17 But the midwives ¹feared God, and did not as the king of Egypt commanded that the removal of their father would pave the way for vengeance. Joseph, conscious of love and pardon towards them, was pained by their unbelief and apprehension of evil at his hand. Ver. 14-21. At last his kindness appears to have assured and comforted them. Ver. 22-26. But life has an end; the years of Joseph were summed up, and he found himself in a position analogous to that formerly occupied by his departed father. He summoned his brethren around him, apprising them that he was about to die; but comforting them by the assurance that God would visit them, and take them out of Egypt to the land that he had promised to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, laying upon them an express injunction to take with them his bones on their removal.

Thus Joseph, one of the most amiable of men, the most dutiful of sons, the most compassionate of brothers, the most faithful of servants, virtuous in temptation, patient in adversity, and humble in prosperity, finished his course, full of the hope of a blessed immortality.

Chap. I. 1-22. The death of Joseph was, doubtless, a heavy blow to his people; but all that he was appointed to do for them he had done; they were now fairly established in the country, and no longer dependent on his official protection. It was enough for them that the God of Abraham lived, and that his promise was sure. In the multiplication of their numbers they had a standing proof of his truth and faithfulness. The new king, raising manded them, but saved the men-children alive.

18 And the king of Egypt called for the midwives, and said unto them, "Why have ye done this thing, and have saved the men-children alive?"

19 And the midwives said unto Pharaoh, "Because the Hebrew women are not as the Egyptian women; for they are lively, and are delivered ere the midwives come in unto them."

20 Therefore "God dealt well with the midwives: and the people multiplied, and waxed very mighty."

21 And it came to pass, because the midwives feared God, that he made them houses.

22 And Pharaoh charged all his people, saying, "Every son that is born ye shall cast into the river, and every daughter ye shall save alive."

CHAPTER II

1 Moses is born, and put into the flags; 5 he is found and brought up by Pharaoh's daughter; 15 he fleeth into Midian.

AND there went a man of the house of Levi, and took to wife a daughter of Levi.

2 And the woman conceived, and bare a son: and when she saw him that he was a goodly child, she hid him three months.

3 And when she could not longer hide him, she took for him an ark of bulrushes, and daubed it with slime and with pitch, and put the child therein; and she laid it in the flags by the river's brink.

4 And his sister stood afar off, to wit what would be done to him.

5 ¶ And the daughter of Pharaoh came down to wash herself at the river; and her maidens walked along by the river's side: and when she saw the ark among the flags, she sent her maid to fetch it.

6 And when she had opened it, she saw the child: and, behold, the babe wept. And she had compassion on him, and said, This is one of the Hebrews' children.

7 Then said his sister to Pharaoh's daughter, Shall I go and call to thee a nurse of the Hebrew women, that she may nurse the child for thee?

8 And Pharaoh's daughter said to her, "Go. And the maid went and called the child's mother."

9 And Pharaoh's daughter said unto her, "Take this child away, and nurse it for me, and I will give thee thy wages. And the woman took the child, and nursed it."

10 And the child grew, and she brought him unto Pharaoh's daughter, and he became her son. And she called his name "Moses: and she said, 'Because I drew him out of the water.'"

11 ¶ And it came to pass in those days, when Moses was grown, that he went out unto his brethren, and looked on their burdens: and he spied an Egyptian smiting an Hebrew, one of his brethren.

12 And he looked this way and that way, and when he saw that there was no man, he slew the Egyptian, and hid him in the sand.

13 And when he went out the second day, behold, two men of the Hebrews strove together: and he said to him that did the wrong, Wherefore smitest thou thy fellow?

14 And he said, "Who made thee a prince and a judge over us? Intendest thou to kill me, as thou killedst the Egyptian? And Moses feared, and said, Surely this thing is known."

15 Now when Pharaoh heard this thing, he sought to slay Moses. But Moses fled from the face of Pharaoh, and dwelt in the land of Midian: and he sat down by a well.

16 ¶ Now the priest of Midian had seven daughters: and they came and drew water, and filled the troughs to water their father's flock.

17 And the shepherds came and drove them away: but Moses stood up and helped them, and watered their flock.

18 And when they came to Reuel their father, he said, How is it that ye are come so soon to-day?

19 And they said, "An Egyptian delivered us out of the hand of the shepherds, and also drew water enough for us, and watered the flock."

20 And he said unto his daughters, And where is he? why is it that ye have left the man? call him, that he may eat bread.

some generations after the death of Joseph, "knew him not," and he was probably unacquainted both with the claims of his memory and of his people. This cruel sovereign, from motives of wicked policy, set himself to check the increase of Israel, breaking them down with oppressive labour. This was of course preceded by the entire destruction of their liberty. They entered the country perfectly free, on the invitation of the king of the day, and had the choice of declining to do so; and having complied, they had a right to depart at any moment. But now they are reduced to the most abject and crushing slavery. They are compelled to labour under the lash, with a view to keep down their numbers. Was there ever wrong like this wrong? Was there ever robbery equal to the robbery of a whole people of their natural freedom, and the reduction of them to the rank of beasts of burden? But this was only the beginning of sorrow. The most unheard of oppressions having failed to prevent the increase of the people, it only remained to have recourse to direct murder. Pharaoh, therefore, issued his bloody edict for the universal destruction of the male children the moment they were born! The birth of male children was everywhere followed by immediate butchery! Everywhere the cradle gave place to the coffin; birth only served for burial! Never was the reign of any king so stained with the blood of unoffending childhood. If this be remembered, it will suffice to shew the justice of God in the after-judgments with which Pharaoh was overtaken.

Chap. II. 1-10. The parents of Moses were clearly taught from on high that their child was destined of God for some great work, and hence their disregard of the sanguinary command of the king, and their adoption of that course which would conduct the child to the court of Pharaoh, where he would be thoroughly educated and prepared for his coming mission. Ver. 11-22. Moses was now forty years old, and during that long period, he lived in the court, and ranked as a prince of the blood; but he cheerfully sacrificed every privilege, 21 And Moses was ^dcontent to dwell with the man: and he gave Moses ^oZipporah his daughter.

22 And she bare him a son, and he called his name ^oGershom: ^ofor he said, I have been a stranger in a strange land.

23 ¶ And it came to pass ^oin process of time, that ^othe king of Egypt died: and the children of Israel ^osighed by reason of the bondage, and they cried; and their ^ocry came up unto God, by reason of the bondage.

24 And ^oGod heard their groaning, and God ^oremembered his covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob.

25 And God ^olooked upon the children of Israel, and God ^ohad respect unto them.

CHAPTER III.

1 Moses keepeth Jethro's flock. 2 God appeareth unto him in a burning bush; 9 he sendeth him to deliver Israel.

NOW Moses ^okept the flock of Jethro ^ohis father-in-law, the priest of Midian: and he led the flock to the backside of the desert, and came to ^othe mountain of God, even to ^oHoreb.

2 And the ^oangel of the LORD appeared unto him in a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush; and he looked, and, behold, the bush ^oburned with fire, and the bush was not consumed.

3 And Moses said, I will now turn aside, ^oand see this great sight, why the bush is not burnt.

4 And when the LORD saw that he turned aside to see, God called unto him out of the midst of the bush, and said, ^oMoses, Moses. And he said, Here am I.

5 And he said, ^oDraw not nigh hither: ^oput off thy shoes from off thy feet; for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground.

6 Moreover he said, ^oI am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses ^ohid his face; for he was afraid to look upon God.

7 ¶ And the LORD said, ^oI have surely seen the affliction of my people which are in Egypt, and have heard their cry by reason of their taskmasters; for I know their sorrows;

8 And I ^oam come down to ^odeliver them out of the hand of the Egyptians and to bring them up out of that land ^ounto a good land and a large, unto a land flowing with milk and honey; unto the place of the ^oCanaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites.

9 Now therefore, behold, the cry of the children of Israel is come unto me: ^oand I have also seen the oppression wherewith the Egyptians oppress them.

10 Come now therefore, ^oand I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people, the children of Israel, out of Egypt.

11 ¶ And Moses said unto God, ^oWho am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh, and that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt?

12 And he said, ^oCertainly I will be with thee; and this shall be a ^otoken unto thee that I have sent thee: When thou hast brought forth the people out of Egypt, ^oye shall serve God upon this mountain.

13 And Moses said unto God, Behold, when I come unto the children of Israel, and shall say unto them, The God of your fathers hath sent me unto you; and they shall say to me, ^oWhat is his name? what shall I say unto them?

14 And God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM: and he said, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, ^oI AM hath sent me unto you.

15 ¶ And God said moreover unto Moses, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, ^oThe LORD God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath sent me unto you: ^othis is my name for ever, and this is my ^omemorial unto all generations.

16 Go, and gather the ^oelders of Israel together, and say unto them, The LORD God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob, appeared unto me, saying, I have surely ^ovisited you, and seen that which is done to you in Egypt:

17 And I have said, ^oI will bring you up out of the affliction of Egypt ^ounto the land of the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites, unto a land flowing with milk and honey.

both present and future, that he might cleave to his people, notwithstanding their overwhelming affliction. The death of the Egyptian, and his own consequent flight, were the next great events in his history, leading to the second part of his career, in which he was prepared for the third. Ver. 23-25. Suffering led to prayer, and prayer brought deliverance. It is well when this is the case: were there less affliction in the world there would be less religion. The daughter of Pharaoh acted a part worthy of her sex and her position. Her humanity is all the more remarkable, as it was in direct contravention of the law of her indignant father, and a striking manifestation of benevolence towards the hated and persecuted people. Little did she then dream, however, of the mighty events which were to turn on the life of that forsaken child. Here, at the very outset, Moses had an illustration of the temper of his people, and a taste of the ingratitude, rebellion, and insult with which he would have to contend at the distance of forty years, when he should commence the execution of his commission of mercy.

Chap. III. 1-6. Moses, in conformity with the view of his parents, seems to have considered himself destined to work out the deliverance of his countrymen; but for a very long period appearances were against the probability of such an office and such an honour. Horeb and Sinai were not different mountains, but two summits of the same. This was the first divine manifestation with which Moses was favoured, and it was made in a manner deeply to impress his heart. The burning bush was an impressive emblem of the children of Israel, who not only were not destroyed, but continued to multiply amidst unparalleled affliction. Ver. 7-18. "He knew their sorrows." These are words which, to the latest ages, will cheer the down-trodden people of God. Moses here

18 And ^kthey shall hearken to thy voice: and thou shalt come, thou and the elders of Israel, unto the king of Egypt, and ye shall say unto him, ^lThe LORD God of the Hebrews hath ^mmet with us: and now let us go, we beseech thee, three days' journey into the wilderness, ⁿthat we may sacrifice to the LORD our God.

19 ¶ And I am sure that the king of Egypt will not let you go, ^ono, not by a mighty hand.

20 And I will ^pstretch out my hand, and ^qsmite Egypt with all my wonders which I will do in the midst thereof: and after that he will let you go.

21 And I ^rwill give this people favour in the sight of the Egyptians: and it shall come to pass, that, when ye go, ye shall not go empty:

22 But ^severy woman shall borrow of her neighbour, and of her that sojourneth in her house, jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment: and ye shall put ^tthem upon your sons, and upon your daughters; and ye shall ^uspoil ^vthe Egyptians.

CHAPTER IV.

received a new and glorious edition of the everlasting covenant made with his fathers, with a direct commission setting forth the important part assigned to him in its fulfilment. After this no doubt remained on his mind as to his election for the purpose of his people's emancipation. Never was a great work undertaken with more reluctance. Moses duly estimated the magnitude of the difficulty, while, for the moment, he overlooked the all-sufficiency of God. The condescension of the Lord towards him is wonderful. His misgivings once overcome, none ever continued with more steadfastness to walk by faith, and to follow the Lord fully. Ver. 19-22. Moses is here prepared for the judgments that were to fall upon Egypt, and their result. The term "borrow" signifies to ask, require, or demand; there was no deception, no fraud in the matter. The Egyptians, overwhelmed with terror, were most anxious for their departure, and were prepared to give them anything they required, without either the hope or the desire of receiving it again. To "spoil," in this case, was but the recovery, in some small measure, of what rightfully belonged to them. Let it be remembered, that the whole of the Jewish people had then for generations been reduced to slavery, and made to work, not only with unexampled cruelty, but to work for nothing beyond a miserable subsistence. Nothing they could possibly carry away, therefore, would amount to more than a small fraction of what was due to them. Gold and silver, as the least bulky, were best adapted to their circumstances. On these grounds, then, it is with slender justice that Infidelity has, from time to time, run riot on the conduct of the children of Israel as a body of deceitful plunderers.

Chap. IV. 1-23. Moses, like some of the greatest men, was defective in the gift of speech. There are higher qualities than eloquence, much as it has been courted and admired in this vain world. Oratory does not necessarily imply wisdom; some of the most eloquent have been among the most wretched and worthless of human beings. All his objections overcome, Moses was prompt in obeying the Divine command. Death, which removes friends as well as foes, had done much in the course of forty years to clear away the obstacles which had stood in his path at the court of Egypt. The hardening of the heart of Pharaoh, in the language of the East, meant no more than leaving him to himself, with-20 And Moses took his wife and his sons, and set them upon an ass, and he returned to the land of Egypt. And Moses took ^gthe rod of God in his hand.

21 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, When thou goest to return into Egypt, see ^hthat thou do all those wonders before Pharaoh which I have put in thine hand: but ⁱI will harden his heart, that he shall not let the people go.

22 And thou shalt say unto Pharaoh, Thus saith the LORD, ^jIsrael is my son, even ^kmy first-born.

upon their affliction, then they ^{ab}bowed their heads and worshipped.

CHAPTER V.

1 Pharaoh chideth Moses and Aaron: 5 he increaseth the Israelites' task. 22 Moses complaineth to God.

AND afterward Moses and Aaron went in, ^{ac}and told Pharaoh, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, Let my people go, that they may hold ^{ad}a feast unto me in the wilderness.

2 And Pharaoh said, ^{ae}Who is the LORD, that I should obey his voice to let Israel go? ^{af}I know not the LORD, ^{ag}neither will I let Israel go.

3 And they said, The God of the Hebrews hath met with us: let us go, we pray thee, three days' journey into the desert, and sacrifice unto the LORD our God, ^{ah}lest he fall upon us with pestilence, or with the sword.

4 And the king of Egypt said unto them, ^{ai}Wherefore do ye, Moses and Aaron, let the people from their works? get you unto your burdens.

5 And Pharaoh said, Behold, the people of the land now ^{aj}are ^{ak}many, and ye make them rest from their burdens.

6 ¶ And Pharaoh commanded the same day ^{al}the taskmasters of the people, and their officers, saying,

7 Ye shall no more give the people straw to make brick, as heretofore: let them go and gather straw for themselves.

8 And the tale of the bricks, which they did make heretofore, ye shall lay upon them; ye shall not diminish ^{am}ought thereof: for they ^{an}be idle; therefore they cry, saying, Let us go ^{ao}and sacrifice to our God.

9 ^{ap}Let there more work be laid upon the men, that they may labour therein; and let them not regard ^{aq}vain words.

10 ¶ And the ^{ar}taskmasters of the people went out, and their officers, and they spake to the people, saying, Thus saith Pharaoh, I will not give you straw.

11 Go ye, get you straw where ye can find it: yet not ought of your work shall be diminished.

12 So the people were scattered abroad throughout all the land of Egypt to gather stubble instead of straw.

13 And the taskmasters hastened ^{as}them, saying, Fulfil your works, ^{at}your ^{au}daily tasks, as when there was straw.

14 And the officers of the children of out those gracious influences by which the stone is turned to flesh. The course of events ought to have led him to repentance; but if Divine judgments do not melt the sinner, they will never fail to harden him. Ver. 24-26. It is impossible to ascertain the exact import of the passage; it is clear, however, that Moses was the subject of some sudden and severe attack which threatened his life, and that it was a rebuke for the neglect of the ordinance of circumcision. On this remarkable occasion Zipporah acted a very decided part, by immediately, with her own hand, performing on her son the rite which was the seal of righteousness to all the faithful, thus shewing her complete identification with the family of Israel. A very solemn lesson is here set forth to those who neglect the institutions of the gospel. Let all such as defend their disobedience by uttering the trite assertion, "it is not a saving ordinance," think on these events, and be instructed! Nothing is to be viewed as small which Almighty God has enjoined in his love and wisdom.

Chap. V. 1-15. The tendency of absolute power is to engender pride. The language of the king is the suitable vehicle of the most impious arrogance, shewing how thoroughly he was steeped in idolatry. It is probable that the Israelites, after their enthrallment, had ceased to offer sacrifice, their condition rendering it perilous if not impossible. Moses was now intent on its restoration; he felt, probably, stimulated by his own late experience, that there was danger in longer delay. The petulant monarch fiercely resented the proposal, and hastened to increase the people's affliction. The despotic cruelty had now reached a climax; and the God of Abraham would endure it no longer. The taskmasters were worthy of their king; they carried out his inhuman commands to Israel, which Pharaoh's taskmasters had set over them, were beaten, and demanded, Wherefore have ye not fulfilled your task in making brick both yesterday and to-day, as heretofore.

15 ¶ Then the officers of the children of Israel came and cried unto Pharaoh, saying, Wherefore dealest thou thus with thy servants?

16 There is no straw given unto thy servants, and they say to us, Make brick: and, behold, thy servants are beaten; but the fault is in thine own people.

17 But he said, ¹Ye are idle, ye are idle; therefore ye say, Let us go and do sacrifice to the LORD.

18 Go therefore now and work: for there shall no straw be given you, ²yet shall ye deliver the tale of bricks.

19 And the officers of the children of Israel did see that they were in ³evil case, after it was said, Ye shall not diminish ⁴ought from your bricks of your daily task.

20 ¶ And they met Moses and Aaron, who stood in the way, as they came forth from Pharaoh:

21 And they said unto them, ⁵The LORD look upon you, and judge; because ye have made ⁶our savour to ⁷be abhorred in the eyes of Pharaoh, and in the eyes of his servants, to put a sword in their hand to slay us.

22 ¶ And Moses ⁸returned unto the LORD, and said, Lord, wherefore hast thou so evil entreated this people? ⁹why is it that thou hast sent me?

23 For since I came to Pharaoh to speak ¹⁰in thy name, he hath done evil to this people; ¹¹neither hast thou delivered thy people at all.

CHAPTER VI.

¹ God reneweth his promise by his name JEHOVAH. 14 The genealogy of Reuben; 15 of Simeon; 16 of Levi.

THEN the LORD said unto Moses, ²Now shalt thou see what I will do to Pharaoh: for ³with a strong hand shall he let them go, and with a strong hand shall he ⁴drive them out of his land.

2 And God spake unto Moses, and said unto him, ⁵I am ⁶the LORD:

3 And I appeared unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, by the name of ⁷God Almighty; but by my name ⁸JEHOVAH was I not known to them.

4 And I have also ⁹established my covenant with them, to give them the land of Canaan, ¹⁰the land of their pilgrimage, wherein they were strangers.

5 And I have also heard the ¹¹groaning the very letter, and in his own inhuman spirit. Ver. 16-23. "Oppression maketh a wise man mad," and inspires with courage even the most down-trodden. The appeal of the officers of the children of Israel is alike manly and just, while the ruthless reply of the king filled them with rage and despair. To comply was impossible: to resist was destruction. Their help was in God alone. The course of Moses only served to aggravate their misery. Moses was deeply cut by their appeal, which, with anguish, he laid before the Lord. He felt that alone he was nothing, and could do nothing; and as yet the Lord had not made bare his almighty arm.

of the children of Israel, whom the Egyptians keep in bondage; and ¹I have remembered my covenant.

6 Wherefore say unto the children of Israel, ²I am the LORD, and ³I will bring you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians, and I will rid you out of their bondage; and I will ⁴redeem you with a stretched-out arm, and with great judgments.

8 And I will bring you in unto the land, concerning the which I did ⁸swear ⁹to give it to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob; and I will give it you for an heritage: ¹⁰I am the LORD.

9 ¶ And Moses spake so unto the children of Israel: but they ¹¹hearkened not unto Moses for ¹²anguish of spirit, and for cruel bondage.

10 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

11 Go in, ¹³speak unto Pharaoh king of Egypt, that he let the children of Israel go out of his land.

Chap. VI. 1-18. The appeal of Moses met with a prompt and gracious answer. The Lord would soon work, and nothing should hinder. "Almightiness," as implying all-sufficiency, was an attribute especially dear to the Patriarchs. To know him by his new name, Jehovah, was to behold the display of his power and glory. That name was now of infinite importance to his afflicted people. The provision of the Covenant had again to be rehearsed for encouragement. By "uncircumcised lips," Moses expresses his sense of his unworthiness of the office to which he had been called. Ver. 14-30. Levi outlives all his brethren, and survives

3 And ^II will harden Pharaoh's heart, and ^mmultiply my signs and my wonders in the land of Egypt.

4 But Pharaoh shall not hearken unto you, ^tthat I may lay my hand upon Egypt, and bring forth mine ^aarmies, and my people the children of Israel, out of the land of Egypt, ^bby great judgments.

5 And the Egyptians ^sshall know that I am the LORD, when I ^sstretch forth mine hand upon Egypt, and bring out the children of Israel from among them.

6 And Moses and Aaron did ^aas the LORD commanded them, so did they.

7 And Moses was ^mfourscore years old, and Aaron fourscore and three years old, when they spake unto Pharaoh.

8 ^TAnd the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

9 When Pharaoh shall speak unto you, saying, ^SShew a miracle for you: then thou shalt say unto Aaron, ^TTake thy rod, and cast it before Pharaoh, and it shall become a serpent.

10 ^TAnd Moses and Aaron went in unto Pharaoh, and they did so as the LORD had commanded: and Aaron cast down his rod before Pharaoh, and before his servants, and ⁱit became a serpent.

11 Then Pharaoh also called the ^wwise men and the sorcerers: now the magicians of Egypt, ^tthey also did in like manner with their enchantments.

12 For they cast down every man his rod, and they became serpents: ^bbut Aaron's rod swallowed up their rods.

13 And ^hhe hardened Pharaoh's heart, that he hearkened not unto them; as the LORD had said.

14 ^TAnd the LORD said unto Moses, Pharaoh's heart is hardened, ^hhe refuseth to let the people go.

15 Get thee unto Pharaoh in the morning: lo, ^hhe goeth out unto the water; and thou shalt stand by the river's brink against he come; and the rod which was turned to a serpent shalt thou take in thine hand.

16 And thou shalt say unto him, ^TThe LORD God of the Hebrews hath sent me unto thee, saying, ^LLet my people go, that they may ^aserve me in the wilderness: and, behold, hitherto thou wouldest not hear.

17 Thus saith the LORD, In this ^bthou shalt know that I am the LORD: behold, Joseph the long period of 27 years: the ages of the rest of the brothers are not recorded. Ver. 20 illustrates the promise in Gen. xv. 16, touching the deliverance of the Israelites in the fourth generation.

Chap. VII. 1-25. Moses 80, and Aaron 83 years of age, had reached a period which entitled them to respect. According to the longevity of that era they had attained the meridian of life. The bearing of these chosen servants of the Lord was such as became them. Modest, yet manly, they were superior to fear, and confident as to results. The affair of the serpents has led to much contradictory interpretation; the case, notwithstanding, is simple, if the thing be taken in its natural import. Allow that on both sides the serpents were real, and the difficulties vanish. But it is objected, that this reality implies an exercise of Omnipotence, which neither the sorcerers nor Satan could put forth. True; but the Most High, to accomplish his own wise ends, could exert the power of his own hand even in connexion with sorcery. Let it not be said, that this had been to put honour on these deceivers of the nations; in the event it was not so. It was utterly to confound and overthrow them. It deserves particular notice, that Pagan Mythology abounds with fables which must have originated in the fact of which we speak; more especially is this found in the Thyrsus of Bacchus, and the Caduceus of Mercury. The Bacchus of Egypt was called Myces, inasmuch as he was drawn out of the water. "Myces!" How near to Moses, and how obviously the same word modified by the change of a single letter! He was, moreover, remarkable for his beauty; he was a great legislator, and

I will smite with the rod that is in mine hand upon the waters which are in the river, ^cand they shall be turned to blood.

18 And the fish that is in the river shall die, and the river shall stink; and the Egyptians ^dshall loathe to drink of the water of the river.

19 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, Take thy rod, and ^estretch out thine hand upon the waters of Egypt, upon their streams, upon their rivers, and upon their ponds, and upon all ^ftheir pools of water, that they may become blood; and that there may be blood throughout all the land of Egypt, both in vessels of wood, and in vessels of stone.

20 And Moses and Aaron did so, as the LORD commanded: and ^ghe lifted up the rod, and smote the waters that were in the river, in the sight of Pharaoh, and in the sight of his servants; and ^hall the waters that were in the river were turned to blood.

21 And ⁱthe fish that was in the river died; and the river stank, and the Egyptians could not drink of the water of the river: and there was blood throughout all the land of Egypt.

22 And the ^jmagicians of Egypt did so with their enchantments; ^kand Pharaoh's heart was hardened, neither did he hearken unto them; as the LORD had said.

23 And Pharaoh turned and went into his house, ^lneither did he set his heart to this also.

24 And all the Egyptians digged round about the river for water to drink; for they could not drink of the water of the river.

25 And ^mseven days were fulfilled, after that the LORD had smitten the river.

CHAPTER VIII.

1 Frogs are sent. 16 The dust turned into lice. 20 The swarms of flies. 32 Pharaoh is still hardened.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, ⁿGo unto Pharaoh, and say unto him, Thus saith the LORD, ^oLet my people go, that they may serve me.

2 And if thou ^prefuse to let them go, behold, I will smite all thy borders with ^qfrogs:

3 And the river shall bring forth frogs abundantly, which shall go up, and come into thine house, and into thy bed-chamber, and upon thy bed, and into the house of thy servants, and upon thy people, and into thine ovens, and into thy ^rkneading-troughs:

4 And the frogs shall come up both ^son thee, and upon thy people, and upon all thy servants.

wrote his laws on two tables; he was a warrior also, who, with an immense army of both men and women, overran all Arabia; by his rod also, which was wreathed with serpents, he performed many miracles. This language is so specific as to set at rest all dispute as to its reference to Moses. It is an argument in itself which there is no rejecting.

Chap. VIII. 1-19. "Glory over me" is a phrase of some difficulty; it is, perhaps, a species of idiom. Some versions read thus: "Appoint me a time when I shall

5 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, ^tStretch forth thine hand with thy rod over the streams, over the rivers, and over the ponds, and cause frogs to come up upon the land of Egypt.

6 And Aaron stretched out his hand over the waters of Egypt; and ^uthe frogs came up, and covered the land of Egypt.

7 And ^vthe magicians did so with their enchantments, and brought up frogs upon the land of Egypt.

8 ¶ Then Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron, and said, ^wEntreat the LORD, that he may take away the frogs from me, and from my people; ^xand I will let the people go, that they may do sacrifice unto the LORD.

9 And Moses said unto Pharaoh, ^yGlory over me: when shall I entreat for thee, and for thy servants, and for thy people, ^zto destroy the frogs from thee and thy houses, that they may remain in the river only?

10 And he said, ^{aa}To-morrow. And he said, Be it according to thy word; that thou mayest know that ^{ab}there is none like unto the LORD our God.

11 And ^{ac}the frogs shall depart from thee, and from thy houses, and from thy servants, and from thy people; they shall remain in the river only.

12 And Moses and Aaron went out from Pharaoh; and Moses ^{ad}cried unto the LORD because of the frogs which he had brought against Pharaoh.

13 And the LORD did according to the word of Moses; and the frogs died out of the houses, out of the villages, and out of the fields.

14 And they gathered them together upon heaps; ^{ae}and the land stank.

15 But when Pharaoh ^{af}saw that there was respite, ^{ag}he hardened his heart, and hearkened not unto them; as the LORD had said.

16 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, ^{ah}Stretch out thy rod, and smite the dust of the land, that it may become lice throughout all the land of Egypt.

17 And they did so: for Aaron stretched out his hand with his rod, and smote the dust of the earth, and it became ^{ai}lice in man and in beast: all the dust of the land became lice throughout all the land of Egypt.

18 And the magicians did so with their enchantments to bring forth lice, but ^{aj}they could not: so there were lice upon man and upon beast.

entreat for thee." That such is the true import seems probable from the reply in the next verse, when Pharaoh actually makes such appointment by saying, "To-morrow," that is, "to-morrow entreat for me." Moses concurred in the proposal. If the suggestion made above, that divine power wrought through the magicians, be correct, in verse 19 it was withheld, and they were confounded amid their own helplessness and impotence. Their effort proved abortive. They then confessed at once to their tyrant lord, that "it was the finger of God." Ver. 20-31. Pharaoh at length was so driven, 19 Then the magicians said unto Pharaoh, "This is the finger of God: ^aand Pharaoh's heart was hardened, and he hearkened not unto them; as the LORD had said.

20 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Rise up early in the morning, and stand before Pharaoh, (^clo, he cometh forth to the water,) and say unto him, Thus saith the LORD, Let my people go, that they may serve me:

21 Else, if thou wilt not let my people go, behold, I will send ^bswarms of flies upon thee, and upon thy servants, and upon thy people, and into thy houses: and the houses of the Egyptians shall be full of ^aswarms of flies, and also the ground whereon they are.

22 And I will ^asever in that day the land of Goshen, in which my people dwell, that no swarms of flies shall be there; to the end thou mayest know ^bthat I am the LORD in the ^cmidst of the earth.

23 And I will put ^aa division between my people and thy people: ^dto-morrow shall this sign be.

24 And the LORD did so: and ^athere came a grievous swarm of flies into the house of Pharaoh, and into his servants' houses, and into all ^athe land of Egypt: the land was ^acorrupted by reason of the swarm of flies.

25 ¶ And Pharaoh ^acalled for Moses and for Aaron, and said, Go ye, sacrifice to your God in the land.

26 And Moses said, ^aIt is not meet so to do; for ^bwe shall sacrifice the abomination of the Egyptians to the LORD our God: lo, shall we sacrifice ^cthe abomination of the Egyptians before their eyes, and will they not stone us?

27 We will go ^athree days' journey into the wilderness, and sacrifice to the LORD our God, ^aas he shall command us.

28 And Pharaoh said, ^aI will let you go, that ye may sacrifice to the LORD your God in the wilderness; only ye shall not go very far away: ^aentreat for me.

29 And Moses said, Behold, I go out from thee, and I will entreat the LORD that the swarms of flies may depart from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people, ^ato-morrow: but let not Pharaoh ^bdeal deceitfully any more in not letting the people go to sacrifice to the LORD.

30 And Moses went out from Pharaoh, and entreated the LORD.

31 And the LORD did according to the word of Moses; and he removed the swarms of flies from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people: there remained not one.

32 And ^aPharaoh hardened his heart at this time also, neither would he let the people go.

CHAPTER IX.

1 The murrain of beasts. 8 The plague of boils and blains. 22 The plague of hail.

THEN the LORD said unto Moses, ^aGo in unto Pharaoh, and tell him, Thus saith the LORD God of the Hebrews, Let my people go, that they may serve me.

2 For ^bif thou refuse to let them go, and wilt hold them still,

3 Behold, ^cthe hand of the LORD is upon thy cattle which ^ais in the field, upon the horses, upon the asses, upon the camels, upon the oxen, and upon the sheep: ^athere shall be a very grievous murrain.

4 And the LORD shall ^asever between the cattle of Israel and the cattle of Egypt: and there shall nothing die of all ^athat is the children's of Israel.

5 And the LORD appointed ^aa set time, saying, To-morrow the LORD shall do this thing in the land.

6 And the LORD did that thing on the morrow, and ^aall the cattle of Egypt died: but of the cattle of the children of Israel died not one.

7 And Pharaoh sent, and, behold, there was not one of the cattle of the Israelites dead. And ^athe heart of Pharaoh was hardened, and he did not let the people go.

8 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses and unto Aaron, ^bTake to you handfuls of ashes of the furnace, and let Moses sprinkle it toward the heaven in the sight of Pharaoh.

9 And it shall become small dust in all the land of Egypt, and shall be ^aa boil breaking forth with blains upon man, and upon beast, throughout all the land of Egypt.

10 And they took ashes of the furnace, and stood before Pharaoh; and Moses sprinkled it up toward heaven; and it became a boil breaking forth with blains upon man and upon beast.

11 And the magicians ^acould not stand before Moses because of the boils; for the boil was upon the magicians, and upon all the Egyptians.

12 And ^athe LORD hardened the heart that he reluctantly permitted sacrifice, provided it should be offered in Egypt; but Moses shewed that this could not be done with safety, since, under the name of Jove, the Egyptians worshipped the ram and the calf, and the bull under the name of Apis; for the Israelites, therefore, to have sacrificed such animals, had been to expose themselves to the fury of the people. The king then relented somewhat, and gave a modified consent. The decision and the dignity of Moses on this occasion are both alike admirable. Judgment and mercy are equally thrown away upon Pharaoh. He acted as a man bent on his own destruction. In his distress, he gave in till deliverance came, when the spirit of rebellion again displayed itself. In the whole of his conduct, we behold a striking illustration of the true character of human nature.

Chap. IX. 1-28. The exemption of the cattle of the Israelites was a circumstance which greatly impressed the mind of the king. In this awful pestilence, the representatives of Pagan Deities were smitten like the Dagon of a future age. The plagues were greatly varied, both as to their character and the measure of their infliction. One comes on a sudden; another is foretold and described; one strikes at comfort, another at substance, and another at the health of man. As the Egypt-of Pharaoh, and he hearkened not unto them; as the LORD had spoken unto Moses.

13 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, ^mRise up early in the morning, and stand before Pharaoh, and say unto him, Thus saith the LORD God of the Hebrews, Let my people go, that they may serve me.

14 For I will at this time ⁿsend all my plagues upon thine heart, and upon thy servants, and upon thy people; ^othat thou mayest know that there is none like me in all the earth.

15 For now I will stretch out my hand, ^pthat I may smite thee and thy people with pestilence; and thou shalt be ^qcut off from the earth.

16 And in very deed ^rfor this cause have I ^rraised thee up, ^sfor to shew in thee my power; and ^tthat my name may be declared throughout all the earth.

17 As yet ^uexaltest thou thyself against my people, that thou wilt not let them go?

18 Behold, ^vto-morrow about this time, ^wI will cause it to rain a very grievous hail, such as hath not been in Egypt since the foundation thereof even until now.

19 Send therefore now, ^xand gather thy cattle, and all that thou hast in the field: ^yfor upon every man and beast which shall be found in the field, and shall not be brought home, the hail shall come down upon them, and they shall die.

20 He that ^zfeared the word of the LORD among the servants of Pharaoh made his servants and his cattle flee into the houses:

21 And he that ^{aa}regarded not the word of the LORD left his servants and his cattle in the field.

22 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, ^{ab}Stretch forth thine hand toward heaven, that there may be hail in all the land of Egypt, upon man, and upon beast, and upon every herb of the field, throughout the land of Egypt.

23 And Moses stretched forth his rod toward heaven; and ^{ac}the LORD sent thunder and ^{ad}hail, and the fire ran along upon the ground: and the LORD rained hail upon the land of Egypt.

24 So there was hail, and fire mingled with the hail, very grievous, such as there 26 Only ^{af}in the land of Goshen, where the children of Israel were, was there no hail.

27 ¶ And Pharaoh sent, and called for Moses and Aaron, and said unto them, ^{ag}I have sinned this time: ^{ah}the LORD is righteous, and I and my people are wicked.

28 ^{ai}Entreat the LORD (for it is enough) that there be no more mighty ^{aj}thunderings and hail; and I will let you go, and ^{ak}ye shall stay no longer.

29 And Moses said unto him, As soon as I am gone out of the city, I will ^{al}spread abroad my hands unto the LORD; and the thunder shall cease, neither shall there be any more hail; that thou mayest know how ^{am}that the earth is the LORD's.

30 But as for thee and thy servants, ^{an}I know that ye will not yet fear the LORD God.

31 And the flax and the barley was smitten; for ^{ao}the barley was in the ear, and the flax was bolled.

32 But the wheat and the rye were not smitten; for they were ^{ap}not grown up.

33 And Moses went out of the city from Pharaoh, and spread abroad his hands unto the LORD; ^{aq}and the thunders and hail ceased, and the rain was not poured upon the earth.

34 And when Pharaoh ^{ar}saw that the rain, and the hail, and the thunders, were ceased, he sinned yet more, ^{as}and hardened his heart, he and his servants.

35 And the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, neither would he let the children of Israel go; ^{at}as the LORD had spoken ^{au}by Moses.

CHAPTER X.

13 The plague of locusts; 21 and of darkness. 27 Pharaoh's heart is yet hardened.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, Go in unto Pharaoh: for ^{av}I have hardened his heart, and the heart of his servants, ^{aw}that I might shew these my signs before him:

2 And ^{ax}that thou mayest tell in the ears

tians worshipped the chief elements, so these very elements are employed for their chastisement. The king is reminded that his life was at the disposal of the Most High, but that he had been preserved for the express purpose of shewing forth the Divine glory. The work had in it benevolence and mercy; it was Pharaoh's perversity that turned it to wrath and judgment. Ver. 27-35. The account here given harmonises with all that was recorded of Egypt, which was famous both for corn and for linen. Of all lands, it was the most remarkable for its fertility.

Chap. X. 1-11. The locusts present a marvellous illustration of the power of numbers to compensate for impotency. Individually they are most insignificant, but united they are terrible; and all the more so, as the power of man exercised against them is very weakness.

The form and appearance of the locust resembles that of one of our grasshoppers. They obscure the air in vast columns, often extending as much as 15, and even 18 or 20 miles in length, and from 9 to 12 miles in breadth. Descending on corn or grass fields, in the course of an hour or two they will devour every green thing, and leave the inhabitants in a state of starvation. Even the trees are not proof against them. They will so wound and destroy the bark as to affect not merely the produce, but the life of the tree or shrub. Even when they are quiescent they are a fearful visitation, entering the houses of rich and poor, and swarming in their very beds. They might be likened to a fall of living snow. When they rest, they cover the earth to an extent of four inches, sometimes more. These tiny creatures have often been employed by God to chastise wicked nations. The appeal of Pharaoh's servants was well grounded and seasonably of thy son, and of thy son's son, what things I have wrought in Egypt, and my signs which I have done among them; ^{that ye may know how that I am the LORD.}

3 And Moses and Aaron came in unto Pharaoh, and said unto him, Thus saith the LORD God of the Hebrews, ^{How long wilt thou refuse to 'humble thyself before me! let my people go, that they may serve me:}

4 Else, ^{if thou refuse to let my people go, behold, to-morrow will I bring the locusts into thy coast:}

5 And they shall cover the face of the earth, that one cannot be able to see the earth: and they shall eat the residue of that which is escaped, which remaineth unto you from the hail, and shall eat every tree which groweth for you out of the field.

6 And they shall fill thy houses, and the houses of all thy servants, and the houses of all the Egyptians; ^{which neither thy fathers, nor thy fathers' fathers have seen, since the day that they were upon the earth unto this day.} ^{And he turned himself, and went out from Pharaoh.}

7 ¶ And Pharaoh's servants said unto him, ^{How long shall this man be a snare unto us? let the men go, that they may serve the LORD their God: knowest thou not yet that Egypt is destroyed?}

8 And Moses and Aaron were brought again unto Pharaoh: and he said unto them, Go, serve the LORD your God: ^{but who are they that shall go?}

9 And Moses said, We will go with our young and with our old, with our sons and with our daughters, with our flocks and with our herds will we go: for we must hold a feast unto the LORD.

10 And he said unto them, Let the LORD be so with you, as I will let you go, and your little ones: ^{look to it; for evil is before you.}

11 Not so: go now ye that are men, and serve the LORD; for that ye did desire. ^{And they were driven out from Pharaoh's presence.}

12 And the LORD said unto Moses, Stretch out thine hand over the land of Egypt for the locusts, that they may come up upon the land of Egypt, and eat every herb of the land, ^{even all that the hail hath left.}

13 And Moses stretched forth his rod over the land of Egypt, and the LORD brought an east wind upon the land all that day and all that night; and when it was morning, the east wind brought the locusts.

14 And the locusts went up over all the land of Egypt, and rested in all the coasts of Egypt: very grievous were they; ^{before them there were no such locusts as they, neither after them shall be such.}

15 For they covered the face of the whole earth, so that the land was darkened; and they did eat every herb of the land, and all the fruit of the trees which the hail had left: and there remained not any green thing in the trees, or in the herbs of the field, through all the land of Egypt.

16 ¶ Then Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron in haste; and he said, I have sinned against the LORD your God, and against you.

17 Now therefore forgive, I pray thee, my sin only this once, and entreat the LORD your God, that he may take away from me this death only.

18 And he went out from Pharaoh, and entreated the LORD.

19 And the LORD turned a mighty strong west wind, which took away the locusts, and cast them into the Red sea; there remained not one locust in all the coasts of Egypt.

20 But the LORD hardened Pharaoh's heart, so that he would not let the children of Israel go.

21 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Stretch out thine hand toward heaven, that there may be darkness over the land of Egypt, ^{even darkness which may be felt.}

22 And Moses stretched forth his hand toward heaven; and there was a thick darkness in all the land of Egypt three days:

23 They saw not one another, neither rose any from his place for three days: ^{but all the children of Israel had light in their dwellings.}

24 ¶ And Pharaoh called unto Moses, and said, Go ye, serve the LORD; only let your flocks and your herds be stayed: let your little ones also go with you.

25 And Moses said, Thou must give us also sacrifices and burnt-offerings, that we may sacrifice unto the LORD our God.

26 Our cattle also shall go with us; there shall not an hoof be left behind: for thereof must we take to serve the LORD our God; and we know not with what we must serve the LORD until we come thither.

made; but all to no purpose. They seem to have been brought to the conviction that there was no god like unto the God of the Hebrews, and were afraid that, as a nation, they should perish from the stroke of his displeasure. The displays of power which were being made, were proclaiming the utter nothingness of all the gods of Egypt. The servants, who perfectly understood the grounds of the quarrel, took the part of the Israelites to the extent of imploring their liberation. The effect of their plainness on the mind of the king was considerable.

The interview between Moses and Pharaoh was very unsatisfactory, and the driving of Moses from the palace was an unseemly deed. The darkness following so hard upon the plague of locusts, worked the monarch up to a sort of frenzy. Moses was inflexible in his demand, and Pharaoh increased in obstinacy. They now reached a crisis; for the last time Pharaoh ordered him to be cast out from his presence, with a threat of death in the event of his returning. Their parting was awful. There is an emphasis the most tremendous in the words of Moses.

27 ¶ But the LORD ^ahardened Pharaoh's heart, and he would not let them go.

28 And Pharaoh said unto him, Get thee from me, take heed to thyself, see my face no more: ^afor in that day thou seest my face thou shalt die.

29 And Moses said, Thou hast spoken well; ^aI will see thy face again no more.

CHAPTER XI.

1 God's message to the Israelites to borrow jewels of their neighbours. 4 The death of the first-born threatened.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, ^aYet will I bring one plague more upon Pharaoh, and upon Egypt; ^bafterwards he will let you go hence: when he shall let you go, he shall surely ^cthrust you out hence altogether.

2 Speak now in the ears of the people, and let every man ^aborrow of his neighbour, and every woman of her neighbour, ^cjewels of silver, and jewels of gold.

3 And ^athe LORD gave the people favour in the sight of the Egyptians. Moreover, the man ^aMoses was very great in the land of Egypt, in the sight of Pharaoh's servants, and in the sight of the people.

4 ¶ And Moses said, Thus saith the LORD, ^aAbout midnight ^bwill I go out into the midst of Egypt:

5 And all the first-born in the land of Egypt shall die, from ^athe first-born of Pharaoh that sitteth upon his throne, even unto the first-born of the maid-servant that is ^bbehind the mill; and all the first-born of beasts.

6 And there shall be ^aa great cry throughout all the land of Egypt, such as there was none like it, nor shall be like it any more.

7 But against any of the children of Israel shall not a ^adog move his tongue, against man or beast; that ye may know how that the LORD doth put ^aa difference between the Egyptians and Israel.

8 And ^aall these thy servants shall come down unto me, and bow down themselves unto me, saying, Get thee out, and all the people that ^bfollow thee: and after that I will go out. And he went out from Pharaoh in ^aa great anger.

9 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, ^aPharaoh shall not hearken unto you; that my ^awonders may be multiplied in the land of Egypt.

10 And Moses and Aaron did all these wonders before Pharaoh: and ^athe LORD hardened Pharaoh's heart, so that he would not let the children of Israel go out of his land.

CHAPTER XII.

1 The beginning of the year is changed. 3 The passover is instituted. 11 The rite of the passover. 29 The first-born are slain. 31 The Israelites are driven out of the land. 37 They come to Succoth.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt, saying,

2 ^aThis month shall be unto you the beginning of months: it shall be the first month of the year to you.

3 ¶ ^aSpeak ye unto all the congregation of Israel, saying, ^bIn the tenth day of this month they shall ^ctake to them every man a ^dlamb, according to the house of their fathers, a lamb for an house.

4 And if the household be too little for the lamb, let him and his neighbour next unto his house take it, according to the number of the souls: every man, according to his eating, shall make your count for the lamb.

5 Your lamb shall be ^awithout blemish, a male ^bof the first year: ye shall take it out from the sheep, or from the goats.

6 And ye shall keep it up until the ^afourteenth day of the same month: and ^bthe whole assembly of the congregation of Israel shall kill it ^cin the evening.

Chap. XI. 1-10. The iniquity of Pharaoh's cup was now full, and the last stroke of Heaven was about to descend upon him. The angel of death was forthwith to be despatched to fill the land with havoc and woe! It is not surprising that Moses had become an object of admiration, wonder, and terror, almost a species of deity incarnate, with the Egyptians. As compared with him, in their sight, Pharaoh himself was but a worm of the dust. Death among the Egyptians was always attended with passionate lamentation. When a member of a family expired, the survivors rushed out and ran about the streets, weeping and wailing in a most frantic manner. Even in bemoaning an imaginary evil, suffered by any of their idol-gods, they would assemble in multitudes, beating their breasts, and tearing their hair, and lacerating their bodies, and rending the air with their outcries. It is easy, therefore, to conceive that the death of the first-born would present a spectacle of the most extraordinary character. No such night as that which was hastening on had ever before set in upon any nation, nor ever will again. These things suggest the idea of another night, and another scene of "lamentation, mourning, and woe." May every reader of these words be then only a spectator, and not a participant!

Chap. XII. 1-10. The Hebrews had hitherto commenced their year with September; but for the future they were to begin from the middle of March, at least in all their ecclesiastical computations. This arrangement was probably on account of the importance of the Passover, then instituted, and which, in future times, was to be held especially sacred. That ordinance commemorated their glorious deliverance from the bondage of Egypt; and hence the importance of keeping it in lasting remembrance. The lamb was to be set apart four days before the Passover,—an arrangement which was peculiar at the outset of the institution, for it was not to be so afterwards. On this day Israel passed through the Jordan, as appears from Joshua iv. 19; and on this day the Lord Jesus entered Jerusalem in triumph, John xii. 12, 13. The Hebrews divided the afternoon into two parts: the first, which began immediately after the sun had passed the meridian, and continued till sunset, which commenced the second part, and lasted till night, or the end of twilight. Between these two points the main until the morning; and that which remaineth of it until the morning ye shall burn with fire.

11 ¶ And thus shall ye eat it; with ^p your loins girded, your ^q shoes on your feet, and your staff in your hand: and ye shall eat it in haste; ^r it is the LORD's passover.

12 For I will ^s pass through the land of Egypt this night, and ^t will smite all the first-born in the land of Egypt, both man and beast; and ^u against all the ^v gods ^w of Egypt I will execute judgment: I am the LORD.

13 And ^x the blood shall be to you for a token upon the houses where ye are; and when I see the blood, I will pass over you, and the plague shall not be upon you ^y to destroy you, when I smite the land of Egypt.

14 And this day shall be unto you for a ^z memorial; and ye shall keep it a feast to the LORD throughout your generations: ye shall keep it a feast ^a by an ordinance for ever.

15 ¶ Seven days shall ye eat unleavened bread; even the first day ye shall put away leaven out of your houses: for whosoever eateth leavened bread, from the first day until the seventh day, ^b that soul shall be cut off from Israel.

16 And in the first day there shall be ^c an holy convocation, and in the seventh day there shall be an holy convocation to you; ^d no manner of work shall be done in them, save that which every ^e man must eat, that only may be done of you.

17 And ye shall observe the feast of unleavened bread; for ^f in this self-same day have I brought your armies out of the land of Egypt: therefore shall ye observe this day in your generations ^g by an ordinance for ever.

18 ^h In the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month at even, ye shall eat unleavened bread, until the one and twentieth day of the month at even.

19 Seven days shall there be no leaven found in your houses: for whosoever eateth that which is leavened, even that soul shall be cut off from the congregation of Israel, whether he be a stranger, or born in the land.

20 Ye shall eat nothing leavened; in all your habitations shall ye eat unleavened bread.

21 ¶ Then Moses called for all the ⁱ elders of Israel, and said unto them, Draw out, ^j and take you ^k a lamb, according to your families, and kill the passover.

¶ Dough.

22 And ye shall take ^l a bunch of hyssop, and dip ^m it in the blood that is in the bason, and strike the lintel and the two side-posts with the blood that is in the bason; ⁿ and none of you shall go out at the door of his house until the morning.

23 For the LORD will pass through to smite the Egyptians; and when he seeth the blood upon the lintel, and on the two side-posts, the LORD will pass over the door, ^o and will not suffer the destroyer to come in unto your houses to smite you.

24 And ye shall observe this thing ^p for an ordinance to thee and to thy sons for ever.

25 And it shall come to pass, ^q when ye be come to the land which the LORD will give you, according as he hath promised, that ye shall keep this service.

26 And it shall come to pass, when ^r your children shall say unto you, What mean ye by this service?

27 That ye shall say, ^s It is the sacrifice of the LORD's passover, who passed over the houses of the children of Israel in Egypt, when he smote the Egyptians, and delivered our houses. And the people ^t bowed the head, and worshipped.

28 And the children of Israel went away, and did as the LORD had commanded Moses and Aaron, so did they.

29 ¶ And it came to pass, that ^u at midnight ^v the LORD smote all the first-born in the land of Egypt, from ^w the first-born of Pharaoh that sat on his throne, unto the first-born of the captive that was in the ^x dungeon; and all the first-born of cattle.

30 And Pharaoh rose up in the night, he, and all his servants, and all the Egyptians; and there was ^y a great cry in Egypt: for there was not a house where there was not one dead.

31 ¶ And he called for Moses and Aaron by night, and said, ^z Rise up, and get you forth from among my people, both ye and ^a the children of Israel; and go, serve the LORD, as ye have said.

32 Also take your flocks and your herds, as ye have said, and be gone: and ^b bless me also.

33 And the Egyptians were ^c urgent upon the people, that they might send them out of the land in haste; for they said, ^d We be all dead men.

34 And the people took their dough before it was leavened, their ^e kneading-troughs being bound up in their clothes upon their shoulders.

Passover was offered. The precise moment is not fixed; any time was alike between the meridian and the twilight. There is a significance in the use of bitter herbs, which, doubtless, contributed to remind them of their cruel bondage. Such herbs, moreover, were symbolical of intense affliction. Ver. 11-37. The loose flowing garments of the East required to be gathered up and fixed by a girdle to fit men for journeying. The Passover was to be eaten in a travelling posture, that they might be prepared to set out at a moment's warning. The Passover derived its name from the fact that the Angel of Destruction passed over the houses of the Hebrews, sparing every family whose dwelling-places were sprinkled with blood,—a striking type of salvation by the blood of Christ. The Passover, as a type of Jesus, was destined for perpetuation till the advent of Christ should put an end to it; and it was accordingly so observed. The term “for ever,” therefore, simply implied throughout the whole Jewish dispensation. The injunction to keep within doors is highly significant, shewing that the protection promised was inseparable from blood. The term “first-born” implies some difficulty, since, in many families, there were none such. The term, therefore, is considered to comprise the most excellent, the 35 And the children of Israel did according to the word of Moses; ^aand they borrowed of the Egyptians jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment.

36 And ^athe LORD gave the people favour in the sight of the Egyptians, so that they lent unto them such things as they required: and they spoiled the Egyptians.

37 ^aAnd the children of Israel journeyed from Rameses to Succoth, about ^asix hundred thousand on foot that were men, besides children.

38 ^aAnd ^aa mixed multitude went up also with them; and flocks and herds, even very much cattle.

39 And they baked unleavened cakes of the dough which they brought forth out of Egypt, for it was not leavened; because they were ^athrust out of Egypt, and could not tarry, neither had they prepared for themselves any victual.

40 ^aNow the ^asojourning of the children of Israel, who dwelt in Egypt, was ^afour hundred and thirty years.

41 And it came to pass, at the end of the four hundred and thirty years, even ^athe self-same day it came to pass, that all the ^ahosts of the LORD went out from the land of Egypt.

42 It is ^aa night to be much ^aobserved unto the LORD for bringing them out from the land of Egypt: this is that night of the LORD to be observed of all the children of Israel in their generations.

43 ^aAnd the LORD said unto Moses and Aaron, This is the ordinance of the passover; ^aThere shall no stranger eat thereof:

44 But every man's servant that is bought for money, when thou hast ^acircumcised him, then shall he eat thereof.

45 A foreigner and an hired servant shall not eat thereof.

46 In ^aone house shall it be eaten: thou shalt not carry forth ought of the flesh abroad out of the house; ^aneither shall ye break a bone thereof.

47 ^aAll the congregation of Israel shall ^akeep it.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 The first-born sanctified to God. 3 The memorial of the passover is commanded. 21 God guideth them by a pillar of a cloud and of fire.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 ^aSanctify unto me all the first-born, whatsoever openeth the womb among the children of Israel, both of man and of beast: it is mine.

3 ^aAnd Moses said unto the people, ^aRemember this day, in which ye came out from Egypt, ^aout of the house of ^abondage; for by ^astrength of hand the LORD brought ye out from this place: ^athere shall no leavened bread be eaten.

4 This day came ye out, in the month ^aAbib.

5 And it shall be, when the LORD ^ashall bring thee into the land of the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites, which he ^asware unto thy fathers to give thee, ^aa land flowing with milk and honey, that ^athou shalt keep this service in this month.

6 ^aSeven days thou shalt eat unleavened bread, and in the seventh day shall be a feast to the LORD.

chief, and the most beloved,—a view which is supported by such scriptures as the following:—chap. iv. 22; Jer. xxi. 9; Heb. xi. 28. It is a term indicating pre-eminence; and when applied to anything bad, it signifies evil in the extreme. The numbers that set out were very great, about 600,000 men, consisting exclusively of individuals from 20 years and upwards, the rule by which they were numbered. To this if we add all the male sex under 20 years, and the whole of the females of every age, it is considered to give an aggregate of about 3,000,000 souls. It deserves to be specially noticed that this vast community, without exception, commenced the journey in the enjoyment of perfect health, and continued it in the same state till the close. How strikingly is the Divine favour here shewn!

Chap. XIII. 1-16. There seems a connexion between the sanctification or solemn setting apart of the first-born of the Hebrews and the destruction of the first-born of Egypt. The term to sanctify frequently implies a setting apart for a special work; but in the New Testament it more particularly refers to the renewal of the soul by the Spirit of the Lord. All things sanctified for the service of the Temple, which required to be used for common purposes, had to be redeemed or bought up, and the price was held to be sacred. The first-born was considered to possess peculiar worth; and hence its redemption was a suitable type of the deliverance of God's chosen people by the blood of the Lamb. The injunction to instruct the rising generation is suggestive of the duty which still devolves upon parents to teach, and upon children to learn, the things of God. Ver. 17-21. The distance between Egypt and Canaan, through the land of the Philistines, might have been accomplished in a few days; but the Hebrews had reason to fear that the Philistines would oppose their march; and as the bondage of Egypt had greatly broken the spirit of the children of Israel, they were morally, as well as in point of discipline, wholly unfit for war. On these grounds, therefore, it became expedient to conduct them through the desert, where they were placed under Divine instruction, and trained and prepared for the government which awaited them in the promised land. Moses was careful to remember the commandment of Joseph concerning his bones, doubtless that day rejoicing that the prediction of the dying patriarch was being realised, as God in very 8 And ^athou shalt shew thy son in that day, saying, This is done because of that which the LORD did unto me when I came forth out of Egypt.

9 And it shall be for ^aa sign unto thee upon thine hand, and for a memorial between thine eyes, that the LORD's law ^amay be in thy mouth: for with a ^astrong hand hath the LORD brought thee out of Egypt.

10 Thou shalt therefore ^akeep this ordinance in his season from year to year.

11 ¶ And it shall be, when the LORD shall bring thee into the land of the Canaanites, as he sware unto thee and to thy fathers, and shall give it thee, 12 That thou shalt ^aset apart unto the LORD all that ^aopeneth the matrix, and every firstling that cometh of a beast ^awhich thou hast; the males shall be the LORD's.

13 And every firstling ^aof an ass thou shalt redeem with a ^alamb; and if thou wilt not redeem it, then thou shalt break his neck: and all the first-born of man among thy children ^ashalt thou redeem.

14 ¶ And it shall be, when ^athy son asketh thee ^ain time to come, saying, What is this? that thou shalt say unto him, By strength of hand the LORD brought us out from Egypt, from the house of bondage:

15 And it came to pass, when Pharaoh would hardly let us go, that the LORD slew all the first-born in the land of Egypt, both the first-born of man, and the first-born of beast: therefore I sacrifice to the LORD all that openeth the matrix, being males; but all the first-born of my children I redeem.

16 And it shall be for a token upon thine hand, ^aand for frontlets between thine eyes; for by strength of hand the LORD brought us forth out of Egypt.

17 ¶ And it came to pass, when Pharaoh had let the people go, that God led them not through the way of the land of the Philistines, although that was near; for God said, Lest peradventure ^athe people repent when they see war, and they ^areturn to Egypt:

Red sea. And the children of Israel went up ^aharnessed out of the land of Egypt.

19 And Moses took the bones of Joseph with him: ^afor he had straitly sworn the children of Israel, saying, ^a"God will surely visit you; and ye shall carry up my bones away hence with you.

20 ¶ And ^athey took their journey from Succoth, and encamped in Etham, in the edge of the wilderness.

21 And ^athe LORD went before them by day in a pillar of a cloud, to lead them the way; and by night in a pillar of fire, to give them light, to go by day and night.

22 He ^atook not away the pillar of the cloud by day, nor the pillar of fire by night, from before the people.

CHAPTER XIV.

1 God instructeth the Israelites in their journey. 5 Pharaoh pursueth after them. 19 The cloud removeth behind the camp. 21 The Israelites pass through the Red Sea: 23 which drowneth the Egyptians.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

¶ Speak unto the children of Israel, ^athat they turn and encamp before Pihahiroth, between Migdol and the sea, over against Baal-zaphon: before it shall ye encamp by the sea.

3 For ^aPharaoh will say of the children of Israel, ^a"They are entangled in the land, the wilderness hath shut them in.

4 And ^aI will harden Pharaoh's heart, that he shall follow after them; ^aand I will be honoured upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host; that the Egyptians may know that I am the LORD. And they did so.

5 ¶ And it was told the king of Egypt that the people fled: and the heart of Pharaoh and of his servants was turned against the people, and they said, ^a"Why have we done this, that we have let Israel go from serving us?

6 And he made ready his chariot, and took his people with him.

7 And he took ^asix hundred chosen chariots, and all the chariots of Egypt, and captains over every one of them.

8 And the LORD hardened the heart of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and he pursued after the children of Israel; and the children of Israel went out ^awith an high hand.

9 But the Egyptians pursued after dead had "visited his people." The Angel of the Covenant, the Messiah, now manifested himself in his glory. A bright flame had, from the earliest times, indicated his holy presence, and was designated by the Jews the Shekinah. The awfully glorious provision of the pillar of fire and of cloud, was calculated to operate most beneficially in subduing rebellion, composing strifes, and preserving the mind in a tone of awe and devotion. It was a magnificent conclusion to the terrible scenes which had marked the emancipation of Israel from the land of Egypt.

Chap. XIV. 1-12. Pharaoh commenced the pursuit with malice and fury, forgetful of the terrible judgments to which his people had been so recently subjected. He rejoiced to think that the Israelites would be entangled and shut up, and thus become an easy prey. He was engaged at the thought of losing the labour of such a multitude of slaves. If we observe how this passion still operates amongst the planters of slave countries, we shall be enabled to form some conception of the wrath of the king. The loss would have been absolutely incredible; he was therefore intent, at whatever cost, on their recovery. This idea so occupied the royal mind, that he could think on nothing else; and in some respects it even led him to divest himself of common prudence. The chariots of those days generally carried three persons—one to guide the vehicle, another to protect him, and a third to fight. An army of horsemen accompanied the chariots. Every provision was thus made for recovering the fugitive millions. It was, of course, easy to overtake a people walking on foot; and they were so overtaken, to their unspeakable consternation; for notwithstanding the recent displays of the Lord's arm on their behalf, their faith seemed to fail them in the hour of trial. Instead of praying, they burst forth in rebellion against Moses, insultingly asking if there "were no graves in Egypt, that he had taken them to die in the wilderness."

them, (all the horses and chariots of Pharaoh, and his horsemen, and his army,) and overtook them encamping by the sea, beside Pi-hahiroth, before Baal-zephon.

10 ¶ And when Pharaoh drew nigh, the children of Israel lifted up their eyes, and, behold, the Egyptians marched after them; and they were sore afraid: and the children of Israel cried out unto the LORD.

11 And they said unto Moses, 'Because there were no graves in Egypt, hast thou taken us away to die in the wilderness? wherefore hast thou dealt thus with us, to carry us forth out of Egypt?

12 Is not this the word that we did tell thee in Egypt, saying, "Let us alone, that we may serve the Egyptians? For it had been better for us to serve the Egyptians, than that we should die in the wilderness."

13 ¶ And Moses said unto the people, "Fear ye not, stand still, and see the salvation of the LORD, which he will shew to you to-day: for the Egyptians whom ye have seen to-day, ye shall see them again no more for ever."

14 ¶ The LORD shall fight for you, and ye shall hold your peace.

15 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, "Wherefore criest thou unto me? speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward:

16 But lift thou up thy rod, and stretch out thine hand over the sea, and divide it; and the children of Israel shall go on dry ground through the midst of the sea."

17 And "I, behold, I will harden the hearts of the Egyptians, and they shall follow them: and I will get me honour upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host, upon his chariots, and upon his horsemen."

18 And the Egyptians shall know that I am the LORD, when I have gotten me honour upon Pharaoh, upon his chariots, and upon his horsemen."

19 ¶ And "the angel of God, which went before the camp of Israel, removed, and went behind them; and the pillar of the cloud went from before their face, and stood behind them."

20 And it came between the camp of the Egyptians and the camp of Israel; and it was "a cloud and darkness to them, but it gave light by night to these: so that the one came not near the other all the night.

21 ¶ And Moses stretched out his hand over the sea; and "the LORD caused the sea to go back by a strong east wind all that night, and made the sea dry land, and the waters were divided."

22 And "the children of Israel went into the midst of the sea upon the dry ground: and the waters were "a wall unto them on their right hand, and on their left."

23 ¶ And "the Egyptians pursued, and went in after them to the midst of the sea, even all Pharaoh's horses, his chariots, and his horsemen."

24 And it came to pass, that, in the morning watch, the LORD "looked unto the host of the Egyptians through the pillar of fire and of the cloud, "and troubled the host of the Egyptians."

25 And "took off their chariot-wheels, "that they drove them heavily: so that the Egyptians said, "Let us flee from the face of Israel; "for the LORD fighteth for them against the Egyptians."

26 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Stretch out thine hand over the sea, that "the waters may come again upon the Egyptians, upon their chariots, and upon their horsemen."

27 And Moses stretched forth his hand over the sea, and the sea returned to his strength when the morning appeared; and the Egyptians fled against it; "and the LORD "overthrew the Egyptians in the midst of the sea."

28 And "the waters returned, and covered the chariots, and the horsemen, and all the host of Pharaoh that came into the sea after them; there "remained not so much as one of them."

29 But the children of Israel "walked upon dry land in the midst of the sea; and the waters were a wall unto them on their right hand, and on their left."

30 Thus "the LORD saved Israel that day out of the hand of the Egyptians; and Israel saw the Egyptians dead upon the sea-shore."

31 And Israel saw that great "work which the LORD did upon the Egyptians: and the people "feared the LORD, and "believed the LORD, and his servant Moses."

Ver. 13-31. Their language was certainly very reprehensible; but the Lord, in mercy, overlooked their guilt, and thought only of their necessities. Moses, too, had patience, and addressed to them cheering exhortations. They had but to "stand still and see the salvation of God." The Angel of the Covenant himself came to their rescue. The Divine patience was now exhausted, and vengeance to the utmost must descend on the guilty king. The part of the ocean through which travellers have supposed they passed, was about four leagues broad. If the passage was a little to the north of Suez, with which travellers to India in our day are familiar, the distance from shore to shore being only a few miles, the whole of the children of Israel might soon reach the opposite side. Every circumstance connected with it proves the passage of the Red Sea to be wholly miraculous; and the attempts of infidelity to account for it by natural causes, simply prove the folly of those who make them. Nothing was wanted to surround the scene with unutterable terror. The awe-inspiring splendour issuing from the pillar of the cloud shining in the face of the foe, combined, it is probable, with tempests, thunder, and hailstones, shot from above, as set forth in Psalm lxxii., necessarily put them to the utmost disorder. The ocean, relieved from its fetters, speedily performed the work of death. It is impossible to ascertain the exact number of the Egyptians that perished. Josephus, however, reckons the cavalry at 50,000, and the infantry at 200,000,—numbers probably not much, if anything, in excess, when it is remembered how great was the multitude they sought to sorrow shall take hold on the inhabitants of Palestina.

¹⁵ Then the dukes of Edom shall be amazed; the mighty men ^dof Moab, trembling shall take hold upon them: ^eall the inhabitants of Canaan shall ^fmelt away.

²¹ And Miriam ^wanswered them, "Sing ye to the LORD, for he hath triumphed gloriously; the horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea."

Chap. XV. 1-21. This song is not only one of the noblest, but the most ancient poetical composition extant. It has been deservedly admired by cultivated minds in every age and country, for the boldness of its imagery, the sublimity of its sentiments, and the dignity of its style. Its piety is extraordinary, and, rightly understood, it is of a thoroughly evangelical nature: "salvation is of the Lord," God is everything, man nothing but what grace makes him. There is a remarkable affinity between this noblest of songs and that which is sung by the victorious saints over Antichrist, as set forth in Revelation xv. 2-4. No event up to this time, since the creation of all things, so strikingly illustrated the Divine perfections, and presented so many remarkable analogies to the redemption of mankind. The imagery is most magnificent. It were impossible to celebrate triumph in a strain more ennobling. The derision is matchless, and wonderfully descriptive of the imperial arrogance of Pharaoh, "I will pursue, I will overtake, I will divide the spoil; my desire shall be satisfied upon them, my hand shall destroy them." Infatuated man! There was then preparing for him the most fearful doom that ever overtook a rebellious reptile of the dust. The family of Moses was signally honoured. In addition to the exaltation of Aaron, Miriam was raised to the rank of Inspiration. She is first called a prophetess. Ver. 22-27. There is reason to believe that travellers have found the exact spot called Elim, where were the twelve wells of water, and the threescore and ten palm trees. According to Shaw, nine of the wells still remain, the others being filled up with drifts of sand, very common in Arabia. This loss, however, he states is supplied by the fact that the seventy palm trees have increased to upwards of two thousand. These palm trees are green and flourishing, his sight, and will give ear to his commandments, and keep all his statutes, I will put none of these 'diseases upon thee, which I have brought upon the Egyptians: "for I am the LORD that healeth thee.

27 ¶ And they came to ^aElim, where were twelve wells of water, and threescore and ten palm trees: and they encamped there by the waters.

CHAPTER XVI.

1 The Israelites murmur for want of bread. 18 Quails are sent, 14 and manna.

AND they ^atook their journey from ^aElim; and all the congregation of the children of Israel came unto the wilderness of ^bSin, which is between Elim and Sinai, on the fifteenth day of the second month after their departing out of the land of Egypt.

2 And the ^cwhole congregation of the children of Israel murmured against Moses and Aaron in the wilderness.

3 And the children of Israel said unto them, ^d"Would to God ^ewe had died by the hand of the LORD in the land of Egypt, when we sat by the 'flesh-pots, and when we did eat bread to the full; for ye have brought us forth into this wilderness, ^f"to kill this whole assembly with ^ghunger.

4 ¶ Then said the LORD unto Moses, Behold, ^h"I will rain bread from heaven for you; and the people shall go out and gather ⁱa certain rate every day, that I may ^jprove them, whether they will walk in my law, or no.

5 And it shall come to pass, that on the sixth day they shall ^kprepare that which they bring in; and it shall be twice as much as they gather daily.

6 And Moses and Aaron said unto all the children of Israel, At even, then ye shall know that ^l"the LORD hath brought you out from the land of Egypt:

7 And in the morning, then ^mye shall see the glory of the LORD; for that he heareth your murmurings against the LORD: and what ⁿare we, that ye murmur against us?

8 And Moses said, ^oThis shall be, when the LORD shall give you in the evening flesh to eat, and in the morning bread to the full; for that ^pthe LORD heareth your murmurings which ye murmur against him: and what ^qare we? your murmurings are not against us, but ^ragainst the LORD.

bearing pleasant fruit, as well as supplying refreshing shade. The Arabians up to the present hour hold the tradition that the household of Moses encamped there. Indeed, they continue to this day to look on the whole coast with awe, as the place of an unparalleled destruction. In their superstitious, they still profess to hear in the bay the wailings of the ghosts of Pharaoh's army.

Chap. XVI. 1-8. The memory of the mighty deeds so recently performed, was soon forgotten amid the murmurings of an unbelieving, ungrateful, and unenlightened multitude. Never did human nature appear to less advan-unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, ^c"Come near before the LORD: for he hath heard your murmurings.

10 And it came to pass, as Aaron spake unto the whole congregation of the children of Israel, ^d"that they looked toward the wilderness, and, behold, the glory of the LORD ^eappeared in the cloud.

11 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

12 I have heard the murmurings of the children of Israel: speak unto them, saying, At even ye shall eat flesh, and in the morning ye shall be filled with bread; and ^fye shall know that I am the LORD your God.

13 And it came to pass, that at even ^g"the quails came up, and covered the camp; and in the morning the dew lay round about the host.

14 And when ^h"the dew that lay was gone up, behold, upon the face of the wilderness ⁱthere lay a small round thing, as small as ^j"the hoar-frost on the ground.

15 And when the children of Israel saw it, they said one to another, ^k"It is ^l"manna: for they wist not what it was. And Moses said unto them, ^m"This is the bread which the LORD hath given you to eat.

16 ¶ This is the thing which the LORD hath commanded, Gather of it every man according to his eating, an omer ⁿfor every man, according to the number of your ^opersons; take ye every man for ^pthem which are in his tents.

17 And the children of Israel did so, and gathered, some more, some less.

18 And when they did mete it with an omer, ^qhe that gathered much had nothing over, and he that gathered little had no lack: they gathered every man according to his eating.

19 And Moses said, Let no man ^rleave of it till the morning.

20 Notwithstanding they hearkened not unto Moses; but some of them left of it until the morning, and it ^sbred worms, and stank: ^tand Moses was wroth with them.

21 And they gathered it every ^umorning, every man according to his eating: and when the sun waxed hot, it melted.

22 ¶ And it came to pass, ^vthat ^won the sixth day they gathered twice as much bread, two omers for one ^xman: and all the rulers of the congregation came and told Moses.

23 And he said unto them, ^yThis is ^zthat which the LORD hath said, To-morrow is tage than when these emancipated millions longed for Egypt, where they "sat by the flesh-pots, and did eat bread to the full." Such language, and the feelings it indicates, demonstrate the thoroughly prostrate intellectual character of the people. They have now forgotten their bondage, and thought only of their miserable viands. Ver. 9-18. Quails are somewhat like partridges, and are delicious food. They abound in the East. It is usual for a hot wind to bring them north in large quantities, and, weary of their flight, they are often taken by the hand. Ver. 14-36. The manna was clearly unknown to the Israelites, hence, it is to be presumed, it was a thing the ¹rest of the holy sabbath unto the LORD: ²bake that which ye will bake to-day, and seethe that ye will seethe; and that which remaineth over lay up for you, to be kept until the morning.

24 And they laid it up till the morning, as Moses bade; and it did not stink, neither was there any worm therein.

25 And Moses said, Eat that to-day; for to-day is a sabbath unto the LORD: to-day ye shall not find it in the field.

26 ¹Six days ye shall gather it; but on the seventh day, which is the sabbath, in it there shall be none.

27 ¶ And it came to pass, that there went out some of the people on the seventh day for to gather, and they found none.

28 And the LORD said unto Moses, ¹How long refuse ye to keep my commandments and my laws!

29 See, for that the LORD ²hath given you the sabbath, therefore he giveth you on the sixth day the bread of two days: abide ye every man in his place; let no man go out of his place on the seventh day.

30 So the people rested on the seventh day.

31 And the house of Israel called the name thereof Manna: ²and it was like coriander-seed, white; and the taste of it was like wafers made with honey.

32 ¶ And Moses said, This is the thing which the LORD commandeth, ³Fill an omer of it, to be kept for your generations; that they may see the bread wherewith I have fed you in the wilderness, when I brought you forth from the land of Egypt.

33 And Moses said unto Aaron, Take a pot, and put an omer full of manna therein, and lay it up before the LORD, to be kept for your generations.

34 As the LORD commanded Moses, so Aaron laid it up before the ⁴Testimony, to be kept.

35 And the children of Israel did eat manna ⁵forty years, until they came to a land inhabited: they did eat manna until they came unto ⁶the borders of the land of Canaan.

36 Now an omer is the tenth part of an ephah.

CHAPTER XVII.

1 The people murmur for water at Rephidim. 5 Moses sent to the rock in Horeb. 13 Amalek is overcome.

AND all the congregation of the children of Israel journeyed from the wilderness of ²Sin, after their journeys, according to the commandment of the LORD, and pitched in Rephidim: and there was no water for the people to drink.

2 Wherefore ³the people did chide with Moses, and said, ⁴Give us water that we may drink. And Moses said unto them, Why chide ye with me? ⁵wherefore do ye tempt the LORD?

3 And the people thirsted there for water; and the people murmured against Moses, and said, Wherefore is this that thou hast brought us up out of Egypt, to kill us, and our children, and our cattle, with thirst?

4 And Moses ⁶cried unto the LORD, saying, What shall I do unto this people? they be ⁷almost ready to stone me.

5 And the LORD said unto Moses, Go on before the people, and take with thee of the elders of Israel; and ⁸thy rod, wherewith thou smotest the river, take in thine hand, and go.

6 Behold, I will stand before thee there upon the rock in Horeb; ⁹and thou shalt smite the rock, and there shall come water out of it, ¹⁰that the people may drink. And Moses did so in the sight of the elders of Israel.

7 And he called the name of the place ¹¹Massah, and ¹²Meribah, because of the chiding of the children of Israel, and because ¹³they tempted the LORD, saying, ¹⁴Is the LORD among us, or not?

8 ¶ Then came ¹⁵Amalek, and fought with Israel in Rephidim.

9 And Moses said ¹⁶unto ¹⁷Joshua, Choose us out men, and go out, fight with Amalek: to-morrow I will stand on the top of the hill, with the rod of God in mine hand.

10 So ¹⁸Joshua did as Moses had said to him, and fought with Amalek: and Moses, Aaron, and Hur, went up to the top of the hill.

11 And it came to pass, when ¹⁹Moses held up his hand, that Israel prevailed; quite different from what is now called manna. It was the product of Divine power, and given in such quantities as to demonstrate its miraculous character. It was a figure of the better "bread which came down from heaven." They did "eat of the manna and died;" but those who participate in the bread of life shall live for ever! The Israelites did not more depend for their subsistence from day to day upon the manna, than the souls of the saints are dependent on the truth and grace of the Lord Jesus Christ. Let it be remembered that the Israelites subsisted on the manna forty years, which may give some idea of the aggregate amount of the Divine benevolence. It is calculated that they consumed 94,466 bushels every day, which, in the space of forty years, amounts to no less than 1,379,208,600.

Chap. XVII. 1-10. Moses invariably had recourse to prayer in times of trouble; whatever was the burden that oppressed him, he never failed to find relief in an appeal to the Father of mercies. When the people assailed him, he fled to the throne of grace. Travellers suppose that the rock in question was an immense mass of red granite, inasmuch as it abounds extensively in those regions. According to some, amongst whom is Shaw, the rock of Rephidim, up to the present hour, bears all the marks of the miracle, having several holes out of which the water gushed, and some channels about two inches deep, and twenty wide. There is reason to suspect, however, that this is some of the "pious frauds" of the popish monks to be found in that quarter. The water, on the present occasion, had a beautifully figurative character. We have the highest authority, 1 Cor. x. 4, that the rock and the water represented Christ the Lord. Ver. 11-14. This holding up the hands of Moses is one of the finest things in scripture touching the exercise of prayer. The attitude was one in which it had been impossible for Moses long to persevere without assistance. How strikingly this shews the use and ne-and when he let down his hand, Amalek prevailed.

12 But Moses' hands were heavy; and they took a stone, and put it under him, and he sat thereon; and Aaron and Hur stayed up his hands, the one on the one side, and the other on the other side; and his hands were steady until the going down of the sun.

13 And Joshua discomfited Amalek and his people with the edge of the sword.

14 And the LORD said unto Moses, Write this for a memorial in a book, and rehearse it in the ears of Joshua; for I will utterly put out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven.

15 And Moses built an altar, and called the name of it JEHOVAH-nissi:

16 For he said, Because the LORD hath sworn, that the LORD will have war with Amalek from generation to generation.

CHAPTER XVIII.

1 Jethro bringeth to Moses his wife and two sons; 7 Moses entertaineth him; 13 and accepteth his counsel.

WHEN Jethro, the priest of Midian, Moses' father-in-law, heard of all that God had done for Moses, and for Israel his people, and that the LORD had brought Israel out of Egypt:

2 Then Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, took Zipporah, Moses' wife, after he had sent her back,

3 And her two sons; of which the name of the one was Gershom; for he said, I have been an alien in a strange land:

4 And the name of the other was Eliezer; for the God of my father, said he, was mine help, and delivered me from the sword of Pharaoh.

5 And Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, came with his sons and his wife unto Moses into the wilderness, where he encamped at the mount of God:

6 And he said unto Moses, I thy father-in-law Jethro am come unto thee, and thy wife, and her two sons with her.

7 ¶ And Moses went out to meet his father-in-law, and did obeisance, and kissed him; and they asked each other of their welfare: and they came into the tent.

8 And Moses told his father-in-law all that the LORD had done unto Pharaoh, and to the Egyptians, for Israel's sake, and all the travail that had come upon them by the way, and how the LORD delivered them.

9 ¶ And Jethro rejoiced for all the goodness which the LORD had done to Israel, whom he had delivered out of the hand of the Egyptians.

10 And Jethro said, Blessed be the LORD, who hath delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and out of the hand of Pharaoh; who hath delivered the people from under the hand of the Egyptians.

11 Now I know that the LORD is greater than all gods: for in the thing wherein they dealt proudly he was above them.

12 And Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, took a burnt-offering and sacrifices for God: and Aaron came, and all the elders of Israel, to eat bread with Moses' father-in-law before God.

13 ¶ And it came to pass on the morrow, that Moses sat to judge the people: and the people stood by Moses from the morning unto the evening.

14 And when Moses' father-in-law saw all that he did to the people, he said, What is this thing that thou doest to the people? why sittest thou thyself alone, and all the people stand by thee from morning unto even?

15 And Moses said unto his father-in-law, Because the people come unto me to enquire of God.

16 When they have a matter, they come unto me; and I judge between one and another, and I do make them know the statutes of God, and his laws.

17 And Moses' father-in-law said unto him, The thing that thou doest is not good.

18 Thou wilt surely wear away, both thou and this people that is with thee: for this thing is too heavy for thee; thou art not able to perform it thyself alone.

19 Hearken now unto my voice, I will give thee counsel, and God shall be with thee: Be thou for the people to Godward, that thou mayest bring the causes unto God:

20 And thou shalt teach them ordinances and laws, and shalt shew them the way wherein they must walk, and the work that they must do.

21 Moreover, thou shalt provide out of all the people able men, such as fear God, men of truth, hating covetousness, and place such over them, to be rulers of thousands, and rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens.

22 And let them judge the people at all seasons: and it shall be, that every great matter they shall bring unto thee, cessity of society in the matter of devotion! The heart that would soon flag in solitary prayer, can continue by the hour together in company with fellow-worshippers.

Chap. XVIII. 1-18. We have here a beautiful example of the hospitable character of earlier times, and a specimen of the festivities of the Patriarchal families, who, like the first disciples, "did eat their bread with gladness and singleness of heart." Jethro was an observant and wise man, eminently fit for the office he sustained, and capable even of giving advice to Moses, such as was suitable to his circumstances, and calculated to promote alike his own comforts and the people's welfare. Enquiry of God meant more than prayer; it implied consultation in all cases of perplexity, and receiving the necessary instruction. Ver. 19-22. Jethro shewed how conversant he was with human nature when he proposed such men as those described in verse 21. It were impossible to combine a larger amount of excellent wisdom in the same space. "Able men, such as fear God, men of truth, hating covetousness." Would that all officers in the Church and in the nation were but stamped with but every small matter they shall judge: so shall it be easier for thyself, and they shall bear the burden with thee.

23 If thou shalt do this thing, and ^aGod command thee so, then thou shalt be able to endure, ^aand all this people shall also go to their place in peace.

24 So ^aMoses hearkened to the voice of his father-in-law, and did all that he had said.

25 And Moses chose able men out of all Israel, and made them heads over the people, rulers of thousands, rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens.

26 And they judged the people at all seasons: ^athe hard causes they brought unto Moses, but every small matter they judged themselves.

27 ^aAnd Moses ^alet his father-in-law depart; and he went his way into his own land.

1 The people come to Sinai. 3 God's message by Moses unto the people out of the mount. 8 The people's answer returned again. 16 The fearful presence of God upon the mount.

IN ^athe third month, when the children of Israel were gone forth out of the land of Egypt, the same day ^bcame they into the wilderness of Sinai.

2 For they were departed from Rephidim, and were come to the desert of Sinai, and had pitched in the wilderness: and there Israel ^ccamped before the mount.

3 ^aAnd Moses ^awent up unto God, and the LORD called unto him out of the mountain, saying, Thus shalt thou say to the house of Jacob, and tell the children of Israel;

4 Ye have ^aseen what I did unto the Egyptians, and how ^aI bare you on eagles' wings, and brought you unto myself.

5 Now therefore, ^aif ye will obey my voice indeed, and ^bkeep my covenant, then ye shall be ^aa peculiar treasure unto me above all people; for ^aall the earth is mine.

6 And ye shall be unto me ^aa kingdom of priests, ^aand an holy nation. These are the words which thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel.

7 ^aAnd Moses came, and called for the elders of the people, ^aand laid before their faces all these words which the LORD commanded him.

8 And all the people ^aanswered together, and said, All that the LORD hath spoken we will do. And Moses returned the words of the people unto the LORD.

9 And the LORD said unto Moses, ^aLo, I come unto thee in a thick cloud, ^athat the people may hear when I speak with thee, and ^abelieve thee for ever. And Moses told the words of the people unto the LORD.

10 ^aAnd the LORD said unto Moses, Go unto the people, and ^asanctify them to-day and to-morrow, and let them ^awash their clothes, 11 And be ready against the third day: for the third day ^athe LORD will come down in the sight of all the people upon mount Sinai.

12 And thou shalt set bounds unto the people round about, saying, ^aTake heed to yourselves, that ye go not up into the mount, ^aor touch the border of it: whosoever toucheth the mount shall be surely put to death:

13 There shall not an hand touch it, but he shall surely be stoned, or shot through; whether it be beast or man, it shall not live: ^awhen the ^atrumpet soundeth long, they shall come up to the mount.

14 ^aAnd Moses went down from the mount unto the people, and sanctified the people; and they washed their clothes.

15 And he said unto the people, ^aBe ready against the third day: ^bcome not at your wives.

16 And it came to pass on the third day, in the morning, that there were ^athunders and lightnings, and a ^athick cloud upon the mount, and the ^avoice of the trumpet exceeding loud: so that all the people that was in the camp trembled.

17 And Moses brought forth the people out of the camp to meet with God; and they stood at the nether part of the mount.

18 And ^amount Sinai was altogether on a smoke, because the LORD descended upon it ^ain fire; and the smoke thereof ascended ^aas the smoke of a furnace, and the ^awhole mount quaked greatly.

19 And when the voice of the trumpet sounded long, and waxed louder and louder, Moses spake, and God answered him by a voice.

the same attributes! The idea of classification also is excellent. In some parts of the world, to this moment, it still prevails; and, indeed, the arrangements of our own King Alfred, in some respects, bear a strong resemblance to it.

Chap. XIX. 1-8. Moses now began to be sensible of his difficulties, and of the peculiarly arduous character of the labour he was called to sustain. To prepare him, he was summoned to an interview with the God of Abraham, that he might be taught how to proceed with the national organisation. For the accomplishment of this, the children of Israel remained a long time at the foot of Mount Sinai, a fact which has rendered it renowned above all the mountains of the world. The eagle supplies fine similes for the explanation of scriptural subjects. That bird is remarkable for strength of wing, and rapidity of flight. Its affection for its young is also very great, and its own life very long. For these reasons, it is honoured to present an emblem of the Divine care over God's chosen people. "A kingdom of priests," and a "holy nation," is quite a new idea, which beautifully illustrates the character of the New Testament Church. No such kingdom had ever previously been heard of, and nothing has ever occurred on earth corresponding with it, but in connexion with Christianity. Ver. 9-24. The position of Moses, in the present circumstances, was one peculiarly awful and honourable. The voice of the Angel of the Covenant proceeded from the midst of the fire; the cloud strikingly represented his love, grace, and mercy to his chosen people. The grandeur of the scene was inexpressible. Justice, purity, and power were awfully set forth, and everything was done to produce upon the hearts of the people indelible impressions. The third day of the third new moon is computed to have been the fiftieth day after the Exodus, the day on which the law was delivered.

20 And the LORD came down upon mount Sinai, on the top of the mount: and the LORD called Moses up to the top of the mount; and ¹Moses went up.

21 And the LORD said unto Moses, Go down, ²charge the people, lest they ¹break through unto the LORD to gaze, and many of them perish.

22 And let ^mthe priests also, which come near to the LORD, sanctify themselves, lest the LORD ²break forth upon them.

23 And Moses said unto the LORD, The people cannot come up to mount Sinai: for thou chargedst us, saying, ^oSet bounds about the mount, and sanctify it.

24 And the LORD said unto him, Away, get thee down, and thou shalt come up, thou, and Aaron with thee: ^pbut let not the priests and the people break through to come up unto the LORD, ^qlest he break forth upon them.

25 So Moses went down unto the people, and spake unto them.

18 ^{ad}And ^{ae}all the people saw the thunderings, and the lightnings, and the noise of the trumpet, and the mountain smoking: and, when the people saw it, they removed, and stood afar off.

19 And they said unto Moses, ^{af}Speak thou with us, and we will hear: but let not God speak with us, lest we die.

20 And Moses said unto the people, Fear not: for God is come to ^{ag}prove you, and that ^{ah}his fear may be before your faces, that ye sin not.

21 And the people stood afar off: and Moses drew near unto the thick darkness where God was.

22 ^{ai}And the LORD said unto Moses, Thus thou shalt say unto the children of Israel, Ye have seen that ^{aj}I have talked with you from heaven.

23 Ye ^{ak}shall not make with me gods of silver, neither shall ye make unto you gods of gold.

24 ^{al}Thou shalt make an altar of earth thou shalt make unto me, and shalt sacrifice thereon thy burnt-offerings, and thy peace-offerings, thy sheep, and thine oxen. ^{am}In all places where I record my name I will come unto thee, and I will ^{an}bless thee.

25 And if thou wilt make me an altar of stone, thou shalt not ^{ao}build it of hewn stone: for if thou lift up thy tool upon it, thou hast polluted it.

26 Neither shalt thou go up by steps unto mine altar, that ^{ap}thy nakedness be not discovered thereon.

The giving of the law was by far the most solemn scene of which the people had yet been witness. Its importance was manifest by the circumstances attending its proclamation. The dispensation under which Christians are called to live, is altogether different. Love here takes the lead of power, and mercy of justice. The one Mediator between God and man, the man Christ Jesus, has secured for his people the privileges of adoption, whereby they become the children of God, and have access at all times through the Son to the Father.

Chap. XX. 1-17. The proclamation of the commandments was an important event. It convinced the people at once of the necessity of a Mediator, as also a sacrifice to expiate their guilt, and inspire them with confidence before God. These laws, though here rehearsed and arranged, were not newly instituted; they were felt and acted on by Adam in the days of his innocence, and hence they had only to be revived. Alike universal and unchangeable, they extended to the thoughts and the desires, which shewed their divine character and perfect adaptation to human nature. The laws of man can take cognisance only of his actions; it is the province of God alone to deal with the springs of thought. Nothing is wanted but the universal prevalence of obedience to these laws to produce universal happiness. The establishment of this law would render useless and needless all the laws of men concerning personal conduct.

CHAPTER XXI.

1 Laws for men-servants. 6 For the servant whose ear is bored. 7 For women-servants. 12 For manslaughter. 16 For stealers of men. 17 For cursers of parents. 18 For smiters.

NOW these are the judgments which thou shalt set before them.

2 If thou buy an Hebrew servant, six years he shall serve; and in the seventh he shall go out free for nothing.

3 If he came in by himself, he shall go out by himself; if he were married, then his wife shall go out with him.

4 If his master have given him a wife, and she have born him sons or daughters; the wife and her children shall be her master's, and he shall go out by himself.

5 And if the servant shall plainly say, I love my master, my wife, and my children; I will not go out free:

6 Then his master shall bring him unto the judges; he shall also bring him to the door, or unto the door-post: and his master shall bore his ear through with an awl; and he shall serve him for ever.

7 And if a man sell his daughter to be a maid-servant, she shall not go out as the men-servants do.

8 If she please not her master, who hath betrothed her to himself, then shall he let her be redeemed: to sell her unto a strange nation he shall have no power, seeing he hath dealt deceitfully with her.

9 And if he have betrothed her unto his son, he shall deal with her after the manner of daughters.

10 If he take him another wife; her food, her raiment, and her duty of marriage, shall he not diminish.

11 And if he do not these three unto her, then shall she go out free without money.

12 He that smiteth a man, so that he die, shall be surely put to death.

13 And if a man lie in wait, but God deliver him into his hand; then I will appoint thee a place whither he shall flee.

14 But if a man come presumptuously upon his neighbour, to slay him with guile; thou shalt take him from mine altar, that he may die.

15 And he that smiteth his father or his mother shall be surely put to death.

16 And he that stealeth a man, and 29 But if the ox were wont to push with his horn in time past, and it hath been testified to his owner, and he hath not kept him in, but that he hath killed a man or a woman; the ox shall be stoned, and his owner also shall be put to death.

30 If there be laid on him a sum of money, then he shall give, for the ransom of his life, whatsoever is laid upon him.

31 Whether he have gored a son, or have gored a daughter, according to this judgment shall it be done unto him.

Chap. XXI. 1-10. As a first step towards the regular organization of the people, Moses here sets forth the laws which were to govern their economy. These precepts are merely the development of the ten commandments, which, while primarily and specially addressed to the Jews, are, in their principles, applicable to the whole human race. Slavery among the Jews was little more than a sort of apprenticeship, a service of seven years, after which the party was to be set at liberty. A malefactor was sold by the judge as a species of punishment, corresponding with our modern banishment. But in the case of the poor, the act was voluntary: they sold themselves. The slave of that day was held for either a limited period or for life, and laboured for a consideration. Regard being had to the intellectual and social condition of man, and the political and religious state of the neighbouring nations, slavery, so called, amongst the Jews, as regulated by the law of Moses, was comparatively, a substantial good, although in itself comprising the principle of essential evil. The boring of the ear was indeed a mark of perpetual slavery; but still the act was voluntary. The Jewish system knew nothing of compulsory thralldom in perpetuity. The jubilee, or the death of the master, always brought deliverance. Girls were not to be sold on the same condition as young men: they were to be properly used as wives, or at once restored to liberty. Ver. 11-33. Altars, in heathen countries, were places of refuge, of which we have many examples in ancient history. But such was the regard of the Jewish law for life, that even the altar could not protect the murderer, forasmuch as the God of the altar had condemned him to death. In ancient times it was not so customary as now to punish opulent evil-doers by imposing a pecuniary fine. The law of retaliation was 32 If the ox shall push a man-servant, or maid-servant; he shall give unto their master ³⁰thirty shekels of silver, ³¹and the ox shall be stoned.

33 ¶ And if a man shall ¹open a pit, or if a man shall dig a pit, and not cover it, and an ox or an ass fall therein;

34 The ¹owner of the pit shall make it good, and give money unto the owner of them; and the dead beast shall be his.

35 ¶ And if one man's ox hurt another's, that he die; then they shall sell the live ox, and divide the money of it; and the dead ox also they shall divide.

36 Or ¹if it be known that the ox hath used to push in time past, and his owner hath not kept him in; he shall surely pay ox for ox; and the dead shall be his own.

CHAPTER XXII.

¹ Of theft. ⁷ Of trespasses. ¹⁴ Of borrowing. ¹⁶ Of fornication. ¹⁸ Of witchcraft. ¹⁹ Of bestiality. ²⁰ Of idolatry. ²¹ Of widows and fatherless. ²⁵ Of usury. ²⁸ Of reverence to magistrates.

If a man shall steal an ox, or a ¹sheep, and kill it, or sell it; ²he shall restore ³five oxen for an ox, and four sheep for a sheep.

2 If a thief be found ¹breaking up, and be smitten that he die, there shall ²no blood be shed for him.

3 If the sun be risen upon him, there shall be blood shed for him; for he should make full restitution: if he have nothing, ¹then he shall be sold for his theft.

4 If the theft be certainly ¹found in his hand alive, whether it be ox, or ass, or sheep, ²he shall restore double.

5 ¶ If a man shall cause a field or vineyard to be eaten, and shall put in his beast, and shall feed in another man's field; of the best of his own field, and of the best of his own vineyard, ¹he shall he make restitution.

6 ¶ If fire break out, and catch in thorns, ¹so that the stacks of corn, or the standing corn, or the field, be consumed therewith; ²he that kindled the fire shall surely make restitution.

7 ¶ If a man shall deliver unto his neighbour money or stuff to keep, and it be stolen out of the man's house; ¹if the thief be found, ²let him pay double.

8 If the thief be not found, then the master of the house shall be brought unto ¹the judges, to see whether he have put his hand unto his neighbour's goods.

9 For all manner of ¹trespass, whether it be for ox, for ass, for sheep, for raiment, or for any manner of lost thing, which another challengeth to be his, ²the cause of both parties shall come before the judges; and whom the judges shall condemn, he shall ³pay double unto his neighbour.

10 If a man ¹deliver unto his neighbour an ass, or an ox, or a sheep, or any beast, to keep, and it die, or be hurt, or driven away, no man seeing it:

11 Then shall ¹an oath of the LORD be between them both, ²that he hath not put his hand unto his neighbour's goods; and the owner of it shall accept thereof; and he shall not make it good.

12 And if it be ¹stolen from him, he shall make restitution unto the owner thereof.

13 If it be ¹torn in pieces, then let him bring it for witness, and he shall not make good that which was torn.

14 ¶ And if a man ¹borrow ought of his neighbour, and it be hurt, or die, the owner thereof being not with it; he shall surely ²make it good.

15 But if the owner thereof be with it, he shall not make it good: if it be an hired thing, ¹it came for his hire.

16 ¶ And if ¹a man entice a maid that is not betrothed, and lie with her; he shall surely endow her to be his wife.

17 If her father ¹utterly refuse to give her unto him, he shall ²pay money according to the ³dowry of virgins.

19 ¶ Whosoever ¹lieth with a beast shall surely be put to death.

20 ¶ He that ¹sacrificeth unto any god, save unto the LORD only, he shall be ²utterly destroyed.

21 ¶ Thou shalt neither ¹vex a stranger, nor oppress him: ²for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt.

22 ¶ Ye ¹shall not afflict any widow, or fatherless child.

very common, both among the Greeks and Romans in their democratic period; "An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth," which was deemed a more equitable punishment than any pecuniary exaction, since it placed the rich and the poor on the same foundation. In Eastern countries, in Arabia especially, it is common to dig for springs, and to construct large pits or ponds to receive rain-water, into which, if unprotected, men or beasts might fall and perish.

Chap. XXII. 1-20. A higher compensation is required for sheep and cattle than for other things, probably inasmuch as the risk is greater, since it is impossible to keep them so closely protected. Fire-raising appears to have been a very ancient crime, always severely punished; and in the East, from the dry state of the materials, such fires were peculiarly dangerous. The term here employed

"witch," is derived from a word signifying to juggle or to deceive. The crime was great; and the punishment corresponded with it. The condition of the Jewish people may, perhaps, account for the severity of the penalty. They were surrounded by idolatrous nations, their enemies, also the enemies of their religion; and it was indispensable to prevent the incursion of its principles among the chosen people. Persons in a low state of civilisation, and imperfectly taught the knowledge of the true God, were liable to be carried away by diviners and sorcerers. Ver. 21-31. The term "stranger," as used in the Mosiac writings, signifies not merely Gentile proselytes, but all people of other nations and religions, who happen to sojourn in Judea, or to be passing through the land. The injunctions here given relative to the widow and the fatherless are inexpressibly compassionate, and such as are not to be found in the laws of any other 25 ¶ If thou ¹lend money to any of my people that is poor by thee, thou shalt not be to him as an usurer, neither shalt thou lay upon him usury.

26 If thou at all take thy neighbour's raiment ²to pledge, thou shalt deliver it unto him by that the sun goeth down:

27 For that is his covering only; it is his raiment for his skin: wherein shall he sleep? and it shall come to pass, ³when he crieth unto me, that I will hear; ⁴for I am gracious.

28 ¶ Thou shalt not revile the gods, ⁵nor curse the ruler of thy people.

29 ¶ Thou shalt not delay to offer ⁶the first of thy ripe-fruits, and of thy ⁷liquors: ⁸the first-born of thy sons shalt thou give unto me.

30 Likewise shalt thou do with thine oxen, and with thy sheep: seven days it shall be with his dam; on the eighth day thou shalt give it me.

stranger: for ye know the ¹heart of a stranger, seeing ye were strangers in the land of Egypt.

10 ¶ And six years thou shalt sow thy land, and shalt gather in the fruits thereof:

11 But ²the seventh year thou shalt let it rest and lie still; that the poor of thy people may eat: and what they leave the beasts of the field shall eat. In like manner thou shalt deal with thy vineyard, and with thy ³oliveyard.

12 ¶ ⁴Six days thou shalt do thy work, and on the seventh day thou shalt rest; that thine ox and thine ass may rest, and the son of thy handmaid and the stranger may be refreshed.

13 ¶ And in all things that I have said unto you ⁵be circumspect: and ⁶make no mention of the name of other gods, neither let it be heard out of thy mouth.

14 ¶ Three times thou shalt keep a feast unto me in the year.

15 Thou shalt keep ⁷the feast of unleavened bread: (thou shalt eat unleavened bread seven days, as I commanded thee, in the time appointed of the month Abib; for in it thou camest out from Egypt; and none shall appear before me empty:)

16 And the ⁸feast of harvest, the first-fruits of thy labours, which thou hast sown in thy field: and the feast of ingathering, which is in the end of the year, when thou hast gathered in thy labours out of the field.

17 Three times in the year ⁹all thy males shall appear before the LORD God.

18 ¶ Thou shalt not offer the ¹⁰blood of my sacrifice with leavened bread; neither shall the fat of my ¹¹sacrifice remain until the morning.

19 The ¹²first of the first-fruits of thy land thou shalt bring into the house of the LORD thy God. Thou shalt not see the a kid in his mother's milk.

20 ¶ Behold, I send an ¹³Angel before thee, to keep thee in the way, and to bring thee into the place which I have prepared.

21 ¹⁴Beware of him, and obey his voice, provoke him not; for ¹⁵he will not pardon your transgressions: for ¹⁶my name is in him.

22 But if thou shalt indeed obey his ancient people. Deprived of their natural protectors, the Lord himself, in the multitude of his tender mercies, espoused their cause and took them under his special care. Usury, properly understood, means compound interest. The loan of money among the Israelites was considered as an act of kindness; and, therefore, interest was not exacted; where the borrowers were strangers, it was otherwise.

Chap. XXIII. 1-19. Bribery is as old as society, and has always been employed to "blind the wise and pervert the words of the righteous." No matter what government, whether free or despotic, there were always those who would give, and those who would receive bribes, and fulfil the condition of the infamous transaction. The seventh year of rest served to promote a variety of important ends. Among others, it gave the nation abundant opportunities for attending the means of instruction, and in particular of visiting the tabernacle, when the law that year was read in the hearing of all the people. It is remarkable that the Jews were interdicted the mention of the very names of the gods of the heathen, even to revile them. The threefold feast—the Passover, Pentecost, and the Feast of Tabernacles—during the year, were important arrangements, since they required the assembling of the whole body of the people, which tended at once to promote the spirit of brotherhood and piety. The reason of this injunction touching the "seething" of a kid, had its foundation in a custom of idolaters, who, after gathering their fruits, sprinkled their trees with milk in which a kid had been boiled; a practice allied to magic, and which was therefore to be frowned upon by the Jews. Ver. 20-33. The warnings here given touching the Angel are very solemn, voice, and do all that I speak; then I will be ¹an enemy unto thine enemies, and ²an adversary unto thine adversaries.

23 For mine Angel shall go before thee, and bring ³thee in unto the Amorites, and the Hittites, and the Perizzites, and the Canaanites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites; and I will cut them off.

24 Thou shalt not bow down to their gods, nor serve them, nor ⁴do after their works; but thou shalt utterly ⁵overthrow them, and quite break down their images.

25 And ⁶ye shall serve the LORD your God, and he shall bless thy bread, and thy water; and I ⁷will take sickness away from the midst of thee.

26 ¶ There shall nothing cast their young, nor be barren, in thy land: ⁸the number of thy days I will fulfil.

27 I will send ⁹my fear before thee, and will destroy all the people to whom thou shalt come; and I will make all thine enemies turn their ¹⁰backs unto thee.

28 And I will send ¹¹hornets before thee, which shall drive out the Hivite, the Canaanite, and the Hittite, from before thee.

29 I will not drive them out from before thee ¹²in one year; lest the land become desolate, and the beast of the field multiply against thee.

30 By little and little I will drive them out from before thee, until thou be increased, and inherit the land.

31 And ¹³I will set thy bounds from the Red sea even unto the sea of the Philistines, and from the desert unto the river: for I will ¹⁴deliver the inhabitants of the land into your hand; and thou shalt drive them out before thee.

32 Thou ¹⁵shalt make no covenant with them, nor with their gods.

33 They shall not dwell in thy land, lest they make thee sin against me: for if thou serve their gods, ¹⁶it will surely be a snare unto thee.

CHAPTER XXIV.

¹ Moses is called up into the mountain. ⁸ The people promise obedience. ⁶ Moses sprinkles the blood of the covenant: ¹⁵ he goeth up into the mount.

AND he said unto Moses, Come up unto the LORD, thou, and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and ²seventy of the elders of Israel: and worship ye afar off.

reminding us that forgiveness was extended, and mercy dispensed, that God might be feared, and not presumed upon. With respect to hornets, ancient authors inform us that they have expelled whole nations from their countries.

Chap. XXIV. 1-9. The Jews had already received abundance of laws, and had given their solemn promises of obedience. They seldom failed in the matter of promise, however lamentably they came short of performance. In this respect they exemplified human nature as it is found to exist at the present day. Obedience was enforced by a reference to the mighty deliverance vouchsafed from Egyptian bondage, the Lord's manifold goodness present and prospective, and the successive displays of his glory. None were allowed to enter the cloud but Moses; nevertheless, his brother Aaron, his sons, and the seventy elders, were permitted to witness the event.

2 And Moses ¹alone shall come near the LORD; but they shall not come nigh, neither shall the people go up with him.

3 ¶ And Moses came and told the people all the words of the LORD, and all the judgments: and all the people answered with one voice, and said, ²All the words which the LORD hath said will we do.

4 And Moses wrote all the words of the LORD, and rose up early in the morning, and builded an altar under the hill, and ³twelve pillars, ⁴according to the twelve tribes of Israel.

5 And he sent young men of the children of Israel, which offered burnt-offerings, and sacrificed ⁵peace-offerings of oxen unto the LORD.

6 And Moses took half of the blood, and put ⁶it in basons; and half of ⁷the blood he sprinkled ⁸on the altar.

7 And he took the book of the covenant, and ⁹read in the audience of the people: and they said, All that the LORD hath said will we do, and be obedient.

8 And Moses took the blood, and ¹⁰sprinkled it on the people, and said, Behold ¹¹the blood of the covenant, which the LORD hath made with you concerning all these words.

9 ¶ Then ¹²went up Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel;

10 And they ¹³saw the God of Israel: and ¹⁴there was under his feet as it were a paved work ¹⁵of a sapphire-stone, and as it were the body of heaven ¹⁶in his clearness.

11 And upon the ¹⁷nobles of the children of Israel he ¹⁸laid not his hand: also ¹⁹they saw God, and ²⁰did eat and drink.

12 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Come up to me into the mount, and be there: and I will give thee ²¹tables of stone, and a law, and commandments which I have written; ²²that thou mayest teach them.

13 And Moses rose up, and ²³his minister Joshua; and Moses went up into the mount of God.

14 And he said unto the elders, ²⁴Tarry ye here for us, until we come again unto you: and, behold, Aaron and ²⁵Hur are

The great thing aimed at was to keep these facts ever uppermost in the minds of the people. The twelve pillars were a notable symbol, addressing itself to the naked eye, constituting a memorial of the transactions between Jehovah and his people. In the earliest times this was a common method of perpetuating the remembrance of great events, especially those pertaining to covenants. The burnt-offerings were expiatory, and, as such, were wholly consumed; whereas, the peace-offerings were partly a feast, and partly a sacrifice. The sprinkling of the blood on the people, and on all things connected with the covenant, was a very significant act, clearly and vividly pointing to the better blood which in due season was to be shed. Ver. 10-18. This was a very grand display of the Divine glory, and calculated deeply to affect the hearts of all that beheld it. On few occasions had the people such a view of the Most High. There was, of course, no similitude, notwithstanding the glorious object with you: if any man have any matters to do, let him come unto them.

15 ¶ And Moses went up into the mount, and a cloud covered the mount.

16 And the glory of the LORD abode upon mount Sinai, and the cloud covered it six days: and the seventh day he called unto Moses out of the midst of the cloud.

17 And the sight of the glory of the LORD was like devouring fire on the top of the mount in the eyes of the children of Israel.

18 And Moses went into the midst of the cloud, and gat him up into the mount: and Moses was in the mount forty days and forty nights.

1 The offering for the tabernacle. 10 The form of the ark; 17 the mercy-seat; 26 the table; 31 the candlestick.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, that they bring me an offering: of every man that giveth it willingly with his heart ye shall take my offering.

3 And this is the offering which ye shall take of them; gold, and silver, and brass,

4 And blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen, and goats hair,

5 And rams' skins dyed red, and badgers' skins, and shittim-wood,

6 Oil for the light, spices for anointing oil, and for sweet incense,

7 Onyx-stones, and stones to be set in the ephod, and in the breastplate.

8 And let them make me a sanctuary; that I may dwell among them.

9 According to all that I shew thee, after the pattern of the tabernacle, and the pattern of all the instruments thereof, even so shall ye make it.

10 ¶ And they shall make an ark of shittim-wood: two cubits and a half shall be the length thereof, and a cubit and a half the breadth thereof, and a cubit and a half the height thereof.

11 And thou shalt overlay it with pure gold, within and without shalt thou overlay it; and shalt make upon it a crown of gold round about.

12 And thou shalt cast four rings of gold for it, and put them in the four corners thereof; and two rings shall be in the 13 And thou shalt make staves of shittim-wood, and overlay them with gold.

14 And thou shalt put the staves into the rings by the sides of the ark, that the ark may be borne with them.

15 The staves shall be in the rings of the ark; they shall not be taken from it.

16 And thou shalt put into the ark the testimony which I shall give thee.

17 ¶ And thou shalt make a mercy-seat of pure gold: two cubits and a half shall be the length thereof, and a cubit and a half the breadth thereof.

18 And thou shalt make two cherubims of gold; of beaten work shalt thou make them, in the two ends of the mercy-seat.

19 And make one cherub on the one end, and the other cherub on the other end; even of the mercy-seat shall ye make the cherubims on the two ends thereof.

20 And the cherubims shall stretch forth their wings on high, covering the mercy-seat with their wings, and their faces shall look one to another; toward the mercy-seat shall the faces of the cherubims be.

21 And thou shalt put the mercy-seat above upon the ark; and in the ark thou shalt put the testimony that I shall give thee.

22 And there I will meet with thee, and I will commune with thee from above the mercy-seat, from between the two cherubims which are upon the ark of the testimony, of all things which I will give thee in commandment unto the children of Israel.

23 ¶ Thou shalt also make a table of shittim-wood: two cubits shall be the length thereof, and a cubit the breadth thereof, and a cubit and a half the height thereof.

24 And thou shalt overlay it with pure gold, and make thereto a crown of gold round about.

25 And thou shalt make unto it a border of an hand-breadth round about, and thou shalt make a golden crown to the border thereof round about.

26 And thou shalt make for it four that dazzled and delighted the spectators. On the present occasion, the typical character of Moses comes very boldly out. Never before had he enjoyed such an audience, nor has it been permitted to any ever since. In this respect, therefore, he presents the most remarkable type of the Mediator to be found in the ancient economy. The indulgence here granted to Joshua, who accompanied Moses up the mount, and there tarried till his return, was meant to initiate him into the work to which he was to be called on the death of Moses. This is the second time that Moses put honour upon him in the presence of the people. The forty days and nights, it is to be presumed, included the six days in which he was within the cloud, previous to his ascending to the top of the mount. During the whole of this period, he was without food, and, consequently, sustained by the power of the Most High, into whose presence he had been summoned.

Chap. XXV. 1-9. The offerings here referred to were those of a free-will character, for only such were suitable to the condition of the creature, or worthy of Divine acceptance. Unless love and gratitude prompted the deed, it was worthless. Sheep-skin coats, with the wool side inward, are at this present time worn by the Arabs. Such were of great antiquity. The oldest of the Greek poets mentions them. The sanctuary, or holy place, was sacred to intercourse between God and his people. The formation of the holy place is the grand object of the Divine dispensations in relation to our world. Ver. 10-40. The Ark was a sort of chest, the covering of which was called the mercy-seat. The rods fixed in it were intended to carry it from place to place. It became the depository of things of special value, such as the law, the manna, and the rod of Moses; and it is worthy of notice, that, like many other things, it has been imitated rings of gold, and put the rings in the four corners that are on the four feet thereof.

27 Over against the border shall the rings be ^afor places of the staves to bear the table.

28 And thou shalt make the staves of shittim-wood, and overlay them with gold, that ^bthe table may be borne with them.

29 And thou shalt make ¹the dishes thereof, and spoons thereof, and covers thereof, and bowls thereof, ⁵to cover withal: of pure gold shalt thou make them.

30 And thou shalt set upon the table ^ashew-bread before me alway.

31 ¶ And thou shalt make ¹a candlestick of pure gold: of beaten work shall the candlestick be made: his shaft, and his branches, his bowls, ^mhis knops, and his flowers, shall be of the same.

32 And six branches shall come out of the sides of it; three branches of the candlestick out of the one side, and three branches of the candlestick out of the other side:

33 Three bowls made like unto almonds, with a knop and a flower in one branch; ⁿand three bowls made like almonds in the other branch, with a knop and a flower: so in the six branches that come out of the candlestick.

34 And in the candlestick shall be four bowls made like unto almonds, with their knops and their flowers.

35 And there shall be a knop under two branches of the same, and a knop under two branches of the same, and a knop under two branches of the same, according to the six branches that proceed out of the candlestick.

36 Their knops and their branches shall be of the same; all of it shall be one ^abeaten work of pure gold.

37 And thou shalt make the ^pseven lamps thereof; and ^qthey shall ⁶light the lamps thereof, that they may ^rgive light over against ⁷it.

38 And ⁸the tongs thereof, and the ^tsnuff-dishes thereof, shall be of pure gold.

39 Of a talent of pure gold shall he make it, with all these vessels.

40 And look ^uthat thou make ^{them}after their pattern, which ^swas shewed thee in the mount.

CHAPTER XXVI.

1 The ten curtains of the tabernacle. 81 The vail for the ark.

MOREOVER, thou shalt make ^athe tabernacle with ten curtains of ^bfine twined linen, and blue, and purple, and scarlet: with ^ccherubims of ¹cunning work shalt thou make them.

2 The length of one ^dcurtain shall be eight and twenty cubits, and the breadth of one curtain four cubits: and every one of the curtains shall have one measure.

3 The five curtains shall be ^ecoupled together one to another; and ^fother five curtains shall be coupled one to another.

4 And thou shalt make ^gloops of blue upon the edge of the one curtain, from the selvedge in the coupling; and likewise shalt thou make in the uttermost edge of ^hanother curtain, in the coupling of the second.

5 Fifty loops shalt thou make in the one curtain, and fifty loops shalt thou make in the edge of the curtain that is in the coupling of the second, that the loops may take hold one of another.

6 And thou shalt make fifty ⁱtaches of gold, and couple the curtains together with the taches; and it shall be ^jone tabernacle.

7 ¶ And thou shalt make ^kcurtains of ^lgoats' hair, to be ¹a covering upon the tabernacle; ^meleven curtains shalt thou make.

8 The ⁿlength of one curtain shall be thirty cubits, and the breadth of one curtain four cubits: and the eleven curtains shall be all of one measure.

9 And thou shalt couple ^ofive curtains by themselves, and six curtains by themselves, and shalt double the sixth curtain in the forefront of the tabernacle.

10 And thou shalt make ^pfifty loops on the edge of the one curtain that is outmost in the coupling, and fifty loops in the edge of the curtain which coupleth the second.

11 And thou shalt make fifty taches of brass, and put the taches into the loops, and couple the ^qtent together, ^rthat it may be one.

12 And the remnant that remaineth of the curtains of the tent, the half-curtain that remaineth ^sshall hang over the back-side of the tabernacle.

13 And ^aa cubit on the one side, and a among divers nations, both of the old and the new world. The shew-bread had a special significance, intimating that, in the Divine presence there was abundant provision to feed the whole of the people of God. The candlestick, or lamp-stand, may be viewed as symbolical of the Church, whose mission is to enlighten a dark world. It is proper to notice the precision of the injunctions contained throughout this chapter. Nothing was left to human whim or fancy. "According to all that I shewed you, after the pattern of the tabernacle, and the pattern of all the instruments thereof, even so shall ye make it." This particularity is not found in the Christian system, which to the utmost is simple and flexible, but its simplicity is only an increased reason for a careful adherence to the "all things whatsoever" the Head of the Church has "commanded."

Chap. XXVI. 1-30. Notwithstanding the cruel bondage in which the people had been held, the construction of the tent implied no mean knowledge of the mechanical and ornamental arts. A people who could execute the specifications here set forth, were far removed from barbarism. The needlework, too, is a species of embroidery, or tapestry, things never found but in an advanced state of society. The tent was admirably fitted at once to secure, and to conceal the holy things contained therein from the rude gaze of the people. It has been conceived that the tabernacle was a figure of the spiritual beauty of the Church, as well as of her separation from the world, and her safety from all evil, as hid in the Divine pavilion. Ver. 81-87. The vail separated the holy from the most holy place, and is viewed as an emblem of the body of Christ, the crucifixion corresponding with the cubit on the other side, ³of that which remaineth in the length of the curtains of the tent, it shall hang over the sides of the tabernacle on this side, and on that side, to cover it.

14 And thou shalt make ^aa covering for the tent of ^brams' skins dyed red, and a covering above of badgers' skins.

15 ¶ And thou shalt make ^cboards for the tabernacle ^dof shittim-wood standing up.

16 Ten cubits shall be the length of a board, and a cubit and a half shall be the breadth of one board.

17 Two ^etenons shall there be in one board, set in order one against another: thus shalt thou make for all the boards of the tabernacle.

18 And thou shalt make the boards for the tabernacle, twenty boards on the south side southward.

19 And thou shalt make ^fforty sockets of silver under the twenty boards: two sockets under one board for his two tenons, and two sockets under another board for his two tenons.

20 And for the second side of the tabernacle, on the north side, there shall be twenty boards, 21 And their forty sockets of silver; ^gtwo sockets under one board, and two sockets under another board.

22 And for the sides of the tabernacle westward thou shalt make six boards.

23 And two boards shalt thou make for the corners of the tabernacle in the two sides.

24 And they shall be ^hcoupled together beneath, ⁱand they shall be coupled together above the head of it unto one ring: thus shall it be for them both; they shall be for the two corners.

25 And they shall be eight boards, and their sockets of silver, sixteen sockets; two sockets under one board, and two sockets under another board.

26 ¶ And thou shalt make ^jbars of shittim-wood: five for the boards of the one side of the tabernacle, 27 And five bars for the boards of the other side of the tabernacle, and five bars for the boards of the side of the tabernacle for the two sides westward.

28 And the middle bar in the midst of the boards shall reach from end to end.

29 And thou shalt ^koverlay the boards with gold, and make their rings of gold for places for the bars: and thou shalt overlay the bars with gold.

30 And thou shalt ^lrear up the taber-

31 ¶ And thou shalt make ^ea ^fvail of ^gblue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen, of ^hcunning work: with ⁱcherubims shall it be made.

32 And thou shalt hang it upon four ^jpillars of shittim-wood overlaid with gold: their hooks shall be of gold, upon the four sockets of silver.

33 ¶ And thou shalt hang up the vail under ^kthe taches, that thou mayest bring in thither ^lwithin the vail ^mthe ark of the testimony: and the vail shall divide unto you between ⁿthe holy place and the most holy.

34 And thou shalt ^oput the mercy-seat upon the ark of the testimony in the most holy place.

35 And thou shalt set ^pthe table without the vail, and ^qthe candlestick over against the table, on the side of the tabernacle toward the south: and thou shalt put the table on the north side.

36 ¶ And thou shalt make ^ran ^shanging for the door of ^tthe tent, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen, wrought with needle-work.

37 And thou shalt make for the hanging five pillars of shittim-wood, and overlay them with gold, and their hooks shall be of gold: and thou shalt cast five sockets of brass for them.

2 And thou shalt make the ^chorns of it upon the four corners thereof: his horns shall be of the same: and thou shalt ^doverlay it with brass.

3 And thou shalt make his pans to receive his ashes, and ^ehis shovels, and his ^fbasons, and his ^gflesh-hooks, and his ^hfire-pans: all the vessels thereof thou shalt make of brass.

4 And thou shalt make for it ⁱa grate of net-work of brass; and upon the net shalt thou make four brasen ^jrings in the four corners thereof.

5 And thou shalt put it under the compass of the altar beneath, that the net may be even to the midst of the altar.

6 And thou shalt make ^kstaves for the altar, staves of shittim-wood, and overlay them with brass.

rending of the vail. When the Lord died the vail was rent: and then it became the privilege of all believers to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus. It was called the Ark of the Testament, as containing the tables of the law.

Chap. XXVII. 1-8. As in the Jewish worship the altar was an object of paramount importance, everything connected with it is minutely explained, and solemnly enjoined. Nothing was left to the option of the priests, whose duty was to obey the Divine commands, not to endeavour to improve thereupon. Ver. 9-21. The court of the tabernacle was a curtain of large dimensions, encompassing the tent, and sufficing to surround the congregation, when they assembled for worship and sacrifice. The court consisted of pillars, posts, and hangings, the latter about nine feet high; the tabernacle was double the height, and visible from without. In length, the court extended about fifty-eight yards, and the breadth about half that number. The character of the oil to be employed, which was to be "pure oil-olive, beaten," shews that the best of everything was to be used for

AND ¹take thou unto thee Aaron thy brother, and his sons with him, from ²among the children of Israel, that he may minister unto me in the priest's office, even Aaron, ³Nadab, and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar, Aaron's sons.

2 ¶ And thou shalt make ⁴holy garments for Aaron thy brother, for ⁵glory and for beauty.

3 And thou shalt speak unto all ⁶that are ⁷wise-hearted, whom I have ⁸filled with the spirit of wisdom, that they may make Aaron's garments to consecrate him, that he may minister unto me in the priest's office.

4 And these ⁹are the garments which they shall make; ¹⁰a breastplate, and an ¹¹ephod, ¹²and a robe, and ¹³a brodered coat, a ¹⁴mitre, and a girdle: and they shall make holy garments for Aaron thy brother, and his sons, that he may minister unto me in the priest's office.

5 And they shall take ¹⁵gold, and blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen.

6 ¶ And they shall make the ephod of gold, of blue, and of purple, of scarlet, and fine twined linen, with cunning work.

7 It shall have the two shoulder-pieces thereof joined at the two edges thereof; and so it shall be joined together.

8 And ¹⁶the ¹⁷curious girdle of the ephod, which ¹⁸is upon it, shall be of the same, according to the work thereof; even of gold, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen.

9 And thou shalt take two ¹⁹onyx-stones, and ²⁰grave on them the names of the children of Israel:

10 Six of their names on one stone, and the other six names of the rest on the other stone, according to their birth.

11 With the work of an engraver in stone, like the ²¹engravings of a signet, shalt thou engrave the two stones with the names of the children of Israel: thou the service of the Lord, who would not accept that which cost the people nothing. From chapter xxx. verse 8, it would seem, that "burning always," signified from evening to morning; but some of the earlier Jewish writers tell us that the lamps were kept burning all day, as well as all night; and if so, it must have been a corruption of the original institution. One thing is certain, that lights were burnt by the heathen day and night before their idols. There can be no doubt that they borrowed the night lights from the Jews, and by way of improvement, added those of the day, and that Popery has adopted the corruption.

Chap. XXVIII. 1-14. The "holy things" for the service of the Lord, having been ordered and settled, the next step was to make arrangements for the priesthood; and here it is distinctly assumed, that entrance on the office was not to be an optional affair. It required a special appointment of God; and by consequence, a line was established in the person of Aaron, who, with his sons, constituted a type of Christ, with all his people. Prior to this period, every head of a house was both king and priest; now, however, that the people no longer existed in a scattered and patriarchal form, but were being organised into a great community, it was not only practicable, but necessary to typical and other ends, to establish an order of priesthood. The garments were designated "holy," from the circumstance of their being used only during the performance of the sanctuary services. It is here again shewn, that God supplies men with special gifts for special work. He filled the "wise hearted" with the "spirit of wisdom." The fact is remarkable, shalt make them to be set in ^oouches of gold.

12 And thou shalt put the two stones upon ^the shoulders of the ephod, for stones of memorial unto the children of Israel: and Aaron shall bear their names before the LORD, upon his two shoulders, for a ^memorial.

13 And thou shalt make ouches of gold;

14 And two chains of pure gold at the ends; of ^wreathen work shalt thou make them, and fasten the wreathen chains to the ouches.

15 ¶ And thou shalt make ^the breastplate of judgment with cunning work; after the work of the ephod thou shalt make it: of gold, of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, and of fine twined linen, shalt thou make it.

16 Four-square it shall be, being doubled; a span shall be the length thereof, and a span shall be the breadth thereof.

17 And ^thou shalt ^set in it settings of stones, even four rows of stones: the first row shall be ^a sardius, ^a topaz, and a carbuncle: this shall be the first row.

18 And the second row shall be an ^emerald, ^a sapphire, and ^a diamond.

19 And the third row a ligure, ^a an agate, and an amethyst.

20 And the fourth row ^a beryl, and an onyx, and ^a jasper: they shall be set in gold in their ⁱnclosings.

21 And the stones shall be with the names of the children of Israel, twelve, according to their names, like the engravings of a signet; every one with his name shall they be ^according to the twelve tribes.

22 And thou shalt make ^upon the breastplate chains at the ends of wreathen work of pure gold.

23 And thou shalt make upon the breastplate two rings of gold, and shalt put the two rings on the two ends of the breastplate.

24 And thou shalt put the two wreathen chains of gold in the two rings which are on the ends of the breastplate.

25 And the other two ends of the two wreathen chains thou shalt fasten in the two ouches, and put them ^on the shoulder-pieces of the ephod before it.

26 And thou shalt make two rings of gold, and thou shalt put them upon the two ends of the breastplate, in the border thereof, which is in the side of the ephod inward.

27 And two other rings of gold thou shalt make, and shalt put them on the two sides of the ephod underneath, toward and authorizes the belief, that, down to the present hour, men are still so prepared for the development of the powers of nature, and the accomplishment of the purposes of Providence. Much that has been put down to the inventions of genius, is to be viewed as the special gift of God, in the person of man. Ver. 15-45. The "breastplate of judgment" was full of mystic import—while it reminded the high priest of the love he should bear to the people, and the favour with which he should offer up supplications and intercessions on their behalf, it also directed attention to the love of the Saviour towards his people, and his advocacy in heaven. The judges of ancient Egypt, as well as of China, are known to have worn breastplates resembling that of the Jewish high priest, from which they were clearly derived. The whole of Aaron's dress is strikingly emblematic of the attributes and character of the Lord Jesus. The plate of gold, on which was engraven "holiness to the Lord," is entitled to particular notice: as worn on the forehead of Aaron, and connected with the bearing of the "ini-

18 And thou shalt burn the whole ram upon the altar: ^tit is ^ua burnt-offering unto the LORD: ^vit is ^wa sweet savour, an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

19 And thou shalt take ^xthe other ram; and Aaron and his sons shall put their hands upon the head of the ram.

20 Then shalt thou kill the ram, and take of his blood, and ^yput ^zit upon the tip of the right ear of Aaron, and upon the tip of the right ear of his sons, and upon the thumb of their right hand, and upon the great toe of their right foot, and ^{aa}sprinkle the blood upon the altar round about.

quity of the holy things," it points directly to the Great High Priest in the heavens. Nothing more remarkably indicated the typical character of Aaron, and the peculiar position he occupied as standing apart from the nation. As the high priest, he represented the people of Israel, and made an atonement for their sins, and thus he sustained the character of the great antitype, the Lamb of God, who alone could "bear the griefs and carry the sorrows" of a lost world.

Chap. XXIX. 1-8. The process of hallowing was accomplished by sacrifice, washing, and anointing. The body of each priest was washed at his consecration; previously to entering on the daily services the hands and the feet were washed, but the body was not then subjected to any ablution. These washings were strongly significant of the cleansing influences of the Spirit of God, through the application of the blood of Christ; that is, leading the soul to exercise a cordial faith in the doctrines of the atonement. In earlier times, it was customary to use oil in setting apart prophets, priests, and kings to their special service; an impressive emblem of the baptism of the Holy Spirit. The Saviour himself, in allusion to this practice, was designated the Anointed One, which

25 And ^tthou shalt receive them of their hands, and burn ^{them} upon the altar for a burnt-offering, for a sweet savour before the LORD: it is ^aan offering made by fire unto the LORD.

26 And thou shalt take the breast of the ram of Aaron's consecration, and wave it for a wave-offering before the LORD: and it shall be thy part.

27 And thou shalt sanctify ^tthe breast of the wave-offering, and the shoulder of the heave-offering, which is waved, and which is heaved up, of ^tthe ram of the consecration, even of that which is for Aaron, and of that which is for his sons.

28 And ^tit shall be Aaron's and his sons' by a statute for ever from the children of Israel; for it is ^aan heave-offering: and it shall be an heave-offering from the children of Israel of ^tthe sacrifice of their peace-offerings, even their heave-offering unto the LORD.

is the import of the term Messiah. It is shewn in ver. 21, that there was a mixture of oil and blood employed in the anointing of Aaron, which appears to point very strongly to the Spirit of grace, and the blood of sprinkling. Ver. 9-43. The consecration of Aaron and his sons, which implied their special setting apart, teaches Christians that having been made, by electing love and special grace, "kings and priests unto God," it behoves them to offer up soul, body, and spirit, as a reasonable service to Christ, whether they eat, or drink, or whatever they do, doing all to his glory. The bullock was offered as a sin-offering, in all sacrifices for the high priest, with imposition of hands, and special confession, in which, by a figure, guilt was transferred from him to the victim. The doctrine of imputed righteousness is here very strikingly set forth, exhibiting at once the creature's helplessness and the justice of the Lord, combined with his overflowing mercy. The place here assigned to Moses, is superior to that of Aaron and his sons, for whom he acts in the character of a high priest by special authority, which would appear to teach, that our great High Priest was not to proceed from the line of the Aaronic priesthood, but from another tribe. The promise, that Jehovah would dwell among the children of Israel, and be their God, was full of encouragement, and the blessing, in a higher degree although in a modified form, is still the portion of his Church on earth.

fact; but it would seem that the incense was subservient to another and a higher end, since by ascending towards the mercy-seat, it represented the Divine compassion, and a preparedness through the intercession of the high priest, the type of Christ, to receive the supplications which were presented. The promise given that there the Lord would meet his servant, is most precious, since it secured for the people, through the high priest, the assurance that their worship would be accepted. The altar, in verse 10, was not used for sacrifice, and it was, therefore, sprinkled once annually in common with the mercy-seat, on the great day of atonement, impressively shewing, that the most acceptable services derived their efficacy from blood—a doctrine which, in the New Testament, connects every gospel blessing with the perfect sacrifice of the Son of God. All distinctions are lost before the mercy-seat. Rich and poor, high and low, are there placed upon a level, and mercy is extended to the penitent without respect to social position, or other circumstances. Ver. 18-37. Daily wants, we are here taught, should prompt daily prayer, and a habitual walking with God. The worship of Jehovah is a matter requiring both time and substance, and in proportion as the heart is right, it will be ever ready to supply both. The prime lesson here set forth, is the necessity of approaching the throne of grace, at all times, with clean hands and a good conscience; and in case of sin, of feeling it and confessing it with all sincerity.

Chap. XXXI. 1-18. Here, again, we have the same important idea of the communication of special gifts for special work. Bezaleel was expressly "filled with the Spirit of God in wisdom, and in understanding, and in knowledge, for all manner of workmanship." With such a doctrine we ought to consider all architects, engineers, inventors and discoverers, as in like manner receiving special gifts, constituting a special mission for the good of the world. Even the very heathen, walking in the glimmering light of a borrowed wisdom, ascribed the knowledge of the arts and the sciences to their divinities. But if gifts connected with the arts and the sciences be specially ascribed to God, how much more those connected with religion! We are distinctly told, indeed, that the Saviour gave prophets, pastors, teachers, evangelists and others for the work of the gospel. The solemnity with which the observance of the Sabbath is enforced, is entitled to particular attention. Its perpetuity is imperatively enjoined, and the essential connexion between its observance and the growth of piety is unequivocally set forth. The fact of its violation having been pronounced a capital offence, suffices alone to demonstrate its importance. Under the Christian economy, the mode of its observance, as a matter of course, has undergone a change, but the spirit of the institution remains intact, and will continue till the end of all things.

CHAPTER XXXII.

1 The people cause Aaron to make a calf. 7 God is angered thereby. 15 Moses cometh down with the tables. 19 He breaketh them. 20 He destroyeth the calf. 25 Moses causeth the idolaters to be slain.

AND when the people saw that Moses ^adelayed to come down out of the mount, the people gathered themselves together unto Aaron, and said unto him, ^bUp, ^cmake us gods, which shall go before us; for as for this Moses, ^dthe man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.

2 And Aaron said unto them, Break off the ^egolden ear-rings which are in the ears of your wives, of your sons, and of your daughters, and bring them unto me.

3 And all the people brake off the golden ear-rings which were in their ears, and brought them unto Aaron.

4 And he received them at their hand; and ^ffashioned it with a graving-tool, after he had made it a molten ^gcalf; and they said, ^hThese be thy gods, O Israel, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

5 And when ⁱAaron saw it, he built an altar before it; and Aaron ^jmade proclamation, and said, To-morrow is ^ka feast to the LORD.

6 And they rose up early on the morrow, and offered burnt-offerings, and brought peace-offerings: and the people ^lsat down to eat and to drink, and rose up to play.

7 ^mAnd the LORD said unto Moses, ⁿGo, get thee down; for thy people, which thou broughtest out of the land of Egypt, have ^ocorrupted themselves:

8 They ^phave turned aside quickly out of the way which I commanded them: they have made them a molten calf, and have worshipped it, and have sacrificed thereunto, and said, These be thy gods, O Israel, which have brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

9 And the LORD said unto Moses, ^qI have seen this people, and, behold, it is ^ra stiff-necked people:

10 Now therefore ^slet me alone, that my wrath may wax hot against them, and that I may consume them; and I will make of thee a great nation.

thou hast brought forth out of the land of Egypt with great power, and with a mighty hand?

12 Wherefore ^cshould the Egyptians speak, and say, For mischief did he bring them out, to slay them in the mountains, and to consume them from the face of the earth? ^dTurn from thy fierce wrath, and ^erepent of this evil against thy people.

13 ^fRemember Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, thy servants, ^gto whom thou swarest by thine own self, and saidst unto them, ^hI will multiply your seed as the stars of heaven; and all this land that I have spoken of will I give unto your seed, and they shall inherit it for ever.

14 And the LORD ⁱrepented of the evil which he thought to do unto his people.

15 ^jAnd Moses turned, and went down from the mount, and the two tables of ^kthe testimony were in his hand: the tables were written on both their sides; on the one side and on the other were they written.

16 And ^lthe tables were the work of God, and the writing was the writing of God, graven upon the tables.

17 And when Joshua heard the noise of the people as they shouted, he said unto Moses, ^mThere is a noise of war in the camp.

18 And he said, It is not the voice of them that shout for mastery, neither is it the voice of them that cry for ⁿbeing overcome; but the noise of them that sing do I hear.

19 ^oAnd it came to pass, as soon as he came nigh unto the camp, that he saw the calf, and the dancing: and Moses' ^panger waxed hot, and he cast the tables out of his hands, and ^qbrake them beneath the mount.

20 And he ^rtook the calf which they had made, and burnt it in the fire, and ground it to powder, and strawed it upon the water, and made the children of Israel drink of it.

21 And Moses said unto Aaron, ^sWhat did this people unto thee, that thou hast brought so great a sin upon them?

22 And Aaron said, Let not the anger of my lord wax hot: thou knowest the people, that they are set on mischief.

23 For they said unto me, Make us gods which shall go before us: for as for this Chap. XXXII. 1-5. The people's conduct on the present occasion, awfully demonstrates their remaining darkness, and proneness to idolatry, notwithstanding the wondrous displays of power which they had witnessed. Envy of Moses may have prompted the deed. They appear to be by no means sorrowful for his absence, and not at all concerned to inquire what had become of him. The rebellion, moreover, was greatly inflamed by the conduct of Aaron, who, instead of repressing, encouraged it. Divers defences have been set up for Aaron, but none of them are satisfactory. He was clearly guilty of cowardice, the fruit of unbelief. The infatuated multitude were delighted with the calf, which was the emblem of their Egyptian god, to whom they madly ascribed their great deliverance. Nothing could more dishonour the God of Abraham than their infatuated exclamation, "These be thy gods, O Israel! that brought thee out of the land of Egypt." Ver. 6-35. The attribute, "stiff-necked," but too aptly describes the people, who resembled the restiveness, the waywardness, and the plunging of a bullock unaccustomed to the yoke. The whole of their pilgrimage in the wilderness was one continued warfare against Moses, and against God. The slaughter of three thousand men on account of this rebellion, was a terrible display of Divine justice, and an awful warning for the future. The carnage was indiscriminate, which shews that the rebellion had been general; and that in making an example, there was, therefore, no need for selection. The Levites performed their duty with great boldness and decision; and from this time they were set apart, not to the service of the sword, but to the business of religion, and taught to cultivate the arts of peace. The atonement was performed in a manner which illustrated the greatness of Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.

24 And I said unto them, Whosoever hath any gold, let them break it off. ¹So they gave it me: then I cast it into the fire, and there came out this calf.

25 ¶ And when Moses saw that the people were ²naked, (for ³Aaron had made them naked unto ⁴their ⁵shame among ⁶their enemies,)

26 Then Moses stood in the gate of the camp, and said, ⁷Who is on the LORD's side? let him come unto me. And all the sons of Levi gathered themselves together unto him.

27 And he said unto them, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, Put every man his sword by his side, and go in and out from gate to gate throughout the camp, and ⁸slay every man his brother, and every man his companion, and every man his neighbour.

28 And the children of Levi did according to the word of Moses: and ⁹there fell of the people that day about three thousand men.

29 ¶ For ¹⁰Moses had said, ¹¹Consecrate yourselves to-day to the LORD, even every man upon his son, and upon his brother; that he may bestow upon you a blessing this day.

30 And it came to pass on the morrow, that Moses said unto the people, ¹²Ye have sinned a great sin: and now I will go up unto the LORD; ¹³peradventure I shall make an ¹⁴atonement for your sin.

31 And Moses returned unto the LORD, and said, Oh! this people have ¹⁵sinned a great sin, and have made them gods of gold!

32 Yet now, ¹⁶if thou wilt forgive their sin—: and if not, blot me, I pray thee, out of thy book which thou hast written.

33 And the LORD said unto Moses, Whosoever hath sinned against me, him will I blot out of ¹⁷my book.

34 Therefore now go, lead the people unto the place of which I have spoken unto thee. Behold, ¹⁸mine Angel shall go before thee: nevertheless, in ¹⁹the day when I visit, I will visit their sin upon them.

35 And the LORD plagued the people, because ²⁰they made the calf which Aaron made.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

1 The Lord refuseth to go with the people. 9 The Lord talketh with Moses. 12 Moses desireth to see the glory of God.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, ¹Depart, and go up hence, thou and the people which ²thou hast brought up out of the land of Egypt, unto ³the land which I swear unto Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, saying, ⁴Unto thy seed will I give it:

2 And I will send ⁵an Angel before thee; and I will drive out ⁶the Canaanite, the Amorite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, the Hivite, and the Jebusite;

3 Unto ⁷a land flowing with milk and honey: ⁸for I will not go up in the midst of thee; for thou art ⁹a stiff-necked people: ¹⁰lest I consume thee in the way.

4 ¶ And when the people heard these evil tidings, ¹¹they mourned: ¹²and no man did put on him his ornaments.

5 For the LORD had said unto Moses, Say unto the children of Israel, Ye are a stiff-necked people; I will come up into the midst of thee ¹³in a moment, and consume thee: therefore now put off thy ornaments from thee, that ¹⁴I may know what to do unto thee.

6 And the children of Israel ¹⁵stripped themselves of their ornaments by the mount Horeb.

7 ¶ And Moses took the tabernacle, and pitched it without the camp, ¹⁶afar off from the camp, and called it The Tabernacle of the Congregation. And it came to pass, ¹⁷that every one which ¹⁸sought the LORD ¹⁹went out unto the tabernacle of the congregation, which ²⁰was without the camp.

8 And it came to pass, when Moses went out unto the tabernacle, ²¹that all the people rose up, and stood every man at his tent-door, and looked after Moses, until he was gone into the tabernacle.

9 ¶ And it came to pass, as Moses entered into the tabernacle, the ²²cloudy pillar descended, and stood at the door of the tabernacle, and ²³the LORD ²⁴talked with Moses.

10 And all the people saw the cloudy pillar stand at the tabernacle-door: and all the people rose up and ²⁵worshipped, every man in his tent-door.

11 And the LORD ²⁶spake unto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh unto ²⁷his the transgression. Here we behold, in figure, the glorious character of the Son of God, first atoning, and then interceding for the sins of mankind. It is uncertain whether the "plague" had its interpretation in the death of the three thousand, or whether, in addition to this, the people were afflicted by some fresh destructive malady.

Chap. XXXIII. 1-12. The angel here mentioned as being sent before, was clearly not the Angel of the Covenant, the Messiah himself, but an angel, his servant, appointed to accomplish his purpose. The Angel of the Covenant himself declared, that he would not go up in the midst of them, which seems an intimation of his displeasure at their recent act of idolatry. When the people heard this, they mourned, as they well might, for their sin was wholly without excuse. The consideration shewn to Moses on this trying occasion was full of gracious condescension. He was no party to the transgression, which had almost broken his heart, and the Lord was ready to strengthen as well as to guide his servant. Ver. 13-23. Moses was clearly anxious for instruction relative to the future. The "way" of the Lord was a term signifying the Divine pleasure concerning his people for the time to come. The anxiety of Moses for a glimpse of the Divine glory indicates the transcendent spirituality of his mind. He seemed almost to forget the difficulties attendant on the gratification of his desire. He spake as a man who wished almost to die, that in the fullest sense, he might live: to be absent from the body, that he might be present with the Lord. The language is doubtless figurative, friend. And he turned again into the camp: but ^ahis servant Joshua, the son of Nun, a young man, departed not out of the tabernacle.

12 ¶ And Moses said unto the LORD, See, thou sayest unto me, Bring up this people: and thou hast not let me know whom thou wilt send with me: yet thou hast said, ^bI know thee by name, and thou hast also found grace in my sight.

13 Now therefore, I pray thee, if I have found grace in thy sight, ^cshew me now thy way, ^dthat I may know thee, that I may find grace in thy sight; and ^econsider that this nation is thy people.

14 And he said, ^fMy presence shall go with thee, and I will give thee ^grest.

15 And he said unto him, If thy presence go not with me, carry us not up hence.

16 For wherein shall it be known here that I and thy people have found grace in thy sight? ^hIs it not ⁱin that thou goest with us? so shall we be ^jseparated, I and thy people, from all the people that are upon the face of the earth.

17 And the LORD said unto Moses, ^kI will do this thing also that thou hast spoken; for thou hast found grace in my sight, and I know thee by name.

18 ¶ And he said, I beseech thee, ^lshew me thy glory.

19 And he said, I will make ^mall my goodness pass before thee, and I will ⁿproclaim the name of the LORD before thee; and will ^obe gracious to whom I will be gracious, and will shew mercy on whom I will shew mercy.

20 And he said, ^pThou canst not see my face: for there shall no man see me, and live.

21 And the LORD said, Behold, ^qthere is a place by me, and thou shalt stand upon a rock:

22 And it shall come to pass, while my glory passeth by, that I will put thee ^rin a cleft of the rock, and will ^scover thee with my hand while I pass by:

23 And I will take away mine hand, and ^tthou shalt see my back parts; but my face shall not be seen.

but it indicates a strong display of the Divine glory. It has been supposed, not without reason, that there was presented to him the likeness of the Angel of the Covenant, the Lord Jesus in his glorified state, such as he appeared to Moses and Elias on the mount of transfiguration, one of the most extraordinary events in the history of the Redeemer upon earth. The effect of the Divine manifestation on the mind of Moses was indicated by the glory that surrounded his countenance, and which awed the people. There is here a striking illustration of the spirit and moral character which ought to be manifest amongst all the people of God, whom it behoves to shine in the beauty of holiness. The very heathen affirmed that virtue was awful: how much more is genuine piety, which never fails to impress, however it may offend ungodly men, who "admire, yet hate the change," which grace makes in conversion!

Chap. XXXIV. 1-8. Great offences on the part of the subject towards the sovereign, although they may be forgiven, from the nature of the case, for a time, interfere with the cordiality which had previously obtained.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

1 The tables are renewed. 5 The Name of the LORD proclaimed. 10 God maketh a covenant with the Israelites.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, ^aHew thee two tables of stone like unto the first; and ^bI will write upon these tables ^cthe words that were in the first tables, ^dwhich thou brakest.

2 And be ready in the morning, and come up in the morning unto mount Sinai, and present thyself there to me in the top of the mount.

3 And no man shall ^ecome up with thee, neither let any man be seen throughout all the mount; neither let the flocks nor herds feed before that mount.

4 ¶ And he hewed two tables of stone, like unto the first: and Moses rose up early in the morning, and went up unto mount Sinai, as the LORD had commanded him, and took in his hand the two tables of stone.

5 And the LORD ^fdescended in the cloud, and stood with him there, and proclaimed ^gthe name of the LORD.

6 And the LORD ^hpassed by before him, and ⁱproclaimed, The LORD, The LORD God, ^jmerciful and gracious, long-suffering, and ^kabundant in goodness and ^ltruth,

7 ^mKeeping mercy for thousands, ⁿforgiving iniquity, and transgression, and sin, and that ^owill by no means clear the guilty; visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, and upon the children's children, unto the third and to the fourth generation.

8 ¶ And Moses made haste, and ^pbowed his head toward the earth, and worshipped.

9 And he said, If now I have found grace in thy sight, O Lord, ^qlet my Lord, I pray thee, go among us, (for it is ^ra stiff-necked people,) and ^spardon our iniquity and our sin, and ^ttake us for thine inheritance.

10 ¶ And he said, Behold, ^uI make a covenant: before all thy people I ^vwill do marvels, such as have not been done in all the earth, nor in any nation: and all

The same principle extends to God and his people. Although the Lord had exercised forgiveness, it was for them still to remember their sins, and to walk softly before him. But amidst all the Divine severity, still the God of Abraham delighted to proclaim himself "merciful and gracious, long-suffering, and abundant in goodness and truth." The declaration of his own character in ver. 5-11, is wonderfully calculated to work in a manner the most powerful on the hearts of the people. The display of love and mercy here set forth, is only more perfect, as embodied in the person of Christ, and developed by his work, offices, righteousness and grace. Ver. 9-35. The Lord wrote the Ten Commandments. Here, in verse 27, Moses himself is enjoined to write the supplemental instructions there set forth. The law of the Ten Commandments was intended to be of universal and perpetual obligation, whereas the minor arrangements were some of them of a local and temporary character. In the present, and in all other references to law, the principle of love is intended to bear as well as that of fear; and nothing can be more incorrect than to represent the obedience demanded as simply an exterthe people among which thou art shall see the work of the LORD: for it is a terrible thing that I will do with thee.

11 Observe thou that which I command thee this day: behold, I drive out before thee the Amorite, and the Canaanite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, and the Hivite, and the Jebusite.

12 Take heed to thyself, lest thou make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land whither thou goest, lest it be for a snare in the midst of thee.

13 But ye shall destroy their altars, break their images, and cut down their groves.

14 For thou shalt worship no other god: for the LORD, whose name is Jealous, is a jealous God:

15 Lest thou make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land, and they go a whoring after their gods, and do sacrifice unto their gods, and one call thee, and thou eat of his sacrifice;

16 And thou take of their daughters unto thy sons, and their daughters go a whoring after their gods, and make thy sons go a whoring after their gods.

17 Thou shalt make thee no molten gods.

18 The feast of unleavened bread shalt thou keep. Seven days thou shalt eat unleavened bread, as I commanded thee, in the time of the month Abib: for in the month Abib thou camest out from Egypt.

19 All that openeth the matrix is mine; and every firstling among thy cattle, whether ox or sheep, that is male.

20 But the firstling of an ass thou shalt redeem with a lamb: and if thou redeem him not, then shalt thou break his neck. All the first-born of thy sons thou shalt redeem; and none shall appear before me empty.

21 Six days thou shalt work; but on the seventh day thou shalt rest: in earing time and in harvest thou shalt rest.

22 And thou shalt observe the feast of weeks, of the first-fruits of wheat-harvest, and the feast of ingathering at the year's end.

23 Thrice in the year shall all your men-children appear before the Lord God, the God of Israel.

24 For I will cast out the nations before thee, and enlarge thy borders; neither shall any man desire thy land, when thou shalt go up to appear before the LORD thy God thrice in the year.

25 Thou shalt not offer the blood of my sacrifice with leaven; neither shall the sacrifice of the feast of the passover be left unto the morning.

26 The first of the first-fruits of thy land thou shalt bring unto the house of the LORD thy God. Thou shalt not see the kid in his mother's milk.

27 And the LORD said unto Moses, Write thou these words: for after the tenor of these words I have made a covenant with thee and with Israel.

28 And he was there with the LORD forty days and forty nights; he did neither eat bread, nor drink water: and He wrote upon the tables the words of the covenant, the ten commandments.

29 And it came to pass, when Moses came down from mount Sinai with the two tables of testimony in Moses' hand, (when he came down from the mount,) that Moses wist not that the skin of his face shone while he talked with him.

30 And when Aaron and all the children of Israel saw Moses, behold, the skin of his face shone: and they were afraid to come nigh him.

31 And Moses called unto them; and Aaron and all the rulers of the congregation returned unto him: and Moses talked with them.

32 And afterward all the children of Israel came nigh: and he gave them in commandment all that the LORD had spoken with him in mount Sinai.

33 And till Moses had done speaking with them, he put a vail on his face.

34 But when Moses went in before the LORD, to speak with him, he took the vail off, until he came out. And he came out, and spake unto the children of Israel that which he was commanded.

35 And the children of Israel saw the face of Moses, that the skin of Moses' face shone: and Moses put the vail upon his face again, until he went in to speak with him.

CHAPTER XXXV.

2 The sabbath. 4 The free gifts for the tabernacle. 20 The readiness of the people to offer.

AND Moses gathered all the congregation of the children of Israel together, and said unto them, These are the words which the LORD hath commanded, that ye should do them.

2 Six days shall work be done; but on the seventh day there shall be to you a holy day, a sabbath of rest to the LORD: whosoever doeth work therein shall be put to death.

3 Ye shall kindle no fire throughout your habitations upon the sabbath-day.

4 And Moses spake unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, saying, This is the thing which the LORD commanded, saying,

5 Take ye from among you an offering unto the LORD: whosoever is of a willing nal affair. Outward obedience possessed no value unless it proceeded from the heart. It had nothing moral in it; it was mere bodily service which could not profit him that offered it, and could not be acceptable to the God of truth, the Searcher of hearts, by whom motives are weighed.

Chap. XXXV. 1-35. The "kindling of the fire" here interdicted, involved no hardship to the people of a genial climate; but the application of the commandment was never meant to go beyond the locality of Judea. In cold climates, instead of furthering comfort and devotion, it would be a most serious inconvenience, mili-heart, let him bring it, an offering of the LORD; gold, and silver, and brass,

6 And ^ablue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen, and ^bgoats' hair,

7 And rams' skins dyed red, and badgers' skins, and shittim-wood,

8 And ^coil for the light, and ^dspices for anointing oil, and for the sweet incense, 9 And ^eonyx-stones, and stones to be set for the ephod, and for the breastplate.

10 And every ^fwise-hearted among you shall come, and make all that the LORD hath commanded;

11 The ^gtabernacle, his tent, and his covering, his taches, and his boards, his bars, his pillars, and his sockets;

12 The ^hark, and the staves thereof, with the mercy-seat, and ⁱthe vail of the covering;

13 The ^jtable, and his staves, and all his vessels, and the shew-bread;

14 The ^kcandlestick also for the light, and his furniture, and his lamps, with the oil for the light;

15 And ^lthe incense-altar, and his staves, and the anointing oil, and the sweet incense, and ^mthe hanging for the door at the entering in of the tabernacle;

16 The ⁿaltar of burnt-offering, with his brasen grate, his staves, and all his vessels; ^othe laver and his foot;

17 ^pThe hangings of the court, his pillars, and their sockets, and the hanging for the door of the court;

18 The pins of the tabernacle, and the pins of the court, and their cords;

19 ^qThe cloths of service, to do service in the holy place; ^rthe holy garments for Aaron the priest, and the garments of his sons, to minister in the priest's office.

20 ¶ And all the congregation of the children of Israel departed from the presence of Moses.

21 And they came, every one ^swhose heart stirred him up, and every one whom his spirit made willing, and they brought the LORD's offering to the work of the tabernacle of the congregation, and for all his service, and for the holy garments.

22 And they came, both men and women, as many as were willing-hearted, and brought ^tbracelets, and ear-rings, and rings, and tablets, all jewels of gold: and ^uevery man that offered, ^voffered an offering of gold unto the LORD.

23 And every man with whom was found ^wblue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen, and goats' hair, and red skins of rams, and badgers' skins, brought them.

24 Every one that did offer an offering of silver and brass, brought the LORD's offering: and every man with whom was found shittim-wood, for any work of the service, brought it.

25 And all the women that were ^fwise-hearted did spin with their hands, and brought that which they had spun, ^gboth of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, and of fine linen.

26 And all the women, ^hwhose heart stirred them up in wisdom, spun goats' hair.

27 And the rulers brought ⁱonyx-stones, and stones to be set, for the ephod, and for the breastplate;

28 And ^jspice, and oil for the light, and for the anointing oil, and for the sweet incense.

29 The children of Israel brought a willing offering unto the LORD, every man and woman, ^kwhose heart made them willing to bring, for all manner of work which ^lthe LORD had commanded to be made by the hand of Moses.

30 ¶ And Moses said unto the children of Israel, ^mSee, the LORD hath called by name Bezaleel the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah:

31 And he hath filled him with the spirit of God, in wisdom, in understanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanship;

32 And to devise curious works, to work in gold, and in silver, and in brass, 33 And in the cutting of stones, to set them, and in carving of wood, to make any manner of cunning work.

34 And ⁿhe hath put in his heart that he may teach, ^oboth he and ^pAholiab the son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan.

35 Them hath he filled with wisdom of heart, to work all manner of work of the engraver, and of the cunning workman, and of the embroiderer, in blue, and in purple, in scarlet, and in fine linen, and ^qof the weaver, ^reven of them that do any work, and of those that devise cunning work.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

1 The offerings delivered to the workmen. 5 The liberality of the people restrained.

THEN wrought ^sBezaleel and Aholiab, and every wise-hearted man, in whom the LORD put wisdom and understanding, tating against both. In verse 21, we have an illustration of the direct influence of the Spirit of God upon the heart, stirring people up to the discharge of the duties enjoined them. It is there distinctly stated, that the "Spirit of the Lord" made them willing, in consequence of which they gave themselves to the work. There is here a principle which is still of universal application. Wherever we find the people of God ready, eager to give, to do, or to suffer on behalf of the kingdom, it ought to be ascribed directly to the influence of his Spirit working on the understanding and the heart. It is by a blending of all the gifts, and all the graces, that the kingdom of God is advanced. In this chapter we see a beautiful picture of this combination: some brought one thing, and some another; rich and poor, each had something to offer that was acceptable and useful. Just so it is now with the Church of God; some have money with little besides, except a heart to pray; others without wealth, have time, or strength, or talents; one can speak, another can act, and all can supplicate; thus each, according to the gift of God, is privileged to share in the honour of rearing the spiritual temple.

Chap. XXXVI. 1-38. As if men were prone to forget that it is the promise of God to work directly on the hearts of men, this chapter opens by again announcing the fact, that the "wise-hearted" were those in whom "the Lord had put wisdom, and understanding how to work all manner of work for the sanctuary." As if to know how to work all manner of work ¹for the service of the sanctuary, according to all that the LORD had commanded.

2 And Moses called Bezaleel and Aholiab, and every wise-hearted man, ²in whose heart the LORD had put wisdom, ³as every one ⁴whose heart stirred him up to come unto the work to do it:

3 And they received of Moses all ⁵the offering which the children of Israel had brought for the work of the service of the sanctuary, to make it withal. And they brought yet unto him free-offerings every ⁶morning.

4 ¶ And all the ⁷wise men, that wrought all the work of the sanctuary, came every man from his work which they made;

5 And they spake unto Moses, saying, The people bring ⁸much more than enough for the service of the work which the LORD commanded to make.

6 And Moses gave commandment, and they caused it to be proclaimed throughout the camp, saying, Let neither man nor woman make any more work for the offering of the sanctuary. So the people were restrained from bringing.

7 For the stuff they had was sufficient for all the work to make it, and too much.

8 ¶ And every ⁹wise-hearted man, among them that wrought the work of the tabernacle, ¹⁰made ten curtains of fine twined linen, and blue, and purple, and scarlet: with ¹¹cherubims of cunning work made he them.

9 The length of one curtain was twenty and eight cubits, and the breadth of one curtain four cubits; the curtains were all of one size.

10 And he ¹²coupled the five curtains one unto another; and the other five curtains he coupled one unto another.

11 And he made loops of blue on the edge of one curtain, from the selvedge in the coupling; likewise he made in the uttermost side of another curtain, in the coupling of the second.

12 Fifty loops made he in one curtain, and fifty loops made he in the edge of the curtain which was in the coupling of the second: the loops held one curtain to another.

13 And he made fifty taches of gold, and coupled the curtains one unto another with the taches: ¹³so it became one tabernacle.

14 ¶ And he made ¹⁴curtains of goats' hair for the tent over the tabernacle: eleven curtains he made them.

15 The length of one curtain was thirty cubits, and four cubits was the breadth of one curtain: the eleven curtains were of one size.

18 And he made fifty taches of brass to couple the tent together, that it might be one.

19 ¶ And he made a ¹⁹covering for the tent of rams' skins dyed red, and a covering of badgers' skins above that.

20 ¶ And he made ²⁰boards for the tabernacle of ²¹shittim-wood, standing up.

21 The length of a board was ten cubits, and the breadth of a board one cubit and a half.

22 One board had two tenons, equally distant one from another: thus did he make for all the boards of the tabernacle.

23 And he made boards for the tabernacle: twenty boards for the south side, southward.

24 And forty sockets of silver he made under the twenty boards: two sockets under one board for his two tenons, and two sockets under another board for his two tenons.

25 And for the other side of the tabernacle, which is toward the north corner, he made twenty boards, 26 And their forty sockets of silver: two sockets under one board, and two sockets under another board.

27 And for the sides of the tabernacle westward he made six boards.

28 And two boards made he for the corners of the tabernacle in the two sides.

29 And they were ²⁹coupled beneath, and coupled together at the head thereof, to one ring: thus he did to both of them in both the corners.

30 And there were eight boards; and their sockets were sixteen sockets of silver, ³⁰under every board two sockets.

31 ¶ And he made ³¹bars of shittim-wood: five for the boards of the one side of the tabernacle,

32 And five bars for the boards of the other side of the tabernacle, and five bars for the boards of the tabernacle for the sides westward.

33 And he made the middle bar to shoot through the boards from the one end to the other.

34 And he overlaid the boards with gold, and made their rings of gold to be places for the bars, and overlaid the bars with gold.

intended by repeated strokes to impress this doctrine on the heart, it is iterated and reiterated. These divinely prepared men entered most cordially into the enterprise, receiving the minute instructions of Moses concerning everything connected with the undertaking. The willingness of the people shewed itself in the excess of their contributions; and the honesty of the chiefs in communicating the act to Moses. Moses' restraint of the people from increased contribution, was one of the few gratifying edicts he had to issue. His painful province con-

CHAPTER XXXVII.

1 The ark. 6 The mercy-seat with cherubims. 10 The table. 17 The candlestick; 25 and altar of incense.

AND Bezaleel made ^athe ark of shittim-wood: two cubits and a half was the length of it, and a cubit and a half the breadth of it, and a cubit and a half the height of it.

2 And he overlaid it with pure gold within and without, and made a crown of gold to it round about.

3 And he cast for it four rings of gold, to be set by the four corners of it; even two rings upon the one side of it, and two rings upon the other side of it.

4 And he made staves of shittim-wood, and overlaid them with gold.

5 And he put the staves into the rings by the sides of the ark, to bear the ark.

6 ¶ And he made the ^bmercy-seat of pure gold: two cubits and a half was the length thereof, and one cubit and a half the breadth thereof.

7 And he made two ^ccherubims of gold, beaten out of one piece made he them, on the two ends of the mercy-seat;

8 One cherub ^don the end on this side, and another cherub ^eon the other end on that side: out of the mercy-seat made he the cherubims on the two ends thereof.

9 And the ^fcherubims spread out their wings over the mercy-seat, with their faces one to another; ^geven to the mercy-seatward were the faces of the cherubims.

10 ¶ And he made ^hthe table of shittim-wood: two cubits was the length thereof, and a cubit the breadth thereof, and a cubit and a half the height thereof.

11 And he overlaid it with pure gold, and made thereunto a crown of gold round about.

12 Also he made thereunto a border of an handbreadth round about; and made a crown of gold for the border thereof round about.

13 And he cast for it four rings of gold,

22 Their knops and their branches were of the same: all of it was one beaten work of pure gold.

23 And he made his ^dseven lamps, and his snuffers, and his snuff-dishes, of pure gold.

24 Of a talent of pure gold made he it, and all the vessels thereof.

26 And he overlaid it with pure gold, both the top of it, and the sides thereof round about, and the horns of it: also he made unto it a crown of gold round about.

27 And he made two rings of gold for it under the crown thereof, by the two corners of it, upon the two sides thereof, to be places for the staves to bear it withal.

sisted much in complaint, correction and menace. The best proof that Christians can give that they are the temples of the Holy Ghost, is by their forwardness to works of faith and labours of love.

Chap. XXXVII. 1-9. It was not permitted to the people to inspect the interior of the tabernacle; and, therefore, they were furnished with an ample and a minute description. The most important portion of the chapter is that contained in verse 9, which so strikingly depicts the things appertaining to the mercy-seat. There is difficulty in determining the precise form assumed by the cherubim. The human figure is by most preferred, since it is easy to conceive two human faces turned towards each other, while their eyes were directed towards the Mercy-Seat. But these are very secondary considerations: the great matter is the mercy-seat itself; a thing of infinite importance to the countless millions of a guilty world. There, so to speak, the Most High waits to be gracious to every returning penitent of the human family: how great soever his guilt, greater still is the Divine mercy. All sinners are welcome, and all saints have constant cause to repair thither, that they may obtain pardon for their shortcomings, and grace to help

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

1 The altar of burnt-offering. 8 The laver of brass. 9 The court. 21 The sum of the offerings.

AND he made ^athe altar of burnt-offering of shittim-wood: five cubits was the length thereof, and five cubits the breadth thereof, (it was four-square), and three cubits the height thereof.

2 And he made the horns thereof on the four corners of it; the horns thereof were of the same: and he overlaid it with brass.

3 And he made all the vessels of the altar, the pots, and the shovels, and the basons, and the flesh-hooks, and the fire-pans: all the vessels thereof made he of brass.

4 And he made for the altar a brassen grate of net-work, under the compass thereof, beneath unto the midst of it.

5 And he cast four rings for the four ends of the grate of brass, to be places for the staves.

6 And he made the staves of shittim-wood, and overlaid them with brass.

7 And he put the staves into the rings on the sides of the altar, to bear it withal; he made the altar hollow with boards.

8 ¶ And he made the ^blaver of brass, and the foot of it of brass, ^cof the ^dlooking-glasses of the women ^eassembling, which assembled at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

9 ¶ And he made ^athe court: on the south side southward, the hangings of the court were of fine twined linen, an hundred cubits:

10 Their pillars were twenty, and their brassen sockets twenty: the hooks of the pillars and their fillets were of silver.

11 And for the north side the hangings were an hundred cubits, their pillars were twenty, and their sockets of brass twenty: the hooks of the pillars and their fillets of silver.

12 And for the west side were hangings of fifty cubits, their pillars ten, and their sockets ten: the hooks of the pillars and their fillets of silver.

gate were fifteen cubits, their pillars three, and their sockets three.

15 And for the other side of the court-gate, on this hand and that hand, were hangings of fifteen cubits, their pillars three, and their sockets three.

16 All the hangings of the court round about were of fine twined linen:

17 And the sockets for the pillars were of brass; the hooks of the pillars and their fillets of silver; and the overlaying of their chapters of silver: and all the pillars of the court were filleted with silver.

18 And the hanging for the gate of the court was needle-work, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen; and twenty cubits was the length, and the height in the breadth was five cubits, answerable to the hangings of the court.

19 And their pillars were four, and their sockets of brass four; their hooks of silver, and the overlaying of their chapters and their fillets of silver.

20 And all the ^apins of the tabernacle, and of the court round about, were of brass.

21 ¶ This is the sum of the tabernacle, even of the ^atabernacle of testimony, as it was counted, according to the commandment of Moses, for the service of the Levites, ^bby the hand of ^cIthamar, son to Aaron the priest.

22 And ^dBezaleel the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah, made all that the LORD commanded Moses.

23 And with him was Aholiab, son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan, an engraver, and a cunning workman, and an embroiderer in blue, and in purple, and in scarlet, and fine linen.

24 All ^athe gold that was occupied for the work, in all the work of the holy place, even the gold of the offering, was twenty and nine talents, and seven hundred and thirty shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary.

25 And the silver of them that were numbered of the congregation was an hundred talents, and a thousand seven hundred and threescore and fifteen shekels, after ^athe shekel of the sanctuary:

26 ^mA bekah for ^aevery man, that is, half a shekel, after the shekel of the sanctuary, for every one that went to be numbered, from twenty years old and upward, for ^asix hundred thousand, and three thousand, and five hundred and fifty men.

them amid all their trials, toils, and dangers. Mercy is only required where there is sin; and nothing can meet the sinner's case but mercy: there is mercy, however, only through Christ, and in him it is an ocean without a bottom and without a shore!

Chap. XXXVIII. 1-31. From verse 8, we learn that looking-glasses were an early invention. The expression, "the looking-glasses of the women" assembling "at the doors of the tabernacle of the congregation," would indicate that the article was held in special estimation by that sex. Travellers tell us that looking-glasses are still part of the dress of the women of Barbary; they wear them on their breasts, and do not lay them aside even in the midst of their most laborious employments. The Indians, too, have mirrors made of brass well polished, and clearly reflecting the human countenance. Why are such mirrors so prized? It can only be because they accomplish that which nothing else can realise—enabling persons, so to speak, to step out of their own bodies and to look at themselves. But if a mirror which reflects the human form is so prized, what should be thought of the Inspired Word which mirrors forth human nature from its dungeon-darkness, and exhibits the heart in all the workings of its hidden depravity? Above all, what should be thought of the Son of God, who reveals the Godhead bodily? The amount of gold contributed on the occasion shews the wealth of the people, which, of course, they obtained from the Egyptians on their departure. It is computed that the entire sum of gold 27 And of the hundred talents of silver were cast ^othe sockets of the sanctuary, and the sockets of the vail; an hundred sockets of the hundred talents, a talent for a socket.

28 And of the thousand seven hundred seventy and five shekels he made hooks for the pillars, and overlaid their chapiters, and filleted them.

29 And the brass of the offering was seventy talents, and two thousand and four hundred shekels.

30 And therewith he made ^pthe sockets to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and the brasen altar, and the brasen grate for it, and all the vessels of the altar,

31 And the sockets of the court round about, and the sockets of the court-gate, and all the pins of the tabernacle, and all the pins of the court round about.

1 The cloths of service, and holy garments. 2 The ephod. 8 The breastplate. 22 The robe of the ephod, and other garments.

AND of ^athe blue, and purple, and scarlet, they made ^bcloths of service, to do service in the ^choly place, and made ^dthe holy garments for Aaron; as the LORD commanded Moses.

2 And he made ^ethe ephod of gold, blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen.

3 And they did beat the gold into thin plates, and cut it into wires, to work it in the blue, and in the purple, and in the scarlet, and in the fine linen, with cunning work.

4 They made shoulder-pieces for it, to couple it together: by the two edges was it coupled together.

5 And the ^fcurious girdle of his ephod, that was upon it, was of the same, according to the work thereof, of gold, blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen; as the LORD commanded Moses.

7 And he put them on the shoulders of the ephod, that they should be stones for ^ha memorial to the children of Israel; as the LORD commanded Moses.

8 ¶ And he made the ⁱbreastplate of cunning work, like the work of the ephod; of gold, blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen.

12 And the third row, a ligure, an agate, and an amethyst.

13 And the fourth row, a beryl, an onyx, and a jasper: they were inclosed in ouches of gold in their inclosings.

14 And the stones were according to the names of the children of Israel, twelve, according to their names, like the engravings of a signet, every one with his name, according to the twelve tribes.

15 And they made upon the breastplate ^mchains at the ends, of wreathen work of pure gold.

16 And they made two ouches of gold, and two gold rings, and put the two rings in the two ends of the breastplate.

17 And they put the two wreathen chains of gold in the two rings on the ends of the breastplate.

18 And the two ends of the two wreathen chains they fastened in the two ouches, and put them on the shoulder-pieces of the ephod, before it.

19 And they made two rings of gold, and put them on the two ends of the breastplate, upon the border of it, which was on the side of the ephod inward.

20 And they made two other golden rings, and put them on the two sides of the ephod underneath, toward the forepart of it, over against the other coupling thereof, above the curious girdle of the ephod.

21 And they did bind the breastplate by his rings unto the rings of the ephod with a lace of blue, that it might be above the curious girdle of the ephod, and that the breastplate might not be loosed from the ephod; as the LORD commanded Moses.

22 ¶ And he made ⁿthe robe of the ephod of woven work, all of blue.

23 And there was an hole in the midst of the robe, as the hole of an habergeon, with a band round about the hole, that it should not rend.

24 And they made upon the hems of the robe pomegranates of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and twined linen.

expended in the tabernacle was 148,719*l.* sterling; and that the silver amounted to 37,721*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* sterling.

Chap. XXXIX. 1-43. Throughout the Scriptures, both of the Old and New Testament, it may be noticed that particular attention has been paid to "fine linen," which is employed to illustrate moral purity, the righteousness of the saints. For this purpose, it is the richest illustration that can be supplied from the whole range of created or existing things. It may not be easy to determine precisely whence it arises, but the fact is indubitable, that the beauty and propriety of the simile strongly commend themselves to the hearts of mankind. While those heaven-prepared men, whom we would call "men of genius," unitedly achieved their work in the most masterly manner in conformity with their instructions. Moses was very careful with his own eyes to examine it throughout, comparing the specifications with the execution. There is something remarkably graceful and hearty in the account given of his proceeding. "He looked upon all the work, and behold they had done it as the Lord had commanded, even so had they done it; and Moses blessed them." It was a happy moment for Moses; and he had special pleasure in thus emphatically expressing his happiness in a manner the most honourable and gratifying to these gifted men. It was, in 25 And they made bells of pure gold, and put the bells between the pomegranates, upon the hem of the robe, round about between the pomegranates:

26 A bell and a pomegranate, a bell and a pomegranate, round about the hem of the robe to minister in; as the LORD commanded Moses.

27 ¶ And they made coats of fine linen, of woven work, for Aaron, and for his sons;

28 And a mitre of fine linen, and goodly bonnets of fine linen, and linen breeches of fine twined linen;

29 And a girdle of fine twined linen, and blue, and purple, and scarlet, of needle-work; as the LORD commanded Moses.

30 ¶ And they made the plate of the holy crown of pure gold, and wrote upon it a writing, like to the engravings of a signet, HOLINESS TO THE LORD.

31 And they tied unto it a lace of blue, to fasten it on high upon the mitre; as the LORD commanded Moses.

32 ¶ Thus was all the work of the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation finished: and the children of Israel did according to all that the LORD commanded Moses, so did they.

33 ¶ And they brought the tabernacle unto Moses, the tent, and all his furniture, his taches, his boards, his bars, and his pillars, and his sockets;

34 And the covering of rams' skins dyed red, and the covering of badgers' skins, and the vail of the covering;

35 The ark of the testimony, and the staves thereof, and the mercy-seat;

36 The table, and all the vessels thereof, and the shew-bread;

37 The pure candlestick, with the lamps thereof, even with the lamps to be set in order, and all the vessels thereof, and the oil for light;

38 And the golden altar, and the anointing oil, and the sweet incense, and the hanging for the tabernacle-door;

39 The brasen altar, and his grate of brass, his staves, and all his vessels; the laver and his foot;

40 The hangings of the court, his pillars, and his sockets, and the hanging for the court-gate, his cords, and his pins, and all the vessels of the service of the tabernacle, for the tent of the congregation;

41 The cloths of service to do service in the holy place; and the holy garments for Aaron the priest, and his sons' garments, to minister in the priest's office.

CHAPTER XL.

1 The tabernacle is commanded to be reared; 9 and anointed. 13 Aaron and his sons to be sanctified.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 On the first day of the first month shalt thou set up the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation;

3 And thou shalt put therein the ark of the testimony, and cover the ark with the vail.

4 And thou shalt bring in the table, and set in order the things that are to be set in order upon it; and thou shalt bring in the candlestick, and light the lamps thereof.

5 And thou shalt set the altar of gold for the incense before the ark of the testimony, and put the hanging of the door to the tabernacle.

6 And thou shalt set the altar of the burnt-offering before the door of the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation.

7 And thou shalt set the laver between the tent of the congregation and the altar, and shalt put water therein.

8 And thou shalt set up the court round about, and hang up the hanging at the court-gate.

9 ¶ And thou shalt take the anointing oil, and anoint the tabernacle, and all that is therein, and shalt hallow it, and all the vessels thereof: and it shall be holy.

10 And thou shalt anoint the altar of the burnt-offering, and all his vessels, and sanctify the altar: and it shall be an altar most holy.

11 And thou shalt anoint the laver and his foot, and sanctify it.

12 ¶ And thou shalt bring Aaron and his sons unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and wash them with water.

13 And thou shalt put upon Aaron the holy garments, and anoint him, and sanctify him; that he may minister unto me in the priest's office.

14 And thou shalt bring his sons, and clothe them with coats:

15 And thou shalt anoint them, as thou didst anoint their father, that they may minister unto me in the priest's office: for their anointing shall surely be an everlasting priesthood throughout their generations.

effect, a sort of typical anticipation of the Master's own declaration, when in the end he will pronounce upon all his people who have been careful to shew their love by keeping his commandments, "Well done, good and faithful servants!"

Chap. XL. 1-33. The idea of an "everlasting priesthood" throughout their generations, is an expression deserving of notice. None of the priests of Aaron continued by reason of death, but provision was made for the chain which in its unity was to represent the individuals, while the Son of God, the great antitype, exhibits in his own glorious person the perpetuity required by the necessities of man. Moses, like Noah, is a lovely example of universal obedience. "According to all that the Lord commanded him, so did he." It would seem, from verse 17, that the preparation of the Tabernacle required six months, a period but short, when it is remembered how much was to be done. In the work of rearing it, Moses occupied the first place, as 16 Thus did Moses: according to all that the LORD commanded him, so did he.

17 ¶ And it came to pass in ^athe first month, in the second year, on the first day of the month, that the tabernacle was reared up.

18 And Moses ^rreared up the tabernacle, and fastened his sockets, and set up the boards thereof, and put in the bars thereof, and reared up his pillars.

19 And he spread abroad ^athe tent over the tabernacle, and put the covering of the tent above upon it; as the LORD commanded Moses.

20 ¶ And he took and put ^athe testimony into the ark, and set the staves on the ark, and put the ^amercy-seat above upon the ark.

21 And ^ahe brought the ark into the tabernacle, and set up the vail of the covering, and covered the ark of the testimony; as the LORD commanded Moses.

22 ¶ And ^ahe put the table in the tent of the congregation, upon the side of the tabernacle ^anorthward, without the vail.

23 And he ^aset the bread in order upon it before the LORD; as the LORD had commanded Moses.

24 ¶ And he put ^bthe candlestick in the tent of the congregation, over against the table, on the side of the tabernacle southward.

25 And he lighted the lamps before the LORD; as the LORD commanded Moses.

26 ¶ And he put the ^agolden altar in the tent of the congregation before the vail:

27 And he burnt sweet incense thereon; as the LORD commanded Moses.

THE THIRD BOOK OF MOSES, CALLED LEVITICUS.

This Book is devoted to the Laws of Moses concerning sacrifices, meats, drinks, divers offerings, and other peculiarities. The spirit of these institutions was thoroughly Evangelical: they were so many figurative exhibitions of the blood of the Atonement, and the work of the Holy Spirit. There is, nevertheless, a slight intermixture both of history and of prophecy: some of the historic parts, such as that referring to Nadab and Abihu, are highly important, while the prophecy, relative to the future of Israel, is being fulfilled at this moment; notwithstanding their persecutions, their dispersions, and all attempts at their annihilation, they are a distinct, numerous, and wealthy people, clearly reserved for stupendous purposes yet to be accomplished in the earth.

CHAPTER I.

became him, as the chief type of the Lord Jesus. The first day of the month, and the six days that ensued, were employed in setting it up and in consecrating it; while the consecration of the priests themselves would require the next seven days, employing together fourteen days; and on the fifteenth began the grand festival of the passover. Ver. 24-38. A great point was established by this Divine manifestation. It was thus shown that, for the future, the Tabernacle was to be the Holy Place to which all who would worship the Most High were to look, since he had graciously condescended to fill it with his glory. This was now the standard of the camp; the cloud was the voice of the Lord; as it moved, they moved, as it rested, they rested. Thus with the cloud by day, and the fire by night, in the sight of all the house of Israel, through all their journeyings, they had a constant symbol of the Divine presence.

Chap. I. 1-8. The voice proceeded from the cloud of glory that rested on the Tabernacle, and being a new 12 And he shall cut it into his pieces, with his head and his fat; and the priest shall ^x lay them in order on the wood that is on the fire which is upon the altar.

CHAPTER II.

1 The meat-offering of flour with oil and incense: 15 and of the first-fruits in the ear. 18 The salt of the meat-offering.

AND when any will offer a ^a meat-offering unto the LORD, his offering shall be of ^b fine flour; and he shall ^c pour oil upon it, and put ^d frankincense thereon.

2 And he shall bring it to Aaron's sons the priests: and he shall take thereout his handful of the flour thereof, and of the oil thereof, with all the frankincense thereof; and the priest shall burn ^e the memorial of it upon the altar, to be an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

3 And ^f the remnant of the meat-offering shall be Aaron's and his sons': it is a mode of manifestation, doubtless it impressed the hearts of the people with great solemnity. The expression, "If any man shall bring," is not to be confounded with mere choice, whether he should bring it or not. The obligation to bring is assumed, and the manner of so doing is pointed out. The principal thing to be noted, is the speciality and minuteness of the injunctions which are here given, from which we are to gather the danger of leaving too much to man's discretion in matters of religious obedience, which, unless love shall abound, would infallibly lead to negligences. Great stress seems to be laid on the voluntary character of the offerings: "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver;" in proportion as religious service is compulsory, it becomes worthless. The covenant of mercy, and Christ the great subject of it, were the spontaneous effect of Divine love towards perishing men; and accordingly, true religion consists in the reciprocation of that love. No offering with a blemish was to be brought, since it misrepresented the character of the Lord Jesus, to whom all the sacrifices pointed, and who was himself "holy, harmless, and undefiled." Ver. 4-17. Atonement is synonymous with propitiation or expiation; it is that which renders it consistent with justice to exercise mercy. It is a means of magnifying the Law, and vindicating the honour of the Lawgiver. The primary import of the term is happily expressive of the object: it signifies to cover, to shelter; and it is therefore applied to the Mercy Seat which covered the Ark and all contained therein. The notion is that of one suffering in the stead of another: so that, in punishment, innocents suffers, and guilt is allowed to go free. The death of a creature could be nothing more than a mere figure, but as a figure it was the best possible illustration of Divine mercy. The great thing both with the Patriarchs and the children of Israel, when organised into a nation and a church, was the Atonement as pointing to the sufferings of the "Seed of the woman," who was to destroy the serpent. The fire of the altar was an object of the deepest interest: originally it came down from heaven and consumed the sacrifice, which was a token of the Divine acceptance. Of heavenly origin, it was to be continued through future ages by a constant supply of natural fuel, strikingly exemplifying the nature of the work of the Spirit of God in the heart of man. A variety of creatures were available for sacrifice, so that even the poorest need not go without the privilege of appearing before his God. The idea of an atonement for sin has prevailed throughout the whole human race, a fact which can only be accounted for by the assumption of its unity, and the communication of instruction upon the matter of sacrifice to the Primeval Pair. The heathen have greatly corrupted the institution of sacrifice; they have largely offered men, and even horses, asses, and other animals, but this by no means militates against the notion of its origin and object. All, then, conspires constantly to direct the attention of man to the blood of Christ as the only means of obtaining the forgiveness of sin, and the acceptance of the person of the penitent believer.

Chap. II. 1-3. The meat-offering was a voluntary expression of thanksgiving to God for his temporal mercies, and as such it consisted of flour, corn, wine, oil, and other products of the earth. It was nevertheless accepted from the very poor as a sin-offering; but in that case neither oil nor frankincense was to be mingled with it. This sacrifice is deemed a figure of the sacrifice of Christ, as also of the fruits of the Holy Ghost dwelling in be-thing ⁶most holy of the offerings of the LORD made by fire.

4 ¶ And if thou bring an oblation of a ^hmeat-offering baken in the oven, it shall be ¹unleavened cakes of fine flour mingled with oil, or unleavened ^hwafers anointed with oil.

5 ¶ And if thy oblation be a meat-offering baken ¹in a pan, it shall be of fine flour unleavened, mingled with oil.

6 Thou shalt ¹part it in pieces, and pour oil thereon: it is a meat-offering.

7 ¶ And if thy oblation be a meat-offering baken in the frying-pan, it shall be made ^mof fine flour with oil.

8 And thou shalt bring the meat-offering that is made of these things unto the LORD: and when it is presented unto the priest, he shall bring it unto the altar.

9 And the priest shall take from the meat-offering a memorial thereof, and shall burn it upon the altar: it is ^aan offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

10 And ^othat which is left of the meat-offering shall be Aaron's and his sons: it is a thing most holy of the offerings of the LORD made by fire.

11 No-meat-offering, which ye shall bring unto the LORD, shall be made with leaven: for ye shall burn ^pno leaven, nor any ^qhoney, in any offering of the LORD made by fire.

12 ¶ As for ^rthe oblation of the first-fruits, ye shall offer them unto the LORD; but they shall not be ^sburnt on the altar for a sweet savour.

13 ¶ And every oblation of thy meat-offering shalt thou season ^twith salt; neither shalt thou suffer ^tthe salt of the covenant of thy God to be lacking from thy meat-offering: with all thine offerings thou shalt offer salt.

14 And if thou offer ^ua meat-offering of thy first-fruits unto the LORD, thou shalt offer, for the meat-offering of thy first-fruits, green ears of corn dried by the fire, even ^vcorn beaten out of full ears.

15 And thou shalt ^wput oil upon it, and lay frankincense thereon: it is a meat-offering.

16 And the priest shall burn ^xthe memorial of it, part of the beaten corn thereof, and part of the oil thereof, with all the frankincense thereof: it is an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

CHAPTER III.

1 The peace-offering of the herd: 6 of the flock: 7 either a lamb, 12 or a goat.

AND if his oblation be ^aa sacrifice of A peace-offering, if he offer it of the herd; whether it be a male or female, he shall offer it ^bwithout blemish before the LORD.

2 And he shall ^clay his hand upon the head of his offering, and ^dkill it at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation; and Aaron's sons, the priests, shall sprinkle the blood upon the altar round about.

3 And he shall offer of the sacrifice of the peace-offering an offering made by fire unto the LORD; ^ethe ¹fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards,

4 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is on them, which is by the flanks, and the ²caul above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away.

5 And ^fAaron's sons shall burn it on the altar ^gupon the burnt-sacrifice, which is upon the wood that is on the fire: it is an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

6 ¶ And if his offering, for a sacrifice of peace-offering unto the LORD, ^hbe of the flock, ⁱmale or female; he shall offer it without blemish.

7 If he offer a lamb for his offering, then shall he ^koffer it before the LORD.

8 And ^lhe shall lay his hand upon the head of his offering, and kill it before the tabernacle of the congregation: and Aaron's sons shall sprinkle the blood thereof round about upon the altar.

9 And he shall offer, of the sacrifice of the peace-offering, an offering made by fire unto the LORD; the fat thereof, and ^mthe whole rump, it shall he take off hard by the back-bone; and the fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards,

10 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, which is by the flanks, and the caul above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away.

11 And the priest shall burn it upon the altar: it is ⁿthe food of the offering made by fire unto the LORD.

12 ¶ And if his offering be ^oa goat, then he shall offer it before the LORD.

13 And he shall ^play his hand upon the livers, and in them leading to good works. The "handful of flour," by way of memorial, signified that the party presenting it loved the Lord, desiring him to remember the covenant made with Abraham and his seed for ever. Ver. 4-16. Leaven was probably interdicted as a thing that soon became corrupt in warm countries, so that it was not suitable for use; and the Apostle Paul, in 1 Cor. v. 6-8, employs the idea to illustrate the corrupt affections of the human heart. Honey was ever deemed an eligible article of food, if eaten in moderation; but in excess it is, like everything else, hurtful. It is thought that the prohibition of honey here set forth, may have been intended to warn the people from the practices of idolatry, since it constituted a considerable element in Egyptian sacrifice, in the chief of which the body of a heifer was actually stuffed with bread and honey, and red grapes, and perfumes, and then cut up and eaten by the worshippers. Great stress is laid upon salt throughout these sacrificial arrangements. Salt was a special preservative of food: and by consequence illustrated the conserving power of the grace of God. It is an emblem of Divine knowledge, comprising both the law and the promise, which exercised a purifying effect on the heart; and its use in all that appertains to the sacrificial system, strikingly illustrated the need of grace to savour all our thoughts, words and deeds.

Chap. III. 1-17. The sacrifice of peace was oft-times the expression of holy zeal, and was in its nature a feast-offering. Still it pointed to the voluntary sacrifice of Christ to God on behalf of a lost world. The spirit of the offering seems to have exhibited the peace of be-head of it, and kill it before the tabernacle of the congregation: and the sons of Aaron shall sprinkle the blood thereof upon the altar round about.

14 And he shall offer thereof his offering, even an offering made by fire unto the LORD; the fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards,

15 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, which is by the flanks, and the caul above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away.

16 And the priest shall burn them upon the altar: it is the food of the offering made by fire, for a sweet savour. All the fat is the LORD's.

17 It shall be a perpetual statute for your generations, throughout all your dwellings, that ye eat neither fat nor blood.

CHAPTER IV.

1 The sin-offering of ignorance; 3 for the priest; 13 for the congregation; 22 for a ruler; 27 and for any of the people.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If a soul shall sin through ignorance against any of the commandments of the LORD, concerning things which ought not to be done, and shall do against any of them:

3 If the priest that is anointed do sin according to the sin of the people; then let him bring, for his sin which he hath sinned, a young bullock without blemish unto the LORD for a sin-offering.

4 And he shall bring the bullock unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation before the LORD; and shall lay his hand upon the bullock's head, and kill the bullock before the LORD.

5 And the priest that is anointed shall take of the bullock's blood, and bring it to the tabernacle of the congregation.

6 And the priest shall dip his finger in the blood, and sprinkle of the blood seven times before the LORD, before the veil of the sanctuary.

7 And the priest shall put some of the blood upon the horns of the altar of sweet incense before the LORD, which is in the tabernacle of the congregation; and shall pour all the blood of the bullock at the bottom of the altar of the burnt-offering,

13 ¶ And if the whole congregation of Israel sin through ignorance, and the thing be hid from the eyes of the assembly, and they have done somewhat against any of the commandments of the LORD, concerning things which should not be done, and are guilty;

14 When the sin, which they have sinned against it, is known, then the congregation shall offer a young bullock for the sin, and bring him before the tabernacle of the congregation.

19 And he shall take all his fat from him, and burn it upon the altar.

Bevers, the bond of union which obtains between them, and the golden link whereby they are united to God the Father. The burnt-offering, on the contrary, was entirely consumed, whereby it impressively shadowed forth the propitiatory character of the Saviour's death. The meat-offering had respect to the wants of the priests; and typified the gratitude and devotedness of the followers of the Lord. The feast-offering, however, was of a more social character: it was a species of religious banquet between the worshipper and his associates, corresponding with the "feast of charity" which obtained in the primitive church.

Chap. IV. 1-10. It is impossible to ascertain whether the priest here mentioned be the high priest or a member of the priesthood generally. It is clear, however, that in the case of his departure from the law, an atonement was demanded for the removal of his guilt; and till that was done he was not in a position to appear on behalf of the people. From the nature of his office, he was required to have "clean hands," and to exemplify the doctrines he taught; but if, instead of this, he mingled with transgressors and followed their ways, he ceased to be a guide, and became a stumblingblock. The number "seven," here set forth in verse 6, has been deemed a mystical number. It is one which frequently occurs in the word of God; and is supposed to denote perfection. Ver. 11-35. The removal of the bullock "without the camp" was intended to indicate the exceeding sinfulness of sin, especially in those who ought to be patterns of purity, as well as the removal of the iniquity thus contracted, and the preservation of the camp for the future from its contamination. It is with reference to this that the Lord Jesus Christ "suffered 20 And he shall do with the bullock as he did with the bullock for a sin-offering, so shall he do with this: and the priest shall make an ^aatonement for them, and it shall be forgiven them.

21 And he shall carry forth the bullock without the camp, and burn him as he burned the first bullock: it is ^aa sin-offering for the congregation.

22 ¶ When a ^aruler hath sinned, and ^bdone something through ignorance against any of the commandments of the LORD his God, concerning things which should not be done, and is guilty;

23 Or ^cif his sin, wherein he hath sinned, come to his knowledge; he shall bring his offering, ^aa kid of the goats, a male without blemish.

24 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of the goat, and kill it ^cin the place where they kill the burnt-offering before the LORD: ^cit is a sin-offering.

25 And the priest shall take of the blood of the sin-offering with his finger, and ^aput it upon the horns of the altar of burnt-offering, and shall pour out his blood at the bottom of the altar of burnt-offering.

26 And he shall burn all his fat upon the altar, as ^bthe fat of the sacrifice of peace-offerings: and the priest shall make ^aan atonement for him as concerning his sin, and it shall be forgiven him.

27 ¶ And if ^aany one of the ^acommon ^bpeople sin through ignorance, while he doeth something against any of the commandments of the LORD, concerning things which ought not to be done, and be guilty;

28 Or if his sin, which he hath sinned, come to his knowledge: then he shall bring his offering, ^aa kid of the goats, a female without blemish, ^afor his sin which he hath sinned.

30 And the priest shall take of the blood thereof with his finger, and put it upon the horns of the altar of burnt-offering, and shall pour out all the blood thereof at the bottom of the altar.

31 And he shall take away ^aall the fat thereof, as the fat is taken away from off the sacrifice of peace-offerings; and the priest shall burn it upon the altar for ^aa sweet savour unto the LORD; and the priest shall make an atonement for him, and it shall be forgiven him.

CHAPTER V.

1 Of him that concealeth his knowledge in touching of an unclean thing; 4 or in making an oath. 14 The trespass-offering in sacrifice; 17 and in sins of ignorance.

AND if ^aa soul sin, and ^bhear the voice ^aof swearing, and is a witness, whether he hath seen or known of it; if he do not utter it, then he shall ^cbear his iniquity.

2 Or if a soul ^atouch any unclean thing, whether it be a carcase of an unclean beast, or a carcase of unclean cattle, or the carcase of unclean creeping things, and ^aif it be hidden from him; he also shall be unclean, and guilty.

3 Or if he touch ^athe uncleanness of man, whatsoever uncleanness it be that a man shall be defiled withal, and it be hid from him; when he knoweth of it, then he shall be guilty.

4 Or if a soul swear, pronouncing with his lips ^ato do evil, or to do good, whatsoever it be that a man shall pronounce with an oath, and it be hid from him; when he knoweth of it, then he shall be guilty in one of these.

5 And it shall be, when he shall be guilty in one of these things, that he shall ^aconfess that he hath sinned in that thing.

6 And he shall bring his ^atrespass-offering unto the LORD, for his sin which he hath sinned, a female from the flock, a lamb, or a kid of the goats, for a sin-offering; and the priest shall make an atonement for him concerning his sin.

7 And ^aif ^bhe be not able to bring a lamb, then he shall bring, for his trespass which he hath committed, ^atwo turtle-doves, or two young pigeons, unto the LORD; ^aone for a sin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering.

without the gate." The "congregation" is a term which always implied the whole people, shewing that the church of God is one body, notwithstanding the diversity of aspects it may bear, and the great variety of subjects it may contain. It is here assumed that there may be such a thing as congregational sin; a sin of a national character. Where all, as transgressors, have rendered themselves liable to correction, they require penitence and confession in order to forgiveness. The ruler also, as such, and apart from the congregation, may transgress, and he is required to act accordingly. The position of the transgressor materially aggravates the guilt of the transgression. Those who "know their master's will and do it not," are justly "beaten with many stripes."

Chap. V. 1-19. In all ages, testimony has been necessary to the purposes of justice; and it has been ever deemed a serious crime against society to violate truth by concealment, falsehood, or any mixture of modification. Moses directs the severest threatenings against this species of transgression. Vows are in effect

8 And he shall bring them unto the priest, who shall offer that which is for the sin-offering first, and wring off his head from his neck, but shall not divide it asunder.

9 And he shall ^msprinkle of the blood of the sin-offering upon the side of the altar; and the ⁿrest of the blood shall be wrung out at the bottom of the altar: it is a sin-offering.

10 And he shall offer the second for a burnt-offering, according to the ^mmanner; and the priest shall make an atonement for him, for his sin which he hath sinned, and it shall be forgiven him.

11 But if he be not able to bring two turtle-doves, or two young pigeons; then he that sinned shall bring for his offering the tenth part of an ephah of ^ofine flour for a sin-offering: he shall put ^pno oil upon it, neither shall he put ^qany frankincense thereon; ^rfor it is a sin-offering.

12 Then shall he bring it to the priest, and the priest shall take his handful of it, ^seven ^ta memorial thereof, and burn it on the altar, ^uaccording to the offerings made by fire unto the LORD: it is a sin-offering.

13 And the priest shall make an atonement for him, as touching his sin that he hath sinned in one of these, and it shall be forgiven him: and the ^vremnant ^wshall be the priest's, as a meat-offering.

14 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

15 If a soul commit a trespass, and sin through ignorance, ^xin the holy things of the LORD; then he shall bring for his trespass unto the LORD ^ya ram without blemish out of the flocks, with ^zthy estimation by shekels of silver, after ^{aa}the shekel of the sanctuary, for a trespass-offering.

16 And he shall ^{ab}make amends for the harm that he hath done in the holy thing, and shall add the fifth part thereto, and give it unto the priest: ^{ac}and the priest shall make an atonement for him with the ram of the trespass-offering, and it shall be forgiven him.

17 ¶ And if a soul sin, and commit any of these things which are forbidden to be done by the commandments of the LORD; ^{ad}though he wist it not, yet is he guilty, and shall bear his iniquity.

18 And he shall bring a ram without blemish out of the flock, with thy estimation, ^{ae}for a trespass-offering, unto the priest: and the priest shall make an atonement for him concerning his ignorance wherein he erred, and wist it not; and it shall be forgiven him.

19 It is a trespass-offering: he hath certainly ^htrespassed against the LORD.

CHAPTER VI.

1 The trespass-offering for sins done unwittingly. 19 The offering at the consecration of a priest.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, 2 If a soul sin, and ^acommit a trespass against the LORD, and ^blie unto his neighbour ^cin that which was delivered him to keep, or ^din fellowship, or in a thing taken away by violence, or hath ^edeceived his neighbour;

3 Or ^fhave found that which was lost, and lieth concerning it, and ^gswareth falsely; in any of all these that a man doeth, sinning therein:

4 Then it shall be, ^hbecause he hath sinned, and is guilty, that he shall restore that ⁱwhich he took violently away, or the thing which he hath deceitfully gotten, or that which was delivered him to keep, or the lost thing which he found,

5 Or all that about which he hath sworn falsely; he shall even ^jrestore it in the principal, and shall add the fifth part more thereto, ^kand give it unto him to whom it appertaineth, in the day ^lof his trespass-offering.

6 And he shall bring his trespass-offering unto the LORD, ^ma ram without blemish out of the flock, with thy estimation, for a trespass-offering, unto the priest:

7 And the priest shall ⁿmake an atonement for him before the LORD; and it shall be forgiven him, for anything of all that he hath done, in trespassing therein.

8 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

9 Command Aaron and his sons, saying, This is the law of ^othe burnt-offering: It is the burnt-offering, ^pbecause of ^qthe burning upon the altar all night unto the morning, and the fire of the altar shall be burning in it.

10 And the priest shall put on his ^rlinen garment, and his linen breeches shall he put upon his flesh, and take up the ashes which the fire hath ^sconsumed with the burnt-offering on the altar, and he shall put them ^tbeside the altar.

11 And he shall ^uput off his garments, and put on other garments, and carry forth the ashes ^vwithout the camp unto a clean place.

ashes, and ought therefore to be made warily, and fulfilled to the letter. Men are not bound to form such vows; but once made, they cannot be broken without doing violence to conscience. It is, of course, assumed that the vow was to be lawful, otherwise the very making of it was sin. The "holy things," referred to in ver. 15, necessarily comprehended everything that appertained to religion and its ordinances; and wherever that was done which admitted of reparation, the offender was required to make it. Amidst these figures, the great truth is everywhere manifest that iniquity is a thing of the heart, and that as such it must be steadfastly resisted. It is a serious thing to rob our fellow-men, but it is still a more heinous offence to rob our God. We have now done with the ceremonial law, but not with the higher law of Christ—the law of love extending to everything affecting God or man.

Chap. VI. 1-30. Fellowship means joint participation with one or more in anything, whether good or bad. In ver. 2, it appears also to signify the entrusting of anything to the care of another. The fire, referred to in ver. 12, as stated in a previous chapter, was the original fire which came down from heaven, and which was to be preserved in perpetuity. Our information concerning this fire is limited to scripture; but a tradition has come down among the Jews which is by no means improbable, that it was never extinguished till the Babylonian captivity. The heathen who borrowed almost everything connected with their system from the Jews, adopted 12 And ^athe fire upon the altar shall be burning in it; it shall not be put out: and the priest shall ^aburn wood on it every morning, and lay the burnt-offering in order upon it; and he shall burn thereon the fat of the peace-offerings.

13 The fire shall ever be burning upon the altar; it shall never go out.

14 ¶ And this is the law of ^athe meat-offering: The sons of Aaron shall offer it before the LORD, before the altar.

15 And he shall take of it his handful, of the flour of the meat-offering, and of the oil thereof, and all the frankincense which is upon the meat-offering, and shall burn it upon the altar for a sweet savour, even ^athe memorial of it, unto the LORD.

16 And ^athe remainder thereof shall Aaron and his sons eat: with ^aunleavened bread ^bshall it be eaten in the holy place; in the court of the tabernacle of the congregation they shall eat it.

17 It shall not be ^cbaken with leaven. I have given it ^aunto them for their portion of my offerings made by fire: ^ait is most holy, as is the sin-offering, and as the trespass-offering.

18 ^aAll the males among the children of Aaron shall eat of it. ^aIt shall be a statute for ever in your generations concerning the offerings of the LORD made by fire: ^aevery one that toucheth them shall be holy.

19 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

20 This is ^athe offering of Aaron, and of his sons, which they shall offer unto the LORD, in the day when he is anointed; ^athe tenth part of an ephah of fine flour for ^aa meat-offering perpetual, half of it in the morning, and half thereof at night.

21 In ^aa pan it shall be made with oil; and when it is baken, thou shalt bring it in: and the baken pieces of the meat-offering shalt thou offer for a sweet savour unto the LORD.

22 And the priest of his sons, that ^ais anointed in his stead, shall offer it: ^ait is a statute for ever unto the LORD; it shall be ^awholly burnt.

23 For every meat-offering for the priest shall be wholly burnt: ^ait shall not be eaten.

24 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

25 Speak unto Aaron and to his sons, saying, This is ^athe law of the sin-offering: ^aIn the place where the burnt-offering is killed shall the sin-offering be killed before the LORD: ^ait is most holy.

29 All ^athe males among the priests shall eat thereof: it is most holy.

30 And ^ano sin-offering, whereof ^aany of the blood is brought into the tabernacle of the congregation, to reconcile ^awithal in the holy place, shall be eaten; it shall be burnt in the fire.

CHAPTER VII.

1 The law of the trespass-offering, 11 and of the peace-offerings. 22 The fat, 26 and the blood are forbidden.

LIKEWISE this is ^athe law of the trespass-offering: ^ait is most holy.

2 In ^athe place where they kill the burnt-offering shall they kill the trespass-offering: and ^athe blood thereof shall he sprinkle round about upon the altar.

3 And he shall offer of it ^aall the fat thereof; the rump, and the fat that covereth the inwards.

4 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is on them, which is by the flanks, and the caul ^athat is above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away.

5 And the priest shall ^aburn them upon the altar for an offering made by fire unto the LORD: it is a trespass-offering.

6 Every ^amale among the priests shall eat thereof: it shall be eaten in the holy place: it is most holy.

7 As the sin-offering is, so is ^athe trespass-offering: ^athere is one law for them: the priest that maketh atonement therewith shall have it.

8 And the priest that offereth any man's burnt-offering, ^aeven the priest shall have to himself ^athe skin of the burnt-offering which he hath offered.

9 And all ^athe meat-offering that is baken in the oven, and all that is dressed in the frying-pan, and ^ain the pan, ^ashall be the priest's that offereth it.

10 And every meat-offering mingled with oil, and dry, shall all the sons of Aaron have, ^aone as much as another.

11 ¶ And this is the law of ^athe sacrifice of peace-offerings, which he shall offer unto the LORD.

this. Hence at Rome, the vestal virgins were appointed to feed the fires of the temple; the Greeks followed the same course in the temple of Delphi; the Persians also had a usage of a corresponding character, all shewing the extent to which the tradition prevailed in ancient times. The perpetuity of the fire has a very important theological bearing, since it indicates the Divine abhorrence of sin, the necessity of its continual remembrance on the part of the sinner, and a habitual looking to him, who, by one offering up of himself, has perfected for ever them that are sanctified.

Chap. VII. 1-38. The trespass-offering was a matter of great moment in the Jewish economy. It was presented for sins committed through ignorance or thoughtlessness against man; and therefore, it differed in principle from the sin-offering, which more directly pointed to sins committed against God. The skins mentioned in verse 8, belonged to the priests, and were a considerable perquisite. It is curious to observe, that the same thing obtained amongst the idolatrous priests of the heathen; these skins by them were made the instruments of imposture, as a means of communing with the 12 If he offer it for a ^othanksgiving, then he shall offer with the sacrifice of thanksgiving unleavened cakes mingled with oil, and ^punleavened wafers anointed with oil, and cakes mingled with oil, of fine flour, fried.

13 Besides the cakes, he shall offer for his offering ^qleavened bread with the sacrifice of thanksgiving of his peace-offerings.

14 And of it he shall offer one out of the whole oblation for ^ran heave-offering unto the LORD, and it shall be ^sthe priest's that sprinklETH the blood of the peace-offerings.

15 And the flesh of the sacrifice of his peace-offerings for thanksgiving shall ^tbe eaten the same day that it is offered; he shall not leave any of it until the morning.

16 But if the sacrifice of his offering ^ube a vow, or ^va voluntary offering, it shall be eaten the same day that he offereth his sacrifice; and on the morrow ^walso the remainder of it shall be eaten.

17 But the remainder of the flesh of the sacrifice ^xon the third day shall be ^yburnt with fire.

18 And if ^zany of the flesh of the sacrifice of his peace-offerings be eaten at all on the third day, ^{aa}it shall not be accepted, neither shall it ^{ab}be imputed unto him that offereth it: it shall be ^{ac}an abomination, and the soul that eateth of it shall ^{ad}bear his iniquity.

19 And the flesh that ^{ae}toucheth any unclean thing shall not be eaten; it shall be burnt with fire: and as for the flesh, all that be clean shall eat thereof.

20 But the soul that eateth of the flesh of the sacrifice of peace-offerings that ^{af}pertain unto the LORD, ^{ag}having his uncleanness upon him, even that soul shall be cut off from his people.

21 Moreover, the soul that shall touch any unclean thing, as ^{ah}the uncleanness of man, or ^{ai}any ^{aj}unclean beast, or any ^{ak}abominable unclean thing, and eat of the flesh of the sacrifice of peace-offerings which ^{al}pertain unto the LORD, even that soul shall be ^{am}cut off from his people.

22 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

23 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, Ye shall eat no manner of ^{an}fat, of ox, or of sheep, or of goat.

24 And the fat of the ^{ao}beast that dieth of itself, and the fat of that which is torn with beasts, may be used in any other use; but ye shall in no wise eat of it.

25 For whosoever eateth the fat of the ^{ap}beast, of which men eat an offering made by fire unto the LORD, even the soul that eateth it ^{aq}shall be cut off from his people.

28 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

29 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, ^{au}He that offereth the sacrifice of his peace-offerings unto the LORD, shall bring his oblation unto the LORD of the sacrifice of his peace-offerings.

30 ^{av}His own hands shall bring the offerings of the LORD made by fire; the fat, with the breast, it shall he bring, that ^{aw}the breast may be waved for a wave-offering before the LORD.

31 And the priest shall burn the fat upon the altar; but ^{ax}the breast shall be Aaron's and his sons'.

32 And ^{ay}the right shoulder shall ye give unto the priest for an heave-offering of the sacrifices of your peace-offerings.

33 He among the sons of Aaron ^{az}that offereth the blood of the peace-offerings, and the fat, shall have the right shoulder for his part.

34 For ^{ba}the wave-breast and the heave-shoulder have I taken of the children of Israel from off the sacrifices of their peace-offerings, and have given them unto Aaron the priest, and unto his sons, ^{bb}by a statute for ever, from among the children of Israel.

35 ¶ This is the portion ^{bc}of the anointing of Aaron, and of the anointing of his sons, out of the offerings of the LORD made by fire, in the day ^{bd}when he presented them to minister unto the LORD in the priest's office;

36 Which the LORD commanded to be given them of the children of Israel, in the day that he anointed them, ^{be}by a statute for ever throughout their generations.

37 This is ^{bf}the law of the burnt-offering, ^{bg}of the meat-offering, ^{bh}and of the sin-offering, ^{bi}and of the trespass-offering, and ^{bj}of the consecrations, and ^{bk}of the sacrifice of the peace-offerings, 38 Which the LORD commanded Moses in mount Sinai, in the day that he ^{bl}commanded the children of Israel to offer their oblations unto the LORD, in the wilderness of Sinai.

CHAPTER VIII.

1 Moses consecrateth Aaron and his sons; 14 their sin-offering; 18 their burnt-offering. 22 The ram of consecration. 31 The place and time of their consecration.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, invisible world, and getting at the secrets of futurity. The practice was to sleep on the skins, when it was pretended that the thing desired to be known was imparted in a dream. There was something alike peremptory and social in the matter of the peace-offering, where the party presenting it was required to make a feast, of which both his friends and the poor were invited to partake. This was one of the many paternal aspects in which the laws of Moses appear to incomparable advantage. The priests, from their position, could never accumulate wealth; all they received merely sufficed for the day that was passing over them. Under the Christian dispensation, ministers of the word, having renounced the gains of commerce, and the emoluments arising from the professions and other sources, have a claim of justice, not of charity, to a decent maintenance for themselves and their families.

Chap. VIII. 1-36. It is here shown that they who are to propagate the doctrines of religion for the purpose burnt-offering: and Aaron and his sons laid their hands upon the head of the ram.

19 And he killed ^{ca} it; and Moses sprinkled the blood upon the altar round about.

20 And he cut the ram into pieces; and Moses burnt the head, and the pieces, and the fat.

21 And he washed the inwards and the legs in water; and Moses burnt the whole ram upon the altar: it ^{cb} was a burnt-sacrifice for ^{cc} a sweet savour, and an offering made by fire unto the LORD; as the LORD commanded Moses.

22 ^{cd} And he brought the other ram, ^{ce} the ram of consecration: and Aaron and his sons laid their hands upon the head of the ram.

23 And he slew ^{cf} it; and Moses ^{cg} took of the blood of it, and put ^{ch} it upon the tip of Aaron's right ear, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot.

24 And he brought Aaron's sons, and Moses put of the blood upon the tip of their right ear, and upon the thumbs of their right hands, and upon the great toes of their right feet; and Moses sprinkled the blood upon the altar round about.

25 And he took ^{ci} the fat, and the rump, and all the fat that ^{cj} was upon the inwards, and the caul ^{ck} above the liver, and the two kidneys, and their fat, and the right shoulder:

26 And out of the basket of unleavened bread that ^{cl} was before the LORD he took one unleavened cake, and a cake of oiled bread, and one wafer, and put ^{cm} them on the fat, and upon the right shoulder:

27 And he put all upon Aaron's hands, and upon his sons' hands, ^{cn} and waved them ^{co} for a wave-offering before the LORD.

28 And Moses took them from off their hands, and burnt ^{cp} them on the altar upon the burnt-offering: ^{cq} they were consecrations for a sweet savour; it is an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

29 And Moses took ^{cr} the breast, and waved it ^{cs} for a wave-offering before the LORD: ^{ct} for of the ram of consecration it was Moses' part; as the LORD commanded Moses.

30 And Moses took of ^{cu} the anointing oil, and of the blood which ^{cv} was upon the altar, and sprinkled ^{cw} it upon Aaron, and upon his garments, and upon his sons, and upon his sons' garments with him; and sanctified Aaron, ^{cx} and his garments, and his sons, and his sons' garments with him.

31 ^{cy} And Moses said unto Aaron and to his sons, ^{cz} Boil the flesh ^{da} at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation; and there ^{db} eat it with the bread that ^{dc} is in the

of faith, must be themselves believers; that they who are to recommend the Saviour, must themselves love him; that they who are to proclaim the beauties of holiness, must be themselves patterns. The position of Aaron and his sons was exalted; and in that proportion was their responsibility. Holiness, not talents or learning, was the great distinguishing feature of the priestly character. Thus it is with all Christians without regard to sects or social position. Holiness to the Lord, is to be their motto; whether they are more or less gifted, or cultivated, or learned, is a minor consideration; but this attribute of holiness is to be the common basket of consecrations, as I commanded, saying, Aaron and his sons shall eat it.

32 And that which ²²remaineth of the flesh and of the bread shall ye burn with fire.

33 And ye shall not go out of the door of the tabernacle of the congregation ⁱⁿ seven days, until the days of your consecration be at an end: for ²³seven days shall he consecrate you.

34 As ²⁴he hath done this day, so the LORD hath commanded to do, to make an atonement for you.

35 Therefore shall ye abide ^{at} the door of the tabernacle of the congregation day and night seven days, and ²⁵keep the charge of the LORD, that ye die not: for so I am commanded.

36 So ²⁶Aaron and his sons did all things which the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses.

CHAPTER IX.

1, 8 Aaron's sin-offering, and burnt-offering for himself and the people. 23 The people blessed. 24 Fire from heaven.

AND it came to pass on ^athe eighth day, ¹that Moses called Aaron and his sons, and the elders of Israel;

2 And he said unto Aaron, Take thee ^ba young calf for a sin-offering, and ^ca ram for a burnt-offering, without blemish, and offer ²them before the LORD.

3 And unto the children of Israel thou shalt speak, saying, ^dTake ye a kid of the goats for a sin-offering; and ^ea calf and a lamb, ^fboth of the first year, without blemish, for a burnt-offering;

4 Also ^ga bullock and a ram for peace-offerings, to sacrifice before the LORD; ^hand a meat-offering mingled with oil: for to-day the LORD will appear unto you.

5 ⁱAnd they brought ^{that} which Moses commanded before the tabernacle of the congregation; ¹and all the congregation drew near, and stood before the LORD.

6 And Moses said, This ^{is} the thing which the LORD commanded that ye should do: and ²the glory of the LORD shall appear unto you.

7 And Moses said unto Aaron, Go unto the altar, and ¹offer thy sin-offering, and thy burnt-offering, and make an atonement for thyself, and for the people: and ²offer the offering of the people, and make an atonement for them; as the LORD commanded.

8 ³And Aaron therefore went unto the altar, and slew the calf of the sin-offering which was for himself.

9 And the sons of Aaron brought the blood unto him; and ¹he dipped his finger in the blood, and put ²it upon the horns of the altar, and poured out the blood at the bottom of the altar:

10 But ³the fat, and the kidneys, and the caul above the liver of the sin-offering, he burnt upon the altar; ⁴as the LORD commanded Moses.

11 And ⁵the flesh and the hide he burnt with fire without the camp.

12 And he slew ⁶the burnt-offering; and Aaron's sons presented unto him the blood, which he sprinkled round about upon the altar.

13 And they presented the burnt-offering unto him, with the pieces thereof, and the head; and he burnt ⁷them upon the altar.

14 And he did wash the inwards and the legs, and burnt ⁸them upon the burnt-offering on the altar.

15 ⁹And he brought the people's offering, and took ¹⁰the goat, which was the sin-offering for the people, and slew it, and offered it for sin, as the first.

16 And he brought the burnt-offering, and offered it according to the ¹¹manner.

17 And he brought ¹²the meat-offering, and ¹³took an handful thereof, and burnt ¹⁴it upon the altar, ¹⁵beside the burnt-sacrifice of the morning.

18 He slew also the bullock and the ram ¹⁶for ¹⁷a sacrifice of peace-offerings which was for the people: and Aaron's sons presented unto him the blood, which he sprinkled upon the altar round about.

19 And ¹⁸the fat of the bullock and of the ram, the rump, and that which covereth ¹⁹the inwards, and the kidneys, and the caul ²⁰above the liver:

20 And ²¹they put the fat upon the breasts, and he ²²burnt the fat upon the altar:

21 And ²³the breasts and the right shoulder Aaron waved ²⁴for a wave-offering before the LORD; as Moses commanded.

22 And Aaron ²⁵lifted up his hand toward the people, and blessed them; and came down from offering of the sin-offering, and the burnt-offering, and peace-offerings.

23 ²⁶And Moses and Aaron went into the tabernacle of the congregation, and ²⁷came out, and blessed the people: and ²⁸the glory of the LORD appeared unto all the people.

24 And ²⁹there came a fire out from before the LORD, and consumed upon the pursuit, and its possession to constitute the common ornament.

Chap. IX. 1-24. All creatures were unclean or ceremonially imperfect till the eighth day, and on that day Aaron and his sons entered on active service. Aaron for the first time appeared in the peculiar typical attitude of blessing the people at the close of the altar service, where he had presented the sin-offering, the burnt-offering, and the peace offerings; and as if significant of the gracious character of the gospel, both he and Moses, having entered the tabernacle, came forth and again blessed the people, to whom the glory of the Lord straightway appeared, when fire came out from his presence consuming the burnt-offering, which so excited and gladdened the multitude that they shouted and fell on their faces. The conduct of Moses and Aaron in this matter of blessing, will suggest to the mind of the reader the Saviour's blessing of the disciples previous to his departure for the heavenly world. Great and splendid as were these displays of the ancient glory, they are as nothing compared to those which have been made in the altar the burnt-offering and the fat: which when all the people saw, ^bthey shouted, and fell on their faces.

CHAPTER X.

1 Nadab and Abihu, for offering of strange fire, are burnt by fire. 6 Aaron and his sons are forbidden to mourn for them. 8. The priests are forbidden wine when they are to go into the tabernacle.

AND ^aNadab and Abihu, the sons of Aaron, took either of them his ^bcenser, and put fire therein, and ^cput incense thereon, and offered ^dstrange fire before the LORD, ^ewhich he commanded them not.

2 And there went out ^ffire from the LORD, and devoured them; and ^gthey died before the LORD.

3 Then Moses said unto Aaron, This is ^hit that the LORD spake, saying, ⁱI will be sanctified in them that come nigh me, and ^jbefore all the people I will be glorified. And ^kAaron held his peace.

4 And Moses called Mishael and Elzaphan, the sons of ^lUzziel, the uncle of Aaron, and said unto them, Come near, ^mcarry your brethren from before the sanctuary out of the camp.

5 So they went near, and carried them in their coats out of the camp; as Moses had said.

6 ¶ And Moses said unto Aaron, and unto Eleazar and unto Ithamar, his sons, ⁿUncover not your heads, neither rend your clothes, ^olest ye die, and lest ^pwrath come upon all the people: but let your brethren, the whole house of Israel, bewail the burning which the LORD hath kindled.

7 And ^qye shall not go out from the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, lest ye die: for ^rthe anointing oil of the LORD ^sis upon you. And they did according to the word of Moses.

8 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Aaron, saying,

9 Do ^tnot drink wine nor strong drink, thou, nor thy sons with thee, when ye go into the tabernacle of the congregation, lest ye die: ^uit shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations:

10 And that ye may ^cput difference between holy and unholy, and between unclean and clean;

11 And ^dthat ye may teach the children of Israel all the statutes which the LORD hath spoken unto them by the hand of Moses.

12 ¶ And Moses spake unto Aaron, and unto Eleazar and unto Ithamar, his sons that were left, ^eTake the meat-offering that remaineth of the offerings of the LORD made by fire, and eat it without leaven beside the altar: ^ffor it is most holy.

13 And ye shall eat it in the holy place, because it is thy due, and thy sons' due, of the sacrifices of the LORD made by fire: for so I am commanded.

14 And ^gthe wave-breast and heave-shoulder shall ye eat in a clean place; thou, and thy sons, and thy daughters with thee: for ^hthey be thy due, and thy sons' due, which are given out of the sacrifices of peace-offerings of the children of Israel.

15 The heave-shoulder and the wave-breast shall they bring, with the offerings made by fire of the fat, to wave it ⁱfor a wave-offering before the LORD; and it shall be thine, and thy sons' with thee, by a statute for ever; as the LORD hath commanded.

16 ¶ And Moses diligently sought ^jthe goat of the sin-offering, and, behold, it was burnt: and he was ^kangry with Eleazar and Ithamar, the sons of Aaron which were left alive, saying,

17 Wherefore have ye not eaten the sin-offering in the holy place, seeing it is most holy, and ^lGod hath given it you ^mto bear the iniquity of the congregation, to make atonement for them before the LORD?

18 Behold, ⁿthe blood of it was not brought in within the holy place: ye should indeed have eaten it in the holy place, ^oas I commanded.

19 And Aaron said unto Moses, Behold, ^pthis day have they offered their sin-offer-person of the Lord Jesus, and in the establishment of his kingdom on the earth. They had the shadow, we have the substance; if they rejoiced in measure, our joy ought to be "unspeakable and full of glory."

Chap. X. 1-19. It is deeply affecting to find the sons of Aaron so speedily, by their unhallowed conduct, calling down the Divine displeasure. The fact is the more astonishing since the dreadful occurrence took place on the very first day of their ministry, when it might have been expected they would have proceeded with their heavenly work in "fear and trembling." Their offence was capital, and execution immediately followed. The Lord took the matter into his own hand, and a fire from his presence devoured them. The event doubtless contributed in a high degree to strike terror into the heart of the people, as also to arouse the priesthood to a sense of danger. Nothing could so fearfully impress upon them the peril of presumption, and the necessity of cultivating holiness of heart and life. The fire offered is said to be "strange;" understood to mean common fire instead of the fire which had been sent from heaven to consume the sacrifice, and which it was the duty of the priests to keep for ever burning on the altar. It is not easy to see the reasons which prompted them to prefer the one fire to the other, and it has therefore been supposed that they were under the influence of intoxication; a view which is confirmed by the injunction given, in verse 9, to Aaron and his sons to abstain from strong drink when they went into the tabernacle of the congregation "lest they should die." The deportment both of Moses and Aaron on the occasion was very remarkable. At such a time, and under such circumstances, they had no room for the indulgence of common grief. They were overwhelmed by the event, and concerned only for its practical improvement. "Aaron held his peace." Whatever the depth of his grief he was speechless. He was even passive as it respected the bodies of his sons, leaving it for Moses to call for two of his relatives to remove them out of the camp. This, like the removal of Ananias and Sapphira in after-times, must have been a scene unspeakably awful and monitory. Moses peremptorily interdicted any signs of mourning "lest they should die," and lest "wrath should come upon the people;" it was, nevertheless, permitted to the whole house of Israel to bewail the burning which the Lord had kindled. This event is fraught with instruction to all Christians, all preachers, and all pastors. It is never to ing and their burnt-offering before the LORD; and such things have befallen me: and if I had eaten the sin-offering to-day, should it have been accepted in the sight of the LORD?

20 And when Moses heard that, ^bhe was content.

CHAPTER XI.

1 What beasts may, 4 and what may not be eaten. 9 What fishes. 13 What fowls. 29 The creeping things which are unclean.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and to Aaron, saying unto them,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, ^aThese are the beasts which ye shall eat among all the beasts that are on the earth.

3 Whatsoever ^bparteth the hoof, and is cloven-footed, and ^ccheweth the cud, among the beasts, that shall ye eat.

4 Nevertheless, these shall ye not eat of them that chew the cud, or of them that divide the hoof: as the camel, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof; he is unclean unto you.

5 And ^dthe coney, because he cheweth the cud, ^ebut divideth not the hoof; he is unclean unto you.

6 And the ^fhare, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof; he is unclean unto you.

7 And the ^gswine, though he divide the hoof, and be cloven-footed, yet he cheweth not the cud; he is unclean to you.

8 Of their flesh shall ye not eat, and their carcase shall ye not touch; ^hthey are unclean to you.

9 ¶ These shall ye eat of all that are in the waters: ⁱWhatsoever hath fins and scales in the waters, in the seas, and in the rivers, them shall ye eat.

10 And all that have not fins and scales in the seas, and in the rivers, of all that move in the waters, and of any living thing which is in the waters, ^kthey shall be an abomination unto you.

11 They shall be even an abomination unto you; ye shall not eat of their flesh, but ye shall have their carcases in abomination.

29 ¶ These also shall be unclean unto you among the ^screeping things that creep upon the earth: The weasel, and the mouse, and the tortoise after his kind,

30 And the ferret, and the chameleon, and the lizard, and the snail, and the mole.

31 These are unclean to you among all that creep: whosoever doth touch them, be forgotten that our heavenly Father is "the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever," and that offences in connexion with our holy things are of all offences most to be dreaded, since they will infallibly be visited with punishment. Of this we have a striking illustration in the case of the Corinthians, who erred in the mode of observing the Lord's Supper.

Chap. XI. 1-12. These verses clearly settle the question of animal food, so that the doctrines of Vegetarianism have not only no foundation in Scripture, but are actually condemned by it. But men are, of course, at full liberty if they please to abstain and live solely on the products of the earth. It is, nevertheless, certain that animal food, both in temperate and in colder climates, is essential to sustain human nature in full vigour. People whose food is mainly vegetable, are universally of feeble character, wanting in force, both physical and intellectual. The arrangement had, therefore, both a peculiar and a common object. It served to build up a wall of separation between them and the Gentiles; it further tended to preserve health, seeing that some of the creatures prohibited as food, could not have been used without danger in eastern regions, and amongst people liable to leprosy. The unclean animals specified by Moses, are often pointed to as representing infidels and idolaters. The whole of the enactments here set forth, are more or less connected with health, for nothing is permitted to be eaten but such as is entirely safe. The reason of the prohibition of swine's flesh is supposed to arise partly from its relation to idolatry, for it was offered in sacrifice to the moon, and partly from when they be dead, shall be unclean until the even.

32 And upon whatsoever any of them, when they are dead, doth fall, it shall be unclean: whether it be any vessel of wood, or raiment, or skin, or sack, whatsoever vessel it be wherein any work is done, it must be put into water, and it shall be unclean until the even; so it shall be cleansed.

33 And every earthen vessel whereinto any of them falleth, whatsoever is in it shall be unclean; and ye shall break it.

34 Of all meat which may be eaten, that on which such water cometh shall be unclean: and all drink that may be drunk in every such vessel shall be unclean.

35 And every thing whereupon any part of their carcase falleth shall be unclean; whether it be oven, or ranges for pots, they shall be broken down: for they are unclean, and shall be unclean unto you.

36 Nevertheless a fountain or pit, wherein there is plenty of water, shall be clean: but that which toucheth their carcase shall be unclean.

37 And if any part of their carcase fall upon any sowing-seed which is to be sown, it shall be clean.

38 But if any water be put upon the seed, and any part of their carcase fall thereon, it shall be unclean unto you.

39 And if any beast of which ye may eat die; he that toucheth the carcase thereof shall be unclean until the even.

40 And he that eateth of the carcase of it shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even: he also that beareth the carcase of it shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even.

41 And every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth shall be an abomination; it shall not be eaten.

42 Whatsoever goeth upon the belly, and whatsoever goeth upon all four, or whatsoever hath more feet among all creeping things that creep upon the earth, them ye shall not eat; for they are an abomination.

43 Ye shall not make yourselves abominable with any creeping thing that creepeth, neither shall ye make yourselves unclean with them, that ye should be defiled thereby.

CHAPTER XII.

1 Women's purifications, 6 and offerings.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If a woman have conceived seed, and born a man-child: then she shall be unclean seven days; according to the days of the separation for her infirmity shall she be unclean.

3 And in the eighth day the flesh of his foreskin shall be circumcised.

4 And she shall then continue in the blood of her purifying three and thirty days: she shall touch no hallowed thing, nor come into the sanctuary, until the days of her purifying be fulfilled.

5 But if she bear a maid-child, then she shall be unclean two weeks, as in her separation; and she shall continue in the blood of her purifying threescore and six days.

6 ¶ And when the days of her purifying are fulfilled, for a son, or for a daughter, she shall bring a lamb of the first year for a burnt-offering, and a young pigeon, or a turtle-dove, for a sin-offering, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, unto the priest:

7 Who shall offer it before the LORD, and make an atonement for her; and she shall be cleansed from the issue of her blood. This is the law for her that hath born a male or a female.

8 And if she be not able to bring a lamb, then she shall bring two turtles, or two young pigeons; the one for the its tendency to produce in the East diseases of the skin. The prohibition touching fish would seem founded in nature. Men naturally take to such as have fins and scales, recoiling from those without them; the interdiction is very strong against their use. From ver. 44, 45, there would seem to be some moral connexion between the food of man and his character; certain food tends to debase and brutalise, and from all such there must be a rigid and conscientious abstinence.

Chap. XII. 1-8. It is here enjoined that, whether male or female, there shall be an offering: and that in both cases, the offering shall be alike. The institution seems to have possessed a Eucharistic, that is, a thanksgiving character, for life given, and life preserved. The sacrifice points very clearly to the state of mind which ought to animate the Christian mother, who, on being raised up, is to present herself with her offspring as a "sacrifice, holy and acceptable to the Lord, as a reasonable service." Moses here manifests his usual considerateness in cases of poverty. Whether the more or the less costly, the lamb or the pigeon, provided the latter was the result of poverty, it would be equally acceptable. From this we gather the poverty of Joseph and Mary, who, when presenting the Lord Jesus Christ at Jerusalem, offered "sacrifice according to that which is said in the law of the Lord, a pair of turtle doves, or two young pigeons." Mankind are here impressively reminded of their innate depravity, and the terrible consequences which have followed the Fall, shewing the absolute necessity of being born again, "the washing of regeneration, and the renewing of the Holy Ghost." From this, doubtless, has sprung the custom which obtains in some communions of what is called "churching;" an act of burnt-offering, and the other for a sin-offering: and the priest shall make an atonement for her, and she shall be clean.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 Tokens to discern the leprosy.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron, saying,

2 When a man shall have in the skin of his flesh a rising, ^aa scab, or bright spot, and it be in the skin of his flesh like the plague of leprosy; then ^che shall be brought unto Aaron the priest, or unto one of his sons the priests.

3 And the priest shall look on the plague in the skin of the flesh: and when the hair in the plague is turned white, and the plague in sight be deeper than the skin of his flesh, it is a plague of leprosy: and the priest shall look on him, and pronounce him unclean.

4 If the bright spot be white in the skin of his flesh, and in sight be not deeper than the skin, and the hair thereof be not turned white; then the priest shall shut up him that hath the plague seven days.

5 And the priest shall look on him the seventh day: and, behold, if the plague in his sight be at a stay, and the plague spread not in the skin; then the priest shall shut him up seven days more.

6 And the priest shall look on him again the seventh day: and, behold, if the plague be somewhat dark, and the plague spread not in the skin, the priest shall pronounce him clean; it is but a scab: and he shall wash his clothes, and be clean.

7 But if the scab spread much abroad in the skin, after that he hath been seen of the priest for his cleansing, he shall be seen of the priest again.

8 And if the priest see that, behold, the scab spreadeth in the skin; then the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is a leprosy.

9 ¶ When the plague of leprosy is in a man, then he shall be brought unto the priest;

10 And the priest shall see him: and, behold, if the rising be white in the skin, and it have turned the hair white, and there be quick raw flesh in the rising,

11 It is an old leprosy in the skin of his flesh: and the priest shall pronounce him unclean, and shall not shut him up; for he is unclean.

12 And if a leprosy break out abroad in the skin, and the leprosy cover all the skin of him that hath the plague, from his head even to his foot, whosoever the priest looketh;

13 Then the priest shall consider: and, behold, if the leprosy have covered all his flesh, he shall pronounce him clean that hath the plague; it is all turned white: he is clean.

14 But when raw flesh appeareth in him, he shall be unclean.

15 And the priest shall see the raw flesh, and pronounce him to be unclean; for the raw flesh is unclean: it is a leprosy.

16 Or if the raw flesh turn again, and be changed unto white, he shall come unto the priest;

17 And the priest shall see him: and, behold, if the plague be turned into white; then the priest shall pronounce him clean that hath the plague: he is clean.

18 ¶ The flesh also, in which, even in the skin thereof, was a boil, and is healed,

19 And in the place of the boil there be a white rising, or a bright spot, white, and somewhat reddish, and it be shewed to the priest;

20 And if, when the priest seeth it, behold, it be in sight lower than the skin, and the hair thereof be turned white, the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is a plague of leprosy broken out of the boil.

22 And if it spread much abroad in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is a plague.

23 But if the bright spot stay in his place, and spread not, it is a burning boil; and the priest shall pronounce him clean.

24 ¶ Or if there be any flesh, in the skin whereof there is a hot burning, and the quick flesh that burneth have a white bright spot, somewhat reddish, or white;

25 Then the priest shall look upon it: and, behold, if the hair in the bright spot be turned white, and it be in sight deeper than the skin, it is a leprosy broken out of the burning: wherefore the priest shall pronounce him unclean; it is the plague of leprosy.

26 But if the priest look on it, and, behold, there be no white hair in the bright spot, and it be no lower than the other skin, but be somewhat dark; then the priest shall shut him up seven days.

27 And the priest shall look upon him the seventh day: and if it be spread much abroad in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean; it is the plague of leprosy.

28 And if the bright spot stay in his place, and spread not in the skin, but it be somewhat dark; it is a rising of the which the principle is excellent; and it is only to be regretted that this, as everything appertaining to religion, has been abused through its incorporation with worldly institutions.

Chap. XIII. 1-50. The leprosy was in former times a malady very common in Eastern countries; it was a cutaneous or skin disease, and hence the Lord Jesus Christ is represented not as healing, but as "cleansing" the lepers. The malady was one of a peculiarly filthy nature; but it is not certain that it was infectious. The circumstances, however, of the separation of the burning, and the priest shall pronounce him clean: for it is an inflammation of the burning.

29 ¶ If a man or woman have a plague upon the head or the beard;

30 Then the priest shall see the plague: and, behold, if it be in sight deeper than the skin, and there be in it a yellow thin hair; then the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is a dry scall, even a leprosy upon the head or beard.

31 And if the priest look on the plague of the scall, and, behold, it be not in sight deeper than the skin, and that there is no black hair in it; then the priest shall shut up him that hath the plague of the scall seven days.

32 And in the seventh day the priest shall look on the plague: and, behold, if the scall spread not, and there be in it no yellow hair, and the scall be not in sight deeper than the skin;

33 He shall be shaven, but the scall shall he not shave; and the priest shall shut up him that hath the scall seven days more.

34 And in the seventh day the priest shall look on the scall: and, behold, if the scall be not spread in the skin, nor be in sight deeper than the skin; then the priest shall pronounce him clean: and he shall wash his clothes, and be clean.

35 But if the scall spread much in the skin after his cleansing;

36 Then the priest shall look on him: and, behold, if the scall be spread in the skin, the priest shall not seek for yellow hair; he is unclean.

37 But if the scall be in his sight at a stay, and that there is black hair grown up therein; the scall is healed, he is clean: and the priest shall pronounce him clean.

38 ¶ If a man also or a woman have in the skin of their flesh bright spots, even white bright spots;

39 Then the priest shall look: and, behold, if the bright spots in the skin of their flesh be darkish white; it is a freckled spot that groweth in the skin: he is clean.

40 And the man whose hair is fallen off his head, he is bald; yet is he clean.

41 And he that hath his hair fallen off from the part of his head toward his face, he is forehead bald: yet is he clean.

42 And if there be in the bald head, or bald forehead, a white reddish sore, it is a leprosy sprung up in his bald head, or his bald forehead.

43 Then the priest shall look upon it: and, behold, if the rising of the sore be white reddish in his bald head, or in his bald forehead, as the leprosy appeareth in the skin of the flesh, 44 He is a leprous man, he is unclean: the priest shall pronounce him utterly unclean; his plague is in his head.

45 And the leper in whom the plague is, his clothes shall be rent, and his head bare, and he shall put a covering upon his upper lip, and shall cry, Unclean, unclean.

46 All the days wherein the plague shall be in him he shall be defiled; he is unclean: he shall dwell alone; without the camp shall his habitation be.

47 ¶ The garment also that the plague of leprosy is in, whether it be a woollen garment or a linen garment,

48 Whether it be in the warp or woof, of linen, or of woollen, whether in a skin, or in any thing made of skin;

49 And if the plague be greenish or reddish in the garment, or in the skin, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any thing of skin; it is a plague of leprosy, and shall be shewed unto the priest.

50 And the priest shall look upon the plague, and shut up it that hath the plague seven days.

51 And he shall look on the plague on the seventh day: if the plague be spread in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in a skin, or in any work that is made of skin, the plague is a fretting leprosy; it is unclean.

52 He shall therefore burn that garment, whether warp or woof, in woollen or in linen, or any thing of skin, wherein the plague is: for it is a fretting leprosy; it shall be burnt in the fire.

53 And if the priest shall look, and, behold, the plague be not spread in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any thing of skin;

54 Then the priest shall command that they wash the thing wherein the plague is, and he shall shut it up seven days more.

55 And the priest shall look on the plague, after that it is washed: and, behold, if the plague have not changed his colour, and the plague be not spread, it is unclean; thou shalt burn it in the fire: it is fret inward, whether it be bare within or without.

56 And if the priest look, and, behold, the plague be somewhat dark after the washing of it; then he shall rend it out of the garment, or out of the skin, or out of the warp, or out of the woof.

57 And if it appear still in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any thing of skin, it is a spreading plague: thou shalt burn that wherein the plague is with fire.

58 And the garment, either warp or leper from society led to the general belief that it was so. It was a great affliction to the subject of it, a thing which marred the comfort of his existence, and also impaired his physical strength, incapacitating him entirely for the duties of life. No malady to which humanity is exposed so strikingly represents the depravity of man's nature. The notion of infection, however, supposing it to be true, would add very much to the completeness of the emblem, for undoubtedly the tendency of depravity is to infect all who come into contact with it. Again, the leprosy was incurable by human power, a point in which it closely resembles sin. Outward ceremonies wool, or whatsoever thing of skin it be, which thou shalt wash, if the plague be departed from them, then it shall be washed the second time, and shall be clean.

59 This is the law of the plague of leprosy in a garment of woollen or linen, either in the warp or wool, or any thing of skins, to pronounce it clean, or to pronounce it unclean.

CHAPTER XIV.

1 The rites and sacrifices in cleansing of the leper. 33 The signs of leprosy in a house. 48 The cleansing of that house.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

3 This shall be the law of the leper in the day of his cleansing: He shall be brought unto the priest.

3 And the priest shall go forth out of the camp: and the priest shall look, and behold, if the plague of leprosy be healed in the leper;

4 Then shall the priest command to take for him that is to be cleansed two birds alive and clean, and cedar-wood, and scarlet, and hyssop.

5 And the priest shall command that one of the birds be killed in an earthen vessel over running water.

6 As for the living bird, he shall take it, and the cedar-wood, and the scarlet, and the hyssop, and shall dip them and the living bird in the blood of the bird that was killed over the running water:

7 And he shall sprinkle upon him that is to be cleansed from the leprosy seven times, and shall pronounce him clean, and shall let the living bird loose into the open field.

8 And he that is to be cleansed shall wash his clothes, and shave off all his hair, and wash himself in water, that he may be clean; and after that he shall come into the camp, and shall tarry abroad out of his tent seven days.

9 But it shall be on the seventh day, that he shall shave all his hair off his head, and his beard, and his eye-brows, even all his hair he shall shave off: and he shall wash his clothes, also he shall wash his flesh in water, and he shall be clean.

10 And on the eighth day he shall take two he-lambs without blemish, and one ewe-lamb of the first year without blemish, and three tenth-deals of fine flour for a meat-offering, mingled with oil, and one log of oil;

11 And the priest that maketh him clean shall present the man that is to be made clean, and those things, before the LORD, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

12 And the priest shall take one he-lamb, and offer him for a trespass-offering, and the log of oil, and wave them for a wave-offering before the LORD.

13 And he shall slay the lamb in the place where he shall kill the sin-offering and the burnt-offering, in the holy place: for as the sin-offering is the priest's, so is the trespass-offering; it is most holy.

14 And the priest shall take some of the blood of the trespass-offering, and the priest shall put it upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot.

15 And the priest shall take some of the log of oil, and pour it into the palm of his own left hand:

16 And the priest shall dip his right finger in the oil that is in his left hand, and shall sprinkle of the oil with his finger seven times before the LORD.

17 And of the rest of the oil that is in his hand shall the priest put upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot, upon the blood of the trespass-offering.

18 And the remnant of the oil that is in the priest's hand he shall pour upon the head of him that is to be cleansed: and the priest shall make an atonement for him before the LORD.

19 And the priest shall offer the sin-offering, and make an atonement for him that is to be cleansed from his uncleanness; and afterward he shall kill the burnt-offering.

20 And the priest shall offer the burnt-offering and the meat-offering upon the altar: and the priest shall make an atonement for him, and he shall be clean.

21 And if he be poor, and cannot get so much; then he shall take one lamb for a trespass-offering to be waved, to make an atonement for him, and one tenth-deal of fine flour mingled with oil for a meat-offering, and a log of oil;

22 And two turtle-doves, or two young pigeons, such as he is able to get; and the one shall be a sin-offering, and the other a burnt-offering.

23 And he shall bring them on the eighth day for his cleansing unto the priest, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, before the LORD.

24 And the priest shall take the lamb of the trespass-offering, and the log of oil; were utterly insufficient. So it is with human nature; nothing can reach the seat of the disorder but the grace of God.

Chap. XIV. 1-57. The whole of this chapter turns upon the subject of leprosy, further shewing its striking analogy to the sin of the human family. The two great ideas presented, are, depravity and sanctification, and the necessity of the latter in order to admission into the family of God. It is somewhat remarkable that the leprosy is an affair always appertaining to the priest, and in which no mention is made of the physician. Can it be doubted that this directs us to our Great High Priest with the blood of sprinkling? There is much scattered throughout the chapter, which, rightly understood, points the reader to the "fountain opened for sin and for uncleanness." The hyssop mentioned as being dipped in blood is unquestionably significant of some-and the priest shall wave them for a wave-offering before the LORD.

25 And he shall kill the lamb of the trespass-offering, and the priest shall take some of the blood of ⁷the trespass-offering, and put it upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot.

26 And the priest shall pour of the oil into the palm of his own left hand.

27 And the priest shall sprinkle with his right finger some of the oil that is in his left hand seven times before the LORD.

28 And the priest shall put of the oil that is in his hand upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot, upon the place of the blood of the trespass-offering.

29 And the rest of the oil that is in the priest's hand he shall put upon the head of him that is to be cleansed, ^ato make an atonement for him before the LORD.

30 And he shall offer the ^aone of the turtle-doves, or of the young pigeons, such as he can get;

31 Even such as he is able to get, the one for a sin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering, with the meat-offering: and the priest shall make an atonement for him that is to be cleansed before the LORD.

32 This is the ^blaw of him in whom is the plague of leprosy, ^cwhose hand is not able to get that which pertaineth to his cleansing.

33 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

34 When ^dye be come into the land of Caanan, ^ewhich I give to you for a possession, and ^fI put the plague of leprosy in a house of the land of your possession;

35 And he that owneth the house shall come and tell the priest, saying, It seemeth to me there is as it were ^ga plague in the house:

36 Then the priest shall command that they ^hempty the house, before the priest go into it to see the plague, that all that is in the house ⁱbe not made unclean; and afterward the priest shall go in to see the house.

37 And he shall look on the plague: and, behold, if the plague be in the walls of the house ^jwith hollow strakes, greenish or reddish, which in sight are lower than the wall;

38 Then the priest shall go out of the house to the door of the house, and shut up the house seven days.

39 And the priest shall come again the seventh day, and shall look: and, behold, if the plague be ^kspread in the walls of the house;

40 Then the priest shall command that they ^ltake away the stones in which the plague is, and they shall cast them into an unclean place without the city.

41 And he shall cause the house to be scraped within round about, and they shall pour out the dust that they scrape off without the city ^minto an unclean place.

42 And ⁿthey shall take other stones, and put them in the place of those stones; and he shall take other mortar, and shall plaster the house.

43 And if ^othe plague come again, and break out in the house, after that he hath taken away the stones, and after he hath scraped the house, and after it is plastered;

44 Then the priest shall come and look, and, behold, if the plague be spread in the house, it is ^pa fretting leprosy in the house; it is unclean.

45 And he shall ^qbreak down the house, the stones of it, and the timber thereof, and all the mortar of the house; and he shall carry them forth out of the city ^rinto an unclean place.

46 Moreover, he that goeth into the house all the while that it is shut up ^sshall be unclean until the even.

47 And he that lieth in the house shall wash his clothes; and he that eateth in the house shall ^twash his clothes.

48 And if the priest ^ushall come in, and look upon it, and, behold, the plague hath not spread in the house, after the house was plastered; then the priest shall pronounce the house clean, ^vbecause the plague is healed.

49 And he shall take ^xto cleanse the house two birds, and cedar-wood, and scarlet, and hyssop.

50 And he shall kill the one of the birds in an earthen vessel over running water.

51 And he shall take the cedar-wood, and the hyssop, and the scarlet, and the living bird, and dip them in the blood of the slain bird, and in the running water, and sprinkle the house seven times.

52 And he shall cleanse the house with the blood of the bird, and with the running water, and with the living bird, and with the cedar-wood, and with the hyssop, and with the scarlet.

53 But he shall let go the living bird out of the city into the open fields, and make an atonement for the house: and it shall be clean.

54 This is ^ythe law for all manner of plague of leprosy, and ^zscall, 55 And for ^athe leprosy of a garment, and of a house, thing far beyond what at first sight appears. If it does not signify "the belief of the truth," it may at least be likened to it; faith in the blood of Christ, however contemptible with men, possesses a power above all other powers, and is the only power capable of accomplishing moral purposes. The hyssop was dipped in blood and water, which would seem to point to the result of the piercing of the Saviour's side by the soldier's spear. The power of sin must be destroyed in the soul, and then will its practice no longer appear in the life. Filthiness of the flesh and of the spirit once removed, the believer will endeavour to perfect holiness in the fear of God.

56 And ^bfor a rising, and for a scab, and for a bright spot;
57 To ^cteach ^ewhen it is unclean, and when it is clean: ^dthis is the law of leprosy.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and ^ato Aaron, saying,
2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, ^bWhen any man hath a ^crunning issue out of his flesh, because of his issue he is unclean.

3 And this shall be his uncleanness in his issue: whether his flesh run with his issue, or his flesh be stopped from his issue, it is his uncleanness.

7 And he that toucheth the flesh of him that hath the issue shall wash his clothes, and bathe ^ehimself in water, and be unclean until the even.

8 And if he that hath the issue spit upon him that is clean; then he shall ^dwash his clothes, and bathe ^ehimself in water, and be unclean until the even.

9 And what saddle soever he rideth upon that hath the issue shall be unclean.

10 And whosoever toucheth any thing that was under him shall be unclean until the even: and he that beareth ^aany of those things shall wash his clothes, and bathe ^ehimself in water, and be unclean until the even.

11 And whosoever he toucheth that hath the issue, and hath not rinsed his hands in water, he shall wash his clothes, and bathe ^ehimself in water, and be unclean until the even.

12 And ^dthe vessel of earth that he toucheth which hath the issue shall be broken: and every vessel of wood shall be rinsed in water.

13 And when he that hath an issue is cleansed of his issue, then he shall number to himself ^dseven days for his cleansing, ^band wash his clothes, and bathe his flesh in running water, and shall be clean.

Remembering whose he is, he will serve the Lord that bought him, labouring not only to shun evil, but the very appearance of it.

Chap. XV. 1-33. Although these laws, like many of those which have preceded, have no power over Christians, they are, nevertheless, fraught with instruction to those who are capable of exercising spiritual discernment. The great copiousness with which they are set forth by Moses, must of necessity have commanded a large measure of public attention, and have contributed to fix the mind very deeply on the nature of the evils to which they refer. We are now taught, without a figure, that "the heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked," and are pointed to the only means of its purification. The great thing which Moses strained at, was the promotion and maintenance of purity of mind, in which consists the very essence of piety. "As a man's heart is, so is he." The laws of man are merely an external affair. If the law be observed in the letter take unto her two turtles, or two young pigeons, and bring them unto the priest, to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

30 And the priest shall offer the one for a sin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering; and the priest shall make an atonement for her before the LORD for the issue of her uncleanness.

31 Thus "shall ye separate the children of Israel from their uncleanness; *that they die not in their uncleanness, when they defile my tabernacle that is among them.

32 This is *the law of him that hath an issue, and of him whose seed goeth from him, and is defiled therewith;

33 And *of her that is sick of her flowers, and of him that hath an issue, of the man, and of the woman, *and of him that lieth with her that is unclean.

14 And he shall take of ^{aa}the blood of the bullock, and sprinkle it with his finger upon the mercy-seat eastward: and before the mercy-seat shall he sprinkle of the blood with his finger seven times.

15 ¶ Then ^{bb}shall he kill the goat of the sin-offering that is for the people, and ^{cc}bring his blood within the vail, and do with that blood as he did with the blood of the bullock, and sprinkle it upon the mercy-seat, and before the mercy-seat.

16 And he shall make ^{dd}an atonement for the holy place, because of the uncleanness of the children of Israel, and because of their transgressions in all their sins: and so shall he do for the tabernacle of the congregation that ^{ee}remaineth among them in the midst of their uncleanness.

of it, the ruler can look no further, although seeming loyalty may clothe the most deadly treason. An air of justice may be connected with the most unquestionable rapacity. From these scriptures we may gather the necessity of constant watchfulness over our hearts, and by consequence, continuous repentance for all conscious shortcoming, accompanied with a habitual reference to the blood of Christ. We should be more concerned about the power than about the form of godliness; the power secured, the observance of the commandments will follow as a matter of course.

Chap. XVI. 1-19. It is worthy of particular notice, that among the many things heathenism has borrowed of the Jews, is their imitation of the "holy place" within the vail. They considered that the innermost sanctuary was the peculiar residence of "the god" to whom the temple was dedicated; and hence no man besides the priest was permitted to enter. They who dared to violate the sacred prohibition paid the penalty of death. In some of the more remarkable temples, such as that of Dindymene, it was unlawful to open the holy place more than one day in the year; such, too, was the case with the temple of Orcus. Who does not see in this the great day of the atonement, which is by far the most important ordinance that has yet been brought forward? On that occasion the high priest appeared as the representative of all Israel, and thus he became himself emphatically a type of the Saviour of the world. The references to the Epistle to the Hebrews will furnish a complete explanation. The two goats, the one dying and the other living, were a strikingly original and successful method of illustrating two points, which no one creature can exemplify—the death and the resurrection of the Lord Jesus. The high priest, to prepare himself for his sublime and awful work, required first to make an atonement for his own sins—a fact in which the type fell short of the Antitype, since the Lord Jesus had no sin. The high priest, after killing the sacrifice, burned incense to prepare for the sprinkling of blood in the holy place, this being an emblem of prayer (Rev. viii. 3, 4.) Thus it is that our Great High Priest prepared himself by prayer, previous to his entrance into heaven, with his own blood, as our Great Intercessor. Ver. 20-34. The goeth in to make an atonement in the holy place, until he come out, and have made an atonement for himself, and for his household, and for all the congregation of Israel.

18 And he shall go out unto the altar that is before the LORD, and make an atonement for it; and shall take of the blood of the bullock, and of the blood of the goat, and put it upon the horns of the altar round about.

19 And he shall sprinkle of the blood upon it with his finger seven times, and cleanse it, and hallow it from the uncleanness of the children of Israel.

20 ¶ And when he hath made an end of reconciling the holy place, and the tabernacle of the congregation, and the altar, he shall bring the live goat:

21 And Aaron shall lay both his hands upon the head of the live goat, and confess over him all the iniquities of the children of Israel, and all their transgressions in all their sins, putting them upon the head of the goat, and shall send him away by the hand of a fit man into the wilderness.

22 And the goat shall bear upon him all their iniquities unto a land not inhabited: and he shall let go the goat in the wilderness.

23 And Aaron shall come into the tabernacle of the congregation, and shall put off the linen garments which he put on when he went into the holy place, and shall leave them there:

24 And he shall wash his flesh with water in the holy place, and put on his garments, and come forth, and offer his burnt-offering, and the burnt-offering of the people, and make an atonement for himself, and for the people.

25 And the fat of the sin-offering shall he burn upon the altar.

26 And he that let go the goat for the scape-goat shall wash his clothes, and bathe his flesh in water, and afterward come into the camp.

27 And the bullock for the sin-offering, and the goat for the sin-offering, whose blood was brought in to make atonement in the holy place, shall one carry forth without the camp; and they shall burn in the fire their skins, and their flesh, and their dung.

28 And he that burneth them shall wash his clothes, and bathe his flesh in water, and afterward he shall come into the camp.

29 ¶ And this shall be a statute for ever unto you, that in the seventh month, on the tenth day of the month, ye shall afflict your souls, and do no work at all, whether it be one of your own country, or a stranger that sojourneth among you:

30 For on that day shall the priest make an atonement for you, to cleanse you, that ye may be clean from all your sins before the LORD.

31 It shall be a sabbath of rest unto you, and ye shall afflict your souls, by a statute for ever.

32 And the priest whom he shall anoint, and whom he shall consecrate to minister in the priest's office in his father's stead, shall make the atonement, and shall put on the linen clothes, even the holy garments.

33 And he shall make an atonement for the holy sanctuary, and he shall make an atonement for the tabernacle of the congregation, and for the altar; and he shall make an atonement for the priests, and for all the people of the congregation.

34 And this shall be an everlasting statute unto you, to make an atonement for the children of Israel, for all their sins, once a year. And he did as the LORD commanded Moses.

CHAPTER XVII.

1 Blood of slain beasts must be offered at the tabernacle door. 10 Blood forbidden.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto Aaron, and unto his sons, and unto all the children of Israel, and say unto them, This is the thing which the LORD hath commanded, saying,

3 What man soever there be of the house of Israel that killeth an ox, or lamb, or goat, in the camp, or that killeth it out of the camp,

4 And bringeth it not unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, to offer an offering unto the LORD before the tabernacle of the LORD, blood shall be imputed unto that man; he hath shed blood: and that man shall be cut off from among his people;

5 To the end that the children of Israel may bring their sacrifices which they offer in the open field, even that they may bring them unto the LORD, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, unto the priest, and offer them for peace-offerings unto the LORD.

6 And the priest shall sprinkle the blood upon the altar of the LORD at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and burn the fat for a sweet savour unto the LORD.

7 And they shall no more offer their doctrine of substitution is set forth with explicitness and solemnity in ver. 21. While substitution was everywhere implied or expressed in sacrifice, the annual atonement, as if with the sound of a trumpet, proclaimed above all the other sacrifices the great truth that Jesus was to die, "the just for the unjust," and that this was the sole condition of the exercise of mercy. There is something so self-evidencing about the whole system of substitution, crowned as it is by this great annual sacrifice, as to proclaim the perfect truth and Divine origin, in a manner which can scarcely be expressed. The whole presents a grand and all-subduing exhibition of blended justice and mercy. It is the very essence of the Gospel salvation.

Chap. XVII. 1-16. The worship of the Most High at the tabernacle, signified the sinner's drawing nigh to God in Christ through his mediation. The doctrine of the life being in the blood, as set forth in verse 11, has excited much attention. Harvey, an eminent English physician, was the first to announce the doctrine of the sacrifices ¹unto devils, after whom they have ^mgone a whoring. This shall be a statute for ever unto them throughout their generations.

8 And thou shalt say unto them, Whatsoever man there be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers which sojourn among you, ^athat offereth a burnt-offering or sacrifice, 9 And bringeth it not unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, to offer it unto the LORD, even that man shall be cut off from among his people.

10 ¶ And whatsoever man there be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn among you, ^othat eateth any manner of blood; ^pI will even set my face against that soul that eateth blood, and will cut him off from among his people.

11 For the life of the flesh is in the blood; and ^qI have given it to you upon the altar, to make an atonement for your souls: for it is the blood that maketh an atonement for the soul.

12 Therefore I said unto the children of Israel, No soul of you shall eat blood, ^rneither shall any stranger that sojourneth among you eat blood.

13 And whatsoever man there be of the children of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn among you, which ¹hunteth and catcheth any beast or fowl that may be eaten; he shall even ²pour out the blood thereof, and cover it with dust.

14 For it is ^tthe life of all flesh; the blood of it is for the life thereof: therefore I said unto the children of Israel, Ye shall eat the blood of no manner of flesh: for the life of all flesh is the blood thereof; whosoever eateth it shall be cut off.

15 ¶ And ^uevery soul that eateth ^vthat which died of itself, or that which was torn with beasts, whether it be one of your own country, or a stranger, he shall ^wboth wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even; then shall he be clean.

16 But if he wash them not, nor bathe his flesh, then ^xhe shall bear his iniquity.

vitality of the blood, which was afterwards adopted by the celebrated Dr Hunter. Here, however, Moses, 3600 years before, announced the same fact. It has been thought that Moses probably had some reference to the idolatrous customs of neighbouring nations in using the blood both of man and of beast. Even in later times, the Saracens are recorded to have sucked the blood from the throats of their slain enemies! It has been demonstrated by an appeal to facts, that the extensive use of blood at an early age, in England, was detrimental to health, and that those nations who lived most on it were particularly fierce, savage, and barbarous, as the Scythians, Tartars, Arabs, and others, who drink the blood of their enemies, making cups of their skulls! From this we see at once the wisdom and the benevolence of Moses' injunction in ver. 14, that they should "eat the blood of no manner of flesh: for the life of all flesh is the blood thereof; who-

4 Ye shall ^ddo my judgments, and keep mine ordinances, to walk therein: I am the LORD your God.

5 Ye shall therefore keep my statutes and my judgments; ^ewhich if a man do, he shall live in them: I am the LORD.

6 ¶ None of you shall approach to any that is ^fnear of kin to him, ^gto uncover their nakedness: I am the LORD.

7 The nakedness of thy father, or the nakedness of thy mother, shalt thou not uncover: she is thy mother; thou shalt not uncover her nakedness.

8 The nakedness ^hof thy father's wife shalt thou not uncover: it is thy father's nakedness.

9 The nakedness of ⁱthy sister, the daughter of thy father, or daughter of thy mother, whether she be born at home, or born abroad, even their nakedness thou shalt not uncover.

10 The nakedness of thy son's daughter, or of thy daughter's daughter, even their nakedness thou shalt not uncover: for theirs is thine own nakedness.

11 The nakedness of thy father's wife's daughter, begotten of thy father, (she is thy sister), thou shalt not uncover her nakedness.

12 Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy ^kfather's sister: she is thy father's near kinswoman.

13 Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy mother's sister: for she is thy mother's near kinswoman.

14 Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy ^lfather's brother, thou shalt not approach to his wife: she is thine aunt.

15 Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy ^mdaughter-in-law: she is thy son's wife; thou shalt not uncover her nakedness.

16 Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy ⁿbrother's wife: it is thy brother's nakedness.

17 Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of ^oa woman and her daughter, neither shalt thou take her son's daughter, soever eateth it shall be cut off." The importance of an injunction sustained by such a penalty was doubtless great. While the life is in the blood, the blood of Christ has been the price of life to the world. That blood, therefore, is only to be thought of, and spoken of, with holy awe and trembling veneration.

Chap. XVIII. 1-30. What individuals are to each other in point of influence for good or evil, that are nations to each other; and hence the danger of the children of Israel from the countries with which they were surrounded. To protect them against the infection of idolatry is the leading object of all these laws. Everything was out of joint among the Canaanites, and therefore the only course of safety for the Hebrews was, to have no communication whatever with them, and to walk in none of their ways. The terrible portrait here 18 Neither shalt thou take ²a wife to her sister, ⁴to vex her, to uncover her nakedness, besides the other in her lifetime.

19 ¶ Also thou shalt not approach unto a woman to uncover her nakedness ¹as long as she is put apart for her uncleanness.

20 Moreover, ¹thou shalt not lie carnally with thy neighbour's wife, to defile thyself with her.

21 And thou shalt not let any of thy seed ¹pass through the fire ²to Molech, neither shalt thou ²profane the name of thy God: I am the LORD.

22 Thou shalt not lie with ¹mankind as with womankind: it is abomination.

exhibited as a beacon to the Jews, was but too correct a transcription of what was actually taking place among idolaters on all sides. The severest measures, therefore, became necessary to prevent intercourse, and hence it is interdicted by capital punishment. Nothing can more strikingly illustrate the embroiled condition of the Pagan world, and exhibit its darkness, and consequent need of the light of revelation, than the picture here set forth; and no two states can present a more perfect contrast than that of the Gentile world then, and our own nation at the present hour. The vain philosophy of the Pagan world did nothing for the morals of the millions, and very little for that of individuals. No system which does not include, as its cardinal doctrine, the idea of the one living and true God, as a God of justice and a God of mercy, can medicate the maladies of human nature. A single psalm of David was of more value than all the poetry of Greece or Rome. It was with the best reason that Paul declared that he was "not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, forasmuch as it was the power of God unto salvation to every one that believed;" an affirmation which could be made of no system of heathen philosophy.

Chap. XIX. 1-37. The children ought to resemble their parents; this is the substance of the whole of the moral injunctions with which this chapter is so richly adorned. Without holiness we can neither see God, nor enjoy fellowship with him. The strength of nations is their families: as they are, such is the community; and 18 ¶ Thou shalt not ¹avenge, nor bear any grudge against the children of thy people; but ²thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself: I am the LORD.

19 ¶ Ye shall keep my statutes. Thou shalt not let thy cattle gender with a diverse kind. Thou shalt not sow thy field with ³mingled seed: neither shall a garment mingled of linen and woollen come upon thee.

20 ¶ And whosoever lieth carnally with a woman that is a bond-maid, ²betrothed to an husband, and not at all redeemed, nor freedom given her; ³she shall be scourged: ⁴they shall not be put to death, because she was not free.

21 And he shall bring his ⁵trespass-offering unto the LORD, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, even a ram for a trespass-offering.

22 And the priest shall make an atonement for him with the ram of the trespass-offering before the LORD, for his sin which he hath done; ⁴and the sin which he hath done shall be forgiven him.

23 ¶ And ²when ye shall come into the land, and shall have planted all manner of trees for food, then ye shall count the fruit thereof as uncircumcised: three years shall it be as ¹uncircumcised unto you; it shall not be eaten of.

24 But in the fourth year ³all the fruit thereof shall be ⁴holy, to praise the LORD withal.

25 And in the fifth year shall ye eat of the fruit thereof, ²that it may yield unto you the increase thereof: I am the LORD your God.

26 ¶ Ye shall not eat any thing ¹with the blood; neither shall ye ²use enchantment, nor observe times.

27 ¶ Ye shall not ¹round the corners of your heads, neither shalt thou mar the corners of thy beard.

28 Ye shall not make any cuttings in your flesh for the dead, nor print any marks upon you: I am the LORD.

29 ¶ Do not ²prostitute thy daughter, ³to cause her to be a whore; lest the land fall to whoredom, and the land become full of wickedness.

30 ¶ Ye shall keep my sabbaths, and ²reverence my sanctuary: I am the LORD.

31 ¶ Regard not them that have ³familiar spirits, neither seek after wizards, to

CHAPTER XX.

1 Of giving seed to Molech. 6 Of wizards. 9 Of cursing parents, &c.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Again, thou shalt say to the children of Israel, ²Whosoever he be of the children of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn in Israel, that ³giveth any of his seed unto Molech, he shall surely be put to death: ⁴the people of the land shall stone him with stones.

3 And ¹I will set my face against that man, and will cut him off from among his people; because he hath given of his seed unto Molech, ²to defile my sanctuary, and to ³profane my holy name.

4 ¶ And if the people of the land do any ways ⁴hide their eyes from the man, when he giveth of his seed unto Molech, ⁵and kill him not;

5 Then I will set my face against that man, and ⁶against his family, and will cut him off, and all that go a ⁷whoring after him, to commit whoredom with Molech, from among their people.

6 ¶ And the soul that turneth after such as have ¹familiar spirits, and after wizards, to ²go a whoring after them, I will even set my face against that soul, and will ³cut him off from among his people.

the strength of households is the affection which unites parents and children, masters and domestics. The injunction in verse 3, to "fear every man his mother and father," and "keep the sabbaths of the Lord," is an embodiment of the great principles on which piety and morality must ever turn. Contempt of parents is a preparative for the perpetration of any crime. An appeal to the experience of every age will demonstrate that filial affection is always a pledge of excellent character. He who loves his mother will love his wife. As a rule, a good son never made a bad husband; and the reverse holds equally true.

Chap. XX. 1-5. The humanity of the Divine system comes forth here with great force. Child-murder, even under the pretence of presenting an offering to a heathen god, was interdicted as a capital crime. There was nothing to which the heathen were more prone; and there is no deed to which Moses points with greater pungency of expression; he ranks it in the very first class of enormities. The act is one so abhorrent to nature, that people require a lengthened course of severe preparation before they can embroil their hands in the blood of their offspring. From the feeling which religion has engendered even amongst the unchristian masses of our country, we believe few among them are able to listen to the idea without horror. Before Protestant missionaries went to the South Seas, child-murder everywhere, to a fearful extent, prevailed; but the glorious Gospel of the blessed God put an end to that, as well as to the offering of human sacrifice. Ver. 6-9. Let all young persons into whose hands these pages may fall, ponder ver. 9, which points to a crime which, we fear, is too common in our own day. To "curse" is a term compre-

7 ¶ Sanctify yourselves therefore, and be ye holy: for I am the LORD your God.

8 And ye shall keep my statutes, and do them: I am the LORD which sanctify you.

9 ¶ For every one that curseth his father or his mother shall be surely put to death: he hath cursed his father or his mother; his blood shall be upon him.

10 ¶ And the man that committeth adultery with another man's wife, even he that committeth adultery with his neighbour's wife, the adulterer and the adulteress shall surely be put to death.

11 And the man that lieth with his father's wife hath uncovered his father's nakedness: both of them shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them.

12 And if a man lie with his daughter-in-law, both of them shall surely be put to death: they have wrought confusion; their blood shall be upon them.

13 ¶ If a man also lie with mankind, as he lieth with a woman, both of them have committed an abomination: they shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them.

14 And if a man take a wife and her mother, it is wickedness: they shall be burnt with fire, both he and they; that there be no wickedness among you.

15 And if a man lie with a beast, he shall surely be put to death; and ye shall slay the beast.

16 And if a woman approach unto any beast, and lie down thereto, thou shalt kill the woman and the beast: they shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them.

17 And if a man shall take his sister, his father's daughter, or his mother's daughter, and see her nakedness, and she see his nakedness; it is a wicked thing; and they shall be cut off in the sight of their people: he hath uncovered his sister's nakedness; he shall bear his iniquity.

18 And if a man shall lie with a woman having her sickness, and shall uncover her nakedness, he hath discovered her fountain, and she hath uncovered the fountain of her blood: and both of them shall be cut off from among their people.

19 And thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy mother's sister, nor of thy father's sister; for he uncovereth his near kin: they shall bear their iniquity.

hensive of something more than an oath. Contempt, scorn, rebellion, outrage of feeling, and disregard of authority, these are the things which find their embodiment in the crime of cursing a father or a mother; and the punishment is the severest that can be inflicted: "His blood shall be upon him;"—he deserves death. Although the Mosaic law is no longer in force, it may be clearly gathered from this awful enactment, that filial disobedience is peculiarly heinous in the sight of God. Ver. 10-27. The doctrine of familiar spirits and wizards was extensively prevalent among the heathen, and there was danger lest it should find access to the Jewish mind. Divination, sorcery, and necromancy generally, were everywhere employed to support idolatry; and hence it became important by express interdict to

CHAPTER XXI.

1 Of the priests mourning: 7 marriages; 16 and blemishes.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, Speak unto the priests the sons of Aaron, and say unto them, There shall none be defiled for the dead among his people:

2 But for his kin that is near unto him, that is, for his mother, and for his father, and for his son, and for his daughter, and for his brother,

3 And for his sister a virgin, that is nigh unto him, which hath had no husband; for her may he be defiled.

4 But he shall not defile himself, being a chief man among his people, to profane himself.

5 They shall not make baldness upon condemn them, and to award punishment to those who transgressed the commandment. There is now an end to the temporal penalties of the Jewish economy; but these penalties shew the guilt which attaches to all such things, and the condemnation which will certainly follow them.

Chap. XXI. 1-24. The reason of the injunction given to the priests concerning the dead, may not be at first sight obvious; but the ideas of death, corruption, and consequent pollution, have in all ages been inseparable; and hence even the heathen required their priesthood to stand aloof from a corpse; a usage, very probably derived, like everything else in their religion, from the Hebrews. Personal purity, and the service of the gods, appeared to their head, neither shall they shave off the corner of their beard, nor make any cuttings in their flesh.

6 ¶ They shall be ^holy unto their God, and not ^hprofane the name of their God: for the offerings of the LORD made by fire, and the ^hbread of their God, they do offer: therefore they shall be holy.

7 ¶ They shall not take a wife ^hthat is a whore, or profane; neither shall they take a woman ^hput away from her husband: for he is holy unto his God.

8 Thou shalt ^hsanctify him therefore; for he offereth the bread of thy God: he shall be holy unto thee: ^hfor I the LORD, which sanctify you, ^{am} holy.

9 ¶ And ^mthe daughter of any priest, if she profane herself by playing the whore, she profaneth her father: she shall be ^hburnt with fire.

10 ¶ And ^{he} that is the high priest among his brethren, ^oupon whose head the anointing oil was poured, and that is ^hconsecrated to put on the garments, shall not ^huncover his head, ^hnor rend his clothes;

11 Neither shall he go in to any dead body, nor defile himself for ^hhis father, or for his mother;

12 Neither shall he ^hgo out of the sanctuary, nor profane the sanctuary of his God; ^hfor the crown of the anointing oil of his God is upon him: I ^{am} the LORD.

13 ¶ And he shall take a wife in her virginity.

14 A widow, or a divorced woman, or profane, or an harlot, these shall he not take; but he shall take ^a virgin of his own people to wife.

15 Neither shall he ^hprofane his seed among his people: for I the LORD do sanctify him.

16 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

17 Speak unto Aaron, saying, Whosoever ^{he} be of thy seed in their generations that hath ^{any} ^hblemish, ^hlet him not approach to offer the ^hbread of his God:

18 For whatsoever man ^{he} be that hath a blemish, he shall not approach; ^a blind man, or a lame, or he that hath a flat nose, or any thing superfluous,

21 No man that hath a blemish of the seed of Aaron the priest shall come nigh to offer the offerings of the LORD made by fire; he hath a blemish, he shall not come nigh ^hto offer the bread of his God.

CHAPTER XXII.

1 The priests in their uncleanness to obtain from holy things. 10 Who may eat of the holy things. 18 Divers laws for offerings.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto Aaron and to his sons, that they ^hseparate themselves from the holy things of the children of Israel, and that they ^hprofane not my holy name in those things which they ^hhallow unto me: I ^{am} the LORD.

3 Say unto them, Whosoever ^{he} be of all your seed, among your generations, that goeth unto the holy things, which the children of Israel hallow unto the LORD, ^hhaving his uncleanness upon him, that soul shall be cut off ^hfrom my presence: I ^{am} the LORD.

4 What man soever of the seed of Aaron is ^a leper, or hath a ^hrunning issue, he shall not eat of the ^hholy things, ^huntil he be clean. And whoso toucheth any thing that is ^hunclean by the dead, or a ^hman whose seed goeth from him;

5 Or ^hwhosoever toucheth any creeping thing, whereby he may be made unclean, ^hor a man of whom he may take uncleanness, whatsoever uncleanness he hath;

6 The ^hsoul which hath touched any such shall be unclean until even, and shall not eat of the holy things, unless he wash his flesh with water.

7 And when the sun is down, he shall be clean, and shall afterward eat of the holy things, ^hbecause it is his food.

8 That which ^hdieth of itself, or is torn with beasts, he shall not eat, to defile himself therewith: I ^{am} the LORD.

9 They shall therefore keep mine ordinance, lest they ^hbear sin for it, and die therefore, if they profane it: I the LORD do sanctify them.

10 ¶ There shall ^hno stranger eat of the holy thing: a sojourner of the priest, or an hired servant, shall not eat of the holy thing.

11 But if the priest buy ^{any} soul with ^hhis money, he shall eat of it, and he that is born in his house: they shall eat of his meat.

12 If the priest's daughter also be married unto ^a stranger, she may not eat of an offering of the holy things.

13 But if the priest's daughter be a widow, or divorced, and have no child, and is ^hreturned unto her father's house, be notions intimately associated in the public mind. This arrangement has a strong moral signification as bearing on Christians generally, and Christian ministers in particular. All are required to be patterns of purity, and to stand aloof from everything that would tend to defile. "Be ye holy, for I am holy," is an instruction not less obligatory upon all Christians than it was upon the Hebrews.

Chap. XXII. 1-15. "Holy things" signify the parts of the sacrifice given to the priests, the shew-bread, and other things presented to the Lord. Of these some were ¹as in her youth, she shall eat of her father's meat; but there shall no stranger eat thereof.

14 ¶ And if a man ²eat of the holy thing unwittingly, then he shall put the fifth part thereof unto it, and shall give it unto the priest with the holy thing.

15 And they shall not ³profane the holy things of the children of Israel, which they offer unto the LORD;

16 Or ⁴suffer them ⁵to bear the iniquity of trespass when they eat their holy things: ⁶for I the LORD do sanctify them.

17 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

18 Speak unto Aaron, and to his sons, and unto all the children of Israel, and say unto them, ⁷Whatsoever he be of the house of Israel, or ⁸of the strangers in Israel, that will offer his oblation for all his ⁹vows, and for all his ¹⁰free-will-offerings, which they will offer unto the LORD for a burnt-offering;

19 ¹¹Ye shall offer at your own will ¹²a male without blemish, of the beeves, of the sheep, or of the goats.

20 ¹³But whatsoever ¹⁴hath a blemish, that shall ye not offer; for it shall not be acceptable for you.

21 And whosoever offereth a sacrifice ¹⁵of peace-offerings unto the LORD ¹⁶to accomplish ¹⁷his vow, or a free-will-offering in beeves or ¹⁸sheep, it shall be perfect to be accepted: there shall be no blemish therein.

22 ¹⁹Blind, or broken, or maimed, or having a wen, or scurvy, or scabbed, ye shall not offer these unto the LORD, nor make an offering by fire of them upon the altar unto the LORD.

23 Either a bullock or a ²⁰lamb that hath any thing superfluous or lacking in his parts, that mayest thou offer for a free-will-offering; but for a vow it shall not be accepted.

24 ²¹Ye shall not offer unto the LORD that which is bruised, or crushed, or ²²broken, or cut; neither shall ye make ²³any offering thereof in your land.

25 Neither from ²⁴a stranger's hand shall ye offer ²⁵the bread of your God of any of these; because their corruption is in them, and blemishes be in them: they shall not be accepted for you.

26 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

27 When a bullock, or a sheep, or a goat, is brought forth, then it shall be ²⁶seven days under the dam; and from the eighth day and thenceforth it shall be accepted for an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

29 ¶ And when ye will offer ³a sacrifice of thanksgiving unto the LORD, offer it at your own will.

30 On the same day it shall be eaten up; ye shall ⁴leave none of it until the morrow: I am the LORD.

31 Therefore shall ye ⁵keep my commandments, and do them: I am the LORD.

32 Neither shall ye ⁶profane my holy name; but ⁷I will be hallowed among the children of Israel: I am the LORD which ⁸hallow you.

33 ⁹That brought you out of the land of Egypt, to be your God: I am the LORD.

CHAPTER XXIII.

1 Of sundry feasts. 27 The day of atonement.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, ¹Concerning ²the feasts of the LORD, which ye shall ³proclaim to be holy convocations, even these are my feasts.

3 ¶ ⁴Six days shall work be done: but the seventh day is the sabbath of rest, an holy convocation; ye shall do no work therein: it is the sabbath of the LORD in all your dwellings.

4 ¶ These are the feasts of the LORD, even holy convocations, which ye shall proclaim in their seasons.

5 ⁵In the fourteenth day of the first month at even is the LORD's passover.

6 And on the fifteenth day of the same month is ⁶the feast of unleavened bread unto the LORD: seven days ye must eat unleavened bread.

7 In the first day ⁷ye shall have an holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work therein.

8 But ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD seven days: in the seventh day is an holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work therein.

9 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

10 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, ⁸When ye be come into the land which I give unto you, ⁹and shall reap the harvest thereof, then ye shall bring a ¹⁰sheaf of ¹¹the first-fruits of your harvest unto the priest:

11 And he shall ¹²wave the sheaf before the LORD, to be accepted for you: on the morrow after the sabbath the priest shall wave it.

12 And ye shall offer that day, when ye wave the sheaf, ¹³an he-lamb without

"most holy," and to be eaten only by the priests in the sanctuary: others were simply "holy," and to be eaten by them and their households. But the spirit of the passage is what we are concerned with; and here an important lesson is supplied not only to pastors of flocks and preachers of righteousness, but to the Lord's people of both sexes and all classes, whom it behoves, each for himself, to say, "I will wash mine hands in innocency: so will I compass thine altar, O Lord."

Chap. XXIII. 1-22. It was the business of the priests to attend to the seasons, and to mark out the annual feasts, that all the tribes might be duly apprised of the periods of assembling, so as to avoid confusion and disappointment. The greater feasts were a serious affair, since they required all the male inhabitants fit for travelling to join in the worship at Jerusalem. In addition to these the minor feasts were so numerous as to demand that there should be the most perfect under-blemish, of the first year, for a burnt-offering unto the LORD.

13 And ^mthe meat-offering thereof shall be two tenth-deals of fine flour mingled with oil, an offering made by fire unto the LORD for a sweet savour; and ⁿthe drink-offering thereof shall be of wine, ^othe fourth part of an hin.

14 And ye shall ^peat neither bread, nor parched corn, nor green ears, until the self-same day that ye have brought an offering unto your God: ^q*it shall be* a statute for ever throughout your generations in all your dwellings.

15 ¶ And ye shall count unto you ^rfrom the morrow after the sabbath, from the day that ye brought the sheaf of the wave-offering; seven sabbaths shall be complete.

16 Even unto the morrow after the seventh sabbath shall ye number ^sfifty days; and ye shall offer a new meat-offering unto the LORD.

17 Ye shall bring out of your habitations ^ttwo wave-loaves of two tenth-deals: they shall be of fine flour; they shall be baked with ^uleaven; they are ^vthe first-fruits unto the LORD.

18 And ye shall offer with the bread ^wseven lambs without blemish of the first year, and one young bullock, and two rams: they shall be for a burnt-offering unto the LORD, ^xwith their meat-offering and their drink-offerings, even an offering made by fire, of sweet savour unto the LORD.

19 Then ye shall sacrifice ^yone kid of the goats for a sin-offering, and ^ztwo lambs of the first year for a sacrifice of peace-offerings.

20 And the priest shall ^awave them, with the bread of the first-fruits, for a wave-offering before the LORD, with the two lambs: they shall be ^bholy to the LORD for the priest.

21 And ye shall ^cproclaim on the self-same day, that it may be an holy convocation unto you: ye shall do no servile work therein: it shall be ^da statute for ever in all your dwellings, throughout your generations.

22 ¶ And when ye reap the harvest of your land, ^ethou shalt not make clean riddance of the corners of thy field when thou reapest, neither shalt thou gather any gleanings of thy harvest; thou shalt leave them unto the poor, and to the stranger: I am the LORD your God.

23 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

24 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, ^hIn the seventh month, in the first day of the month, shall ye have a sabbath, a memorial of blowing of trumpets, an holy convocation.

25 Ye shall do no servile work therein; but ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

26 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

27 Also on ⁱthe tenth day of this seventh month there shall be a day of atonement: it shall be an holy convocation unto you; and ye shall ^jafflict your souls, and ^koffer an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

28 And ye shall do no work in that same day; for it ^lis ^ma day of atonement, to make an atonement for you before the LORD your God.

29 For whatsoever soul it be ⁿthat shall not be afflicted in that same day, he shall be cut off from among his people.

30 And whatsoever soul it be ^othat doeth any work in that same day, ^pthe same soul will I destroy from among his people.

31 Ye shall do no manner of work: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations, in all your dwellings.

32 It shall be unto you ^qa sabbath of rest, and ye shall ^rafflict your souls: in the ninth day of the month at even, from even unto even, shall ye ^scelebrate your sabbath.

33 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

34 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, ^tThe fifteenth day of this seventh month shall be the feast of tabernacles for seven days unto the LORD.

35 On the first day shall be ^uan holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work therein.

36 ^vSeven days ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD; on ^wthe eighth day shall be an holy convocation unto you, and ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD: it is ^xa solemn assembly; and ye shall do no servile work therein.

37 These are ^ythe feasts of the LORD, which ye shall proclaim to be holy convocations, to offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD, a burnt-offering, and a meat-offering, a sacrifice, and drink-offerings, every thing upon his day:

38 Beside ^zthe sabbaths of the LORD, ^aand beside your gifts, and beside all your vows, and beside all your free-will-offerings, which ye give unto the LORD.

standing of the times. The days of festival, including the Sabbath, were upwards of eighty in number, fifty-nine of which were devoted to religious services, and twenty-three were of a less sacred character, so that "servile work" for the comfort of man might be performed on these days. Ver. 23-44. The blowing of the trumpets was a significant affair, although it lasted only for one day, which was the first of the civil year. It was proclaimed by the same trumpet which sounded in the jubilee, and is considered to be a type of the triumph resulting from the atonement to be subsequently made by the Son of God. The great annual atonement was the day of days, and, therefore, was strictly observed as a feast by the whole people. The feast of tabernacles was an occasion which spoke to the people's hearts, and it afforded an opportunity to them of exhibiting their gratitude to the Lord for his goodness. By following so hard upon the great day of atonement, it brought the two events together, the latter meetly illustrating the joy which was to flow from the former. As pointing to the weary pilgrimage made by their fathers in the wilderness, it may have been designed to shadow forth 39 Also in the fifteenth day of the seventh month, ^awhen ye have gathered in the fruit of the land, ye shall keep a feast unto the LORD seven days: ^bon the first day shall be a sabbath, and on the eighth day shall be a sabbath.

40 And ye shall take you on the first day ^cthe ^dboughs of goodly trees, branches ^eof palm-trees, and the boughs of thick trees, and willows of the brook; and ye shall ^frejoice before the LORD your God seven days.

41 And ye shall keep it a feast unto the LORD seven days in the year. It shall be a statute for ever in your generations; ye shall celebrate it in the seventh month.

42 Ye shall dwell ^gin booths seven days; all that are Israelites born shall dwell in booths;

43 That ^hyour generations may know that I made the children of Israel to dwell in booths, when I brought them out of the land of Egypt: I am the LORD your God.

44 And Moses ⁱdeclared unto the children of Israel the feasts of the LORD.

CHAPTER XXIV.

10 Shelomith's son blasphemeth. 13 The law of blasphemy: 17 of murder; 18 of damage. 23 The blasphemer is stoned.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Command the children of Israel, ^athat they bring unto thee pure oil-olive beaten for the light, to cause ^bthe lamps to ^cburn continually.

3 Without the vail of the testimony, in the tabernacle of the congregation, shall Aaron order it from the evening unto the morning before the LORD continually: it shall be a statute for ever in your generations.

4 He shall order the lamps upon the ^dpure candlestick before the LORD continually.

5 ^eAnd thou shalt take fine flour, and bake ^ftwelve cakes thereof: two tenth-deals shall be in one cake.

6 And thou shalt set them ^gin two rows, six on a row, upon the ^hpure table before the LORD.

7 And thou shalt put ⁱpure frankincense upon each row, that it may be on ^jthe bread for ^ka memorial, even an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

8 Every ^lsabbath he shall set it in order before the LORD continually, being taken from the children of Israel by an everlasting covenant.

11 And the Israelitish woman's son ^eblasphemed the name of the LORD, and ^fcursed. And they ^gbrought him unto Moses: (and his mother's name was Shelomith, the daughter of Dibri, of the tribe of Dan:)

the happy close of human labour—a departure from this world of affliction to that land where there is no more pain, nor sorrow, nor crying, and where God shall wipe away tears from all faces.

Chap. XXIV. 1-23. The leaves here presented are considered as typifying Christ, the bread of life, the food that nourishes his people. They were carried away by the priests, and eaten at the end of the week, and replaced by new ones. The lamps and the shew-bread, to the spiritually-minded among the Jews, were full of Gospel import. The people's supplying the oil strongly enforces the duty of every man maintaining a vigilant inspection of his own heart, with a view to the maintenance of the Divine life; while the shew-bread set forth the doctrine that the truth as it is in Jesus constituted a celestial provision made for the nourishment of the children of the kingdom. The case of the blasphemer supplies a fearful example of the baneful effects of bad company. It is not to be marvelled at, that the younger should imitate the elder; and that sons should walk in the downward steps of their fathers. Great is the misfortune of being descended from the enemies of God! Great is the privilege, and consequently the responsibility of being descended from a truly Christian parentage!

CHAPTER XXV.

8 The jubilee. 14 Of oppression. 35 Of compassion.
47 Of redeeming servants.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses ^ain mount Sinai, saying.

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, ^bWhen ye come into the land which I give you, then shall the land ¹keep a sabbath unto the LORD.

3 Six years thou shalt sow thy field, and six years thou shalt prune thy vineyard, and gather in the fruit thereof;

4 But ^cin the seventh year shall be a sabbath of rest unto the land, a sabbath for the LORD: thou shalt neither sow thy field, nor prune thy vineyard.

5 That which ^dgroweth of its own accord of thy harvest thou shalt not reap, neither gather the grapes of ^ethy vine undressed: for it is a year of rest unto the land.

6 And the sabbath of the land shall be meat for you; ^ffor thee, and for thy servant, and for thy maid, and for thy hired servant, and for thy stranger that sojourneth with thee,

7 And for thy cattle, and for the beast that ^gare in thy land, shall all the increase thereof be meat.

8 ¶ And thou shalt number ^hseven sabbaths of years unto thee, seven times seven years; and the space of the seven sabbaths of years shall be unto thee forty and nine years.

9 Then shalt thou cause the trumpet ⁱof the ^jjubilee to sound, on the tenth day of the seventh month; in ^kthe day of atonement shall ye make the trumpet sound throughout all your land.

10 And ye shall hallow the fiftieth year, and ^lproclaim liberty throughout ^mall the land unto all the inhabitants thereof: it shall be a jubilee unto you; and ye shall return ⁿevery man unto his possession, and ye shall return every man unto his family.

11 A jubilee shall that fiftieth year be unto you; ye shall not sow, neither reap that which groweth of itself in it, nor gather ^othe grapes in it of thy vine undressed.

12 For it is the jubilee; it shall be holy unto you: ye shall eat the increase thereof out of the field.

13 In the year of this jubilee ye shall return every man unto his possession.

14 ¶ And if thou sell ought unto thy neighbour, or buyest ^pought of thy neighbour's hand, ye shall not ^qoppress one another.

15 According ^rto the number of years after the jubilee thou shalt buy of thy neighbour, and according unto the number of years of the fruits he shall sell unto thee.

16 According to the multitude of years thou shalt increase the price thereof, and according to the fewness of years thou shalt diminish the price of it: for according to the number of the years of the fruits doth he sell unto thee.

17 Ye shall not therefore oppress one another; but thou ^sshalt fear thy God: for I ^tam the LORD your God.

18 ¶ Wherefore ^uye shall do my statutes, and keep my judgments, and do them; and ^vye shall dwell in the land in safety.

19 And ^wthe land shall yield her fruit, and ye shall eat your fill, and dwell therein in safety.

20 And if ye shall say, ^xWhat shall we eat the seventh year? behold, we shall not sow, nor gather in our increase:

21 Then ^yI will command my blessing upon you in the sixth year, and it shall bring forth fruit for ^zthree years.

22 And ye shall sow the ^{aa}eighth year, and eat ^{ab}yet of ^{ac}old fruit until the ninth year; until her fruits come in ye shall eat of the old store.

23 ¶ The land ^{ad}shall not be sold ^{ae}for ever: ^{af}for the land ^{ag}is mine; for ^{ah}ye are strangers and sojourners with me.

24 And in all the land of your possession ye shall grant a ^{ai}redemption for the land.

25 ¶ If thy brother be waxen poor, and hath sold away ^{aj}some of his possession, and ^{ak}if any of his kin come to redeem it, then shall he redeem that which his brother sold.

26 And if the man have none to redeem it, and ^{al}himself be able to redeem it;

27 Then ^{am}let him count the years of the sale thereof, and restore the overplus unto the man to whom he sold it, that he may return unto his possession.

28 But if he be not able to restore it to him, then that which is sold shall remain in the hand of him that hath bought it until the year of jubilee: and in the jubilee it shall go out, and ^{an}he shall return unto his possession.

29 ¶ And if a man sell a dwelling-house in a walled city, then he may redeem it within a whole year after it is sold: ^{ao}within a full year may he redeem it.

30 And if it be not redeemed within the space of a full year, then the house that is in the walled city shall be established for ever to him that bought it, throughout his generations: it shall not go out in the jubilee.

31 But the houses of the villages, which have no walls round about them, shall be counted as the fields of the country; ^{ap}they may be redeemed, and they shall go out in the jubilee.

32 Notwithstanding ^{aq}the cities of the Chap. XXV. 1-55. The land referred to, of course, meant the promised land of Canaan, which at a distance of about thirteen years from this date they were to enter. The law of the Sabbath here set forth served to remind the people that the land was the Lord's, not theirs; and that they were only sojourners with him. During the seventh year he claimed to dispose of the produce at pleasure; all shared alike, without the right of the rich questioning the poor as to their appropriation. This seventh year was not merely a period of rest, a continued holiday, but of public instruction, since the law, as appears in a former chapter, was to be read in the Levites, and the houses of the cities of their possession, may the Levites redeem at any time.

33 And if ^aa man purchase of the Levites, then the house that was sold, and the city of his possession, shall go out in the year of jubilee: ^afor the houses of the cities of the Levites are their possession among the children of Israel.

34 But ^athe field of the suburbs of their cities may not be sold; for it is their perpetual possession.

35 ¶ And if ^athy brother be waxen poor, and ^afallen in decay with thee, ^athen thou shalt ^arelieve him; yea, though he be ^aa stranger, or a sojourner: that he may live with thee.

36 Take thou no ^ausury of him, or increase: but ^afear thy God; that thy brother may live with thee.

37 Thou shalt not give him thy money upon usury, nor lend him thy victuals for increase.

38 I am the LORD your God, which brought you forth out of the land of Egypt, to give you the land of Canaan, ^aand to be your God.

39 ¶ And if thy brother that dwelleth by thee be waxen poor, and ^abe sold unto thee; thou shalt not ^acompel him to serve as a bond-servant:

40 But as an hired servant, and as a sojourner, he shall be with thee, and shall serve thee unto the year of jubilee:

41 And ^athen shall he depart from thee, both he and his children with him, and shall return unto his own family, and unto the possession of his fathers shall he return.

42 For they are ^amy servants, which I brought forth out of the land of Egypt: they shall not be sold ^aas bond-men.

43 Thou shalt not ^arule over him with rigour, ^abut shalt fear thy God.

44 Both ^athy bond-men and thy bond-maids, which thou shalt have, shall be of the heathen that are round about you; of them shall ye buy bond-men and bond-maids.

45 Moreover, ^aof the children of the strangers that do sojourn among you, of them shall ye buy, and of their families that are with you, which they begat in your land; and they shall be your possession:

46 And ye shall take them as an inheritance for your children after you, to inherit them for a possession; ^athey shall be your bond-men for ever: but over your brethren the children of Israel ye shall not rule one over another with rigour.

47 ¶ And if ^aa sojourner or stranger wax rich by thee, and thy brother that dwelleth by him wax poor, and sell him-

2 Ye shall ^akeep my sabbaths, and reverence my sanctuary: I am the LORD.

3 ¶ If ye walk in my statutes, and keep my commandments, and do them;

4 Then ^aI will give you rain in due season, and ^athe land shall yield her increase, and the trees of the field shall yield their fruit.

5 And your ^athrashing shall reach unto the vintage, and the vintage shall reach unto the sowing-time; and ye shall ^aeat your bread to the full, and ^adwell in your land safely.

6 And ^aI will give peace in the land, and ^aye shall lie down, and none shall make you afraid; and I will ^arid evil beasts out of the land, neither ^ashall the sword go through your land.

hearing of all the people. This year was a touching and beautiful type of the rest of heaven, where God's people will find one eternal sabbatism.

Chap. XXVI. 1-13. Nothing can be more explicit than the denunciation here made against idolatry in all its forms. Always the greatest of crimes against God, it is one of the most hurtful to mankind; nothing tends so much to enfeeble the intellect, to pollute the heart, and to debase the character. Man was made for God; and it is by the contemplation of his glorious Creator, that his mental and moral powers are developed, and his 25 And ^bI will bring a sword upon you, that shall ^cavenge the quarrel of my covenant: and when ye are gathered together within your cities, ^dI will send the pestilence among you; and ye shall be delivered into the hand of the enemy.

26 And when ^eI have broken the staff of your bread, ten women shall bake your bread in one oven, and they shall deliver you your bread again by weight; and ye shall eat, and not be satisfied.

34 Then ^jshall the land enjoy her sabbaths, as long as it lieth desolate, and ye ^kbe in your enemies' land; ^leven then shall the land rest, and enjoy her sabbaths.

35 As long as it lieth desolate it shall rest; ^mbecause it did not rest in your sabbaths, when ye dwelt upon it.

whole character perfected. He finds happiness in obedience, and misery in transgression. Ver. 14-46. Most of the chapter consists of a prophetic history of the chosen people, shewing the wonderful extent to which Moses was enlightened by the Spirit of God. In ver. 38, 39, Moses clearly refers to the ten tribes and their dispersion among the heathen. It has been frequently contended that they still exist in some undiscovered region of our globe, from which they will be forthcoming in due season to join their brethren in the land of their fathers; but the grounds of the inference are by no means satisfactory. Those Jews who, in their infatuation, rushed into Egypt, doubtless perished there; as did vast numbers in other nations among whom they were dispersed, so that they might be said literally to die out. In many countries, and in divers ages, the destruction and massacre of which they were the subject were so great as vastly to diminish their numbers. From that time to the advent of Christ and the national rejection of their King, they have continued the same stubborn unbelieving people, and have in consequence remained under the frown of the Lord, subjected to every species of insult and degradation. From the whole of the chapter it appears that sin and desolation go 38 And ¹ye shall perish among the heathen, and the land of your enemies shall eat you up.

39 And they that are left of you ²shall pine away in their iniquity in your enemies' lands; ³and also in the iniquities of their fathers shall they pine away with them.

40 ¶ If ⁴they shall confess their iniquity, and the iniquity of their fathers, with their trespass which they trespassed against me, and that also they have walked contrary unto me;

41 And that I also have walked contrary unto them, and have brought them into the land of their enemies; if then ⁵their uncircumcised hearts be ⁶humbled, and ⁷they then accept of the punishment of their iniquity:

42 Then ⁸will I remember my covenant with Jacob, and also my covenant with Isaac, and also my covenant with Abraham will I remember; and ⁹I will remember the land.

43 The land also shall be left of them, and shall enjoy her sabbaths, while she lieth desolate without them: ¹⁰and they shall accept of the punishment of their iniquity; because, even because they ¹¹despised my judgments, and because ¹²their soul abhorred my statutes.

44 And yet for all that, when they be in the land of their enemies, ¹³I will not cast them away, neither will I abhor them, to destroy them utterly, and ¹⁴to break my covenant with them: for I am the LORD their God.

45 But I will ¹⁵for their sakes remember the covenant of their ancestors, whom I brought forth out of the land of Egypt in the sight of the heathen, that I might be their God: I am the LORD.

46 These are ¹⁶the statutes, and judgments, and laws, which the LORD made between him and the children of Israel in mount Sinai, ¹⁷by the hand of Moses.

CHAPTER XXVII.

² Concerning vows. ²⁸ No devoted thing may be redeemed. ³³ The tithe may not be changed.

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, ¹When a man shall make a singular vow, the persons shall be for the LORD by thy estimation.

3 And ²thy estimation shall be of the male from twenty years old even unto sixty years old, even thy estimation shall be fifty shekels of silver, ³after the shekel of the sanctuary.

7 And if it be ³from sixty years old and above, if it be a male, then thy estimation shall be fifteen shekels, and for the female ten shekels.

8 But if he be ⁴poorer than thy estimation, then he shall present himself before the priest, and the priest shall value him; according to his ability that vowed shall the priest value him.

9 ¶ And if it be a beast, whereof men bring an offering unto the LORD, all that any man giveth of such unto the LORD shall be holy.

10 He ⁵shall not alter it, nor change it, a good for a bad, or a bad for a good: and if he shall at all change beast for beast, then it and the exchange thereof shall be holy.

11 And if it be any ⁶unclean beast, of which they do not offer a sacrifice unto the LORD, then he shall present the beast before the priest;

12 And the priest shall value it, whether it be good or bad: ⁷as thou valuest it, who art the priest, so shall it be.

13 But if he will at all redeem it, ⁸then he shall add a fifth part thereof unto thy estimation.

14 ¶ And when a man shall ⁹sanctify his house to be holy unto the LORD, then the priest shall estimate it, whether it be good or bad: ¹⁰as the priest shall estimate it, so shall it stand.

15 And if he that sanctified it will redeem his house, ¹¹then he shall add the fifth part of the money of thy estimation unto it, and it shall be his.

16 And if a man shall sanctify unto the LORD some part ¹²of a field of his possession, then thy estimation shall be according to the seed thereof: ¹³an ¹⁴homer of barley-seed shall be valued at fifty shekels of silver.

17 If he sanctify his field from the year of jubilee, according to thy estimation it shall stand.

18 But if he sanctify his field ¹⁵after the jubilee, then the priest shall reckon unto him the money according to the years together, as cause and effect. The Lord is full of mercy, and great is his forbearance towards individuals and communities; but there is a bound which neither may pass without destruction. "He that, being often reproved, hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy." These are words that ought to sink deep into the heart of every reader.

Chap. XXVII. 1-11. The expression, "singular vow," is one of doubtful import. It may signify to exempt from common use, and to vow this or that thing to be the Lord's, which was not commanded by the law. Such vows were naturally accompanied with prayer; in fact, they were a part of it, and performed with thanksgiving. When a man vowed to devote his own person, or any other under his authority, to God, he might subsequently obtain a release by paying the value in money; the standard of valuation is expressly stated. It was not permitted, however, to redeem such as were devoted to death, but vows generally implied consecration to God for the promotion of his honour and glory. All might that remain, even unto the year of the jubilee, and it shall be abated from thy estimation.

19 And if he that sanctified the field will in any wise redeem it, then he shall add the fifth part of the money of thy estimation unto it, and it shall be assured to him.

20 And if he will not redeem the field, or if he have sold the field to another man, it shall not be redeemed any more.

21 But the field, when it goeth out in the jubilee, shall be holy unto the LORD, as a field devoted; the possession thereof shall be the priest's.

22 And if a man sanctify unto the LORD a field which he hath bought, which is not of the fields of his possession;

23 Then the priest shall reckon unto him the worth of thy estimation, even unto the year of the jubilee: and he shall give thine estimation in that day, as a holy thing unto the LORD.

24 In the year of the jubilee the field shall return unto him of whom it was bought, even to him to whom the possession of the land did belong.

25 And all thy estimations shall be according to the shekel of the sanctuary: twenty gerahs shall be the shekel.

26 ¶ Only the firstling of the beasts, which should be the LORD's firstling, no man shall sanctify it: whether it be ox or sheep, it is the LORD's.

34 These are the commandments, which the LORD commanded Moses, for the children of Israel in mount Sinai.

THE FOURTH BOOK OF MOSES, CALLED NUMBERS.

This Book, which relates to the two numberings of the people, first at Sinai, and then in the plains of Moab, 39 years subsequently, illustrates the fulfilment of the promise made to Abraham, that his seed should "be as the stars of heaven for multitude." There is here a minute record of the rebellions of the people, and of divers events of importance which took place in the Wilderness, interspersed with moral and ceremonial Laws. The chief predictions are those of Balaam, which have been completely fulfilled up to the present time, thus proving, not only the truth of the history, but that Balaam, notwithstanding his covetous character, spake by the Spirit of God.

CHAPTER I.

1, 17 The men of war are numbered. 47 The Levites are exempted.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the tabernacle of the congregation, on the first day of the second month, in the second year after they were come out of the land of Egypt, saying,

2 Take ye the sum of all the congregation of the children of Israel, after their families, by the house of their fathers, with the number of their names, every male by their polls; vow to consecrate objects consistent with the spirit of the Divine law, but none might do so where it was contrary to it. Vows sometimes prove a snare, and are attended with great trouble of conscience. It therefore behoves all Christians to be cautious of vowing; but having, in the spirit of prayer, and with godly simplicity, from intense gratitude been prompted thereto, then they ought to make a conscience of fulfilling their promise.

Chap. I. 1-45. This book is cited no fewer than eighteen times in the New Testament. It is painful to observe, thus early, that the standard of manhood was ability "to go forth to war;" and none were deemed 40 ¶ Of the children of °Asher, by their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to adequate under 20 years. The figures here set forth give an interesting view of the increase of the seed of Abraham. Ver. 44-54. The Levites were not included in the census of the nation, since they were not warriors; and the rest were numbered, that they might thereby be reminded of their special call to fulfil the purposes of the Lord, according to the directions from time to time communicated. In this prodigious increase of the people, we have an impressive proof of the faithfulness of God; but if such has been the promise to Abraham, what may we not expect from the promise made to the Lord Jesus Christ? He must "see of the

the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

41 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Asher, were ^cforty and one thousand and five hundred.

42 ¶ Of the children of ^dNaphtali, throughout their generations, after their families, by the house of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

43 Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Naphtali, were ^efifty and three thousand and four hundred.

44 ¶ These ^fare those that were numbered, which Moses and Aaron numbered, and the princes of Israel, being twelve men: each one was for the house of his fathers.

45 So were all those that were numbered of the children of Israel, by the house of their fathers, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war in Israel;

46 Even all they that were numbered, were ^gsix hundred thousand, and three thousand, and five hundred and fifty.

47 ¶ But ^hthe Levites, after the tribe of their fathers, were not numbered among them.

48 For the LORD had spoken unto Moses, saying,

49 Only thou shalt not number the tribe of Levi, neither take the sum of them among the children of Israel:

50 But ⁱthou shalt appoint the Levites over ^jthe tabernacle of testimony, and over all the vessels thereof, and over all things that ^kbelong to it: they shall bear the tabernacle, and all the vessels thereof: and they shall minister unto it, and shall ^lencamp round about the tabernacle.

51 And when the tabernacle setteth forward, ^mthe Levites shall take it down; and when the tabernacle is to be pitched, the Levites shall set it up: and ⁿthe stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.

52 And the children of Israel shall ^opitch their tents, every man by his own camp, and every man by his own standard, throughout their hosts.

53 But the Levites ^pshall pitch round about the tabernacle of testimony, that ^qthere be no wrath upon the congregation of the children of Israel: and ^rthe Levites shall keep the charge of the tabernacle of testimony.

54 And the children of Israel did ^saccording to all that the LORD commanded Moses, so did they.

CHAPTER II.

1 The order of the tribes in their tents. 32 The numbering of the people. 33 The Levites not numbered.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

2 Every man of the children of Israel ^ashall pitch by his own standard, with ^bthe ensign of their father's house: ¹far off ^cabout the tabernacle of the congregation shall they pitch.

3 ¶ And on the east side, toward the rising of the sun, shall they of ^dthe standard of the camp of Judah pitch, throughout their armies: and ^eNahshon the son of Amminadab shall be captain of the children of Judah.

4 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, ^fwere threescore and fourteen thousand and six hundred.

5 And those that do pitch next unto him shall be the tribe of Issachar: ^gand Nethaneel the son of Zuar shall be captain of the children of Issachar.

6 And his host, and those that were numbered thereof, ^hwere ⁵⁰fifty and four thousand and four hundred.

7 Then the tribe of Zebulun: and ⁱEliab the son of Helon shall be captain of the children of Zebulun.

8 And his host, and those that were numbered thereof, ^jwere ⁵⁷fifty and seven thousand and four hundred.

9 All that were numbered in the camp of Judah were an hundred thousand, and fourscore thousand, and six thousand and four hundred, throughout their armies: ^kthese shall first set forth.

10 ¶ On the south side shall be the standard of the camp of ^lReuben, according to their armies: and the captain of the children of Reuben shall be ^mElizur the son of Shedeur.

11 And his host, and those that were numbered thereof, ⁿwere ⁴⁶forty and six thousand and five hundred.

12 And those which pitch by him shall be the tribe of Simeon: and the captain of the children of Simeon shall be ^oShelumiel the son of Zurishaddai.

13 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, ^pwere ⁵⁹fifty and nine thousand and three hundred.

14 Then the tribe of Gad: and the captain of the sons of Gad shall be ^qEliasaph the son of Reuel.

15 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, ^rwere ⁴⁵forty and five thousand and six hundred and fifty.

16 All that were numbered in the camp of Reuben were ^san hundred thousand, and fifty and one thousand, and four hundred and fifty, throughout their travail of his soul, and be satisfied;" and neither earth nor hell can prevent it.

Chap. II. 1-34. The Israelites were instructed to encamp in four divisions, with the Tabernacle in the centre. On the North, was the Tribe of Dan; on the South, the Tribe of Reuben; on the East, the Tribe of Judah; and on the West, the Tribe of Ephraim; each being associated with two others. They are considered as having formed a square, each side of which was about 12 miles, and in this order as having marched through the Wilderness. There is somewhat strikingly beautiful in the idea, that the Tribes were thus encamped around the Most High, who was in their midst for rule, armies: and ¹they shall set forth in the second rank.

17 ¶ Then ²the tabernacle of the congregation shall set forward, with the camp of the Levites in the midst of the camp: as they encamp, so shall they set forward, every man in his place, by their standards.

18 ¶ On the west side shall be the standard of the camp of ³Ephraim, according to their armies: and the captain of the sons of Ephraim shall be ⁴Elishama the son of Ammihud.

19 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were ⁵forty thousand and five hundred.

20 And by him shall be the tribe of ⁶Manasseh: and the captain of the children of Manasseh shall be ⁷Gamaliel the son of Pedabzur.

21 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were ⁸thirty and two thousand and two hundred.

22 Then the tribe of Benjamin: and the captain of the sons of Benjamin shall be ⁹Abidan the son of Gideon.

23 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were ¹⁰thirty and five thousand and four hundred.

24 All that were numbered of the camp of Ephraim were ¹¹an hundred thousand, and eight thousand and an hundred, throughout their armies: ¹²and they shall go forward in the third rank.

25 ¶ The standard of the camp of Dan shall be on the north side by their armies: and the captain of the children of Dan shall be ¹³Abiezer the son of Ammishaddai.

26 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were ¹⁴threescore and two thousand and seven hundred.

27 And those that encamp by him shall be the tribe of Asher: and the captain of the children of Asher shall be ¹⁵Pagiel the son of Ocran.

28 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were ¹⁶forty and one thousand and five hundred.

29 Then the tribe of Naphtali: and the captain of the children of Naphtali shall be ¹⁷Ahira the son of Enan.

30 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were ¹⁸fifty and three thousand and four hundred.

31 All they that were numbered in the camp of Dan were ¹⁹an hundred thousand, and fifty and seven thousand, and six hundred: ²⁰they shall go hindmost with their standards.

32 ¶ These are those which were numbered of the children of Israel, by the house of their fathers: all those that were numbered of the camps, throughout their hosts, were ²⁸six hundred thousand, and three thousand, and five hundred and fifty.

33 But ²⁹the Levites were not numbered among the children of Israel; as the LORD commanded Moses.

34 And the children of Israel did ³⁰according to all that the LORD commanded Moses: ³¹so they pitched by their standards, and so they set forward, every one after their families, according to the house of their fathers.

CHAPTER III.

5 The Levites' service. 40 The first-born freed. 44 The overplus redeemed.

THESE also are the ³²generations of Aaron and Moses, in the day that the LORD ³³spake with Moses in mount Sinai.

2 And these are ³⁴the names of the sons of Aaron; Nadab the first-born, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar.

3 These are the names of the sons of Aaron, ³⁵the priests which were anointed, ³⁶whom ³⁷he consecrated to minister in the priest's office.

4 And ³⁸Nadab and Abihu died before the LORD, when they offered strange fire before the LORD, in the wilderness of Sinai, and they had no children: ³⁹and Eleazar and Ithamar ministered in the priest's office in the sight of Aaron their father.

5 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

6 ⁴⁰Bring the tribe of Levi near, and present them before Aaron the priest, that they may minister unto him.

7 And they shall ⁴¹keep his charge, and the charge of the whole congregation, before the tabernacle of the congregation, to ⁴²do the service of the tabernacle.

8 And ⁴³they shall keep all the instruments of the tabernacle of the congregation, and the charge of the children of Israel, to do the service of the tabernacle.

9 And ⁴⁴thou shalt give the Levites unto Aaron, and to his sons: they are wholly given unto him out of the children of Israel.

10 And thou shalt appoint Aaron and his sons, and ⁴⁵they shall wait on their priest's office; ⁴⁶and the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.

11 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

12 And I, behold, ⁴⁷I have taken the Levites from among the children of Israel instead of all the first-born that openeth the matrix among the children instruction, protection, and glory. It is worthy of notice, that the first place is assigned to Judah, out of which the Lord was to come. His fighting men were much more numerous than those of any other tribe, and nearly twice as numerous as those of some. Here may be seen the regard which was paid to order—illustrating, at this early day, the language of the Apostle, "God is not the author of confusion." Here, by a visible symbol of the Divine presence, the great truth was taught, that God dwells in his Church, while every individual believer is a Temple of the Holy Ghost.

Chap. III. 1-13. Moses sought no glory for his descendants; the honour of the Priesthood was conferred upon Aaron and his sons, while the relatives of Moses occupied the humble place of common Levites. The Levites were a species of assistants to the Priests in the work of the Temple, oft-times killing the sacrifices, while the Priests sprinkled the blood. In verse 12, of Israel: therefore the Levites shall be mine;

13 Because ^aall the first-born are mine: for ^aon the day that I smote all the first-born in the land of Egypt, I hallowed unto me all the first-born in Israel, both man and beast; mine they shall be: I am the LORD.

14 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, saying, 15 Number the children of Levi, after the house of their fathers, by their families: ^aevery male from a month old and upward shalt thou number them.

16 And Moses numbered them, according to the ²word of the LORD, as he was commanded.

17 And ^athese were the sons of Levi, by their names; Gershon, and Kohath, and Merari.

18 And these are the names of the sons of Gershon, by their families; ^aLibni, and Shimei.

19 And the sons of Kohath, by their families; ^aAmram, and Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel.

20 And the sons of Merari, by their families; ^aMahli, and Mushi: these are the families of the Levites, according to the house of their fathers.

21 ¶ Of Gershon was the family ^aof the Libnites, and the family of the Shimites: these are the families of the Gershonites.

22 Those that were numbered of them, according to the number of all the males, from a month old and upward, even those that were numbered of them, were ^aseven thousand and five hundred.

23 The families of the Gershonites shall pitch ^bbehind the tabernacle westward.

24 And the chief of the house of the father of the Gershonites shall be Eliasaph the son of Lael.

25 And ^athe charge of the sons of Gershon, in the tabernacle of the congregation, shall be ^athe tabernacle, and the tent, the covering thereof, and ^athe hanging for the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

26 And ^athe hangings of the court, and the curtain for the door of the court, which is by the tabernacle, and by the altar round about, and ^athe cords of it, for all the service thereof.

27 ¶ And ^aof Kohath was the family of the Amramites, and the family of the Izharites, and the family of the Hebronites, and the family of the Uzzielites: these are the families of the Kohathites.

28 In the number of all the males, from a month old and upward, were 39 All that were numbered of the Levites, which Moses and Aaron numbered at the commandment of the LORD, throughout their families, all the males, from a month old and upward, were ^atwenty and two thousand.

40 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, ^aNumber all the first-born of the males of the children of Israel, from a month old and upward, and take the number of their names.

41 And thou shalt take the Levites for me, (I am the LORD,) instead of all the first-born among the children of Israel; and the cattle of the Levites instead of all the firstlings among the cattle of the children of Israel.

God appoints the Tribe of Levi to take the place of the first-born, who belonged to him by right of redemption: "Mine shall they be, saith the Lord." The Tribe of Levi signifies the whole of his descendants, with the exception of the family of Aaron. The Levites, although not priests, were to be entirely devoted to the service of religion—a circumstance which led to their being almost overlooked as a tribe altogether, seeing that they had so little to do with matters of a secular character. Ver.

14-51. Moses alone took the census of the Levites, but he was assisted by Aaron in taking that of the Tribes. The people of God, then, notwithstanding the rapidity with which they were multiplied, and the amount of their absolute numbers, were comparatively but a handful of mankind: so it is still; but with this difference, the Jews were never intended to be other than a select, separate, typical community, whereas the Church of God is destined to absorb all nations and 42 And Moses numbered, as the LORD commanded him, all the first-born among the children of Israel.

43 And all the first-born males, by the number of names, from a month old and upward, of those that were numbered of them, ^bwere twenty and two thousand two hundred and threescore and thirteen.

44 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

45 Take ^cthe Levites instead of all the first-born among the children of Israel, and the cattle of the Levites instead of their cattle; and the Levites shall be mine: I am the LORD.

46 And for those that are to be ^dredeemed of the two hundred and threescore and thirteen of the first-born of the children of Israel, ^ewhich are more than the Levites;

47 Thou shalt even take ^ffive shekels a-piece by the poll; after ^gthe shekel of the sanctuary shalt thou take them: (the shekel is twenty gerahs:)

48 And thou shalt give the money, wherewith the odd number of them is to be redeemed, unto Aaron, and to his sons.

49 And Moses took the redemption-money of them that were over and above them that were redeemed by the Levites.

50 Of the first-born of the children of Israel took he the money; ^ha thousand three hundred and threescore and five shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary:

51 And Moses ⁱgave the money of them that were redeemed unto Aaron, and to his sons, according to the word of the LORD, as the LORD commanded Moses.

19 But thus do unto them, that they may live, and not die, when they approach unto the most holy things: Aaron and his sons shall go in, and appoint them every one to his service, and to his burden.

20 But ²⁸they shall not go in to see peoples into itself. The glory of the Lord was then confined to Palestine; but all flesh are one day to see his salvation, and the whole earth is to be filled with his glory.

Chap. IV. 1-49. The Levites were arranged in three classes, the first consisting of those a month old and upwards, when they were consecrated to the service of God; the next at 25 years of age, when they commenced their preparation for public life in the Tabernacle; and the next at 30 years, as set forth in ver. 3, when they entered on full service, continuing to the age of 50; thus limiting the period of their active duty to 20 years. This was considered the proper age for entering on full work, since both mind and body had then reached maturity. This provision protected the service alike against the inexperience of youth, and the imbecility of age: only men in the prime of life, or the vigour of when the holy things are covered, lest they die.

21 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

22 Take also ¹the sum of the sons of Gershon, throughout the houses of their fathers, by their families:

23 From ¹thirty years old and upward, until fifty years old, shalt thou number them; all that enter in to ²perform the service, to do the work in the tabernacle of the congregation.

24 This is the service of the families of the Gershonites, to serve, and for ⁴burdens.

25 And they shall bear ²the curtains of the tabernacle, and the tabernacle of the congregation, his covering, and the covering of the badgers' skins that is above upon it, and the hanging for the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

26 And the hangings of the court, and the hanging for the door of the gate of the court, which is by the tabernacle, and by the altar round about, and their cords, and all the instruments of their service, and all that is made for them: so shall they serve.

27 At the ⁶appointment of Aaron and his sons shall be all the service of the sons of the Gershonites, in all their burdens, and in all their service: and ye shall appoint unto them in charge all their burdens.

28 This is the service of the families of the sons of Gershon in the tabernacle of the congregation: and their charge shall be ²under the hand of Ithamar, the son of Aaron the priest.

29 ¶ As for ⁶the sons of Merari, thou shalt number them after their families, by the house of their fathers:

30 From thirty years old and upward, even unto fifty years old, shalt thou number them, every one that entereth into the ⁶service, to do the work of the tabernacle of the congregation.

31 And this is ²the charge of their burden, according to all their service in the tabernacle of the congregation; the boards of the tabernacle, and the bars thereof, and the pillars thereof, and sockets thereof,

32 And the pillars of the court round about, and their sockets, and their pins, and their cords, with all their instruments, and with all their service: and by name ye shall reckon ²the instruments of the charge of their burden.

33 This is the service of the families of the sons of Merari, according to all their service, in the tabernacle of the congregation, ²under the hand of Ithamar the son of Aaron the priest.

34 ¶ And Moses and Aaron, and the chief of the congregation, numbered the sons of the Kohathites, after their families, and after the house of their fathers,

35 From ²thirty years old and upward, even unto fifty years old, every one that entereth into the service, for the work in the tabernacle of the congregation:

36 And those that were numbered of them, by their families, were ²two thousand seven hundred and fifty.

37 These were they that were numbered of the families of the Kohathites, all that might do service in the tabernacle of the congregation, which Moses and Aaron did number, according to the commandment of the LORD, by the hand of Moses.

38 ¶ And those that were numbered of the sons of Gershon, throughout their families, and by the house of their fathers,

39 From thirty years old and upward, even unto fifty years old, every one that entereth into the service, for the work in the tabernacle of the congregation;

40 Even those that were numbered of them, throughout their families, by the house of their fathers, were ²two thousand and six hundred and thirty.

41 These are they that were numbered of the families of the sons of Gershon, of all that might do service in the tabernacle of the congregation, whom Moses and Aaron did number, according to the commandment of the LORD.

42 ¶ And those that were numbered of the families of the sons of Merari, throughout their families, by the house of their fathers,

43 From thirty years old and upward, even unto fifty years old, every one that entereth into the service, for the work in the tabernacle of the congregation;

44 Even those that were numbered of them, after their families, were ²three thousand and two hundred.

45 These be those that were numbered of the families of the sons of Merari, whom Moses and Aaron numbered, according to the word of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

46 All those that were numbered of the Levites, whom Moses and Aaron, and the chief of Israel, numbered, after their families, and after the house of their fathers,

47 From thirty years old and upward, even unto fifty years old, ²every one that came to do the service of the ministry, and the service of the burden in the tabernacle of the congregation;

48 Even those that were numbered of them, ²were eight thousand and five hundred and fourscore.

49 According to the commandment of the LORD they were numbered by the hand of Moses, every one according to his service, and according to his burden: thus were they numbered of him, as the LORD commanded Moses.

mature manhood, were deemed proper to accomplish this great work. The principle has, of course, no application to the Christian Ministry; under the Divine sanction, we find both persons in early life and in advanced years discharging the duties of the sacred function. This is a matter less of principle than of persons. Some are rich in grace and full of wisdom in early bloom; while others have a green old age and are full of life and vigour. With respect to either extreme, therefore, wisdom is profitable to direct.

CHAPTER V.

1 The unclean put out of the camp. 5 Restitution enjoined. 11 The trial of jealousy.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Command the children of Israel, that they ^aput out of the camp every leper, ^band every one that hath an ^cissue, and whosoever is defiled by the dead:

3 Both male and female shall ye put out, ^dwithout the camp shall ye put them; that they ^edefile not their camps, ^fin the midst whereof I dwell.

4 And the children of Israel did so, and put them out without the camp: as the LORD spake unto Moses, so did the children of Israel.

5 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

6 Speak unto the children of Israel, ^gWhen a man or woman shall commit any sin that men commit, to do a trespass against the LORD, and that person be guilty;

7 Then they shall ^hconfess their sin which they have done: and he shall recompense his trespass ⁱwith the principal thereof, and add unto it the fifth ^jpart thereof, and give ^kit unto him against whom he hath trespassed.

8 But if the man ^lhave no kinsman to recompense the trespass unto, let the trespass be recompensed unto the LORD, ^meven to the priest, ⁿbeside the ram of the atonement, whereby an atonement shall be made for him.

9 ¶ And every ^ooffering of all the holy things of the children of Israel, which they bring unto the priest, shall be his.

10 And every man's ^phallowed things shall be his: whatsoever any man giveth the priest, it shall be his.

11 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

12 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, ^qIf any man's wife go aside, and commit a trespass against him,

13 And a man ^rlie with her carnally, and it be hid from the eyes of her husband, and be kept close, and she be defiled, and ^sthere be no witness against her, neither she be taken ^twith the manner;

14 And ^uthe spirit of jealousy come upon him, and he be jealous of his wife, and she be defiled; or if the spirit of jealousy come upon him, and he be jealous of his wife, and she be not defiled:

15 Then shall the man bring his wife unto the priest, and he shall bring ^vher

Chap. V. 1-31. Extraordinary provision is here made for the maintenance of domestic morality. While the cruelty of jealousy, on the one side, was prevented from proceeding to extremities, on the other provision was made for the discovery of hidden guilt. The test was one of a peculiarly awful nature, calculated to strike the deepest terror into the reflecting mind. It has been suggested, that Moses appointed this law for the purpose of mitigating the severity of the mode of trial which prevailed amongst neighbouring countries, in which fire was used, and also poisoned drinks—methods by which justice might be perverted and life destroyed, without remedy. In the present case miraculous interposition was employed to discover the truth, vindicating innocence or punishing guilt; and the judgment was of a nature so prompt, so certain, and so terrible, as most materially to contribute to work into the popular mind the idea of the omnipresent and heart-searching God, from whom no secrets can be hid. It is remarkable, that this trial by ordeal extensively prevailed in ancient times throughout the whole world. No fewer than nine different methods of it are practised among the Hindoos. There was no obligation among the Jews to resort to this method of discovery, which was mainly designed to drink the water, then it shall come to pass, that ²¹if she be defiled, and have done trespass against her husband, that the water that causeth the curse shall enter into her, and become bitter, and her belly shall swell, and her thigh shall rot: and the woman ²²shall be a curse among her people.

²³And ²⁴if the woman be not defiled, but be clean; then she shall be free, and shall conceive seed.

²⁵This is ²⁶the law of jealousies, ²⁷when a wife goeth aside to another instead of her husband, and is defiled;

²⁹Then shall the man ³⁰be guiltless from iniquity, and this woman shall ³¹bear her iniquity.

CHAPTER VI.

1 The law of the Nazarite. 22 The form of blessing the people.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

²Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, ³When either man or woman shall ⁴separate themselves ⁵to vow a vow of a Nazarite, to separate themselves unto the LORD;

⁶He shall separate himself ⁷from wine and strong drink, and shall drink no vinegar of wine, or vinegar of strong drink, neither shall he drink any liquor of grapes, nor eat moist grapes, or dried.

⁸All the days of his ⁹separation shall he eat nothing that is made of the ¹⁰vine-tree, from the kernels even to the husk.

¹¹All the days of the vow of his separation there shall no ¹²razor come upon his head; until the days be fulfilled, in the which he separateth himself unto the LORD, he shall be holy, and shall let the locks of the hair of his head grow.

¹³All the days that he separateth himself unto the LORD ¹⁴he shall come at no dead body.

¹⁵He shall not make himself ¹⁶unclean for his father, or for his mother, for his brother, or for his sister, when they die; because the ¹⁷consecration of his God is upon his head.

¹⁸All the days of his separation he is holy unto the LORD.

disburden the heart of the husband who loved his wife, and would by no means divorce her, unless by conscience compelled so to do. Although such tests are no longer of avail, yet God remains the same, and he will bring into judgment every work of man, whether it be good or evil.

Chap. VI. 1-21. The vow of the Nazarite, like all other vows, was, of course, voluntary; a species of solemn dedication of themselves to a life of severe and laborious consecration. It has been suggested, that this was a custom of the Egyptians, since among them those of the priests who were more zealous and anxious for their own entire consecration to the service of the gods abstained from many things which were thought to militate against moral purity. If so, Moses makes no attempt to abrogate the vow to which the people had been accustomed, but proceeds to regulate it. Ver. 22-27. This blessing of Moses is one of the finest expressions of the Divine benevolence that has yet come before us. It is a most striking illustration of the Divine love and mercy. In no position does the typical character of Aaron come forth with greater beauty, as pointing to the benediction which the Lord Jesus pours out upon his people. The Divine name, JEHOVAH, is twice repeated in the blessing, which was considered by the ancient Jews to indicate something great, awful, and mysterious. The Christian form of benediction presents a striking analogy, most impressively setting forth the doctrine of the Trinity in Unity. Although there is now an end to the vow of the Nazarite, it is still permitted to men to abstain from the use of anything which they feel to be

1 The princes' offerings. 89 God speaketh to Moses from the mercy-seat.

AND it came to pass on the day that Moses ^ahad fully set up the tabernacle, and had ^banointed it, and sanctified it, and all the instruments thereof, both the altar, and all the vessels thereof, and had anointed them, and ^csanctified them,

2 That ^dthe princes of Israel, heads of the house of their fathers, (who were the princes of the tribes, and ^ewere over them that were numbered,) ^foffered.

3 And they brought their offering before the LORD, six covered waggons, and twelve oxen; a waggon for two of the princes, and for each one an ox: and they brought them before the tabernacle.

4 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

5 ^gTake it of them, that they may be to do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation; and thou shalt give them unto the Levites, to every man according to his service.

6 And Moses took the waggons and the oxen, and gave them unto the Levites.

7 ^hTwo waggons and four oxen he gave unto the sons of Gershon, according to their service:

8 And ⁱthree waggons and eight oxen he gave unto the sons of Merari, according to their service, under the hand of Ithamar the son of Aaron the priest.

hateful, and to regulate their system of eating and drinking according as their judgment and conscience may dictate. There is no absolute command, that men shall either eat this, or drink that; it is for every man to be satisfied in his own mind.

Chap. VII. 1-89. The "princes of Israel" acted a part highly honorable to them, and well befitting their exalted position; and they obtained, in consequence, a special token of the Divine approbation. By the command of God, the matter was gone about in a manner much calculated to excite public attention, as well as respect for the donors, and to stimulate the zeal of the people. It is meet that men of wealth should lead the way in all great enterprises on behalf of religion and humanity. The dedication of the Altar was an event to be long remembered. It occupied a period of no less than twelve days, each prince offering his gift in order. This voice of the Lord from the Mercy-seat formed a suitable close to the glorious ceremony. This is another fine exhibition of the Voluntary Principle, with displays of which the Holy Scriptures abound. Benevolence is also exemplified. The altar was the common property of the people at large. It was, nevertheless, proper that they who most enjoyed the good things of this life should also secure for themselves a corresponding measure of the privilege of advancing the great object. It deserves to be noticed, however, that notwithstanding the praiseworthy character of these services, imperfection attached to them; and hence the necessity of the sin-offering

CHAPTER VIII.

1 How the lamps are to be lighted. 5 The consecration of the Levites. 23 The age and time of their service.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto Aaron, and say unto him, When thou ^alightest the lamps, the seven lamps shall give light over against the candlestick.

3 And Aaron did so: he lighted the lamps thereof over against the candlestick; as the LORD commanded Moses.

4 And ^bthis work of the candlestick was of beaten gold; unto the shaft thereof, unto the flowers thereof, was ^cbeaten work: according unto ^dthe pattern which the LORD had shewed Moses, so he made the candlestick.

5 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

6 Take the Levites from among the children of Israel, and ^acleanse them.

7 And thus shalt thou do unto them, to cleanse them: ^a'Sprinkle ^awater of purifying upon them, and ^alet them shave all their flesh, and let them ^awash their clothes, and so make themselves clean.

8 Then let them take a ^ayoung bullock with ^ahis meat-offering, ^aeven fine flour mingled with oil, and ^aanother young bullock shalt thou take for a sin-offering.

9 And ^athou shalt bring the Levites before the tabernacle of the congregation; and thou ^ashalt gather the whole assembly of the children of Israel together.

10 And thou shalt bring the Levites before the LORD; and ^athe children of Israel shall put their hands upon the Levites:

11 And Aaron shall ^aoffer the Levites which was presented. Pride, truly, was not made for man; and never is it less seemly than when it stands connected with appearances before the Lord, either with thank-offerings or with burnt-offerings. Where dependence is entire, humility ought to be profound.

Chap. VIII. 1-26. Notwithstanding the prominence given to official men by Moses, large account was made of the people, who, as far as possible, are made parties to everything connected with the Hebrew economy. The Levites, for example, received a species of ordination at the people's hands. These officers had no peculiar costume, nor were they washed, or anointed, after the manner of priests. Thus they possessed less of a typical character, and occupied a position essentially inferior; yet in their appointment to the office there was a remembrance of sin, both as to its guilt and its defilement; a fact which shews us, that in the Christian Church, pastors, and other officers, and the people at large, all require to be washed by the same blood, and before the LORD for an offering of the children of Israel, that they may execute the service of the LORD.

12 And the Levites shall lay their hands upon the heads of the bullocks: and thou shalt offer the one for a sin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering, unto the LORD, to make an atonement for the Levites.

13 And thou shalt set the Levites before Aaron, and before his sons, and offer them for an offering unto the LORD.

14 Thus shalt thou separate the Levites from among the children of Israel; and the Levites shall be mine.

15 And after that shall the Levites go in to do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation: and thou shalt cleanse them, and offer them for an offering.

16 For they are wholly given unto me from among the children of Israel; instead of such as open every womb, even instead of the first-born of all the children of Israel, have I taken them unto me.

17 For all the first-born of the children of Israel are mine, both man and beast: on the day that I smote every first-born in the land of Egypt I sanctified them for myself.

18 And I have taken the Levites for all the first-born of the children of Israel.

19 And I have given the Levites as a gift to Aaron, and to his sons, from among the children of Israel, to do the service of the children of Israel in the tabernacle of the congregation, and to make an atonement for the children of Israel; that there be no plague among the children of Israel, when the children of Israel come nigh unto the sanctuary.

20 And Moses, and Aaron, and all the congregation of the children of Israel, did to the Levites according unto all that the LORD commanded Moses concerning the Levites, so did the children of Israel unto them.

21 And the Levites were purified, and they washed their clothes; and Aaron offered them as an offering before the LORD; and Aaron made an atonement for them to cleanse them.

22 And after that went the Levites in to do their service in the tabernacle of the congregation before Aaron, and before his sons: as the LORD had commanded Moses concerning the Levites, so did they unto them.

23 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

24 This is it that belongeth unto the Levites: from twenty and five years old and upward they shall go in to wait upon

CHAPTER IX.

1 The passover enjoined. 15 A cloud guideth the Israelites.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the first month of the second year after they were come out of the land of Egypt, saying,

2 Let the children of Israel also keep the passover at his appointed season.

3 In the fourteenth day of this month, at even, ye shall keep it in his appointed season: according to all the rites of it, and according to all the ceremonies thereof, shall ye keep it.

4 And Moses spake unto the children of Israel, that they should keep the passover.

5 And they kept the passover on the fourteenth day of the first month at even in the wilderness of Sinai: according to all that the LORD commanded Moses, so did the children of Israel.

6 ¶ And there were certain men, who were defiled by the dead body of a man, that they could not keep the passover on that day: and they came before Moses and before Aaron on that day.

7 And those men said unto him, We are defiled by the dead body of a man: wherefore are we kept back, that we may not offer an offering of the LORD in his appointed season among the children of Israel?

8 And Moses said unto them, Stand still, and I will hear what the LORD will command concerning you.

9 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

10 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If any man of you, or of your posterity, shall be unclean by reason of a dead body, or be in a journey afar off, yet he shall keep the passover unto the LORD.

11 The fourteenth day of the second month at even they shall keep it, and eat it with unleavened bread and bitter herbs.

12 They shall leave none of it unto the morning, nor break any bone of it: according to all the ordinances of the passover they shall keep it.

13 But the man that is clean, and is not in a journey, and forbeareth to keep the to drink of the same fountain. The Levites, after the sin-offering, and the burnt-offering, were presented to make an atonement before Aaron and his sons, that they might be offered personally, soul, body, and spirit, unto the Lord.

Chap. IX. 1-10. Spiritual trouble should prompt inquiry of spiritual counsellors; and these should at once have recourse to the law and to the testimony, taking care to speak as the Oracles of God. The example of Moses, in verses 7 and 8, is entitled to special attention. Ver. 11-14. The end is not to be sacrificed to the means; neither life nor death is to stand between the Church of God and the service of the Most High. It is here supposed that there might be men in the camp so irrational and apathetic as to neglect the observance of this great ordinance, which commemorated the marvellous deliverance of the people. Such disobedience passover, even the same soul shall be cut off from his people: because he brought not the offering of the LORD in his appointed season, that man shall ^abear his sin.

14 And ^aif a stranger shall sojourn among you, and will keep the passover unto the LORD; according to the ordinance of the passover, and according to the manner thereof, so shall he do: ye shall have one ordinance, both for the stranger, and for him that was born in the land.

15 ¶ And on the day that the tabernacle was reared up, ^athe cloud covered the tabernacle, namely, the tent of the testimony: and at even there was upon the tabernacle as it were the appearance of fire, until the morning.

16 So it was ^aalways: the cloud covered it by day, and the appearance of fire by night.

17 And ^awhen the cloud was taken up from the tabernacle, then after that the children of Israel journeyed: ^aand in the place where the cloud abode, there the children of Israel pitched their tents.

18 At the commandment of the LORD the children of Israel journeyed, ^aand at the commandment of the LORD they pitched: as long as the cloud abode upon the tabernacle they rested in their tents.

19 And when the cloud ^atarried long upon the tabernacle many days, then the children of Israel ^bkept the charge of the LORD, and journeyed not.

20 And so it was, when the cloud was a few days upon the tabernacle; according to the commandment of the LORD they abode in their tents, and according to the commandment of the LORD they journeyed.

21 And so it was, when the cloud ^aabode from even unto the morning, and that the cloud was taken up in the morning, then they journeyed: whether it was by day or by night that the cloud was taken up, they journeyed.

22 Or whether it were two days, or a month, or a year, that the cloud tarried upon the tabernacle, remaining thereon, the children of Israel ^aabode in their tents, and journeyed not: but when it was taken up, they journeyed.

23 At the commandment of the LORD they rested in their tents, and at the commandment of the LORD they journeyed: ^athey kept the charge of the LORD, at the commandment of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

CHAPTER X.

1 The use of the silver trumpets. 11 The Israelites remove from Sinai.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Make thee ^atwo trumpets of silver; ^bof a whole piece shalt thou make them: that thou mayest use them for ^cthe calling of the assembly, and for the journeying of the camps.

3 And when ^athey shall blow with them, all the assembly shall assemble themselves to thee at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

4 And if they blow ^bbut with one trumpet, then the princes, which are ^cheads of the thousands of Israel, shall gather themselves unto thee.

5 When ye ^ablow an alarm, then ^cthe camps that lie on the east parts shall go forward.

6 When ye blow an alarm the second time, then ^bthe camps that lie on the south side shall take their journey: they shall blow an alarm for their journeys.

7 But when the congregation is to be gathered together, ^aye shall blow, but ye shall not sound an alarm.

8 And ^athe sons of Aaron, the priests, shall blow with the trumpets: and they shall be to you for an ordinance for ever throughout your generations.

9 And if ye go to war in your land against the enemy that ^aoppresseth you, ^bthen ye shall blow an alarm with the trumpets; and ye shall be ^cremembered before the LORD your God, and ye shall be saved from your enemies.

10 Also ^ain the day of your gladness, and in your solemn days, and in the beginnings of your months, ye shall blow with the trumpets over your burnt-offerings, and over the sacrifices of your peace-offerings; that they may be to you for a ^bmemorial before your God: I am the LORD your God.

11 ¶ And it came to pass ^aon the twentieth day of the second month, in the second year, that ^bthe cloud was taken up from off the tabernacle of the testimony.

12 And the children of Israel ^atook their journeys ^bout of the wilderness of Sinai; and the cloud rested in ^cthe wilderness of Paran.

13 And they first ^atook their journey, according to the commandment of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

was an act peculiarly heinous, and would, therefore, be visited with the severest penalty. Christ is our passover, the "bread of life that came down from heaven;" and he who despises or rejects him, must perish. Verse 18 suggests serious inquiries to such as set light by the Lord's Supper. The New Testament shows the guilt of observing that Ordinance improperly. Is the utter neglect of it, then, attended with neither guilt nor danger? Even thus early the law glanced compassionately towards the poor heathen: the strangers in the land, too, if they desired it, might unite in the observance of the Passover with the Chosen People. Ver. 15-23. How beautiful the spectacle here presented! The Tabernacle, the constant symbol of the Divine presence, as the workmanship of man, under the Divine direction, was to be moved by man; and at all times the Lord was to communicate with his people; but all instruction relative to the journey was to emanate from the cloud and the fire. The moment the fire or the cloud moved, the whole camp was to be in motion. In everything God's time is man's time.

Chap. X. 1-10. From all this, then, it appears, that the trumpet was an instrument of great importance in the Hebrew economy, having to do alike with matters of peace, war, and religion. Verse 10 is very remarkable, and highly suggestive of things touching the Christian dispensation. The proclamation of the Gospel is to be amply blended with all the operations of the Evangelical economy. The inspiring peal of the trumpet mightily 14 ¶ In ⁷the first place went the standard of the camp of the children of Judah, according to their armies: and over his host was ⁸Nahshon the son of Amminadab.

15 And over the host of the tribe of the children of ⁹Issachar was Nethaneel the son of Zuar.

16 And over the host of the tribe of the children of ¹⁰Zebulun was Eliab the son of Helon.

17 And ¹¹the tabernacle was taken down; and ¹²the sons of Gershon and the sons of Merari set forward, bearing the tabernacle.

18 ¶ And the standard of ¹³the camp of Reuben set forward, according to their armies: and over his host was ¹⁴Elizur the son of Shedeur.

19 And over the host of the tribe of the children of ¹⁵Simeon was Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai.

20 And over the host of the tribe of the children of ¹⁶Gad was Eliasaph the son of Deuel.

21 And ¹⁷the Kohathites set forward, bearing the sanctuary; and ¹⁸the other did set up the tabernacle against they came.

22 ¶ And the standard of ¹⁹the camp of the children of Ephraim set forward, according to their armies: and over his host was ²⁰Elishama the son of Ammihud.

23 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Manasseh was ²¹Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur.

24 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Benjamin was ²²Abidan the son of Gideon.

25 ¶ And the standard of ²³the camp of the children of Dan set forward, ²⁴which was ²⁵the rere-ward of all the camps throughout their hosts: and over his host was ²⁶Ahiezzer the son of Ammishaddai.

26 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Asher was ²⁷Pagiel the son of Ocran.

27 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Naphtali was ²⁸Ahira the son of Enan.

28 ²⁹Thus were the journeyings of the children of Israel, ³⁰according to their armies, when they set forward.

29 ¶ And Moses said unto Hobab, the son of ³¹Raguel the Midianite, Moses' father-in-law, We are journeying unto the place of which ³²the LORD said, I will give it you: ¹come thou with us, and we will do thee good; ²for the LORD hath spoken good concerning Israel.

30 And he said unto him, I will not go; but I ³will depart to mine own land, and to my kindred.

31 And he said, Leave us not, I pray thee; forasmuch as thou knowest how we are to encamp in the wilderness, and thou mayest be to us ⁴instead of eyes.

32 And it shall be, if thou go with us, yes, it shall be, that ⁵what goodness the LORD shall do unto us, the same will we do unto thee.

33 ¶ And they departed from ⁶the mount of the LORD three days' journey: and ⁷the ark of the covenant of the LORD ⁸went before them in the three days' journey, to search out ⁹a resting-place for them.

34 And ¹⁰the cloud of the LORD was upon them by day, when they went out of the camp.

35 And it came to pass, when the ark set forward, that Moses said, ¹¹Rise up, LORD, and let thine enemies be scattered; and let them that hate thee flee before thee.

36 And when it rested, he said, ¹²Return, O LORD, unto the ¹³many thousands of Israel.

CHAPTER XI.

4 Manna loathed. 16 The seventy elders. 31 Quails given.

AND ¹when the people ²complained, ³it displeased the LORD: and the LORD heard ⁴it; and his anger was kindled: and ⁵the fire of the LORD burnt among them, and consumed ⁶them that were in ⁷the uttermost parts of the camp.

2 And the people ⁸cried unto Moses; and when Moses ⁹prayed unto the LORD, ¹⁰the fire ¹¹was quenched.

3 And he called the name of the place ¹²Taberah: because the fire of the LORD burnt among them.

4 ¶ And ¹³the mixed multitude that was among them ¹⁴fell a lusting: and ¹⁵the children of Israel also ¹⁶wept again, and said, ¹⁷Who shall give us flesh to eat?

5 We remember ¹⁸the fish which we did eat in Egypt freely; the cucumbers, and the melons, and the leeks, and the onions, and the garlick:

enlivened and ennobled the silent solemnities of the burnt-offering, and the peace-offerings. Just so it is still with works of faith and labours of love. The joyful sound of the glorious Gospel stirs the hearts, and nerves the arms of the servants of the Most High in all their struggles, trials, and conflicts. The mighty work in the hands of ¹Isaia prospered through the "prophesying of Haggai." Ver. 11-32. The conduct of Moses is generous and noble; while full of faith, and fired with zeal, he yet abounded with natural affection. Hobab does not appear to advantage; he was governed solely by personal and local considerations; he had no sympathy with the mighty enterprise of Moses, and was but little concerned for the fulfilment of the promise made to Abraham. Ver. 33-36. Moses, the Ruler and the Representative of the people, was ever in the fullest sympathy with his Lord and Master. The Divine procedure was always approved. It was right and it was best. Moses was ready to move when the cloud moved, and to stop when it stopped. It is one of the highest attainments of piety to have our mind always in harmony with the mind of God.

Chap. XI. 1-9. When murmurs instead of thanksgivings break forth from the lips of a people loaded with mercies without limit and beyond conception, the act is peculiarly wicked, and may well call down the Divine judgments. The "mixed multitude" is an expression full of significance. In all Christian churches these, down to the present time, have been prime troublemakers of the peace of Israel. In the whole history of human nature, there are few things so humbling to its pride as the conduct of these emancipated people. They displayed in the highest degree a spirit of ungovernable sensuality, "weeping," like children, over the remembrance of their Egyptian luxuries, crying out for flesh to eat. They 6 But now ¹our soul is dried away: ²there is nothing at all, besides this manna, ³before our eyes.

7 And ¹the manna was as coriander-seed, and the ²colour thereof as the colour of ³bdellium.

8 And ¹the people went about, and gathered it, and ground it in mills, or beat it in a mortar, and ²baked it in pans, and made cakes of it: and the ³taste of it was as the taste of fresh oil.

9 And when ¹the dew fell upon the camp in the night, the manna fell upon it.

10 ¶ Then Moses heard the people weep throughout their families, every man in the door of his tent: and ¹the anger of the LORD was kindled greatly; Moses also was displeased.

11 And Moses said unto the LORD, ¹Wherefore hast thou afflicted thy servant? and wherefore have I not found favour in thy sight, that thou layest the burden of all this people upon me?

12 Have I conceived all this people? have I begotten them, that thou shouldest say unto me, "Carry them in thy bosom (as a nursing father beareth the sucking child) unto ²the land which thou swarest unto their fathers?"

13 Whence should I have flesh to give unto all this people? for they weep unto me, saying, Give us flesh, that we may eat.

14 I am ¹not able to bear all this people alone, because it is too heavy for me.

15 And if thou deal thus with me, ¹kill me, I pray thee, out of hand, if I have found favour in thy sight; and let me not see my wretchedness.

16 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Gather unto me seventy ¹men of the elders of Israel, whom thou knowest to be the elders of the people, and officers over them; and bring them unto the tabernacle of the congregation, that they may stand there with thee.

17 And ¹I will come down and talk with thee there: and I ²will take of the spirit which is upon thee, and will put it upon them; and ³they shall bear the burden of the people with thee, that thou bear it not thyself alone.

18 And say thou unto the people, ¹Sanctify yourselves against to-morrow, and ye shall eat flesh: (for ²ye have wept in the ears of the LORD, saying, Who shall give us flesh to eat? for it was well with us in Egypt:) therefore the LORD will give you flesh, and ye shall eat.

19 Ye shall not eat one day, nor two days, nor five days, neither ten days, nor twenty days;

20 But even ¹a whole month, until it come out at your nostrils, ²and it be loathsome unto you: because that ye have ³despised the LORD which is among you, and have wept before him, saying, Why came we forth out of Egypt?

21 ¶ And Moses said, The people, among whom I am, are ¹six hundred thousand footmen; and thou hast said, I will give them flesh, that they may eat a whole month.

22 Shall ¹the flocks and the herds be slain for them, to suffice them? or shall all the fish of the sea be gathered together for them, to suffice them?

23 And the LORD said unto Moses, ¹Is the LORD's hand waxed short? ²thou shalt see now whether my word shall come to pass unto thee or not.

24 ¶ And Moses went out, and told the people the words of the LORD, and gathered the seventy men of the elders of the people, and set them round about the tabernacle.

25 And the LORD ¹came down in a cloud, and spake unto him, and ²took of the spirit that was upon him, and gave it unto the seventy elders: and it came to pass, ³that, when the spirit rested upon them, ⁴they prophesied, and did not cease.

26 But there remained two of the men in the camp, the name of the one was Eldad, and the name of the other Medad: and the spirit rested upon them, (and they were of them that were written, but went not out unto the tabernacle,) and they prophesied in the camp.

27 And there ran a young man, and told Moses, and said, Eldad and Medad do prophesy in the camp.

28 And Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of Moses, ¹one of his young men, answered and said, ²My lord Moses, forbid them.

29 And Moses said unto him, ¹Enviest thou for my sake? ²Would God that all the LORD's people were prophets, ³and that the LORD would ⁴put his Spirit upon them!

30 And Moses gat him into the camp, he and the elders of Israel.

31 ¶ And there went forth a wind from mid, they "remembered the fish, the cucumbers, the melons, the leeks, the onions, and the garlic!" but there is no remembrance of their toils, their afflictions, their tears, their groans, and the mighty works whereby their tyrant was destroyed, and themselves emancipated. Ver. 10-35. The weeping was universal, and such that Moses could not endure it: his very life became a weariness to him: he preferred death to such an existence. How agonizing his entreaty: "Kill me, I pray thee, out of hand; let me not see my wretchedness." The Lord, patient with the rebellious, and compassionate to his servant, heard his cry, and granted him assistance. The introduction of the Seventy Elders was a great comfort to the afflicted Lawgiver. The unbelief of the people received an awful rebuke in the supply of their inordinate appetite; flesh came, but it was only another name for death! The anointing of the Seventy Elders with the Spirit of the Lord was a preparation for the high office. Where the Spirit is, there is always liberty. These chosen men "prophesied, and did not cease." The spirit of Moses was tested by this division of labour and of honour, but how nobly he stood the trial! So far from envy, his desire was that "all the Lord's people were prophets, and that the Lord would put his Spirit upon them." Here is an example to pastors of churches, and preachers of the Word. Nothing can be the LORD, and brought quails from the sea, and let them fall by the camp, as it were a day's journey on this side, and as it were a day's journey on the other side, round about the camp, and as it were two cubits high upon the face of the earth.

32 And the people stood up all that day, and all that night, and all the next day, and they gathered the quails: he that gathered least gathered ten homers; and they spread them all abroad for themselves round about the camp.

33 And while the flesh was yet between their teeth, ere it was chewed, the wrath of the LORD was kindled against the people; and the LORD smote the people with a very great plague.

34 And he called the name of that place Kibroth-hattaavah: because there they buried the people that lusted.

35 And the people journeyed from Kibroth-hattaavah unto Hazeroth; and abode at Hazeroth.

AND Miriam and Aaron spake against Moses because of the Ethiopian woman whom he had married: for he had married an Ethiopian woman.

2 And they said, Hath the LORD indeed spoken only by Moses? hath he not spoken also by us? And the LORD heard it.

3 (Now the man Moses was very meek, above all the men which were upon the face of the earth.)

4 And the LORD spake suddenly unto Moses, and unto Aaron, and unto Miriam, Come out ye three unto the tabernacle of the congregation. And they three came out.

5 And the LORD came down in the pillar of the cloud, and stood in the door of the tabernacle, and called Aaron and Miriam: and they both came forth.

6 And he said, Hear now my words: If there be a prophet among you, I the LORD will make myself known unto him in a vision, and will speak unto him in a dream.

8 With him will I speak mouth to mouth, even apparently, and not in dark speeches; and the similitude of the LORD shall he behold: wherefore then were ye not afraid to speak against my servant Moses?

9 And the anger of the LORD was kindled against them; and he departed.

10 ¶ And the cloud departed from off the tabernacle; and, behold, Miriam became leprorous, white as snow: and Aaron looked upon Miriam, and, behold, she was leprorous.

11 And Aaron said unto Moses, Alas! my lord, I beseech thee, lay not the sin upon us, wherein we have done foolishly, and wherein we have sinned.

12 Let her not be as one dead, of whom the flesh is half consumed when he cometh out of his mother's womb.

15 And Miriam was shut out from the camp seven days: and the people journeyed not till Miriam was brought in again.

16 And afterward the people removed from Hazeroth, and pitched in the wilderness of Paran.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 The names, 17 instructions, 21 and acts of the spies.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Send thou men, that they may search the land of Canaan, which I give unto the children of Israel: of every tribe of their fathers shall ye send a man, every one a ruler among them.

3 And Moses, by the commandment of the LORD, sent them from the wilderness of Paran: all those men were heads of the children of Israel.

more unlike to the spirit of Moses than the spirit of Popery, a spirit which but too frequently appears in one or other of even our Protestant communities. Contentment is a lesson to be learned by all Christians; but that is not enough. There is not in the family of God man or woman, who has not abundant reason for thanksgiving, constant, fervent, and always increasing.

Chap. XII. 1-16. The depravity, with illustrations of which the books of Moses so affecting abound, is nowhere more remarkably exemplified than in the family of the Lawgiver himself. Never did rebellion come so near him as when it broke out in the language of Miriam and Aaron, she clearly leading the way in this rising against their favoured brother. They must needs insult Moses because, yielding to the force of circumstances, he had married an Ethiopian woman. Not satisfied with this, they bring against him a charge of arrogance and assumption, in which they give but a slender proof of the very thing they aimed at, a perfect equality with him. A rebellion of this character was of a nature so serious as to call for reproof and punishment. Accordingly, no time was lost in bringing them before the Tabernacle of the congregation, that the matter, as between Moses, Aaron, and Miriam, might be at once settled. The process was summary, and the chastisement appropriate to the transgression. On Miriam, as the leader, the rod of the Divine displeasure fell in the shape of a leprosy, white as snow; the heaviest blow, probably, that could have been inflicted on a proud and imperious woman. This was a solemn moment both with her and Aaron: they were at once brought to their senses, and realised their guilt, which was very promptly confessed by Aaron. He seemed shocked at the consequences of their rebellion, and with the deepest humility, sued to Moses for her recovery. The end was accomplished, and the Lord was gracious: but mercy was displayed in a manner calculated to deepen the impression, and to work the lesson thoroughly into her heart. Seven days' separation gave her time for reflection, confession, and humiliation.

Chap. XIII. 1-33. This chapter presents another striking development of human nature among the chosen

4 And these were their names: Of the tribe of Reuben; Shammua the son of Zaccur.

5 Of the tribe of Simeon; Shaphat the son of Hori.

6 Of the tribe of Judah; Caleb the son of Jephunneh.

7 Of the tribe of Issachar; Igal the son of Joseph.

8 Of the tribe of Ephraim; Oshea the son of Nun.

9 Of the tribe of Benjamin; Palti the son of Raphu.

10 Of the tribe of Zebulun; Gaddiel the son of Sodi.

11 Of the tribe of Joseph, namely, of the tribe of Manasseh; Gaddi the son of Susi.

12 Of the tribe of Dan; Ammiel the son of Gemalli.

13 Of the tribe of Asher; Sethur the son of Michael.

14 Of the tribe of Naphtali; Nahbi the son of Vophsi.

15 Of the tribe of Gad; Geuel the son of Machi.

16 These are the names of the men which Moses sent to spy out the land. And Moses called Oshea the son of Nun, Jehoshua.

17 ¶ And Moses sent them to spy out the land of Canaan, and said unto them, Get you up this way southward, and go up into the mountain;

18 And see the land, what it is; and the people that dwelleth therein, whether they be strong or weak, few or many;

19 And what the land is that they dwell in, whether it be good or bad; and what cities they be that they dwell in, whether in tents, or in strongholds;

20 And what the land is, whether it be fat or lean, whether there be wood therein, or not: and be ye of good courage, and bring of the fruit of the land. (Now the time was the time of the first-ripe grapes.)

21 ¶ So they went up, and searched the land, from the wilderness of Zin unto Rehob, as men come to Hamath.

22 And they ascended by the south, and came unto Hebron; where Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmi, the children of Anak, were. (Now Hebron was built seven years before Zoan in Egypt.)

23 And they came unto the brook of Eshcol, and cut down from thence a branch with one cluster of grapes, and they bare it between two upon a staff; and they brought of the pomegranates, and of the figs.

24 The place was called the brook Eshcol, because of the cluster of grapes which the children of Israel cut down from thence.

25 And they returned from searching of the land after forty days.

26 ¶ And they went and came to Moses, and to Aaron, and to all the congregation of the children of Israel, unto the wilderness of Paran, to Kadesh; and brought back word unto them, and unto all the congregation, and shewed them the fruit of the land.

27 And they told him, and said, We came unto the land whither thou sentest us, and surely it floweth with milk and honey; and this is the fruit of it.

28 Nevertheless the people be strong that dwell in the land, and the cities are walled, and very great: and, moreover, we saw the children of Anak there.

29 The Amalekites dwell in the land of the south; and the Hittites, and the Jebusites, and the Amorites, dwell in the mountains; and the Canaanites dwell by the sea, and by the coast of Jordan.

30 And Caleb stilled the people before Moses, and said, Let us go up at once, and possess it; for we are well able to overcome it.

31 But the men that went up with him said, We be not able to go up against the people; for they are stronger than we.

32 And they brought up an evil report of the land which they had searched unto the children of Israel, saying, The land, through which we have gone to search it, is a land that eateth up the inhabitants thereof; and all the people that we saw in it are men of a great stature.

33 And there we saw the giants, the sons of Anak, which come of the giants; and we were in our own sight as grasshoppers, and so we were in their sight.

people. As they approached the promised land, it was deemed expedient to send individuals to examine it, and to report their observations. This proposal originated not with Moses, but with the people; and the Lord, through him, was pleased to comply with their request, while the matter was conducted on the most popular principles, every tribe sending a man. The chief thing that appears to have struck them was the grapes, an article for which Palestine is still famous. Clusters are found there weighing from 20 lbs. to 40 lbs. and upwards. These were brought, therefore, as an earnest of the produce of the land, and have been considered as an emblem of the consolations of the Holy Spirit. The survey took up the long period of forty days. The trying moment was that in which the spies returned. They did not deny that the land was excellent, flowing with milk and honey; but then the people were "giants," and the cities were walled, and it was impossible to make head against them. The spies were in their sight as grasshoppers! The notion, therefore, of invasion was preposterous. Throughout the whole of this lamentable outcry, there is not one word of the Divine promise, or the Divine power. Both the spies and the people appear to have forgotten the strong hand and the outstretched arm, which brought them forth from Egypt, and had maintained them so long in the wilderness. How nobly Caleb contrasts with these faint-hearted men! His exhortation was alike spirited and well-principled; but it was thrown away on this faithless multitude. The history is full of instruction to the people of God. There is still a lion in the way in every path to the faint-hearted, but all things are possible to him that believeth.

CHAPTER XIV.

1 The people murmur at the news. 6 Joshua and Caleb labour to still them. 11 God threatneth them. 13 Moses persuadeth God, and obtaineth pardon. 28 The murmurers are deprived of entering into the land.

AND all the congregation ^alifted up their voice, and cried; and the people wept that night.

2 And all the children of Israel ^bmurmured against Moses and against Aaron; and the whole congregation said unto them, ^cWould God that we had died in the land of Egypt! or, would God we had died in this wilderness!

3 And wherefore hath ^dthe LORD brought us unto this land, to fall by the sword, that ^eour wives and our children should be a prey? Were it not better for us to return into Egypt?

4 And they said one to another, ^fLet us make a captain, and let us return into Egypt.

5 Then Moses and Aaron ^gfell on their faces before all the assembly of the congregation of the children of Israel.

6 ¶ And ^hJoshua the son of Nun, and Caleb the son of Jephunneh, ⁱwhich were of them that searched the land, ^jrent their clothes.

7 And they spake unto all the company of the children of Israel, saying, The land, which we passed through to search it, ^kis ^lan exceeding good land.

8 If the LORD ^mdelight in us, then he will bring us into this land, and give it us; a land which floweth with milk and honey.

9 ⁿOnly rebel not ye against the LORD, neither fear ye the people of the land; for they ^oare bread for us: their ^pdefence is departed from them, and ^qthe LORD is with us: fear them not.

10 But ^rall the congregation bade stone them with stones. And ^sthe glory of the LORD appeared in the tabernacle of the congregation before all the children of Israel.

11 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, ^tHow long will this people ^uprovoke me? and how long will it be ere they ^vbelieve me, for all the signs which I have shewed among them?

12 I will ^wsmite them with the pestilence, and disinherit them, and ^xwill make of thee a greater nation and mightier than they.

13 ¶ And Moses said unto the LORD, ^yThen the Egyptians shall hear it, (for thou broughtest up this people in thy might from among them,)

16 Because ^jthe LORD was not able to bring this people into the land which he swore unto them, therefore he hath slain them in the wilderness.

17 And now, I beseech thee, let the power of my Lord be great, according as thou hast spoken, saying,

18 The LORD ^kis ^llong-suffering, and of great mercy, forgiving iniquity and transgression, and by no means clearing ^mthe guilty; visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation.

26 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

28 Say unto them, ^dAs truly as I live,

Chap. XIV. 1-25. The rebellion now reached a crisis, and the people, as usual, took to crying. "They wept that night," and in the morning were unanimous in their murmurings against Moses and Aaron, impiously exclaiming, "Would God that we had died in the land of Egypt! or, would God we had died in this wilderness!" Such conduct, but for experience, would be deemed impossible. On this occasion the rebellion reached a fearful height, which required a resolute hand and severe measures to check it. Ver. 10 shews that the people were unanimous in their desire that a murder might be perpetrated on Moses and Aaron; and nothing preserved them but the glory of the Lord appearing in the Tabernacle of the congregation! On this occasion, the punishment was of a nature to prove overwhelmingly afflictive even to the hard hearts of the people. They now learned the consequences, when too late, of their transgression, forasmuch as the wilderness was to be their dwelling, and their grave. The promised land they should not see; but their children, over whom they so unbelievably wailed, would be conducted thither, and receive the fulfilment of the promise made by the God of Abraham. The history is fraught with a solemn admonition to Christian pilgrims: they, too, are in saith the LORD, as ye have spoken in mine ears, so will I do to you:

29 Your ²carcasses shall fall in this wilderness; and all that were numbered of you, according to your whole number, from twenty years old and upward, which have murmured against me,

30 Doubtless ye shall not come into the land concerning which I ⁴swore to make you dwell therein, ⁷save Caleb the son of Jephunneh, and Joshua the son of Nun.

31 But your ¹little ones, which ye said should be a prey, them will I bring in, and they shall ²know the land which ye have despised.

32 But as for you, your carcasses, they shall fall in this wilderness.

33 And your children shall ⁶wander in the wilderness ⁷forty years, and ⁸bear your whoredoms, until your carcasses be wasted in the wilderness.

34 ⁴After ⁵the number of the days in which ye searched the land, even forty days, (each day for a year,) ¹shall ye bear your iniquities, even forty years; and ²ye shall know my ⁶breach of promise.

35 I the LORD have said, ¹I will surely do it unto all ¹this evil congregation, that are gathered together against me: in this wilderness they shall be consumed, and there they shall die.

36 ¹And ²the men which Moses sent to search the land, who returned, and made all the congregation to murmur against him, by bringing up a slander upon the land,

37 Even those men that did bring up the evil report upon the land, ¹died by the plague before the LORD.

38 But ¹Joshua the son of Nun, and Caleb the son of Jephunneh, which were of the men that went to search the land, lived still.

CHAPTER XV.

2 The law of sundry offerings. 32 The sabbath-breaker stoned. 37 The law of fringes.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, ²When ye be come into the land of your habitations, which I give unto you,

3 And ²will make an offering by fire unto the LORD, ²a burnt-offering, or ²a sacrifice in ¹performing a vow, or in a free-will offering, or ¹in your solemn feasts, to make ²a sweet savour unto the LORD, of the herd, or of the flock;

4 Then shall he that offereth his offering unto the LORD bring ²a meat-offering of a tenth-deal of flour, mingled with ¹the fourth part of an hin of oil.

5 And ²the fourth part of an hin ¹of wine for a drink-offering shalt thou prepare with the burnt-offering or sacrifice, for one lamb.

6 Or ²for a ram, thou shalt prepare for a meat-offering two tenth-deals of flour, mingled with the third part of an hin of oil.

7 And for a drink-offering thou shalt offer the third part of an hin of wine, for a sweet savour unto the LORD.

8 And when thou preparest a bullock for a burnt-offering, or for a sacrifice in performing a vow, or ²peace-offerings unto the LORD;

9 Then shall he bring with a bullock ²a meat-offering of three tenth-deals of flour, mingled with half an hin of oil.

10 And thou shalt bring for ²a drink-offering half an hin of wine, for an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

11 Thus shall it be done for one bullock, or for one ram, or for a lamb, or a kid.

12 According to the number that ye shall prepare, so shall ye do to every one, according to their number.

13 All that are born of the country shall do these things after this manner, in offering an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

danger of rebelling, and subjecting themselves to fatherly chastisement. It is for them to take a lesson from the history of the chosen people, pursuing, in almost every thing, a contrary course. Let them still look forward to the heavenly Canaan, holding fast the word of promise, and suffering nothing to depress or discourage, but fighting the good fight of faith, that they may lay hold on life eternal.

Chap. XV. 1-16. Here the Lord begins again, in rich mercy, to lift on his offending people the light of his countenance. Although the rebels were destined to live and die in the wilderness, he omits any further reference to their offences, and addresses the camp as if all were to enter the promised land. Ver. 17-41. It is not easy for us, Gentiles, to get at the precise spiritual import of these and similar laws, but the general bearing may, to an edifying extent, be ascertained. Festivity and social intercourse were everywhere indicated; and the whole has been properly considered as representing communion with God, and the felicity thence derived by his people. The presentation of the "first 14 ¶ And if a stranger sojourn with you, or whosoever be among you in your generations, and will offer an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD; as ye do, so he shall do.

15 ¶ One ordinance shall be both for you of the congregation, and also for the stranger that sojourneth with you, an ordinance for ever in your generations: as ye are, so shall the stranger be before the LORD.

16 One law, and one manner, shall be for you, and for the stranger that sojourneth with you.

17 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

18 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye come into the land whither I bring you;

19 Then it shall be, that, when ye eat of the bread of the land, ye shall offer up an heave-offering unto the LORD.

20 Ye shall offer up a cake of the first of your dough for an heave-offering: as ye do the heave-offering of the thrashing-floor, so shall ye heave it.

21 Of the first of your dough ye shall give unto the LORD an heave-offering in your generations.

22 ¶ And if ye have erred, and not observed all these commandments which the LORD hath spoken unto Moses,

23 Even all that the LORD hath commanded you by the hand of Moses, from the day that the LORD commanded Moses, and henceforward among your generations;

24 Then it shall be, if ought be committed by ignorance, without the knowledge of the congregation, that all the congregation shall offer one young bullock for a burnt-offering, for a sweet savour unto the LORD, with his meat-offering, and his drink-offering, according to the manner, and one kid of the goats for a sin-offering.

25 And the priest shall make an atonement for all the congregation of the children of Israel, and it shall be forgiven them; for it is ignorance: and they shall bring their offering, a sacrifice made by fire unto the LORD, and their sin-offering before the LORD, for their ignorance:

26 And it shall be forgiven all the congregation of the children of Israel, and the stranger that sojourneth among them; seeing all the people were in ignorance.

27 ¶ And if any soul sin through ignorance, then he shall bring a she-goat of the first year for a sin-offering.

28 And the priest shall make an atonement for the soul that sinneth ignorantly, when he sinneth by ignorance before the LORD, to make an atonement for him; and it shall be forgiven him.

29 Ye shall have one law for him that sinneth through ignorance, both for him that is born among the children of Israel, and for the stranger that sojourneth among them.

30 ¶ But the soul that doeth ought presumptuously, (whether he be born in the land, or a stranger,) the same reproacheth the LORD; and that soul shall be cut off from among his people.

31 Because he hath despised the word of the LORD, and hath broken his commandment, that soul shall utterly be cut off: his iniquity shall be upon him.

32 ¶ And while the children of Israel were in the wilderness, they found a man that gathered sticks upon the sabbath-day.

33 And they that found him gathering sticks brought him unto Moses and Aaron, and unto all the congregation.

34 And they put him in ward, because it was not declared what should be done to him.

35 And the LORD said unto Moses, The man shall be surely put to death: all the congregation shall stone him with stones without the camp.

36 And all the congregation brought him without the camp, and stoned him with stones, and he died; as the LORD commanded Moses.

37 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

38 Speak unto the children of Israel, and bid them that they make them fringes in the borders of their garments, throughout their generations, and that they put upon the fringe of the borders a ribband of blue:

39 And it shall be unto you for a fringe, that ye may look upon it, and remember all the commandments of the LORD, and do them; and that ye seek not after your own heart, and your own eyes, after which ye use to go a whoring:

40 That ye may remember, and do all my commandments, and be holy unto your God.

41 I am the LORD your God, which brought you out of the land of Egypt, to be your God: I am the LORD your God.

CHAPTER XVI.

1 The rebellion of Korah, &c.: 31 their punishment. 46 Aaron, by incense, stayeth the plague.

NOW Korah, the son of Izhar, the son of Kohath, the son of Levi; and cake" was calculated to teach the doctrine of dependence upon God for everything, as well as the obligation of all the chosen to live to him. The "presumptuous" sin, mentioned in verse 80, is a matter deserving particular consideration, since it is a danger to which even Christians are still exposed. Such sins were, of course, sins against light, and in contempt of authority; and were peculiarly heinous, subjecting the sinner to severe punishment. The case of the Sabbath-breaker supplied an example: he knew his duty, but he did it not. The punishment of this man was gone about in a manner strongly calculated to admonish the people, and to form a beacon against similar transgression. Moses sought instruction, and the answer came forth in a sentence of death, which the people themselves were to execute. This fact remains, and will remain to the end of time, a terrible warning against presumptuous transgression.

Chap. XVI. 1-11. Moses was seldom delivered from one affliction caused by the rebellion of the people till Dathan and Abiram the sons of Eliab; and On the son of Peleth, ^bsons of Reuben, took men:

2 And they rose up before Moses, with certain of the children of Israel, two hundred and fifty princes of the assembly, ^cfamous in the congregation, men of renown:

3 And they ^dgathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron, and said unto them, ^eYe take too much upon you, seeing ^fall the congregation are holy, every one of them, and ^gthe LORD is among them: wherefore then lift ye up yourselves above the congregation of the LORD?

4 And when Moses heard it, ^hhe fell upon his face:

7 And put fire therein, and put incense in them before the LORD to-morrow: and it shall be, ⁿthat the man whom the LORD doth choose, ^ohe shall be holy: ^pye take ^qtoo much upon you, ye sons of Levi.

8 And Moses said unto Korah, Hear, I pray you, ye sons of Levi;

9 ^rSeemeth it but ^sa small thing unto you, that the God of Israel hath ^tseparated you from the congregation of Israel, to bring you near to himself, to do the service of the tabernacle of the LORD, and to stand before the congregation to minister unto them?

11 For which cause, ^vboth thou and all thy company are gathered together ^wagainst the LORD: and ^xwhat is Aaron, that ye murmur against him?

wilderness, except ^{ad}thou make thyself altogether a prince over us?

14 Moreover, ^{ae}thou hast not brought us into a land that floweth with milk and honey, or given us inheritance of fields and vineyards: wilt thou ^{af}put out the eyes of these men? we will not come up.

15 And Moses was ^{ag}very wroth, and said unto the LORD, ^{ah}Respect not thou their offering: ^{ai}I have not taken one ass from them, neither have I hurt one of them.

16 ¶ And Moses said unto Korah, ^{aj}Be thou and all thy company ^{ak}before the LORD, thou, and they, and Aaron, to-morrow:

17 And take every man his censer, and put incense in them, and bring ye before the LORD every man his censer, two hundred and fifty censers; thou also, and Aaron, each of you his censer.

18 And they took every man his censer, and put fire in them, and laid incense thereon, and stood in the door of the tabernacle of the congregation with Moses and Aaron.

19 And ^{al}Korah gathered all the congregation against them unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: and ^{am}the glory of the LORD appeared unto all the congregation.

20 And the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

21 ^{an}Separate yourselves from among this congregation, ^{ao}that I may consume them in a moment.

22 And ^{ap}they fell upon their faces, and said, O God, ^{aq}the God of the spirits of all flesh, shall ^{ar}one man sin, and wilt thou be wroth with all the congregation?

23 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

24 Speak unto the congregation, saying, ^{as}Get you up from about the tabernacle of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram.

25 And Moses rose up, and went unto Dathan and Abiram; and ^{at}the elders of Israel followed him.

26 And he spake unto the congregation, saying, ^{au}Depart, I pray you, from the tents of these wicked men, and touch nothing of theirs, lest ye be consumed in all their sins.

27 So they gat up from the tabernacle of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, on every he was overtaken by another. Korah, the leader in the rebellion, was cousin to Moses and Aaron. It might have been thought, that the fearful example which had been presented in the case of Miriam, might have secured him, at least, from any further vexation in his own immediate circle. But then, as now, even judgments were thrown away on perverse men. Korah's relation to Moses, doubtless, gave him consequence among the people, which he employed not to support, but to subvert the authority of the Lawgiver. It may comfort pastors and officers of the Church of God, when unreasonable and unruly men rise up against them, bringing unfounded charges of arrogance and presumption, and the adoption of courses at variance with the liberties of the churches. Often has it been said, as to Moses, "Ye take too much upon you, seeing all the congregation are holy, every one of them, and the Lord is among them," even when nothing has been done that was not consistent, laudable, and even imperative. The rebellion was organised on a vast and an alarming scale: "two hundred and fifty princes of the assembly, famous in the congregation, men of renown," implied a great multitude to back them. The case was more serious than anything which had yet occurred; and, therefore, called for a prompt decision. The deportment of Moses was peculiarly forbearing, dignified, and becoming. His grief was great; but the Lord undertook his cause, and pleaded it with vengeance. Ver. 12-35. The conduct of Dathan and Abiram towards Moses was peculiarly insulting. They preposterously and maliciously pronounced Egypt, the land of their bondage, "a land that flowed with milk and honey;" and charged Moses with having brought them thence to "kill" them in the wilderness, and having broken all his promises relative to side: and Dathan and Abiram came out, and stood in the door of their tents, and their wives, and their sons, and their little children.

28 And Moses said, 'Hereby ye shall know that the LORD hath sent me to do all these works; (for I have not done them of mine own mind.)

29 If these men die the common death of all men, or if they be visited after the visitation of all men, then the LORD hath not sent me:

30 But if the LORD make a new thing, and the earth open her mouth, and swallow them up, with all that appertain unto them, and they go down quick into the pit; then ye shall understand that these men have provoked the LORD.

31 ¶ And it came to pass, as he had made an end of speaking all these words, that the ground clave asunder that was under them:

32 And the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up, and their houses, and all the men that appertained unto Korah, and all their goods.

33 They, and all that appertained to them, went down alive into the pit, and the earth closed upon them: and they perished from among the congregation.

34 And all Israel that were round about them fled at the cry of them: for they said, Lest the earth swallow us up also.

35 And there came out a fire from the LORD, and consumed the two hundred and fifty men that offered incense.

36 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

37 Speak unto Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest, that he take up the censers out of the burning, and scatter thou the fire yonder; for they are hallowed.

38 The censers of these sinners against their own souls, let them make them broad plates for a covering of the altar; for they offered them before the LORD, therefore they are hallowed: and they shall be a sign unto the children of Israel.

39 And Eleazar the priest took the brasen censers, wherewith they that were burnt had offered, and they were made broad plates for a covering of the altar;

40 To be a memorial unto the children of Israel, that no stranger, which is not of the seed of Aaron, come near to offer incense before the LORD, that he be not as Korah, and as his company; as the LORD said to him by the hand of Moses.

41 ¶ But on the morrow all the congregation of the children of Israel murmured against Moses and against Aaron, saying, 'Ye have killed the people of the LORD.

42 And it came to pass, when the congregation was gathered against Moses and against Aaron, that they looked toward the tabernacle of the congregation; and, behold, the cloud covered it, and the glory of the LORD appeared.

43 And Moses and Aaron came before the tabernacle of the congregation.

44 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

46 ¶ And Moses said unto Aaron, Take a censer, and put fire therein from off the altar, and put on incense, and go quickly unto the congregation, and make an atonement for them: for there is wrath gone out from the LORD; the plague is begun.

47 And Aaron took as Moses commanded, and ran into the midst of the congregation; and, behold, the plague was begun among the people: and he put on incense, and made an atonement for the people.

48 And he stood between the dead and the living; and the plague was stayed.

49 Now they that died in the plague were fourteen thousand and seven hundred, besides them that died about the matter of Korah.

50 And Aaron returned unto Moses unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: and the plague was stayed.

CHAPTER XVII.

1 Aaron's rod budding, 10 is laid up for a monument.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and take of every one of them a rod, according to the house of their fathers, of all their princes, according to the house of their fathers, twelve rods: write thou every man's name upon his rod.

3 And thou shalt write Aaron's name upon the rod of Levi: for one rod shall the land of Canaan. Their refusal to appear before the Lawgiver availed them not. The hand of vengeance found them. While they stood in the door of their tents, and their household around them, the earth opened her mouth, swallowing them up, and all that appertained to them. "They went down alive into the pit, and thus they perished in the face of the whole people." But this was only the first step in the tremendous visitation. The second was the consumption, by fire from heaven, of the two hundred and fifty men that offered incense. Ver. 36-50. The occasion was beyond description terrible, and calculated to make an indelible impression upon the minds of all. It is, therefore, not a little extraordinary that, so early as next day, the whole people again rose against Moses and Aaron, as having killed the people of the Lord, forgetting that, in such language, they were guilty of arraigning the justice of the Most High. We have here a sin of the most presumptuous character, calculated to call down the Divine wrath to the uttermost: and so it was. In a moment, the Angel of Destruction laid prostrate 14,700 men! The facts of this awful history deserve, in particular, the consideration of "false accusers, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof."

Chap. XVII. 1-13. This chapter presents a beautiful blending of compassion and of miracle. The appointment of the priesthood in the family of Aaron was already a thing established, notwithstanding the rebellion which had once and again been made against him. On 4 And thou shalt lay them up in the tabernacle of the congregation ^dbefore the testimony, where I will meet with you.

5 And it shall come to pass, that the man's rod, ^awhom I shall choose, shall blossom; and ^bI will make to cease from me the murmurings of the children of Israel, whereby ^athey murmur against you.

6 ¶ And Moses spake unto the children of Israel, and every one of their princes gave him ¹a rod apiece, for each prince one, according to their fathers' houses, even twelve rods; and the rod of Aaron was among their rods.

7 And Moses laid up the rods before the LORD in ^{the} tabernacle of witness.

8 And it came to pass, that on the morrow Moses went into the tabernacle of witness; and, behold, the rod of Aaron, for the house of Levi, was ²budded, and brought forth buds, and bloomed blossoms, and yielded almonds.

9 And Moses brought out all the rods from before the LORD, unto all the children of Israel: and they looked, and took every man his rod.

10 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, ¹Bring Aaron's rod again before the testimony, to be kept ²for a token against the rebels; and thou shalt quite take away their murmurings from me, that they die not.

11 And Moses did so: as the LORD commanded him, so did he.

12 And the children of Israel spake unto Moses, saying, ⁿBehold, we die, we perish, we all perish.

13 ^o Whosoever cometh ^p any thing near unto the tabernacle of the LORD shall die: shall we be ^q consumed with dying?

thee, and ^dminister unto thee: ^ebut thou and thy sons with thee shall minister before the tabernacle of witness.

3 And they shall keep thy charge, and the charge of all the tabernacle: 'only they shall not come nigh the vessels of the sanctuary and the altar, that 'neither they, nor ye also, die.

4 And they shall be joined unto thee, and keep the charge of the tabernacle of the congregation, for all the service of the tabernacle: and ^ha stranger shall not come nigh unto you.

5 And ye shall keep the charge of the sanctuary, and the charge of the altar; that there be ^kno wrath any more upon the children of Israel.

6 And ¹I, behold, ^mI have taken your brethren the Levites from among the children of Israel; to you they are ⁿgiven as a gift for the LORD, to do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation.

7 Therefore thou and thy sons with thee shall keep your priest's office for every thing of the altar, and ^owithin the veil; and ye shall serve: I have given your priest's office unto you ^pas a service of gift: and the ^qstranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.

8 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Aaron, Behold, I also have given thee ^{the} charge of mine heave-offerings of all the hallowed things of the children of Israel; unto thee have I given them, ^{by} reason of the anointing, and to thy sons, by an ordinance for ever.

9 This shall be thine of the most holy things, reserved from the fire: Every oblation of theirs, every meat-offering of theirs, and every sin-offering of theirs, and every trespass-offering of theirs, which they shall render unto me, shall be most holy for thee, and for thy sons.

10 In the most holy place shalt thou eat it; every male shall eat it: it shall be holy unto thee.

11 And this is thine; *the heave-offering of their gift, with all the wave-offerings of the children of Israel: I have given them ^bunto thee, and to thy sons, and to thy daughters with thee, by a statute forever; ^cevery one that is clean in thy house shall eat of it.

the present occasion, it pleased the Lord to put an end, in a very remarkable manner, to these attempts at disputing his authority. Nothing could be more interesting or convincing than the exhibition of these rods; which, doubtless, excited universal wonder. While it was calculated to silence for ever the rebels, it served also as an emblem of the lengthened course of office and of honour which awaited Aaron's house. The intimation given by Moses, that future murmuring would be certain destruction, inspired terror, and prompted an inquiry actually approximating to complaint! The people appeared to have deemed it their privilege to rise against the authority, both of God and of his servants, at pleasure, and with impunity! It was then as now; there was a constant tendency amongst transgressors and their friends to extenuate guilt, and to exaggerate punishment.

Chap. XVIII. 1-19. The arrangement made at the outset of this chapter is a following up of the language contained in the close of the last. While Aaron enjoyed the pre-eminence of the priesthood, he was also clothed with its responsibilities. It behoved him and his successors to discharge, in full measure, all the services of the sanctuary; and neglect or defect would be visited with appropriate punishment. None but the high priest was permitted to minister before the tabernacle of witness; the sons of Aaron were united with him only as intended to succeed in the office. The conjunction of the Levites with the priests was a meet emblem of the union of Christians with their Great High Priest. Ver. 20-32. Seeing that Aaron had no inheritance in the land, it became needful that the Lord should provide for him and his family: therefore, a tithe of the produce was demanded as God's right, the bulk of which he pre-first-fruits of them, which they shall offer unto the LORD, them have I given thee.

13 And ^awhatsoever is first ripe in the land, which they shall bring unto the LORD, shall be thine: every one that is clean in thine house shall eat of it.

14 Every thing ^adevoted in Israel shall be thine.

15 Every thing that ^aopeneth the matrix in all flesh, which they bring unto the LORD, whether it be of men or beasts, shall be thine: nevertheless ^athe first-born of man shalt thou surely redeem, and the firstling of unclean beasts shalt thou redeem.

16 And those that are to be redeemed, from a month old shalt thou redeem, ^aaccording to thine estimation, for the money of five shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary, ^awhich is twenty gerahs.

17 But ^athe firstling of a cow, or the firstling of a sheep, or the firstling of a goat, thou shalt not redeem; they are holy: ^athou shalt sprinkle their blood upon the altar, and shalt burn their fat for an offering made by fire, for a sweet savour unto the LORD.

18 And the flesh of them shall be thine, ^aas the wave-breast and as the right shoulder are thine.

19 All ^athe heave-offerings of the holy things, which the children of Israel offer unto the LORD, have I given thee, and thy sons and thy daughters with thee, by a statute for ever: it is ^aa covenant of salt for ever before the LORD unto thee, and to thy seed with thee.

20 And the LORD spake unto Aaron, ^aThou shalt have no inheritance in their land, neither shalt thou have any part among them: I ^aam thy part and thine inheritance among the children of Israel.

21 ¶ And, behold, I have given the children of Levi all ^athe tenth in Israel for an inheritance, for their service which they serve, ^aeven the service of the tabernacle of the congregation.

22 Neither must the children of Israel henceforth ^acome nigh the tabernacle of the congregation, lest they ^abear sin, ^aand die.

23 But the Levites shall ^ado the service of the tabernacle of the congregation, and they shall bear their iniquity. It shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations, that ^aamong the children of Israel they have no inheritance.

24 But ^athe tithes of the children of Israel, which they offer as an heave-offering unto the LORD, I have given to the Levites to inherit: therefore I have said unto them, Among the children of Israel they shall have no inheritance.

25 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

26 Thus speak unto the Levites, and say unto them, When ye take of the children of Israel the tithes, which I have given you from them for your inheritance, ^athen ye shall offer up an heave-offering of it for the LORD, even ^aa tenth part of the tithe.

31 And ye shall eat it ^ain every place, ye and your households: for it is ^ayour reward for your service in the tabernacle of the congregation.

32 And ye shall ^abear no sin by reason of it, when ye have heaved from it the best of it: neither shall ye ^apollute the holy things of the children of Israel, lest ye die.

CHAPTER XIX.

1 The water of separation. 11 The use of it for purification of the unclean.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying,

2 This is ^athe ordinance of the law which the LORD hath commanded, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel, that they bring thee ^aa red heifer without spot, wherein is ^ano blemish, and ^aupon which never came yoke:

3 And ye shall give her unto Eleazar the priest, that he may bring her forth ^awithout the camp, and one shall slay her before his face.

4 And Eleazar the priest shall take of her blood with his finger, and ^asprinkle of her blood directly before the tabernacle of the congregation seven times.

5 And one shall burn the heifer in his sight; ^aher skin, and her flesh, and her blood, with her dung, shall he burn.

sent to Aaron's family, awarding a portion also to the Levites. This important arrangement appears to embody a great principle—that men, engaged in the propagation of the Gospel, should, as much as may be, remain unencumbered by the affairs of this life, that they may prosecute their high and holy work without care, in peace, prayerfulness, and entire consecration. It will be observed, that the liberality here displayed in the Divine arrangements towards the priests, was such as to raise them far above carefulness; and, doubtless, the fact is intended to convey a lesson to Christian churches relative to a proper maintenance of those who labour for them in word and doctrine.

Chap. XIX. 1-22. It has been supposed, that the red heifer was chosen with a view to detach the children of Israel from Egyptian association: the true reason it is impossible to ascertain. This slaughter without the camp was intended to indicate uncleanness. That was, therefore, the place assigned for the execution of male-

6 And the priest shall take ^acedar-wood, and hyssop, and scarlet, and cast it into the midst of the burning of the heifer.

7 Then the priest shall ¹wash his clothes, and he shall bathe his flesh in water, and afterward he shall come into the camp, and the priest shall be unclean until the even.

8 And he that burneth her shall wash his clothes in water, and bathe his flesh in water, and shall be unclean until the even.

9 And a man that is ^aclean shall gather up the ashes of the heifer, and ¹lay them up without the camp in a clean place; and it shall be kept for the congregation of the children of Israel for ^awater of separation: it is a purification for sin.

10 And he that gathereth the ashes of the heifer shall ^awash his clothes, and be unclean until the even: and ^oit shall be unto the children of Israel, and unto the stranger that sojourneth among them, for a statute for ever.

11 [†]He that ^{toucheth} the dead body of any ¹man shall be unclean seven days.

12 He shall ^apurify himself with it on the third day, and on the seventh day he shall be clean: but if he purify not himself the [†]third day, then the seventh day he shall not be clean.

13 Whosoever toucheth the dead body of any man that is dead, and ^apurifieth not himself, defileth the tabernacle of the LORD; and that soul shall be cut off from Israel: because ^{the} water of separation was not sprinkled upon him, he shall be unclean; ^{his} uncleanness is yet upon him.

14 This is the law, when a man dieth in a tent: All that come into the tent, and all that is in the tent, shall be unclean seven days.

15 And ^aevery open vessel, which hath no covering bound upon it, is unclean.

16 And whosoever ^{toucheth} one that is slain with a sword in the open fields, or a dead body, or ^abone of a man, ^{or} a grave, shall be unclean seven days.

17 And for an unclean person they shall take of the ^aashes of the burnt heifer of purification for sin, and ^arunning water shall be put thereto in a vessel;

18 And a ^bclean person shall take hyssop, and dip it in the water, and

CHAPTER XX.

7 Moses bringeth water out of the rock. 14 The Israelites denied passage through Edom. 22 Aaron's death.

THEN came the children of Israel, even the whole congregation, ^{into} the desert of Zin in the first month: and the people abode in ^bKadesh; and ^oMiriam died there, and was buried there.

2 And there was ^ano water for the congregation: and they ^agathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron.

3 And the people chode with Moses, and spake, saying, ^{Would} God that we had died ^{when} our brethren died before the LORD!

4 And ^{why} have ye brought up the congregation of the LORD into this wilderness, ^{that} we and our cattle should die there?

5 And wherefore have ye made us to come up out of Egypt, to bring us in unto ^{this} evil place? it is no place of seed, or of figs, or of vines, or of pomegranates; neither is there any water to drink.

6 And Moses and Aaron went from the presence of the assembly unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and factum. The offering of this sacrifice of the red heifer was represented as peculiarly polluting, and hence the care that was taken to cleanse those that were concerned in its presentation. The Jews might well be surprised that this offering should at once purify and pollute. It is considered that the mystery is explained in the person and work of the Saviour, of whose death all the sacrifices were emblematic. They furnished an atonement for sin; and yet they became unclean through the imputation of the sins of those who offered them. All these things clearly point to the blood of Christ, who, through the Eternal Spirit, offered himself without spot to God, that he might purge the conscience of his people from dead works to serve the living and true God. This heifer sacrifice emphatically points to the Saviour, always "enduring their griefs, and carrying their sorrows" without the camp, whither it behoves us to accompany him, that we may "bear his reproach," wherever the malice and the wickedness of an unbelieving world may require it of us.

Chap. XX. 1-29. Among the changes time works, death is the chief. Miriam, Aaron, and Moses heretofore pursued their pilgrimage together; her race, however, was now run, and the mourning survivors interred her in the wilderness, little supposing that, in the space of one short year, they themselves were both to follow. In families where breaches of this kind are long in coming, they generally follow in quick succession. Nearly all the adults that shared in the Great Rebellion were now dead; but their children inherited their depravity, and followed their evil example. Accordingly they murmured against Moses and against Aaron, forgetful of the bondage and misery of their fathers, and full of unbelief they fell upon their faces: and ^mthe glory of the LORD appeared unto them.

7 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

8 Take ^athe rod, and gather thou the assembly together, thou and Aaron thy brother, and ^ospeake ye unto the rock before their eyes; and it shall give forth his water, and thou shalt ^pbring forth to them water out of the rock: so thou shalt give the congregation and their beasts drink.

9 And Moses took the rod from ^qbefore the LORD, as he commanded him.

10 And Moses and Aaron gathered the congregation together before the rock, and he said unto them, Hear now, ^rye rebels; must ^we fetch you water out of this rock?

11 And Moses lifted up his hand, and with his rod he ^tsmote the rock twice; and ^uthe water came out abundantly, and the congregation drank, and their beasts also.

12 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron, Because ye ^xbelieved me not, to ^ysanctify me in the eyes of the children of Israel, therefore ^zye shall not bring this congregation into the land which I have given them.

13 This ^zis ^athe water of ¹Meribah; because the children of Israel strove with the LORD, and ^bhe was sanctified in them.

14 ¶ And ^cMoses sent messengers from Kadesh unto the king of Edom, Thus saith ^dthy brother Israel, Thou knowest all the travel that hath ^ebefallen us;

15 How ^four fathers went down into Egypt, and we have ^gdwelt in Egypt a long time; and the Egyptians ^hvexed us and our fathers:

16 And when ⁱwe cried unto the LORD, he heard our voice, and ^jsent an angel, and hath brought us forth out of Egypt; and, behold, we ^kare in Kadesh, a city in the uttermost of thy border.

17 Let us pass, I pray thee, ^lthrough thy country: we will not pass through the fields, or through the vineyards, neither will we drink ^mof the water of the wells: we will go by the king's ⁿhigh-way, we will not turn to the right hand nor to the left, until we have passed thy borders.

18 And Edom said unto him, Thou shalt not pass by me, lest I come out against thee with the sword.

19 And the children of Israel said unto him, ^oWe will go by the high-way; and if I and my cattle drink of thy water, then I will pay for it: I will only (without ^pdoing anything else) go through on my feet.

as to their own future prospects in Palestine. They hurled their charge at the Lawgiver, uttering the impious wish that they had been numbered with the dead. This rebellion was a snare to Moses, who had failed of his customary meekness, suffering the man to triumph over the legislator. Instead of implicit obedience to the Divine command to address the rock, he sternly reprehended the people. The deed was an act of transgression; and, as the penalty, he was not allowed to enter Canaan. How needful it is for the greatest and the best 20 And he said, ^mThou shalt not go through. And Edom came out against him with much people, and with a strong hand.

21 Thus Edom refused to give Israel passage through his border: ⁿwherefore Israel turned away from him.

22 ¶ And the children of Israel, ^oeven the whole congregation, journeyed from ^oKadesh, and came unto ^pmount Hor.

23 And the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron in mount Hor, by the coast of the land of Edom, saying, 24 Aaron shall be ^qgathered unto his people: for he shall not enter into the land which I have given unto the children of Israel, ^rbecause ye rebelled against my ^sword at the water of Meribah.

25 ^tTake Aaron and Eleazar his son, and bring them up unto mount Hor;

26 And ^ustrip Aaron of his garments, and put them upon Eleazar his son: and Aaron shall be gathered ^uunto his people, and shall die there.

27 And Moses did as the LORD commanded: and they went up into mount Hor in the sight of all the congregation.

28 And Moses stripped Aaron of his garments, and ^vput them upon Eleazar his son; and Aaron ^wdied there in the top of the mount: and Moses and Eleazar came down from the mount.

29 And when all the congregation saw that Aaron was dead, they ^xmourned for Aaron thirty days, ^ueven all the house of Israel.

CHAPTER XXI.

4 The people bit by fiery serpents, 7 are healed. 10 Sundry journeys. 21 Sihon and Og slain.

AND when ^aking Arad the Canaanite, which dwelt in the south, heard tell that Israel came by ^bthe way of the spies, ^cthen he fought against Israel, and took some of them prisoners.

2 And Israel ^dvowed a vow unto the LORD, and said, If thou wilt indeed deliver this people into my hand, then ^eI will utterly destroy their cities.

3 And the LORD ^fhearkened to the voice of Israel, and delivered up the Canaanites; and they utterly destroyed them and their cities: and he called ^gthe name of the place ^hHormah.

4 ¶ And they journeyed from ⁱmount Hor ^jby the way of the Red sea, to ^kcompass the land of Edom: and ^lthe soul of the people was much ^mdiscouraged because of the way.

5 And the people ⁿspake against God, and against Moses, Wherefore have ye brought us up out of Egypt to die in the daily to pray, "Hold thou me up, and I shall be safe"! The lustre of a long and honourable career may be tarnished in a moment.

Chap. XXI. 1-20. It was now considerably upwards of thirty years since the Canaanites made war on the children of Israel, when the Lord suffered them to succeed. The defeat was felt by Israel, who made a vow of vengeance, which was now to be fulfilled; but, in the meantime, the spirit of rebellion, in an hour of dis-wilderness! for there is no bread, neither is there any water; ^aand our soul loatheth this light bread.

6 And the LORD sent ^ofiery serpents among the people, and they bit the people; and much people of Israel died.

7 ¶ Therefore the people came to Moses, and said, ^pWe have sinned; for we have spoken against the LORD, and against thee: ^qpray unto the LORD, that he take away the serpents from us. ^rAnd Moses prayed for the people.

8 And ^sthe LORD said unto Moses, Make thee a fiery serpent, and set it upon a pole: and it shall come to pass, that every one that is bitten, when he looketh upon it, shall live.

9 And Moses made ^ta serpent of brass, and put it upon a pole; and it came to pass, that if a serpent had bitten any man, ^uwhen he beheld the serpent of brass, ^vhe lived.

10 ¶ And the children of Israel ^wset forward, and pitched in Oboth.

11 And they journeyed from Oboth, and pitched at ^xIje-abarim, in the wilderness which is before Moab, toward the sun-rising.

12 ¶ From thence they removed, and pitched in ^ythe valley of Zared.

13 From thence they removed, and pitched ^zon the other side of Arnon, which is in the wilderness that cometh out of the coasts of the Amorites: for Arnon is the border of Moab, between Moab and the Amorites.

14 Wherefore it is said ^ain the book of the wars of the LORD, ^bWhat he did in the Red sea, and in the brooks of Arnon, 15 And at the stream of the brooks that goeth down to the dwelling of ^cAr, and ^dlieth upon the border of Moab.

16 And from thence ^ethey went to ^fBeer: that is the well whereof the LORD spake unto Moses, ^gGather the people together, and I will give them water.

17 ¶ Then Israel ^hsang this song, ⁱSpring up, O well; ^jspring ye unto it:

18 The ^kprinces digged the well, the nobles of the people digged it, by the ^ldirection of ^mthe lawgiver, with their staves. ⁿAnd from the wilderness they went to Mattanah;

19 And from Mattanah to Nahaliel; and from Nahaliel to Bamoth;

20 And from Bamoth ^oin the valley, that is in the ^pcountry of Moab, ^qto the top of ^rPisgah, which looketh toward ^sJeshimon.

21 ¶ And Israel ^tsent messengers unto Sihon king of the Amorites, saying,

23 And ^aSihon would not suffer Israel to pass through his border; but Sihon gathered all his people together, and went out against Israel into the wilderness: and he came to ^bJahaz, and fought against Israel.

24 And ^cIsrael smote him with the edge of the sword, and possessed his land from ^dArnon unto Jabbok, even unto the children of Ammon: for the border of the children of Ammon was strong.

25 And Israel took all these cities: and Israel ^edwelt in all the cities of the Amorites, ^fin Heshbon, and in all the ^gvillages thereof.

26 For Heshbon was the city of Sihon the king of the Amorites, who had fought against the former king of Moab, and taken all his land out of his hand, even unto Arnon.

27 Wherefore ^hthey that speak in proverbs say, Come into Heshbon, let the city of Sihon be built and prepared:

28 For there is ⁱa fire gone out of Heshbon, a flame from the city of Sihon: it hath consumed Ar of Moab, and the lords of the high places of Arnon.

29 Woe to thee, Moab! thou art undone, ^jO people of Chemosh! he hath given his sons that escaped, and his daughters, into captivity, unto Sihon king of the Amorites.

30 We ^khave shot at them: Heshbon is perished even unto Dibon, and we have laid them waste even unto Nophah, which reacheth unto Medeba.

31 ¶ Thus ^lIsrael dwelt in the land of the Amorites.

32 And Moses sent to spy out ^mJaazer, and they took the villages thereof, and drove out the Amorites that were there.

33 ¶ And they turned, and went up by the way of ⁿBashan: and ^oOg the king of Bashan went out against them, he, and all his people, to the battle at Edrei.

34 And the LORD said unto Moses, Fear him not: ^pfor I have delivered him into thy hand, and all his people, and his land; and thou shalt do to him as thou didst unto Sihon king of the Amorites, which dwelt at Heshbon.

35 So they ^qsmote him, and his sons, and all his people, until there was none left him alive: and they possessed his land.

couragement, once more broke out, which was visited by the deadly scourge of serpents. This rebellion, and the instruments of the Divine displeasure, led to the institution of one of the most beautiful types of the Saviour. These serpents were supposed to be those of Arabia, the poison of which is so deadly, that their victims expire before pain can be deeply felt. Ver. 21-35. The conduct of Sihon was treacherous and cruel; and the consequences such as were meet; the act was one of extermination. This affair is entitled to peculiar notice, from the fact that it constitutes a pledge of the promised inheritance. They are now possessors, in part, of that which had been promised, so long previously, to Abraham. We are taught, on the one hand, the sin of a murmuring forgetfulness of the mercies of God, and the punishment which will certainly follow; and, on the other, we have before us a fresh proof, that with the Lord there is forgiveness and abounding mercy for all who are penitent. A better exemplification of the nature and efficacy of faith in the atoning sacrifice of

AND ^athe children of Israel set forward, and pitched in the plains of Moab, ^bon this side Jordan by Jericho.

2 ¶ And ^cBalak the son of Zippor saw all that Israel had done to the Amorites.

3 And ^dMoab was sore afraid of the people, because they were many; and Moab was distressed because of the children of Israel.

4 And Moab said unto the ^eelders of Midian, 'Now shall this company lick up all that are round about us, as the ox licketh up the grass of the field. ^fAnd Balak the son of Zippor was king of the Moabites at that time.

5 He ^gsent messengers therefore unto Balaam the son of Beor, of ^hPethor, which is by the river of the land of the children of his people, to call him, saying, Behold, there is a people come out from Egypt: behold, ⁱthey cover the ^jface of the earth, and they abide over against me.

6 Come now therefore, I pray thee, ^kcurse me this people; for they are too mighty for me: peradventure I shall prevail, that we may smite them, and that I may drive them out of the land: for ^lI wot that he whom thou blessest is blessed, and he whom thou cursest is cursed.

7 And the elders of Moab and the elders of Midian departed with the ^mrewards of divination in their hand; and they came unto Balaam, and spake unto him the words of Balak.

8 And he said unto them, Lodge here ⁿthis night, and I will bring you word again, as the LORD shall speak unto me. And the princes of Moab abode with Balaam.

9 And ^oGod came unto Balaam, and said, ^p'What men are these with thee?

you into your land; for ^vthe LORD refuseth to give me leave to go with you.

14 And the princes of Moab rose up, and they went unto Balak, and said, ^w'Balaam refuseth to come with us.

15 ¶ And Balak sent yet again ^x'princes, more, and more honourable than they.

16 And they came to Balaam, and said to him, Thus saith Balak the son of Zippor, ^y'Let nothing, I pray thee, hinder thee from coming unto me:

17 For ^z'I will promote thee unto very great honour, and I ^awill do whatsoever thou sayest unto me: come therefore, I pray thee, curse me this people.

18 And Balaam answered and said unto the servants of Balak, ^b'If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, ^c'I cannot go beyond the word of the LORD my God, to do less or more.

19 Now therefore, I pray you, ^d'tarry ye also here this night, that I may know what the LORD will say unto me more.

20 And ^e'God came unto Balaam at night, and said unto him, ^f'If the men come to call thee, rise up, and go with them; but ^g'yet the word which I shall say unto thee, that shalt thou do.

21 And Balaam ^h'rose up in the morning, and saddled his ass, and went with the princes of Moab.

22 ¶ And ⁱ'God's anger was kindled because he went: and ^j'the angel of the LORD ^k'stood in the way for an adversary against him. (Now he was riding upon his ass, and his two servants were with him.)

23 And ^l'the ass saw the angel of the LORD standing in the way, and his sword drawn in his hand: and ^m'the ass turned aside out of the way, and went into the field; and Balaam smote the ass, to turn her into the way.

24 But the angel of the LORD stood in a path of the vineyards, a wall being on this side, and a wall on that side.

25 And when the ass saw the angel of the LORD, she thrust herself unto the wall, and ⁿ'crushed Balaam's foot against the wall; and he smote her again.

26 And the angel of the LORD went further, and stood in a narrow place, ^o'where was no way to turn either to the right hand or to the left.

27 And when the ass saw the angel of the LORD, she fell down under Balaam: ^p'and Balaam's anger was kindled, and he smote the ass with a staff.

28 And the LORD ^q'opened the mouth of Christ it were impossible to present. The wounded had but to look and live; whereas proud refusal to do so was followed by certain destruction. Let the convinced reader, therefore, look not merely to his own guilt, but at the Saviour's work. Let him believe, with the heart, the testimony of God, and forgiveness will follow, with the peace of God that passeth understanding.

Chap. XXII. 1-21. The Moabites were descended from Lot; and, therefore, ought to have manifested a very different spirit to their relations, the children of Israel. Balaam, notwithstanding his addictedness to soothsaying and divination, was a professed worshipper of the true God. He was a man whose light was superior to his vocation; for, doubtless, it was his fame as a diviner which led Balak to solicit his services. Balaam laboured hard to serve both God and Mammon; using his religious knowledge as a means of ministering to his cupidity. He was ready to sacrifice every consideration of truth, justice, and piety, to his worldly ends: he acted on the principle of payment in advance; and, hence the messengers of Balak took the "reward of divination in their hands." In this respect, he formed a striking contrast to the true prophets, who resented even the the ass; and she said unto Balaam, 'What have I done unto thee, that thou hast smitten me these three times?

29 And Balaam said unto the ass, Because thou hast mocked me: I would there were a sword in mine hand, ^ufor now would I kill thee.

30 And the ass said unto Balaam, Am not I thine ass, ^aupon which thou hast ridden ^bever since I was thine unto this day? was I ever wont to do so unto thee? And he said, Nay.

31 Then the LORD ^aopened the eyes of Balaam, and he saw the angel of the LORD standing in the way, and his sword drawn in his hand: and he ^bbowed down his head, and ^cfell flat on his face.

32 And the angel of the LORD said unto him, ^aWherefore hast thou smitten thine ass these three times? Behold, I went out to ^bwithstand thee, because ^cthy way is perverse before me:

33 And the ass saw me, and turned from me these three times: unless she had turned from me, surely now also I had slain thee, and saved her alive.

34 And Balaam said unto the angel of the LORD, ^bI have sinned; for I knew not that thou stoodest in the way against me: now therefore, if it ^cdisplease thee, I will get me back again.

35 And the angel of the LORD said unto Balaam, ^aGo with the men: but only the word that I shall speak unto thee, that thou shalt speak. So Balaam went with the princes of Balak.

36 ¶ And when Balak heard that Balaam was come, ^ahe went out to meet him unto a city of Moab, which is in ^bthe border of Arnon, which is in the utmost coast.

37 And Balak said unto Balaam, Did I not earnestly send unto thee to call thee? wherefore camest thou not unto me? am I not able indeed to promote thee to honour?

38 And Balaam said unto Balak, Lo, I

2 And Balak did as Balaam had spoken: and Balak and Balaam ^aoffered on ^bevery altar a bullock and a ram.

3 And Balaam said unto Balak, Stand by thy ^bburnt-offering, and I will go; ^cperadventure the LORD will come to meet me: and whatsoever he sheweth me I will tell thee. And he ^dwent to an high place.

5 And the LORD put a word in Balaam's mouth, and said, Return unto Balak, and thus thou shalt speak.

6 And he returned unto him, and, lo, ^ahe stood by his burnt-sacrifice, he, and all the princes of Moab.

7 ¶ And he ^atook up his parable, and said, Balak the king of Moab hath brought me from ^bAram, out of the mountains of the east, saying, ^cCome, curse me Jacob; and come, ^ddefy Israel.

offer of gifts as considerations for their services. The manner in which Balaam talks of God, in ver. 19, is truly shocking; he, forsooth, was anxious to know the mind of the Lord! Ver. 22-41. The Lord, to accomplish his own purposes of wisdom and grace, permitted the infatuated man to go to Balak. The drawn sword of the angel, however, was calculated to lead to reconsideration; and, but for the good offices of the creature that carried him, he must have perished on the way. It was to no purpose that "the dumb ass, with man's voice, rebuked the madness of the prophet;" he went on, but after discovering the angel, he became docile, intimating his willingness to return. He was, nevertheless, permitted to go forward and fulfil the purposes of his heart.

Chap. XXIII. 1-18. Whatever may have been the fault of Balaam on the score of covetousness, he is, at least, entitled to praise on the score of candour. He told Balak frankly, at the outset, that he had no power to utter ought beyond what God should put into his mouth. In earlier times, the number "seven" was famous in connexion with matters of religion; and hence it appears to have found its way, and retained its hold, amongst the heathen. We find Job, in ch. xlii. ver. 8, directed by the Lord, on a great occasion, presenting "seven" bullocks and "seven" rams as a burnt-offering. The example was imitated on the present occasion: the sacrifice was great; such as became a king. On that ground, therefore, the idolatrous monarch might well suppose he had propitiated the God of the Hebrews, whom he conceived but as one of the numerous divinities worshipped by mankind. Balaam, believing the doctrine of the one living and true God, and knowing his purposes concerning the Hebrews would stand, was, doubtless, highly culpable in lending himself to such an enterprise. He also knew that enchantments were a mere imposture, upheld by the priests for purposes of deception. Balaam further added to his guilt, by going to the "high places," or places set apart for idolatrous worship. Notwithstanding the urgency of the king and the pendency of the prophet, there was an influence exerted on Balaam which compelled him to speak the truth, and to speak it with unexampled dignity and sublimity. Few words in Sacred Scripture have been more frequently quoted than his prayer, that he might "die the death of the righteous," and that his "last end might be like his." The language was peculiar; and hence nothing connected with the enterprise, unless a presentiment of his own impending destruction, could have prompted it. Ver. 14-24. The perseverance of the monarch implied an extraordinary anxiety to accomplish his object; and him, and from the hills I behold him: lo, the people shall ¹dwell alone, and ²shall not be reckoned among the nations.

10 Who ¹can count the dust of Jacob, and the number of ²the fourth part of Israel? Let ³me die ⁴the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his!

11 And Balak said unto Balaam, What hast thou done unto me? ¹I took thee to curse mine enemies, and, behold, thou hast blessed them altogether.

12 And he answered and said, ¹Must I not take heed to speak that which the LORD hath put in my mouth?

13 And Balak said unto him, Come, I pray thee, with me ¹unto another place, from whence thou mayest see them: thou shalt see but the utmost part of them, and shalt not see them all; and ²curse me them from thence.

14 ¶ And he brought him into the field of Zophim, to the top of ³Pisgah, and ⁴built seven altars, and offered a bullock and a ram on every altar.

15 And he said unto Balak, Stand here by thy burnt-offering, while I meet the LORD yonder.

16 And the LORD met Balaam, and ¹put a word in his mouth, and said, Go again unto Balak, and say thus.

17 And when he came to him, behold, he stood by his burnt-offering, and the princes of Moab with him. And Balak said unto him, What hath the LORD spoken?

18 And he took up his parable, and said, ¹Rise up, Balak, and hear; hearken unto me, thou son of Zippor:

19 God ¹is not a man, that he should lie; neither the son of man, that he should repent: hath he said, and shall he not do it? or hath he spoken, and shall he not make it good?

20 Behold, I have received commandment to bless: and ¹he hath blessed; and ²I cannot reverse it.

21 He ¹hath not beheld iniquity in Jacob, neither hath he seen perverseness in Israel: ²the LORD his God is with him, and ³the shout of a king is among them.

22 ¹God brought them out of Egypt: he hath as it were the strength of an unicorn.

CHAPTER XXIV.

1 Balaam prophesieth Israel's happiness; 15 and of the Star of Jacob.

AND when Balaam ¹saw that it pleased the LORD to bless Israel, he went not, as ²at other times, ³to seek for enchantments, but he set his face toward the wilderness.

2 And Balaam lifted up his eyes, and he saw Israel ¹abiding in his tents according to their tribes; and ²the Spirit of God came upon him.

3 And he took up his parable, and said, Balaam the son of Beor hath said, and the man ²whose eyes are open hath said:

4 He hath said, which heard the words of God, which ¹saw the vision of the Almighty, ²falling into a trance, but having his eyes open:

5 How goodly are thy tents, O Jacob! and thy tabernacles, O Israel!

6 As the valleys are they spread forth, ¹as gardens by the river's side, as the trees of lign-aloes, ²which the LORD hath planted, and as cedar-trees beside the waters.

7 He shall ¹pour the water out of his hence sacrifice succeeded to sacrifice. During this latter occasion, the prophet was impelled to utter some glorious matter relative to the chosen people. None of the Old Prophets have recorded anything more lofty and hopeful for Israel. Ver. 25-30. The foregoing language drove Balak to desperation. Instead of curses, the prophet's lips had poured forth a succession of blessings. The king, despairing of evil, as the next best thing, desired to prevent good; and hence he would have Balaam neither to curse nor to bless. One notable feature of the prophecy of Balaam, is that of "the people dwelling alone," which has been wonderfully fulfilled. Mankind have been utterly unable either to destroy or absorb them. They continue to the present hour a separate people: their manners, customs, worship, and everything appertaining to their social character, distinguish them from the Gentiles.

Chap. XXIV. 1-13. Balaam, notwithstanding his perseverance, was at length convinced of the impropriety of proceeding further in his attempts to damage the children of Israel. His confusion and humiliation were completed by the descent of the Spirit of prophecy, compelling him to foretell the triumph and glory of the people. There is no proof that he derived any spiritual benefit to himself from past occurrences; he remained a wicked man to the last. The idol of covetousness can only be exorcised by the Spirit of God; otherwise it will retain its place in spite of everything external. There is no serving God and Mammon; and, therefore, men must take their choice. Ver. 14-25. Bad men, like their master, the Wicked One, despise the instruments they employ for purposes of evil even if they succeed, and hate them when they fail. "Latter days" clearly signify Gospel times. Hardly anything could be more buckets, and his seed shall be in many waters; and ²his king shall be higher than Agag, and ¹his kingdom shall be exalted.

8 God brought him forth out of Egypt; he hath as it were the strength of an unicorn: he shall eat up the nations his enemies, and shall ²break their bones, and pierce them through with his arrows.

9 He ²couched, he lay down as a lion, and as a great lion: who shall stir him up? ²Blessed is he that blesseth thee, and cursed is he that curseth thee.

10 ¶ And Balak's anger was kindled against Balaam, and he smote his hands together: and Balak said unto Balaam, ²I called thee to curse mine enemies, and behold, thou hast altogether blessed them these three times.

11 Therefore now flee thou to thy place: I thought to promote thee unto great honour; but, lo, ²the LORD hath kept thee back from honour.

12 And Balaam said unto Balak, Spake I not also to thy messengers, which thou sentest unto me, saying, 13 If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, I cannot go beyond the commandment of the LORD, to do either good or bad of mine own mind; ²but what the LORD saith, that will I speak?

14 And now, behold, I go unto my people; come therefore, and I will advertise thee what this people shall do to thy people in ²the latter days.

15 ¶ And he took up his parable, and said, Balaam the son of Beor hath said, and the man whose eyes are open hath said;

16 He hath said, which heard the words of God, and knew the knowledge of the most High, which saw the vision of the Almighty, falling into a trance, but having his eyes open:

17 ²I shall see him, but not now; I shall behold him, but not nigh: there shall come ²a Star out of Jacob, and ²a Sceptre shall rise out of Israel, and shall ²smite the corners of Moab, ²and destroy ²all the children of Sheth.

18 And ²Edom shall be a possession, Seir also shall be a possession for his enemies; and Israel shall do valiantly.

19 Out ²of Jacob shall come he that

CHAPTER XXV.

1 The Israelites commit whoredom and idolatry. 4 God commands the criminals to be slain. 6 Phinehas kills Zimri and Cozbi, and the plague is stayed. 10 God approves his zeal, and gives him a perpetual priesthood.

AND Israel abode in Shittim, and ²the people began to commit whoredom with the daughters of Moab.

2 And ²they called the people unto the sacrifices of their gods: and the people did eat, and ²bowed down to their gods.

3 And Israel joined himself unto Baal-peor: and ²the anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel.

4 And the LORD said unto Moses, Take all the heads of the people, ²and hang them up before the LORD against the sun, ²that the fierce anger of the LORD may be turned away from Israel.

5 And Moses said unto the judges of Israel, ²Slay ye every one his men that were joined unto Baal-peor.

6 ¶ And, behold, one of the children of Israel came, and brought unto his brethren a Midianitish woman, ²in the sight of Moses, and in the sight of all the congregation of the children of Israel, who were ²weeping before the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

7 And when ²Phinehas, the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, saw it, he rose up from among the congregation, and took a javelin in his hand; confounding than the prophecy here set forth concerning Israel; notwithstanding the grief it gave the king, the prophet had no choice but to pronounce it. Destruction then, as destruction now, was the portion of all that opposed the "Star of Jacob." Opposition to the cause of God will always be found a losing, as well as a hopeless enterprise. It, therefore, becomes the people, both small and great, to submit to the "Son, lest he be angry, and they perish when his wrath is kindled but a little."

Chap. XXV. 1-18. It is clear that Balaam was not altogether useless to King Balak, since he suggested iniquitous methods of doing damage to the Hebrews. Notwithstanding the glorious predictions his lips had uttered, and the celestial visions with which he had been honoured, he adhered to the enemies; and as the reward of his deeds, met his fate among the princes of Midian.

It is previously stated that he went home; and the inference, therefore, is that he returned, probably to encourage the king by adding to his services, or to watch the progress of his former machinations. The loss of self-respect is always a preparation for ceasing to respect either God or man: the case mentioned in verse 6, presents a deplorable example. The penalty, on the present occasion, was terrible, shewing the Divine abhorrence of the transgression of which the people had been guilty. Phinehas acted with great decision, for which he was promptly and richly recompensed. The high priesthood continued in his family till near the time of Eli, and after a brief lapse, speedily returned again to his descendants, in which it is supposed to have remained till about the time of Herod the Great, if not longer. Thus the promise made to him was fulfilled in a manner which must have struck every succeeding generation.

8 And he went after the man of Israel into the tent, and thrust both of them through, the man of Israel, and the woman through her belly. So the plague was stayed from the children of Israel.

9 And those that died in the plague were ^mtwenty and four thousand.

10 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

11 Phinehas, the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, hath turned my wrath away from the children of Israel, while he was zealous ¹for my sake among them, ²that I consumed not the children of Israel in my jealousy.

12 Wherefore say, Behold, I give unto him my covenant of peace:

13 And he shall have it, and his seed after him, even the covenant of ^aan everlasting priesthood; because he was ^pzealous for his God, and made an ^aatonement for the children of Israel.

14 Now the name of the Israelite that was slain, even that was slain with the Midianitish woman, was Zimri, the son of Salu, a prince of a ²chief house among the Simeonites.

15 And the name of the Midianitish woman that was slain was Cozbi, the daughter of Zur; he was head over a people, and of a chief house in Midian.

16 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

17 Vex the Midianites, and smite them:

18 For they vex you with their wives, wherewith they have ¹beguiled you in the matter of Peor, and in the matter of Cozbi, the daughter of a prince of Midian, their sister, which was slain in the day of the plague for Peor's sake.

CHAPTER XXVI.

1 Israel numbered. 53 The inheritance of the land divided.

AND it came to pass ^aafter the plague, that the LORD spake unto Moses, and unto Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest, saying,

2 ^bTake the sum of all the congregation of the children of Israel, from twenty years old and upward, throughout their father's house, all that are able to go to war in Israel.

3 And Moses and Eleazar the priest spake with them in ^cthe plains of Moab, by Jordan near Jericho, saying,

Men are easily drawn aside in multitudes, but it is with difficulty that even a small number can be detached from the society of the wicked, and led to serve the living and true God. The chapter before us presents a commanding example of the administration of justice without respect of persons. Before the law, and before the God who gave it, all men are equal; and none can claim a right from station to commit a breach of the Divine injunctions. There has, nevertheless, been a frequent disposition to screen great and wealthy offenders; a thing which the Scriptures uniformly condemn. In the case of Phinehas, the blood with which he atoned was that of others; whereas, the Lord Jesus Christ shed his own to redeem a lost world.

Chap. XXVI. 1-65. The most noticeable thing in this chapter is the numbers which, at this period, con-

4 Take the sum of the people, from twenty years old and upward; as the LORD ^acommanded Moses and the children of Israel, which went forth out of the land of Egypt.

5 ¶ Reuben, ^athe eldest son of Israel: ¹the children of Reuben; Hanoch, of whom cometh the family of the Hanochites: of Pallu, the family of the Palluites:

6 Of Hezron, the family of the Hezronites: of Carmi, the family of the Carmites.

7 These are the families of the Reubenites: and they that were numbered of them were ^aforty and three thousand and seven hundred and thirty.

8 And the sons of Pallu; Eliab.

9 And the sons of Eliab; Nemuel, and Dathan, and Abiram. This is that Dathan and Abiram which were ^afamous in the congregation, who strove against Moses and against Aaron in the company of Korah, when they strove against the LORD:

10 And ¹the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up together with Korah, when that company died, what time the fire devoured two hundred and fifty men: and ²they became a sign.

11 Notwithstanding ¹the children of Korah did not.

12 ¶ The sons of Simeon, after their families: of ^mNemuel, the family of the Nemuelites: of Jamin, the family of the Jaminites: of ⁿJachin, the family of the Jachinites:

13 Of ^oZerah, the family of the Zarhites: of Shaul, the family of the Shaulites.

14 These are the families of the Simeonites, ^atwenty and two thousand and two hundred.

15 ¶ The children of Gad, after their families: of ^zZephon, the family of the Zephonites: of Haggi, the family of the Haggites: of Shuni, the family of the Shunites.

16 Of Ozni, the family of the Oznites: of Eri, the family of the Erites:

17 Of Arod, the family of the Arodites: of Arel, the family of the Arelites.

18 These are the families of the children of Gad, according to those that were numbered of them, ^aforty thousand and five hundred.

19 ¶ The sons of Judah were ^aEr and stituted the camp. The men able to bear arms amounted to 600,000, and, with the Levites, who, although not fighting men, were vastly important to the camp, 620,000; and if, upon the lowest principle of calculation, we allow three to one for the young and old of the male, and the whole of the female sex, we shall have an addition of about 2,500,000, making a total of about 3,000,000—a mighty multitude to be roving in the wilderness, without house or home, and fed by the miraculous bounty of Heaven, through the long period of forty years. The number, indeed, is so great, that some have questioned the capability of Palestine to support such a multitude; but there is no resisting established facts; they were not only from the first supported, but afterwards prodigiously increased. It is an affecting circumstance, that the numbers of the Israelites, through the judgments which their rebellions brought upon them, Onan: and Er and Onan died in the land of Canaan.

20 And the sons of Judah, after their families, were; of ¹Shelah, the family of the Shelanites: of ²Pharez, the family of the Pharezites: ³of Zerah, the family of the Zarahites:

21 And the sons of Pharez were; of Hezron, the family of the Hezronites: of Hamul, the family of the Hamulites.

22 These are the families of Judah, according to those that were numbered of them, ⁷threescore and sixteen thousand and five hundred.

23 ¶ Of ¹the sons of Issachar, after their families: of Tola, the family of the Tolaïtes: of Pua, the family of the Punites:

24 Of Jashub, the family of the Jashubites: of Shimron, the family of the Shimronites.

8 And thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If a man die, and have no son, then ye shall cause his inheritance to pass unto his daughter.

called by his grace out of all nations, kindreds, tongues, and people. Whatever the varieties of gifts, or graces, or of condition in social life, the faithful at last will, with one heart and one voice, declare, "He hath done all things well."

Chap. XXVII. 1-28. All labours have an end; and the longest life must have a close. Moses had now completed the task assigned him, and it was proper that he should rest from his labours. He had sustained forty years of such service as was never performed by any man previously or since, and never will again. He had throughout conducted himself with a wisdom, a rectitude, a stability, and a devotion truly admirable, and worthy of the man who was the type of the Head of the heathen, the Lord of all. He committed but one offence, and for that he was doomed to die in the wilderness; but there was, doubtless, compassion even in that visitation: it was the correction of a loving Master. The affection of Moses for the people, during the whole period of his office, was most disinterested and most intense; and his benevolence prompted him to the deepest concern for their welfare after his decease. He had but one thing to ask—that before he died he might see his successor: and in this he was most graciously indulged, by the appointment of a man, doubtless, incomparably, by nature and otherwise, the most qualified of the whole people. Joshua installed, the work of the aged Lawgiver was done, and he was ready to depart and to be with his Lord. One thing deserves particular water of ^aMeribah in Kadesh, in the wilderness of Zin.

15 ¶ And Moses spake unto the LORD, saying,

16 Let the LORD, ^rthe God of the spirits of all flesh, ^sset a man over the congregation, 17 Which may ^tgo out before them, and which may go in before them, and which may lead them out, and which may bring them in; that the congregation of the LORD be not ^uas sheep which have no shepherd.

18 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, ^vTake thee Joshua ^wthe son of Nun, a man in whom is the spirit, and ^xlay thine hand upon him;

19 And set him before Eleazar the priest, and before all the congregation; and ^ygive him a charge in their sight.

20 And thou shalt ^zput some of thine honour upon him, that all the congregation of the children of Israel ^{aa}may be obedient.

21 And ^{ab}he shall stand before Eleazar the priest, who shall ask counsel for him after the judgment of ^{ac}Urim before the LORD: ^{ad}at his word shall they go out, and at his word they shall come in, ^{ae}both he, and all the children of Israel with him, even all the congregation.

22 And Moses did as the LORD commanded him: and he took Joshua, and set him before Eleazar the priest, and before all the congregation.

23 And he laid his hands upon him, and ^{af}gave him a charge; as the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses.

19 But ye shall offer a sacrifice made by fire, ^{bp}for a burnt-offering unto the LORD; ^{bq}two young bullocks, and one ram, and seven lambs of the first year: ^{br}they shall be unto you without blemish.

20 And their meat-offering shall be of notice: notwithstanding the elevation of Joshua, his actual position was inferior to that of Moses. The Lord talked with Moses face to face; but Joshua was required to ask instructions through the medium of the High Priest. This difference, however, was, in one respect, a finishing of the type, and presented a satisfactory emblem of the mediatorial character of the Great High Priest of our profession. Among the various lessons supplied by this chapter, is the example which Moses has left to aged ministers, officers of churches, and zealous Christians, relative to the prosperity of the church of God with which they stand connected, when they shall have been gathered to their fathers.

Chap. XXVIII. 1-31. A new generation had now sprung up, and it became necessary to recapitulate former laws, as also to renew the testimony of grace and mercy to the people, who were about to enter on a new order of existence. It is probable that, from the nature of their wilderness existence, the Divine institutions were imperfectly, if not irregularly observed; but that state of things was about to terminate, and another to month, and his meat-offering, and ^athe daily burnt-offering, and his meat-offering, and their drink-offerings, ^baccording unto their manner, for a sweet savour, a sacrifice made by fire unto the LORD.

7 ¶ And ye shall have ^con the tenth day of this seventh month an holy convocation; and ye shall ^dafflict your souls: ye shall not do any work therein:

8 But ye shall offer a burnt-offering unto the LORD for a sweet savour; one young bullock, one ram, and seven lambs of the first year; they shall be unto you ^ewithout blemish.

9 And their ^fmeat-offering shall be of flour mingled with oil, three tenth-deals to a bullock, and two tenth-deals to one ram,

10 A several tenth-deal for one lamb, throughout the seven lambs;

11 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering, ^gbeside the sin-offering of atonement, and ^hthe continual burnt-offering, and the meat-offering of it, and their drink-offerings.

12 ¶ And on ⁱthe fifteenth day of the seventh month ye shall have an holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work, and ye shall keep a feast unto the LORD seven days.

13 And ye shall offer a burnt-offering, a sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD; ^jthirteen young bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year; they shall be without blemish:

14 And their meat-offering shall be of flour mingled with oil, three tenth-deals unto every bullock of the thirteen bullocks, two tenth-deals to each ram of the two rams,

15 And a several tenth-deal to each lamb of the fourteen lambs;

16 And ^kone kid of the goats for a sin-offering, beside the continual burnt-offering, his meat-offering, and his drink-offering.

17 ¶ And on the second day ye shall offer ^ltwelve young bullocks, two rams, fourteen lambs of the first year, without spot:

18 And their meat-offering, and their drink-offerings, for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, ^mafter the manner;

19 And one kid of the goats for ⁿa sin-offering, beside the continual burnt-offering, and the meat-offering thereof, and their drink-offerings.

20 ¶ And on the third day eleven bullocks, two rams, fourteen lambs of the first year, without blemish:

21 And their meat-offering, and their commence, when all might be done "decently and in order." From this we are impressively taught, that however, from circumstances, the externals of piety may vary, the spirit of it must ever dwell in our hearts; and that in proportion to our privileges must be the observance of ordinances, as well as the measure of our works of faith and labours of love, and of our communings with the Father of our spirits, and the God of our salvation.

Chap. XXIX. 1-40. It is somewhat remarkable, that the eighth day, or "the last great day of the feast," presented fewer sacrifices than any other day; with a view, it has been suggested, to teach the people not to repose confidence in a multitude of sacrifices, nor to look for the forgiveness of sins from them, as acts done, but from the mercy of God. The seventh month was a very remarkable one in the history of the Jews, since it commemorated their deliverance from Egypt, and commenced drink-offerings, for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner;

23 And one goat for a sin-offering, beside the continual burnt-offering, and his meat-offering, and his drink-offering.

23 ¶ And on the fourth day ten bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year, without blemish:

24 Their meat-offering, and their drink-offerings, for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner;

25 And one kid of the goats for a sin-offering, beside the continual burnt-offering, his meat-offering, and his drink-offering.

26 ¶ And on the fifth day nine bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year without spot:

27 And their meat-offering, and their drink-offerings, for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner;

28 And one goat for a sin-offering, beside the continual burnt-offering, and his meat-offering, and his drink-offering.

29 ¶ And on the sixth day eight bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year, without blemish:

30 And their meat-offering, and their drink-offerings, for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner;

31 And one goat for a sin-offering, beside the continual burnt-offering, his meat-offering, and his drink-offering.

32 ¶ And on the seventh day seven bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year, without blemish:

33 And their meat-offering, and their drink-offerings, for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner;

34 And one goat for a sin-offering, beside the continual burnt-offering, his meat-offering, and his drink-offering.

35 ¶ On the eighth day ye shall have a solemn assembly; ye shall do no servile work therein:

36 But ye shall offer a burnt-offering, a sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD: one bullock, one ram, seven lambs of the first year, without blemish:

37 Their meat-offering, and their drink-offerings, for the bullock, for the ram, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner;

39 These things ye shall do unto the LORD in your set feasts, beside your vows, and your free-will-offerings, for your burnt-offerings, and for your meat-offerings, and for your drink-offerings, and for your peace-offerings.

40 And Moses told the children of Israel according to all that the LORD commanded Moses.

CHAPTER XXX.

1 Vows are not to be broken. 3 The exception of a maid's vow. 6 Of a wife's. 9 Of a widow's, or her that is divorced.

AND Moses spake unto the heads of the tribes concerning the children of Israel, saying, This is the thing which the LORD hath commanded.

2 If a man vow a vow unto the LORD, or swear an oath to bind his soul with a bond; he shall not break his word, he shall do according to all that proceedeth out of his mouth.

3 ¶ If a woman also vow a vow unto the LORD, and bind herself by a bond, being in her father's house in her youth;

4 And her father hear her vow, and her bond wherewith she hath bound her soul, and her father shall hold his peace at her; then all her vows shall stand, and every bond wherewith she hath bound her soul shall stand.

5 But if her father disallow her in the day that he heareth; not any of her vows, or of her bonds wherewith she hath bound her soul, shall stand; and the LORD shall forgive her, because her father disallowed her.

6 ¶ And if she had at all an husband when she vowed, or uttered ought out of her lips, wherewith she bound her soul;

7 And her husband heard it, and held his peace at her in the day that he heard it; then her vows shall stand, and her bonds wherewith she bound her soul shall stand.

8 But if her husband disallowed her on the day that he heard it; then he shall make her vow which she vowed, and that which she uttered with her lips, wherewith she bound her soul, of none effect; and the LORD shall forgive her.

9 ¶ But every vow of a widow, and of her that is divorced, wherewith they have bound their souls, shall stand against her.

10 And if she vowed in her husband's their Ecclesiastical year. This month was attended by a larger amount of public service than any other: it comprises the Feast of Trumpets, the Annual Fast, and the Feast of Booths. Amidst all the varieties of observance, the people were never permitted to forget that the centre and soul of the whole was the Atoning Sacrifice. The cost of the Holy Convocation, on the fifteenth day, was considerable; but at that period of the year they were able to bear it, since their barns were full, and their presses overflowing. The Alpha and the Omega, the first thing and the last, of the Levitical law, was the connexion of blood with the remission of sin. The substance of all the rites and all the ceremonies was, "without shedding of blood there is no remission;" thus the Gospel was preached by anticipation, and through figure, men were pointed to "the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world."

Chap. XXX. 1-16. In addition to the Trespass-offerings of the paschal lamb for each family of the nation, the foregoing chapters shew that the number of victims required to be slain, in the course of the year, was 1241; such was the amount of typical blood secured by the law. Vowing is a solemn act, and it ought to be house, or bound her soul by a bond with an oath;

11 And her husband heard it, and held his peace at her, and disallowed her not: then all her vows shall stand, and every bond wherewith she bound her soul shall stand.

12 But if her husband hath utterly made them void on the day he heard them; then whatsoever proceeded out of her lips concerning her vows, or concerning the bond of her soul, shall not stand: her husband hath made them void; and the LORD shall forgive her.

13 Every vow, ^aand every binding oath ¹to afflict the soul, her husband may establish it, or her husband may make it void.

14 But if her husband altogether hold his peace at her from day to day; then he establisheth all her vows, or all her bonds, which are upon her: he confirmeth them, because he held his peace at her in the day that he heard them.

15 But if he shall any wise make them void after that he hath heard them; then ^mhe shall bear her iniquity.

16 These ^aare the statutes which the LORD commanded Moses, between a man and his wife, between the father and his daughter, being yet in her youth in her father's house.

CHAPTER XXXI

1 The Midianites are spoiled, and Balaam slain. 19 How the soldiers, &c., are to be purified, 25 and the prey divided.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 ^aAvenge the children of Israel of ^bthe Midianites: afterward shalt thou be ^cgathered unto thy people.

3 And Moses spake unto the people, saying, ^dArm some of yourselves unto the war, and let them go against the Midianites, and ^eavenge the LORD of Midian.

4 ^fOf every tribe ¹a thousand, throughout all the tribes of Israel, shall ye send to the war.

5 So there were delivered, out of the thousands of Israel, a thousand of every tribe, twelve thousand armed for war.

6 And Moses sent them to the war, a thousand of every tribe, them and ^gPhinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, to the war, with ^hthe holy instruments, and the trumpets ¹to blow in his hand.

7 And they warred against the Midianites, as the LORD commanded Moses; and they ^kslew all the males.

8 And they slew ¹the kings of Midian, beside the rest of them that were slain; namely, Evi, and Rekem, and ^mZur, and Hur, and Reba, five kings of Midian: ⁿBalaam also, the son of Beor, they slew with the sword.

9 And the children of Israel took all ^othe women of Midian captives, and their little ones, and took the spoil of all their cattle, and all their flocks, and all their goods.

10 And they ^pburnt all their cities wherein they dwelt, and all their goodly castles, with fire.

11 And they ^qtook all the spoil, and all the prey, both of men and of beasts.

12 And they brought the captives, and the prey, and the spoil, unto Moses, and Eleazar the priest, and unto the congregation of the children of Israel, unto the camp at ^rthe plains of Moab, which are by Jordan near Jericho.

13 ^tAnd Moses, and Eleazar the priest, and all the princes of the congregation, ^uwent forth to meet them ^vwithout the camp.

14 And Moses was ^wwroth with the officers of the host, with the captains over thousands, and captains over hundreds, which came from the ^xbattle.

15 And Moses said unto them, ^yHave ye saved all the women alive?

16 Behold, ^zthese caused the children of Israel, through the counsel of Balaam, to commit trespass against the LORD ^ain the matter of Peor, ^band there was a plague among the congregation of the LORD.

17 Now therefore ^ckill every male among the little ones, and kill every woman that hath known man by lying with ^dhim.

18 But all the women children, that have not known a man by lying with him, ^ekeep alive for yourselves.

19 And do ye ^fabide without the camp seven days: whosoever hath killed any person, and whosoever hath touched any slain, purify both yourselves and your captives on the third day, and on the seventh day.

20 And purify all your ^graiment, and all ^hthat is made of skins, and all work of goats' hair, and all things made of wood.

21 ^tAnd Eleazar the priest said unto the men of war which went to the battle, ^uThis is the ordinance of the law which the LORD commanded Moses;

22 Only the gold, and the silver, the brass, the iron, the tin, and the lead, 23 Every thing that may ^vabide the fire, ye shall make it go through the fire, and it shall be clean; nevertheless ^wit shall be purified with the water of separation: and all that abideth not the fire, ^xye shall make go through the water.

24 And ^yye shall wash your clothes on the seventh day, and ye shall be clean, and afterward ye shall come into the camp.

gone about deliberately. Once made, vows ought to be respected; and the breach of them will not fail to trouble the conscience. "Better is it that thou shouldst not vow, than that thou shouldst vow and not pay." There are circumstances in which persons may be placed, wherein a vow may prove helpful to virtue; but there are great perils connected with the formation of it. It is, therefore, one of those things in which, particularly, "wisdom is profitable to direct."

Chap. XXXI. 1-54. The iniquity of the Midianites, although not immediately punished, was not forgotten;

25 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

26 Take the sum of the prey ⁶that was taken, both of man and of beast, thou, and Eleazar the priest, and the chief fathers of the congregation;

27 And divide the prey into ¹two parts, between them that took the war upon them, who went out to battle, and between all the congregation;

28 And ²levy a tribute unto the LORD of the men of war which went out to battle: ³one soul of five hundred, both of the persons, and of the beeves, and of the asses, and of the sheep.

29 Take it of their half, and give it unto Eleazar the priest, for ⁴an heave-offering of the LORD.

30 And of the children of Israel's half, thou shalt take one portion of fifty, of the persons, of the beeves, of the asses, and of the ⁵flocks, of all manner of beasts, ⁶and give them unto the Levites, which ⁷keep the charge of the tabernacle of the LORD.

31 And Moses and Eleazar the priest did as the LORD commanded Moses.

32 And the booty, being the rest of the prey which the men of war had caught, was six hundred thousand, and seventy thousand, and five thousand sheep,

33 And threescore and twelve thousand beeves,

34 And threescore and one thousand asses,

35 And thirty and two thousand persons in all, of women that had not known man by lying with him.

36 And the half, which was the portion of them that went out to war, was in number three hundred thousand, and seven and thirty thousand and five hundred sheep:

37 And the LORD's tribute of the sheep was six hundred and threescore and fifteen.

38 And the beeves were thirty and six thousand, of which the LORD's tribute was threescore and twelve.

39 And the asses were thirty thousand and five hundred, of which the LORD's tribute was threescore and one.

40 And the persons were sixteen thousand, of which the LORD's tribute was thirty and two persons.

41 And Moses gave the tribute, which was the LORD's heave-offering, unto ⁸Eleazar the priest; as the LORD commanded Moses.

45 And thirty thousand asses and five hundred,

46 And sixteen thousand persons;)

47 Even of the children of Israel's half, Moses took one portion of fifty, both of man and of beast, and gave them unto ⁹the Levites, which ¹⁰kept the charge of the tabernacle of the LORD; as the LORD commanded Moses.

48 ¶ And the officers which were over thousands of the host, the captains of thousands, and captains of hundreds, came near unto Moses:

49 And they said unto Moses, Thy servants have taken the sum of the men of war which are under our ¹¹charge, and there ¹²lacketh not one man of us.

50 We have therefore brought ¹³an oblation for the LORD, what every man hath ¹⁴gotten, of jewels of gold, chains, and bracelets, rings, ear-rings, and tablets, to make ¹⁵an atonement for our souls before the LORD.

51 And ¹⁶Moses and Eleazar the priest took the gold of them, even all wrought jewels.

52 And all the gold of the ¹⁷offering that they offered up to the LORD, of the captains of thousands, and of the captains of hundreds, was sixteen thousand seven hundred and fifty shekels.

53 (For ¹⁸the men of war had taken spoil, every man for himself.)

54 And Moses and Eleazar the priest took the gold of the captains of thousands and of hundreds, and brought it into the tabernacle of the congregation, for ¹⁹a memorial for the children of Israel before the LORD.

CHAPTER XXXII.

The Reubenites and Gadites sue for their inheritance on the east side of Jordan.

NOW ²⁰the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, had a very great multitude of cattle: and when they saw the land of ²¹Bazer, and the land of Gilead, that, behold, ²²the place was a place for cattle; and Moses, under the Divine guidance, made special provision for its correction. In this, Moses was solely concerned for the honour of God, which had been outraged. The Midianites presented a considerable force; and it became necessary to proceed accordingly. The capture of no fewer than 16,000 armed men, conducted by five kings, shewed that they had come forth against Israel in great strength. From this it appears that every man of the children of Israel made a prisoner, leaving 4000 to be distributed among them. On this dreadful day, Balaam paid the penalty of his covetousness, and his other crimes. The enjoining of universal purification, on the part of the people who had come in contact with the Midianites, strongly indicated the impurity they had contracted from the idolatry to which they were devoted. Ver. 49 is remarkable, as indicating the shield of Omnipotence which had been stretched over the fighting men of Israel. Notwithstanding all they slew and all they took, they lost not a single man! Men so circumstanced, with a pledge of such a power to be exercised on their behalf, might well rush to the battle without fear. Well may Christians exclaim, "If God be for us, who can be against us!"

Chap. XXXII. 1-42. The children of Gad and of Reuben displayed a spirit of hateful selfishness, unworthy of the brotherhood to which they belonged. They were very willing to pitch their tents, for good, amidst excellent pasture-land, with their flocks, and to leave their brethren to go to war, clearing the territory for the establishment of their families; but the correction they received from Moses, shewed that he was not to be carried away by their crafty solicitations. When the cause of God is in difficulties, when dangers are to

2 The children of Gad, and the children of Reuben, came and spake unto Moses, and to Eleazar the priest, and unto the princes of the congregation, saying,

3 ^aAtaroth, and Dibon, and Jazer, and ^bNimrah, and ^cHeshbon, and Elealeh, and ^dShebam, and Nebo, and ^eBeon,

4 ^fEven ^gthe country which the LORD smote before the congregation of Israel, is a land for cattle, and thy servants have cattle:

5 Wherefore, said they, ^hif we have found grace in thy sight, let this land be given unto thy servants for a possession, and ⁱbring us not over Jordan.

6 ¶ And Moses said unto the children of Gad, and to the children of Reuben, Shall your brethren go to war, and ^jshall ye sit here?

7 And ^kwherefore ^ldiscourage ye the heart of the children of Israel from going over into the land which the LORD hath given them?

8 Thus did your fathers, ^mwhen I sent them from Kadesh-barnea to see the land.

9 For when they went up unto ⁿthe valley of Eshcol, and saw the land, they discouraged the heart of the children of Israel, that they should not go into the land which the LORD had given them.

10 And ^othe LORD's anger was kindled the same time, and he sware, saying,

11 Surely none of the men that came up out of Egypt, ^pfrom twenty years old and upward, shall see the land which I sware unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, because they have not ^qwholly followed me;

12 Save Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenezite, and Joshua the son of Nun: ^rfor they have wholly followed the LORD.

13 And the LORD's anger was kindled against Israel, and he made them ^swander in the wilderness forty years, ^tuntil all the generation, that had done evil in the sight of the LORD, was consumed.

14 And, behold, ye are risen up in your fathers' stead, ^uan increase of sinful men, ^vto augment yet the fierce anger of the LORD toward Israel.

15 For ^wif ye turn away from after him, ^xhe will yet again leave them in the wilderness; and ^yye shall destroy all this people.

16 ¶ And they came near unto him, and said, ^zWe will build sheep-folds here for our cattle, and cities for our little ones;

17 But ^{aa}we ourselves will go ready armed before the children of Israel, until we have brought them unto their place: and our little ones shall dwell in the fenced cities, because of the inhabitants of the land.

19 For ^{af}we will not inherit with them on yonder side Jordan, or forward; ^{ag}because our inheritance is fallen to us ^{ah}on this side Jordan eastward.

20 ¶ And ^{ai}Moses said unto them, If ye will do this thing, if ye will go armed before the LORD to war,

21 And will go all of you armed over Jordan before the LORD, until he hath driven out his enemies from before him, 22 And the ^{aj}land be subdued before the LORD: then afterward ye shall return, and ^{ak}be guiltless before the LORD, and before Israel; and ^{al}this land shall be your possession before the LORD.

23 But ^{am}if ye will not do so, behold, ye have sinned against the LORD: and ^{an}be sure your sin will find you out.

24 Build you cities for your little ones, and folds for your sheep; and do that which hath proceeded out of your mouth.

25 And the children of Gad, and the children of Reuben, spake unto Moses, saying, Thy servants will do as my lord commandeth.

26 Our little ones, our wives, our flocks, and all our cattle, shall be there in the cities of Gilead;

27 But thy servants will pass over, every man ^{ao}armed for war, before the LORD to battle, ^{ap}as my lord saith.

28 So concerning them Moses commanded Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the chief fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel:

29 And Moses said unto them, ^{aq}If the children of Gad, and the children of Reuben, will pass with you over Jordan, every man armed to battle, before the LORD, and the land shall be subdued before you; then ye shall give them the land of Gilead for a possession:

30 But if they will not pass over with you armed, ^{ar}they shall have possessions among you in the land of Canaan.

31 And the children of Gad, and the children of Reuben, answered, saying, As the LORD hath said unto thy servants, so will we do.

32 We will pass over armed before the LORD into the land of Canaan, that the possession of our inheritance on this side Jordan ^{as}may be ours.

33 And ^{at}Moses gave unto them, ^{au}even to the children of Gad, and to the children of Reuben, and unto ^{av}half the tribe of Manasseh the son of Joseph, ^{aw}the kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites, and the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, the land, with the cities thereof in the coasts, be encountered, and sacrifices to be made, the part of true moral greatness is to sue for the first post, and not to hang in the rear. The lesson supplied by Moses deserves to be meditated on by God's people, under all analogous circumstances. The children of those who have perished on account of some particular transgression, should not be found, in that respect, walking in their fathers' footsteps. The discourse of Moses, among other things, comprised a scripture which has been one of great significance in the Church of God ever since, and will be to the close of human history: "Be sure your sin will find you out." No search is so sure, none so terrible, as that which is instituted by sin itself! Escape is impossible, and so is resistance: the evil-doer even the cities of the country round about.

34 ¶ And the children of Gad built ¹Dibon, and Ataroth, and ²Aroer, 35 And Atroth, Shophan, and ³Jaazer, and Jogbehah,

36 And ⁴Beth-nimrah, and Beth-haran, fenced cities; and folds for sheep.

37 And the children of Reuben built ⁵Heshbon, and Elealeh, and Kirjathaim, 38 And Nebo, and Baal-meon, (their names being changed,) and Shibmah: and ⁶gave other names unto the cities which they builded.

39 And the children of ⁷Machir the son of Manasseh went to Gilead, and took it, and dispossessed the Amorite which was in it.

40 And Moses ⁸gave Gilead unto Machir the son of Manasseh; and he dwelt therein.

41 And ⁹Jair the son of Manasseh went and took the small towns thereof, and called them ¹⁰Havoth-jair.

42 And Nobah went and took Kenath, and the villages thereof, and called it Nobah, after his own name.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

1 Two and forty journeys of the Israelites. 50 The Canaanites are to be destroyed.

THESE are the journeys of the children of Israel, which went forth out of the land of Egypt ¹with their armies, ²under the hand of Moses and Aaron.

2 And Moses wrote their goings out according to their ³journeys, by the commandment of the LORD: and these are their journeys according to their goings out.

3 And ⁴they departed from Rameses ⁵in the first month, on the fifteenth day of the first month: on the morrow after the passover the children of Israel went out ⁶with an high hand in the sight of all the Egyptians.

4 (For the Egyptians ⁷buried all their first-born, which the LORD had smitten among them: ⁸upon their gods also the LORD executed judgments.)

5 And the children of Israel ⁹removed from Rameses, and pitched in Succoth.

6 And ¹⁰they departed from Succoth, and pitched in Etham, which is in the edge of the wilderness.

7 And ¹¹they removed from Etham, and turned again unto Pi-hahiroth, which is before Baal-zephon: and they pitched before Migdol.

8 And ¹²they departed from before Pi-hahiroth, and passed through the midst of the sea into the wilderness, and went three days' journey in the wilderness of Etham, and pitched in Marah.

9 And ¹³they removed from Marah, and came unto Elim: and in Elim were twelve habitants of the land from before you; then it shall come to pass, that those which ye let remain of them ¹shall be pricks in your eyes, and thorns in your sides, and shall vex you in the land wherein ye dwell.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

1 The borders of the land: 16 the names of the men which shall divide it.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Command the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye come into the land of Canaan, (³this is the land that shall fall unto you for ⁴an inheritance, even the land of Canaan, with the coasts thereof.)

3 Then your ⁵south quarter shall be from the wilderness of Zin, along by the coast of Edom, and your south border shall be the outmost coast of the ⁶salt sea eastward.

4 And your border shall turn from the south to the ascent of ⁷Akrabbim, and pass on to ⁸Zin: and the going forth thereof shall be from the south to ⁹Kadesh-barnea, and shall go on to ¹⁰Hazar-addar, and pass on to Azmon.

5 And the border shall fetch a compass from Azmon unto ¹¹the river of Egypt, and the goings out of it shall be at ¹²the sea.

6 And ¹³as for the western border, ye shall even have ¹⁴the great sea for a border: this shall be your west border.

7 And this shall be your ¹⁵north border: from the great sea ye shall point out for your mount Hor.

8 From mount Hor ye shall point out ¹⁶your border unto ¹⁷the entrance of Hamath: and the goings forth of the border shall be to Zedad.

9 And the border shall go on to Ziphron, and the goings out of it shall be at Hazar-enan: this shall be your north border.

10 And ye shall point out your east border from ¹⁸Hazar-enan to Shepham.

11 And the coast shall go down from Shepham to ¹⁹Riblah, on the east side of Ain; and the border shall descend, and shall reach unto the ²⁰side of ²¹the sea of Chinnereth eastward.

12 And the border shall go down to Jordan, and the goings out of it shall be at ²²the salt sea: this shall be your land, with the coasts thereof round about.

the Church of Christ, under the present dispensation. The intimation given as to the consequence of neglect to drive out the inhabitants, in ver. 55, is remarkable: "Pricks in the eyes and thorns in the sides," are expressions strikingly significant of the annoyance and affliction which was but too uniformly exemplified in the future career of the children of Israel. Instead of completely destroying, they spared the doomed nations, who proved alternately a snare and a scourge to them. Oriental travellers tell us, that they required nothing beyond their own experience to illustrate this scripture. From the want of shoes, and the narrowness of the pathways, they are often pricked with thorns; and hence it is with them a lively image of sharp suffering. The people have there a proverb, that "a wicked son is a thorn to his father," and a country surrounded with drawbacks, or enemies, is represented as a "thorny desert." The bearing of the matter on the heart of a Christian is strong—the injunction to every convert is, that he shall "crucify the flesh, with its affections and lusts;" and should he neglect to do so, he will not fail, ultimately, to pay very dearly for his transgression. Any inordinate desire may, at any moment, become a thorn, which will pierce the flesh, and produce poignant grief.

Chap. XXXIV. 1-29. It deserves particular notice, that the idea of territorial aggrandisement was interdicted to the Jews from the nature of their position. A land had been promised to them through their fathers; and that land was now given. It was sufficient for every purpose, and their duty was not to labour for its extension by conquest, but in holy obedience to remain in its

CHAPTER XXXV.

1 Eight and forty cities given to the Levites; 6 six of them to be cities of refuge. 9 The laws of murder.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses "in the plains of Moab, by Jordan near Jericho, saying,

2 Command ^bthe children of Israel, that they give unto the Levites, of the inheritance of their possession, cities to dwell in; and ye shall give also unto the Levites suburbs for the cities round about them.

3 And the cities shall they have to dwell in; "and the suburbs of them shall be for their cattle, and for their goods, and for all their beasts.

4 And the suburbs of the cities, which ye shall give unto the Levites, shall reach from the wall of the city and outward a thousand cubits round about.

5 And ye shall measure from without the city on the east side two thousand cubits, and on the south side two thousand cubits, and on the west side two thousand cubits, and on the north side two thousand cubits; and the city shall be in the midst: this shall be to them the suburbs of the cities.

6 And among the cities which ye shall give unto the Levites there shall be "six cities for refuge, which ye shall appoint for the manslayer, that he may flee thither: and ¹to them ye shall add forty and two cities.

7 So all the cities which ye shall give to the Levites shall be "forty and eight cities: them shall ye give with their suburbs.

8 And the cities which ye shall give shall be "of the possession of the children of Israel: "from them that have many ye shall give many; but from them that have few ye shall give few: every one shall give of his cities unto the Levites according to his inheritance which ²he inheriteth.

9 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

10 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, ¹When ye be come over Jordan into the land of Canaan,

11 Then ¹ye shall appoint you cities to be cities of refuge for you; that the slayer faithful occupancy; since, in the event of their so doing, the Lord had promised to be a "wall of fire around them," as well as "the glory in the midst of them." The extreme length of the land was about 170 miles, and the breadth about 80; a limited region, it is true, but fertile and salubrious, and every way a desirable residence. It reached from the river of Egypt to the Euphrates and Mount Lebanon, and was bounded on the north by Mount Hor, on the south by Kadesh-barnea, on the east by the Dead Sea, and on the west by the Mediterranean. The customary spirit of equity, which marked all the movements of Moses, was illustrated in the arrangements which were made for the division of the land. Favouritism was excluded; each tribe was represented by a "prince" of its own, to watch the interests of his people, and to exclude all jealousy or discontent that might otherwise have arisen on the ground of alleged partiality. The settlement itself was strikingly illustrative of kindness and consideration for things that might tend to promote the comfort of the people. Both in Palestine and in the wilderness they had been located, as much as might be, according to their fraternal relationships, the descendants of the sons of one mother being next to each other—an excellent guarantee for the maintenance of the good understanding so essential to domestic comfort and social concord.

Chap. XXXV. 1-34. Special care was here taken to provide for those who were least capable of providing for themselves—the Levites, whose work it was to supply religious instruction. The whole passage, ver. 1-8 inclusive, has a powerful spiritual bearing on the churches of Christ at the present hour, in relation to their ministers, schoolmasters, and all connected with the promotion of religion and education among them. These Levites were properly located among the various tribes, 13 And of these cities which ye shall give, six cities shall ye have for refuge.

14 Ye shall give ^mthree cities on this side Jordan, and three cities shall ye give in the land of Canaan, which shall be cities of refuge.

15 These six cities shall be a refuge, ⁿboth for the children of Israel, and for the stranger, and for the sojourner among them; that every one that killeth any person unawares may flee thither.

16 And ^oif he smite him with an instrument of iron, so that he die, he is a murderer: ^pthe murderer shall surely be put to death.

25 And the congregation shall deliver the slayer out of the hand of the revenger of blood, and the congregation shall restore him to the city of his refuge, whither he was fled: and he shall ^zabide in it unto the death of the high priest, which was ^aanointed with the holy oil.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

1 The inconvenience of the inheritance of daughters remedied. 10 The marriage of the daughters of Zelophehad.

AND the chief fathers of the families of the children of ^aGilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, of the families of the sons of Joseph, came near, and spake before Moses, and before the princes, the chief fathers of the children of Israel;

2 And they said, ^bThe LORD commanded my lord to give the land for an inheritance by lot to the children of Israel: and my lord was commanded by the LORD ^cto give the inheritance of Zelophehad our brother unto his daughters.

3 And if they be married to any of the sons of the other tribes of the children of Israel, then shall their inheritance be taken from the inheritance of our fathers, and shall be put to the inheritance of the tribe whereunto they are received: so shall it be taken from the lot of our inheritance.

4 And when ^dthe jubilee of the children of Israel shall be, then shall their inheritance be put unto the inheritance of the tribe ^ewhereunto they are received: so shall their inheritance be taken away from the inheritance of the tribe of our fathers.

5 ^fAnd Moses commanded the chil-that they, like distributed lights, might have access to them at all times, and in all directions; conferring upon them the benefit of regular instruction: so that the curse uttered against Levi, that he should be scattered, Genesis xlii. 5-7, was actually turned into a blessing, as a reward of the excellent conduct of his sons, set forth in Exodus xxiii. The Cities of Refuge are one of the most delightful types of the Old Testament economy, since they exhibit flight to the Lord Jesus as the only method of safety when the sinner is pursued by the broken law. Once in Him, he may look back with composure, and without fear of further peril, since "there is no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus." But should the law reach the sinner before he cleave to the Lord, he is undone. "How shall" he "escape" if he "neglect so great salvation!"

Chap. XXXVI. 1-13. This chapter is fruitful of suggestions on the subject of matrimony, clearly shewing that God's people, in this matter, ought to be governed by the will of their Heavenly Father, whose wisdom is as great as his love, and who never loses sight of their dren of Israel according to the word of the LORD, saying, The tribe of the sons of Joseph ^ahath said well.

6 This is the thing which the LORD doth command concerning the daughters of Zelophehad, saying, Let them ^amarry to whom they think best; ^aonly to the family of the tribe of their father shall they marry:

7 So shall not the inheritance of the children of Israel remove from tribe to tribe; for every one of the children of Israel shall ^akeep himself to the inheritance of the tribe of his fathers.

8 And ^aevery daughter, that possesseth an inheritance in any tribe of the children of Israel, shall be wife unto one of the family of the tribe of her father, that the children of Israel may enjoy every man the inheritance of his fathers.

12 And they were married ^ainto the families of the sons of Manasseh the son of Joseph; and their inheritance remained in the tribe of the family of their father.

13 These ^aare the commandments and the judgments which the LORD commanded, by the hand of Moses, unto the children of Israel ^ain the plains of Moab, by Jordan near Jericho.

THE FIFTH BOOK OF MOSES, CALLED DEUTERONOMY.

The name of this Book signifies the second law. It is, to a considerable extent, a repetition of the enactments contained in the previous books: the only great new fact is the death of Moses. Amid the substantial sameness, there is, nevertheless, a beautiful variety of statement. The laws here rehearsed are extended and enlarged, while here and there fresh precepts are added to them, with copious arguments for their enforcement. The Book may be viewed as a farewell address of an aged parent to a family of undutiful children, for whom he displays the most intense affection, with the deepest anxiety for their future welfare. Notwithstanding the age of Moses, there is no indication of mental decay; the Book is as full of life and power as any part of his earlier writings; and to persons, spiritually enlightened, it is calculated to prove very beneficial.

7 Turn you, and take your journey, and go to ^athe mount of the Amorites, and unto ^aall the places nigh thereunto, ^ain the plain, in the hills, and in the vale, and in the south, and by the sea-side, to the land of the Canaanites, and unto Lebanon, unto ^athe great river, the river Euphrates.

9 ¶ And I spake unto you at that time, saying, ^aI am not able to bear you myself alone:

10 The LORD ^ayour God hath multiplied shall they marry." This is a question which alike concerns old and young, parents and children, wives and husbands.

Chap. I. 1-18. The Israelites are reminded, in ver. 2, that their wanderings in the wilderness were the punishment of their rebellion, since, under other circumstances, they might speedily have been settled in the promised land: the short period of ten or eleven days might have sufficed for them to travel from Horeb to the borders of Palestine. One of the most interesting instances of an administrative character to be found in the Holy Scriptures is that contained in ver. 9-18, in welfare. Of all miserable things, a bad marriage is the most miserable. No evil is so appalling as that to which death alone can bring a remedy! The only limit to marriage set by the law of the Lord is piety. Every other question is left to the good sense and discretion of the individuals; but "only in the Lord" is peremptory—no option is left here. The union of Christians ought, uniformly, at whatever sacrifice, to be of a character which furnishes a well-grounded hope of uniting in the heavenly inheritance, when the ties of earth shall have been snapped asunder. There is great beauty in the words of Moses, "Let them marry to whom they think best; only to the family of the tribe of their father you, and, behold, ye are this day as the stars of heaven for multitude.

11 (The LORD God of your fathers ¹make you a thousand times so many more as ye are, ²and bless you, as he hath promised you.)

12 How can I myself alone ¹bear your cumbrance, and your burden, and your strife?

13 ¹Take you ²wise men, and understanding, and known among your tribes, and I will make them rulers over you.

14 And ye answered me, and said, The thing which thou hast spoken is good for us to do.

15 So ¹I took the chief of your tribes, wise men, and known, and ²made them heads over you, ³captains over thousands, and captains over hundreds, and captains over fifties, and captains over tens, and officers among your tribes.

16 And I ¹charged your judges at that time, saying, ²Hear the causes between your brethren, and judge righteously between every man and his brother, and ³the stranger that is with him.

17 Ye ¹shall not ²respect persons in judgment, but ³ye shall hear the small as well as the great; ⁴ye shall not be afraid of the face of man; for ⁵the judgment is God's: and ⁶the cause that is too hard for you, bring it unto me, and I will hear it.

18 And I ¹commanded you at that time all the things which ye should do.

19 ¶ And when we departed from Horeb, we went ¹through all that great and terrible wilderness, which ye saw by the way of the mountain of the Amorites, as the LORD our God commanded us; and ²we came to Kadesh-barnea.

20 And I said unto you, Ye are come unto ¹the mountain of the Amorites, which the LORD our God doth give unto us.

21 Behold, the LORD thy God hath set the land before thee: go up and possess it, as the LORD God of thy fathers hath said unto thee; ²fear not, neither be discouraged.

22 ¶ And ye came near unto me every one of you, and said, ¹We will send men before us, and they shall search us out the land, and bring us word again by what way we must go up, and into what cities we shall come.

23 And the saying pleased me well; and 25 And they took of the fruit of the land in their hands, and brought it down unto us, and brought us word again, and said, It is a good land which the LORD our God doth give us.

26 Notwithstanding ¹ye would not go up, but rebelled against the commandment of the LORD your God:

27 And ye murmured in your tents, and said, Because ¹the LORD hated us, he hath brought us forth out of the land of Egypt, to deliver us into the hand of the Amorites, to destroy us.

28 Whither shall we go up? our brethren have ¹discouraged our heart, saying, ²'The people is greater and taller than we; the cities are great, and walled up to heaven: and, moreover, ³we have seen the sons of the Anakims there.

29 Then I said unto you, ¹Dread not, neither be afraid of them.

30 The LORD your God, which goeth before you, ¹he shall fight for you, ²according to all that he did for you in Egypt before your eyes;

31 And ¹in the wilderness, where thou hast seen how that the LORD thy God ²bare thee, as a man doth bear his son, in all the way that ye went, until ye came into this place.

32 Yet in this thing ¹ye did not believe the LORD your God, 33 Who went ¹in the way before you, to search you out a place to pitch your tents in, ²in fire by night, to shew you by what way ye should go, and in a cloud by day.

34 ¶ And the LORD heard the voice of your words, and was wroth, ¹and sware, saying,

35 Surely there shall not one of these men of this evil generation see that good land, which I sware to give unto your fathers, 36 Save ¹Caleb the son of Jephunneh, he shall see it; and to him will I give the land that he hath trodden upon, and to his children, because he hath ²wholly followed the LORD.

37 Also ¹the LORD was angry with which an observant and experienced man of advanced years, shewed himself to be the possessor of a wisdom superior to that even of the great Jewish Law-giver himself. Nothing can exceed the beauty of the spirit displayed by Moses on this occasion. It was the vastness of the numbers which rendered necessary the appointment of additional judges—a fact which Moses turns to excellent account in exciting gratitude to the God of Abraham. What benevolence and grace he manifests in the pious burst, contained in ver. 11, that the multitude of the people might be increased a thousand fold! Nothing can be more admirable than his idea of the principle of justice, which ought to regulate all judicial decisions. The time will come when this principle, so long neglected, will again be attended to. Love ought to be, and in process of time it will be, simply an obedience to the Divine injunction; a doing to others as men would be done by. Ver. 19-46. The matter of the bees, in ver. 44, is not a little remarkable. Travellers, and among others Park, advert to the formidable character of the Eastern bees. Having attempted to rob a hive, he was attacked so furiously, that men, horses, and asses, utterly unable to stand their ground, were compelled to fly in all directions. They have been known to kill both men and cattle in revenge for injury done to their hives. It is easy to observe great advance in spirituality of mind on the part of Moses, as he approaches the end of his journey. The distinct intimation he received that he was never to see the promised land appears deeply to have affected his mind, and all the more as it implied that the time of his departure was at hand. He now beheld the approaching close of the weary pilgrimage of the people he so much loved, and by consequence, the end of all his trials and afflictions.

me for your sakes, saying, Thou also shalt not go in thither.

38 But ^aJoshua the son of Nun, ^bwhich standeth before thee, he shall go in thither: ^cencourage him; for he shall cause Israel to inherit it.

39 Moreover, ^ayour little ones, which ye said should be a prey, and your children, ^bwhich in that day had no knowledge between good and evil, they shall go in thither, and unto them will I give it, and they shall possess it.

40 But as for you, turn you, and take your journey into the wilderness, by the way of the Red sea.

41 Then ye answered and said unto me, ^aWe have sinned against the LORD, we will go up and fight, according to all that the LORD our God commanded us. And when ye had girded on every man his weapons of war, ye were ready to go up into the hill.

42 And the LORD said unto me, Say unto them, Go not up, neither fight; ^afor I am not among you; lest ye be smitten before your enemies.

43 So I spake unto you; and ye would not hear, ^abut rebelled against the commandment of the LORD, and ^bwent presumptuously up into the hill.

44 And the Amorites, which dwelt in that mountain, came out against you, and ^achased you, as bees do, and destroyed you in Seir, even unto Hormah.

45 And ^aye returned, and wept before the LORD; but the LORD would not hearken to your voice, nor give ear unto you.

46 So ye abode in Kadesh many days, according unto the days that ye abode there.

CHAPTER II.

1 The story is continued touching the Edomites, 9 the Moabites, 18 the Ammonites, 24 and Sihon the Amorite.

THEN ^awe turned, and took our journey into the wilderness, by the way of the Red sea, as the LORD spake unto me; and ^bwe compassed mount Seir many days.

2 And the LORD spake unto me, saying,

3 Ye have compassed this mountain ^along enough: turn you northward.

4 And command thou the people, saying, ^aYe are to pass through the coast of your brethren the children of Esau, which dwell in Seir, and ^bthey shall be afraid of you: ^ctake ye good heed unto yourselves therefore.

5 Meddle not with them; for I will not give you of their land, ^ano, not so much as a foot-breadth; ^bbecause I have given mount Seir unto Esau for a possession.

6 Ye shall ^abuy meat of them for money, that ye may eat; and ye shall also buy water of them for money, that ye may drink.

7 For the LORD thy God hath ^ablessed thee in all the works of thy hand: ^bhe knoweth thy walking through this great wilderness: ^cthese forty years the LORD thy God hath been with thee; thou hast lacked nothing.

8 And ^awhen we passed by from our brethren the children of Esau, which dwelt in Seir, through the way of the plain from ^bElath, and from Ezion-gaber, we turned and passed by the way of the wilderness of Moab.

9 And the LORD said unto me, ^aDistress not the Moabites, neither contend with them in battle: for I will not give thee of their land for a possession; because I have given ^bAr unto ^cthe children of Lot for a possession.

10 The ^aEmims dwelt therein in times past, a people great, and many, and tall, as the Anakims;

11 Which also were accounted giants, ^aas the Anakims; but the Moabites call them Emims.

12 The ^aHorims also dwelt in Seir before-time; but the children of Esau ^bsucceeded them, when they had destroyed them from before them, and dwelt in their ^cstead, ^das Israel did unto the land of his possession, which the LORD gave unto them.

13 Now rise up, said I, and get you over the ^abrook ^bZered: and we went over the brook Zered.

14 And the space in which we came from ^aKadesh-barnes, until we were come over the brook Zered, was thirty and eight years; ^buntil all the generation of the men of war were wasted out from among the host, as the LORD swore unto them.

15 For indeed ^athe hand of the LORD was against them, to destroy them from among the host, until they were consumed.

16 ¶ So it came to pass, when all the men of war were consumed and dead from among the people,

17 That the LORD spake unto me, saying,

18 Thou art to ^apass over through Ar, the coast of Moab, this day.

19 And when thou comest nigh over against the children of Ammon, ^adistress them not, nor meddle with them: for I will not give thee of the land of the chil-

Happy they who can both look backward and forward with peace, satisfaction, confidence, and hope, such as sustained the heart, and cheered the prospect of the Law-giver!

Chap. II. 1-37. The manna was still continued, because still necessary; but the people naturally longed for the period when they should obtain a change of provisions. In ver. 20-23, it comes clearly out that the offspring of Esau had vanquished a very powerful nation —an event by which the promise concerning him had in part been fulfilled. Amidst all the injunctions to make head against the inhabitants of Canaan, we see a blending of benevolence with justice. The Edomites were not to be assailed, since they were their relatives; they had, indeed, been unkind to the children of Israel, in denying them a passage through their country; but still this did not affect the intimate relation which existed between them, and it was better to forbear and forgive than to remember grievances. The lesson to relatives here sugdren of Ammon any possession, because I have given it unto the children of Lot for a possession.

20 (That also was accounted a land of giants: giants dwelt therein in old time; and the Ammonites call them ^cZam-zummims;

21 A people ^dgreat, and many, and tall, as the Anakims; ^ebut the LORD destroyed them before them; and they succeeded them, and dwelt in their stead:

22 As he did to the children of ^fEsau which dwelt in Seir, when he destroyed ^gthe Horims from before them; and they succeeded them, and dwelt in their stead, even unto this day:

23 And ^hthe Avims which dwelt in Hazerim, even unto ⁱAzzah, ^kthe Caphtorims, which came forth out of Caphtor, destroyed them, and dwelt in their stead.)

24 ^l¶ Rise ye up, take your journey, and pass over ^mthe river Arnon: ⁿbehold, I have given into thine hand Sihon the Amorite, king of Heshbon, and his land; ^obegin to possess it, and contend with him in battle.

25 This day will I begin ^pto put the dread of thee, and the fear of thee, upon the nations ^qthat are under the whole heaven, who shall hear report of thee, and shall tremble, and be in anguish because of thee.

26 ^r¶ And I sent messengers out of the wilderness of ^sKedemoth unto Sihon king of Heshbon, ^twith words of peace, saying, 27 Let ^ume pass through thy land: I will go along by the high-way, I will neither turn unto the right hand nor to the left.

28 Thou shalt sell me meat for money, that I may eat; and give me water for money, that I may drink; ^vonly I will pass through on my feet, 29 (As ^wthe children of Esau which dwell in Seir, and the Moabites which dwell in Ar, did unto me,) until I shall pass over Jordan, ^xinto the land which the LORD our God giveth us.

30 But Sihon king of Heshbon would not let us pass by him: for ^ythe LORD thy God hardened his spirit, and made his heart ^zobstinate, that he might deliver him into thy hand, as ^{aa}appeareth this day.

31 And the LORD said unto me, Behold, I have begun to give Sihon and his land before thee: begin to possess, that thou mayest inherit his land.

32 Then ^{ab}Sihon came out against us, he and all his people, to fight at Jahaz.

33 And ^{ac}the LORD our God delivered

CHAPTER III.

1 Of Og king of Bashan. 23 Moses' prayer to enter into the land; 26 he is permitted to see it.

THEN we turned, and went up the way to Bashan: and ^{aj}Og the king of Bashan came out against us, he and all his people, to battle at Edrei.

2 And the LORD said unto me, ^{ak}Fear him not: for I will deliver him, and all his people, and his land, into thy hand; and thou shalt do unto him ^{al}as thou didst unto Sihon king of the Amorites, which dwelt at Heshbon.

3 So ^{am}the LORD our God delivered into our hands Og also, the king of Bashan, and all his people: and we smote him, until none was left to him remaining.

4 And we took ^{an}all his cities at that time; there was not a city which we took not from them, threescore cities, ^{ao}all the region of Argob, the kingdom of Og in Bashan.

5 All these cities were ^{ap}fenced with high walls, gates, and bars; beside unwalled towns a great many.

6 And ^{aq}we utterly destroyed them, ^{ar}as we did unto Sihon king of Heshbon, utterly destroying the men, women, and children, of every city.

7 But ^{as}all the cattle, and the spoil of the cities, we took for a prey to ourselves.

8 And we took at that time, out of the hand of the two kings of the Amorites, ^{at}the land that was on this side Jordan, from the river of Arnon unto mount Hermon;

9 (Which ^{au}Hermon the Sidonians call Sirion, and the Amorites call it ^{av}Shenir;)

gested is important. The Moabites were to be respected since they were the children of Lot. Not so the Amorites, the cup of whose iniquity was full, and on whom the Divine displeasure was about to descend. These people had been long endured, but the patience of the Most High was at an end, and they were now to be cut off in their iniquity. They who will not avail themselves of the provisions of mercy, must submit to the demands of justice.

Chap. III. 1-29. Bashan was a place famous in those days, and in after-times, for the fertility of its soil, the excellence of its pasture, and the value of its cattle. In ver. 25, Moses appears in his own true and noble character. While entirely prepared to surrender his authority, he still remained the subject of a desire to enter the promised land before he went hence to be no more for ever. This desire, we may be assured, arose, not from love of life, from a love of the world, reluctance to part with power, a desire for earthly indulgence, or from a fear of death: he was superior to all these; but he looked upon 11 For only Og king of Bashan remained of the remnant of ¹giants; behold, his bedstead was a bedstead of iron: is it not in ²Rabbath of the children of Ammon? ³nine cubits was the length thereof, and four cubits the breadth of it, after the cubit of a man.

12 And this land, which we possessed at that time, ⁴from Aroer, which is by the river Arnon, and half mount Gilead, and the cities thereof, gave I unto the Reubenites, and to the Gadites.

13 And ⁵the rest of Gilead, and all Bashan, being the kingdom of Og, gave I unto the half-tribe of Manasseh; all the region of Argob, with all Bashan, which was called the land of giants.

14 ⁶Jair the son of Manasseh took all the country of ⁷Argob, unto the coasts of ⁸Geshuri and Maachathi, and called them after his own name, ⁹Bashan-havoth-jair, unto this day.

15 And I gave Gilead unto ¹⁰Machir.

16 And unto ¹¹the Reubenites, and unto the Gadites, I gave from Gilead even unto the river Arnon, half the valley, and the border, even unto the ¹²river Jabbok, which is the border of the children of Ammon;

17 The plain also, and Jordan, and the coast thereof, from ¹³Chinnereth even unto ¹⁴the sea of the plain, even the salt sea, under ¹⁵Ashdod-pisgah eastward.

18 ¶ And ¹⁶I commanded you at that time, saying, The LORD your God hath given you this land to possess it: ye shall pass over armed before your brethren the children of Israel, all that are ¹⁷meet for the war.

19 But your wives, and your little ones, and your cattle, (for I know that ye have much cattle,) shall abide in your cities which I have given you;

20 Until the LORD have given rest unto your brethren, as well as unto you, and until they also possess the land which the LORD your God hath given them beyond Jordan: and then shall ye ¹⁸return every man unto his possession, which I have given you.

21 ¶ And ¹⁹I commanded Joshua at that time, saying, Thine eyes have seen all that the LORD your God hath done unto these two kings: ²⁰so shall the LORD do unto all the kingdoms whither thou passest.

22 Ye shall not fear them: ²¹for the LORD your God he shall fight for you.

23 ¶ And ²²I besought the LORD at that time, saying,

24 O Lord God, thou hast begun to shew thy servant ²³thy greatness, and thy mighty hand: for ²⁴what God is there in heaven or in earth that can do according to thy works, and according to thy might?

25 I pray thee, let me go over and see ²⁵the good land that is beyond Jordan, that goodly mountain, and Lebanon.

26 But ²⁶the LORD was wroth with me for your sakes, and would not hear me: and the LORD said unto me, ²⁷Let it suffice thee; speak no more unto me of this matter.

27 Get thee ²⁸up into the top of ²⁹Pisgah, and ³⁰lift up thine eyes westward, and northward, and southward, and eastward, and behold ³¹it with thine eyes: for thou shalt not go over this Jordan.

28 But ³²I charge Joshua, and encourage him, and strengthen him: ³³for he shall go over before this people, and he shall cause them to inherit the land which thou shalt see.

29 So we abode in the ³⁴valley over against Beth-peor.

CHAPTER IV.

1 An exhortation to obedience. 41 Moses appointeth the three cities of refuge on the east side of Jordan.

NOW therefore hearken, O Israel, ²unto the statutes, and unto the judgments, which I teach you, for to do ³them, ⁴that ye may live, and go in and possess the land which the LORD God of your fathers giveth you.

2 Ye shall not ⁵add unto the word which I command you, neither shall ye diminish ⁶ought from it, that ye may keep the commandments of the LORD your God which I command you.

3 Your eyes have seen ⁷what the LORD did because of Baal-peor: for all the men that followed Baal-peor, the LORD thy God hath destroyed them from among you.

4 But ye that did ⁸cleave unto the LORD your God are alive every one of you this day.

5 Behold, ⁹I have taught you statutes and judgments, even as the LORD my God

Canaan as the great object of promise made to Abraham, and a figure of the inheritance of the heavenly world; and hence his anxiety to pass through it on his way to take his place in the society of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Love, in the soul of Moses, might now be viewed as perfect, casting out fear, and inspiring grateful praise. He had fought a good fight; he had kept the faith; and he entertained a full assurance, that there remained for him a crown of glory, to be received from the hand of his approving Master.

Chap. IV. 1-20. These exhortations are such as became one who might be said to be a dying man; they are in all respects valedictory. The whole of the chapter is marked by sublime simplicity. The Great Legislator insists on the people's cleaving to the written Word, to the exclusion of everything which might impair its authority. Nothing can more completely cut up Popery by the roots than the exhortations and injunctions of Moses to the people to make the Word of the Lord the theme of their constant study and habitual remembrance. Moses displays a clear and lofty conception of the superiority of his laws to those of all mankind, and of the consequent elevation of the Jewish people in point of privilege. The children of Israel alone enjoyed a system of instruction and of worship founded in truth, and adapted to human nature. They were, in very deed, a great nation, and ought to have been "a wise and understanding people." Ver. 21-49. How pathetic is the rehearsal of Moses of the circumstances by which he himself was doomed to die in the wilderness, and how earnest the counsels he gives to the people to walk in the fear of the Lord, in the comfort of his steadfast love and powerful protection! These counsels are commanded me, that ye should do so in the land whither ye go to possess it.

6 Keep therefore, and do them: for this is your wisdom and your understanding in the sight of the nations, which shall hear all these statutes, and say, Surely this great nation is a wise and understanding people.

7 For what nation is there so great, who hath God so nigh unto them, as the LORD our God is in all things that we call upon him for?

8 And what nation is there so great, that hath statutes and judgments so righteous as all this law, which I set before you this day?

9 Only take heed to thyself, and keep thy soul diligently, lest thou forget the things which thine eyes have seen, and lest they depart from thy heart all the days of thy life; but teach them thy sons, and thy sons' sons:

10 Specially the day that thou stoodest before the LORD thy God in Horeb, when the LORD said unto me, Gather me the people together, and I will make them hear my words, that they may learn to fear me all the days that they shall live upon the earth, and that they may teach their children.

11 And ye came near, and stood under the mountain; and the mountain burned with fire unto the midst of heaven, with darkness, clouds, and thick darkness.

12 And the LORD spake unto you out of the midst of the fire: ye heard the voice of the words, but saw no similitude; only ye heard a voice.

13 And he declared unto you his covenant, which he commanded you to perform, even ten commandments; and he wrote them upon two tables of stone.

14 ¶ And the LORD commanded me at that time to teach you statutes and judgments, that ye might do them in the land whither ye go over to possess it.

15 Take ye therefore good heed unto yourselves, (for ye saw no manner of similitude on the day that the LORD spake unto you in Horeb out of the midst of the fire,)

16 Lest ye corrupt yourselves, and make you a graven image, the similitude of any figure, the likeness of male or female;

17 The likeness of any beast that is on the earth, the likeness of any winged fowl that flieth in the air;

18 The likeness of anything that creepeth on the ground, the likeness of any fish that is in the waters beneath the earth:

19 And lest thou lift up thine eyes unto heaven, and when thou seest the sun, and the moon, and the stars, even all the host of heaven, shouldst be driven to worship them, and serve them, which the LORD thy God hath divided unto all nations under the whole heaven.

20 But the LORD hath taken you, and brought you forth out of the iron furnace, even out of Egypt, to be unto him a people of inheritance, as ye are this day.

21 Furthermore, the LORD was angry with me for your sakes, and sware that I should not go over Jordan, and that I should not go in unto that good land which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance;

22 But I must die in this land, I must not go over Jordan: but ye shall go over, and possess that good land.

23 Take heed unto yourselves, lest ye forget the covenant of the LORD your God, which he made with you, and make you a graven image, or the likeness of any thing, which the LORD thy God hath forbidden thee.

24 For the LORD thy God is a consuming fire, even a jealous God.

25 ¶ When thou shalt beget children, and children's children, and ye shall have remained long in the land, and shall corrupt yourselves, and make a graven image, or the likeness of any thing, and shall do evil in the sight of the LORD thy God, to provoke him to anger;

26 I call heaven and earth to witness against you this day, that ye shall soon utterly perish from off the land whereunto ye go over Jordan to possess it; ye shall not prolong your days upon it, but shall utterly be destroyed.

27 And the LORD shall scatter you among the nations, and ye shall be left few in number among the heathen, whither the LORD shall lead you.

28 And there ye shall serve gods, the work of men's hands, wood and stone, which neither see, nor hear, nor eat, nor smell.

29 But if from thence thou shalt seek the LORD thy God, thou shalt find him, if thou seek him with all thy heart, and with all thy soul.

30 When thou art in tribulation, and all these things are come upon thee, even in the latter days, if thou turn to the LORD thy God, and shalt be obedient unto his voice;

31 (For the LORD thy God is a merciful God;) he will not forsake thee, neither destroy thee, nor forget the covenant of thy fathers, which he sware unto them.

32 For ask now of the days that are past, which were before thee, since the day that God created man upon the earth; and ask from the one side of heaven unto the other, whether there hath been any such thing as this great thing is, or hath been heard like it?

marked by a fearful solemnity, and the warnings given might well excite the deepest reverence. Rightly to appreciate this address of Moses, he must be viewed in his typical character, as prefiguring the Lord Jesus; yet it deserves particular notice, how far the type comes short of the Antitype in love, pathos, spirituality, and sublimity. The closing addresses of Jesus in the Gospel by John beautifully illustrate the difference, and explain the passage, "The law was given by Moses; but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ."

33 Did ever people ^ahear the voice of God speaking out of the midst of the fire, as thou hast heard, and live?

34 Or hath God assayed to go and ^atake him a nation from the midst of another nation, by ^atemptations, ^aby signs, and by wonders, and by war, and ^aby a mighty hand, and by a stretched-out arm, ^aand by great terrors, according to all that the LORD your God did for you in Egypt before your eyes?

35 Unto thee it was shewed, that thou mightest ^aknow that the LORD he is God; there ^ais none else beside him.

36 Out ^aof heaven he made thee to hear his voice, that he might instruct thee; and upon earth he shewed thee his great fire; and thou heardest his words out of the midst of the fire.

37 And ^abecause he loved thy fathers, therefore he chose their seed after them, and brought thee out ^ain his sight ^awith his mighty power out of Egypt;

38 To ^adrive out nations from before thee greater and mightier than thou art, to bring thee in, to give thee their land for an inheritance, ^aas it is this day.

39 Know therefore this day, ^aand consider it in thine heart, that ^athe LORD he is God in heaven above, and upon the earth beneath: there is none else.

40 Thou shalt ^akeep therefore his statutes, and his commandments, which I command thee this day, that ^ait may go well with thee, and with thy children after thee, and that thou mayest prolong thy days upon the earth, which the LORD thy God giveth thee, for ever.

41 ¶ Then Moses ^asevered three cities on this side Jordan, toward the sun-rising;

42 That ^athe slayer might flee thither, which should kill his neighbour unawares, and hated him not in times past; and that, fleeing unto one of these cities, he might live:

43 Namely, ^aBezer in the wilderness, in the plain country of the Reubenites; and ^aRamoth in Gilead of the Gadites; and Golan in Bashan of the Manassites.

44 ¶ And this ^ais the law which Moses set before the children of Israel:

45 These ^aare the testimonies, and the statutes, and the judgments, which Moses spake unto the children of Israel, after they came forth out of Egypt;

46 On ^athis side Jordan, in the valley over against Beth-peor, in the land of Sihon king of the Amorites, who dwelt at Heshbon, whom ^aMoses and the children of Israel smote, after they were come forth out of Egypt:

47 And they possessed his land, and ^athe land of Og king of Bashan, two kings

CHAPTER V.

1 The covenant in Horeb. 6 The ten commandments. 22 At the people's request Moses receiveth the law from God.

AND Moses called ^aall Israel, and said unto them, ^aHear, O Israel, the statutes and judgments which I speak in your ears this day, that ye may learn them, and ^akeep and do them.

2 The LORD ^aour God made a covenant with us in Horeb.

3 The LORD ^amade not this covenant with our fathers, but with us, even us, who are all of us here alive this day.

4 The LORD ^atalked with you face to face in the mount, out of the midst of the fire,

5 (I ^astood between the LORD and you at that time, to shew you the word of the LORD; for ye were afraid by reason of the fire, and went not up into the mount,) saying,

6 ¶ ^aI am the LORD thy God, which ^abrought thee out of the land of Egypt, from the house of ^abondage.

7 Thou ^ashalt have none other gods before me.

8 Thou shalt not make thee any ^agraven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the waters beneath the earth:

9 Thou ^ashalt not bow down thyself unto them, nor serve them: for I the LORD thy God am ^aa jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me,

10 And ^ashewing mercy unto thousands of them that ^alove me, and keep my commandments.

11 Thou ^ashalt not take the name of the LORD thy God in vain: for the LORD will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain.

12 ^aKeep the sabbath-day to sanctify it, as the LORD thy God hath commanded thee.

13 ^aSix days thou shalt labour, and do all thy work;

14 But the seventh day is ^athe sabbath of the LORD thy God: in ^ait thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, nor thy man-servant, nor thy maid-servant, nor thine ox, nor thine ass, nor any of thy cattle, nor ^athy stran-

Chap. V. 1-33. Moses opens by displaying the intensity of his solicitude about the people's remembering his laws. The commandments, notwithstanding their fragmentary aspect, comprise the perfection of excellence: they cannot be improved. An eminent infidel lawyer, induced by a friend to read the Bible, on reaching the commandments, the thought occurred to him, "Cannot I add something to these? cannot I take something from them, and improve them?" A man of powerful mind, and endowed with an unusual measure of self-confidence, he set himself to meditate the precepts, and the result was, a conviction that man's wis-ger that is within thy gates; that ^uthy man-servant and thy maid-servant may rest as well as thou.

15 And ^aremember that thou wast a servant in the land of Egypt, and that ⁷the LORD thy God brought thee out thence ^athrough a mighty hand, and by a stretched-out arm: therefore the LORD thy God commanded thee to keep the sabbath-day.

16 [†]Honour thy father and thy mother, as the LORD thy God hath commanded thee; that ^bthy days may be prolonged, and that it may go well with thee, in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

17 Thou ^cshalt not kill.

18 Neither ^dshalt thou commit adultery.

19 Neither ^eshalt thou steal.

20 Neither ^fshalt thou bear false witness against thy neighbour.

21 Neither ^gshalt thou desire thy neighbour's wife, neither shalt thou covet thy neighbour's house, his field, or his man-servant, or his maid-servant, his ox, or his ass, or any thing that is thy neighbour's.

22 [†]These ^hwords the LORD spake unto all your assembly in the mount, out of the midst of the fire, of the cloud, and of the thick darkness, with a great voice; and he added no more: and ⁱhe wrote them in two tables of stone, and delivered them unto me.

23 And it came to pass, ^kwhen ye heard the voice out of the midst of the darkness, (for the mountain did burn with fire,) that ye came near unto me, even all the heads of your tribes, and your elders;

24 And ye said, Behold, the LORD our God hath shewed us his glory, and his greatness, and ^lwe have heard his voice out of the midst of the fire: we have seen this day that God doth talk with man, and ^mhe liveth.

25 Now therefore why should we die? for ⁿthis great fire will consume us. If we ^ohear the voice of the LORD our God any more, then we shall die.

26 For ^pwho is there of ^qall flesh, that hath heard the voice of the ^rliving God speaking out of the midst of the fire, as we have, and lived?

27 Go thou near, and ^shear all that the LORD our God shall say; and speak thou unto us all that the LORD our God shall speak unto thee, and we will hear ^tit, and do ^uit.

28 And the LORD heard the voice of your words, when ye spake unto me; and the LORD said unto me, I have heard the voice of the words of this people, which they have spoken unto thee: ^athey have well said all that they have spoken.

29 ^bOh that there were such an heart in them, that they would fear me, and ^ckeep all my commandments always, ^dthat it might be well with them, and with their children for ever!

30 Go say to them, Get you into your tents again.

31 But as for thee, stand thou here by me, and ^eI will speak unto thee all the commandments, and the statutes, and the judgments, which thou shalt teach them, that they may do them in the land which I give them to possess it.

32 Ye shall ^fobserve to do therefore as the LORD your God hath commanded you: ^gye shall not turn aside to the right hand or to the left.

33 Ye shall ^hwalk in all the ways which the LORD your God hath commanded you, that ye may live, and that it may be ⁱwell with you, and that ye may prolong your days in the land which ye shall possess.

CHAPTER VI.

1 The end of the law is obedience. 3 An exhortation thereto.

NOW these are ^athe commandments, the statutes, and the judgments, which the LORD your God commanded to teach you, that ye might do them in the land whither ye go ^bto possess it;

2 That thou mightest ^cfear the LORD thy God, to keep all his statutes, and his commandments, which I command thee; thou, ^dand thy son, and thy son's son, all the days of thy life, and that ^ethy days may be prolonged.

3 [†]Hear therefore, O Israel, ^fand observe to do ^git; that it may be well with thee, and ^hthat ye may increase mightily, as the LORD God of thy fathers hath promised thee, ⁱin the land that floweth with milk and honey.

4 Hear, O Israel; ^jThe LORD our God is one LORD:

5 And ^kthou shalt love the LORD thy God ^lwith all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might.

6 And these words, which I command thee this day, ^mshall be in thine heart;

7 And thou ⁿshalt ^oteach them diligently unto thy children, and ^pshalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up.

8 And ^qthou shalt bind them for a sign dom could neither add to nor subtract from them. The question, then, came to be—Unless inspired, by what means did Moses surpass all mankind, who lived before and have lived since? There is but one explanation of their superiority: his laws were not of human, but of Divine origin. The heart of Moses yearned with most paternal tenderness over the people, and nothing was wanted but an assurance of their humble and holy obedience to reconcile him to an immediate departure from the world. The spiritual application of these injunctions is very evident. Christians need line upon line, and precept upon precept. It is no easy work to have the law written on the human soul: the Spirit of God alone can do it. Until that be done, there is no guarantee for either stability or perseverance in the ways of the Lord. While, therefore, they make much of the Saviour as a Priest, they are never forgetful that he is a King, who is glorified by the loving obedience of his people.

Chap. VI. 1-25. If any distinction may be drawn, it may amount to this: the "commandments" signify the moral, the "statutes," the ceremonial, and the "judgments," the judicial law. Ver. 5 is a golden text, upon thine hand, and they shall be as frontlets between thine eyes.

9 And thou shalt ^pwrite them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gates.

10 And it shall be, when the LORD thy God shall have brought thee into ^qthe land which he swore unto thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, to give thee ^r'great and goodly cities, which thou buildedst not;

11 And houses full of all good things, which thou filledst not; and wells digged, which thou diggedst not; vineyards and olive-trees, which thou plantedst not; ^s'when thou shalt have eaten, and be full;

CHAPTER VII.

1 All communion with the nations forbidden, 4 for fear of idolatry, and other reasons.

WHEN ^{ah}'the LORD thy God shall bring thee into the land whither thou goest to possess it, and hath cast out many nations before thee, ^{ai}'the Hittites and the Gergashites, and the Amorites, and the Canaanites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites, seven nations ^{aj}'greater and mightier than thou;

2 And when the LORD thy God shall ^{ak}'deliver them before thee, thou shalt smite them, and ^{al}'utterly destroy them; thou shalt ^{am}'make no covenant with them, nor shew mercy unto them:

3 Neither shalt thou ^{an}'make marriages with them; thy daughter thou shalt not give unto his son, nor his daughter shalt thou take unto thy son.

4 For they will turn away thy son from following me, that they may serve other gods; ^{ao}'so will the anger of the LORD be kindled against you, and destroy thee suddenly.

5 But thus shall ye deal with them; ye shall ^{ap}'destroy their altars, and break down their ^{aq}'images, and cut down their groves, and ^{ar}'burn their graven images with fire.

6 ^{as}'For thou art ^{at}'an holy people unto the LORD thy God: the LORD thy God hath chosen thee ^{au}'to be a special people unto himself, above all people that are upon the face of the earth.

7 The LORD ^{av}'did not set his love upon you, nor choose you, because ye were more in number than any people; (for ^{aw}'ye were the fewest of all people;)

8 But ^{ax}'because the LORD loved you, and because he would keep ^{ay}'the oath which he which shews, that the religion taught by Moses, notwithstanding the vast amount of figure and emblem which seemed to overlay it, was essentially that of the New Testament: nothing could compensate for the absence of love; and heaven itself is only that love perfected. This love, in the breast of the Christian, is the basis of all moral excellence; it adores, serves, and glorifies. Nothing is wanted but its indwelling and universal operation, to elevate earth to the precincts of heaven. But this love exists only in one class of hearts—those that have been regenerated by the Spirit of God. This is the first step in the new creation: this accomplished, the foundation is laid; and, in the use of the appointed means, the work of sanctification advances.

Chap. VII. 1-26. Much has been made by Infidels of the command here given to extirpate these nations.

They have employed this very circumstance to overthrow the claims of Moses to a Divine Mission. The process by which they have arrived at this conclusion is very short, and all the more easy from their completely overlooking the facts of the case. It is forgotten, that on the same principle that an individual is punishable with the utmost severity because of transgression, a nation is punishable. There is no more difficulty in dealing with the larger than with the smaller case. He who had a right to cut off one transgressor, had an equal right to cut off a million. The number is, of course, a greater, and a more appalling thing to us, the creatures of a day; but a man and a nation are the same in the sight of God, the great Creator and Divine Lawgiver. It is forgotten also, that by means of war, famine, pestilence, and earthquake, multitudes upon multitudes, in every age and country, have been removed. It is, moreover, had sworn unto your fathers, hath ^athe LORD brought you out with a mighty hand, and redeemed you out of the house of bond-men, from the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt.

9 Know therefore that the LORD thy God, he is God, the ^afaithful God, ^awhich keepeth covenant and mercy with them that love him, and keep his commandments, to ^aa thousand generations;

10 And ^arepayeth them that hate him to their face, to destroy them: he will not be ^aslack to him that ^ahateth him, he will repay him to his face.

11 Thou shalt therefore ^bkeep the commandments, and the statutes, and the judgments, which I command thee this day, to do them.

12 ^aWherefore it shall come to pass, ^aif ^aye hearken to these judgments, and keep and do them, that ^athe LORD thy God shall keep unto thee the covenant and the mercy which he sware unto thy fathers.

13 And ^ahe will love thee, and bless thee, and multiply thee: ^ahe will also bless the fruit of thy womb, and the fruit of thy land, thy corn, and thy wine, and thine oil, the increase of thy kine, and the flocks of thy sheep, in the land which he sware unto thy fathers to give thee.

14 Thou shalt be ^ablessed above all people: there shall not be ^amale or female barren among you, or among your cattle.

15 And the LORD will take away from thee all sickness, and will put none of the evil diseases of Egypt, which thou knowest, upon thee; but will lay them upon all ^athem that hate thee.

16 And thou shalt ^aconsume all the people which the LORD thy God shall deliver thee; ^athine eye shall have no pity upon them: neither shalt thou serve their gods; ^afor that ^awill be a snare unto thee.

17 If ^athou shalt say in thine heart, ^aThese nations are more than I; how can I dispossess them?

18 Thou ^ashalt not be afraid of them; ^abut shalt well ^aremember what the LORD thy God did unto Pharaoh, and unto all Egypt;

CHAPTER VIII.

An exhortation to obedience, founded on God's dealings with them, and the consideration of this promise to them.

ALL the commandments which I command thee this day shall ^aye observe to do, that ye may live, and multiply, and go in and possess the land which the LORD sware unto your fathers.

2 And thou shalt ^aremember all the way which the LORD thy God ^aled thee these forty years in the wilderness, ^ato humble thee, ^aand to ^aprove thee, ^ato know what ^awas in thine heart, whether thou wouldest keep his commandments, or no.

3 And he humbled thee, and suffered thee to hunger, and ^afed thee with manna, which thou knewest not, neither did thy fathers know; that he might make thee to be remembered, that the whole of these nations were intruders into Palestine, and that had they withdrawn, when the rightful owners came to possess it, there would have been no war, and no slaughter. These facts kept in mind, the argument of Infidelity may be easily disposed of. But Infidels should distinguish between the command and the performance. From indolence, unbelief, cowardice, and other causes, the Israelites came far short of fulfilling their duty, and in so doing they transgressed. The consequence was, that a large remnant of the nations still remained, and were to them a constant source of trouble, temptation, and affliction. He who gave the command to destroy foresaw the shortcoming, which he made to subserve the accomplishment of his gracious purposes. The analogy here between the typical and the spiritual is very striking: the Christian is commanded not to sin; to follow holiness; to be "perfect as his Father in heaven is perfect;" but it is a fact, that no man attains to perfection in the present world. Every shortcoming, however, is sinful, and requires a fresh application to the blood of sprinkling.

Chap. VIII. 1-20. Moses continues his tender exhortations, rehearsing the more remarkable facts of the bygone history. Among the most noticeable things is the fact stated in ver. 4, about which there has been much critical controversy. The question is, whether the words are to be taken literally or figuratively. Some have thought, that the "raiment" and the "foot" are terms calculated to express general comfort—one thing, by a well-known figure, being employed to indicate many things of a similar character. The sound view, however, seems to be, to take the words in their literal import. The whole of the Jewish dispensation was one know that man ^hdoth not live by bread only, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of the LORD doth man live.

4 Thy ^lraiment waxed not old upon thee, neither did thy foot swell, these forty years.

5 Thou shalt also ^kconsider in thine heart, that, ^las a man chasteneth his son, so the LORD thy God chasteneth thee.

6 Therefore thou shalt keep the commandments of the LORD thy God, to ^mwalk in his ways, and to fear him.

7 For the LORD thy God bringeth thee into a good land; ^aa land of brooks of water, of fountains, and depths that spring out of valleys and hills;

8 A land of ^wwheat, and ^bbarley, and ^vvines, and fig-trees, and pomegranates; a land of ^ooil-olive and honey;

9 A land wherein thou shalt eat bread without scarceness, thou shalt not lack any ^uthing in it; a land ^rwhose stones are iron, and out of whose hills thou mayest dig brass.

10 When ^athou hast eaten and art full, then thou shalt bless the LORD thy God for the good land which he hath given thee.

11 ^Beware that thou forget not the LORD thy God, in not keeping his commandments, and his judgments, and his statutes, which I command thee this day:

12 Lest ^wwhen thou hast eaten and art full, ^aand hast built goodly houses, and dwelt therein;

13 And ^wthy herds and thy flocks multiply, and thy silver and thy gold is multiplied, and all that thou hast is multiplied;

14 Then ^thine heart be lifted up, ^aand thou forget the LORD thy God, which brought thee forth out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage;

15 Who ^bled thee through that great and terrible wilderness, ^wwherein were fiery serpents, and scorpions, and drought, where ^tthere was no water; ^wwho brought thee forth water out of the rock of flint;

16 Who ^fed thee in the wilderness with manna, which thy fathers knew not; that ^hhe might humble thee, and that he might prove thee, ^tto do thee good at thy latter end;

17 And ^athou say in thine heart, ^My power, and the might of ^mmine hand, hath gotten me this wealth.

18 But thou shalt remember the LORD thy God: for ^uis ^hhe that giveth thee power to get wealth, ^tthat he may establish his covenant which he sware unto thy fathers, as ^uis this day.

19 And it shall be, if thou do at all forget the LORD thy God, and walk after other gods, and serve them, and worship them, ^mI testify against you this day, that ye shall surely perish.

20 As the nations which the LORD destroyeth before your face, so shall ye perish; because ye would not be obedient unto the voice of the LORD your God.

CHAPTER IX.

Moses dissuadeth them from the opinion of their own righteousness, by rehearsing their several rebellions.

HEAR, O Israel: Thou art to ^apass over Jordan this day, to go in to possess ^bnations greater and mightier than thyself, ^ccities great, and fenced up to heaven;

2 A people ^dgreat and tall, the children of the Anakims, whom thou knowest, and of ^wwhom thou hast heard say, ^oWho can stand before the children of Anak?

3 ^Understand therefore this day, that the LORD thy God ^uis he which ^ggoeth over before thee; as ^aa consuming fire ^hhe shall destroy them, and he shall bring them down before thy face: so shalt thou drive them out, and destroy them quickly, as the LORD hath said unto thee.

4 ^Speak not thou in thine heart, after that the LORD thy God hath cast them out from before thee, saying, For my righteousness the LORD hath brought me in to possess this land; but ^lfor the wickedness of these nations the LORD doth drive them out from before thee.

5 Not for thy righteousness, or for the uprightness of thine heart, dost thou go to possess their land; but for the wickedness of these nations the LORD thy God doth drive them out from before thee, and ^mthat he may perform the word which the LORD sware unto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

6 ^Understand therefore, that the LORD thy God giveth thee not this good land to possess it for thy righteousness; for thou art ^aa stiff-necked people.

7 ^Remember, and forget not, how thou provokedst the LORD thy God to wrath in the wilderness: ^afrom the day that thou didst depart out of the land of Egypt, until ye came unto this place, ye have been rebellious against the LORD.

8 Also ⁱn Horeb ye provoked the LORD to wrath, so that the LORD was angry with you, to have destroyed you.

9 When ⁱI was gone up into the mount, to receive the tables of stone, ^eeven ^tthe tables of the covenant which the LORD stupendous miracle; and it seems quite as reasonable to believe, that the people were miraculously clothed, as that they were miraculously fed; only in the former case, the miracle operated in the way, not of creation, but of preservation. We are here taught, that all the Lord's commandments are right as well as obligatory; there must, therefore, be no picking and choosing according to convenience. It is always a wise and salutary exercise on the part of God's people to ponder the past, and to mark well the way by which he has led them; for then they will see, that goodness and mercy have constantly followed them: and a keen perception of this is the best support of a humble and holy confidence that he will be their God, and their guide even unto death, and then take them to glory.

Chap. IX. 1-29. The present discourse stands in contrast with that which went before: the former rejoins to the glory of the Lord's goodness and mercy; the present testifies to the ingratitude and wickedness made with you, "then I abode in the mount forty days and forty nights; ¹I neither did eat bread nor drink water:

10 And the LORD delivered unto me two tables of stone, ⁷written with the finger of God: and on them was written according to ²all the words which the LORD spake with you in the mount, out of the midst of the fire, in the day of the assembly.

11 And it came to pass, at the end of forty days and forty nights, that the LORD gave me the two tables of stone, even ^athe tables of the covenant.

12 And the LORD said unto me, ^bArise, get thee down quickly from hence; for thy people which thou hast brought forth out of Egypt have ^ccorrupted themselves; they ^dare quickly turned aside out of the way which I commanded them; they have made them a molten image.

13 Furthermore the LORD spake unto me, saying, ^e"I have seen this people, and, behold, it is a ^f'stiff-necked people.

14 ^g"Let me alone, that I may destroy them, and ^hblot out their name from under heaven: ⁱand I will make of thee a nation mightier and greater than they.

15 So ^kI turned, and came down from the mount, and ^lthe mount burned with fire; and the two tables of the covenant were in my two hands.

16 And ^mI looked, and, behold, ye had sinned against the LORD your God, and had made you a molten calf: ye had turned aside quickly out of the way which the LORD had commanded you.

17 And I took the two tables, and cast them out of my two hands, and brake them before your eyes.

18 And ⁿI fell down before the LORD, as at the first, forty days and forty nights: I did neither eat bread nor drink water, because of all your sins, which ye sinned, in doing wickedly in the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger.

19 (For ^oI was afraid of the anger and hot displeasure wherewith the LORD was wroth against you to destroy you.) ^pBut the LORD hearkened unto me at that time also.

20 And the LORD was ^qvery angry with Aaron to have destroyed him: and I prayed for Aaron also the same time.

21 And ^rI took your sin, the calf which ye had made, and burnt it with fire, and stamped it, and ground it very small, even until it was as small as dust: and I cast the dust thereof into the brook that descended out of the mount.

of the people. Sin, under any circumstances, is always wicked; but, amidst special displays of Divine justice, or mercy, it is particularly so. It was important to remind the children of Israel, that they did not receive Canaan as a reward of any peculiar work, worth, or excellence; but as the free gift of God, in fulfilment of the promise made to Abraham. Thus it is with respect to the spiritual Canaan, with the righteousness and holiness which prepare for it; all is of grace, through Christ the Lord.

24 Ye have been rebellious against the LORD from the day that I knew you.

25 Thus I fell down before the LORD forty days and forty nights, as I fell down at the first; because the LORD had said he would destroy you.

26 I ^dprayed therefore unto the LORD, and said, O Lord God, destroy not thy people, and thine inheritance, ^ewhich thou hast redeemed through thy greatness, which thou hast brought forth out of Egypt with a mighty hand.

CHAPTER X.

¹ Moses relateth God's mercy in restoring the two tables: 6 in continuing the priesthood, &c., 10 and hearkening to his suit. 12 An exhortation to obedience.

AT that time the LORD said unto me, ^a"Hew thee two tables of stone like unto the first, and come up unto me into the mount, and ^bmake thee an ark of wood.

2 And I will write on the tables the words that were in the first tables which thou brakest, and ^cthou shalt put them in the ark.

3 And ^dI made an ark of shittim-wood, and ^ehewed two tables of stone like unto the first, and went up into the mount, having the two tables in mine hand.

4 And ^fhe wrote on the tables, according to the first writing, ^g"the ten ^hcommandments, ⁱwhich the LORD spake unto you in the mount, ^jout of the midst of the fire, ^kin the day of the assembly: and the LORD gave them unto me.

5 And ^lI turned myself, and came down from the mount, and ^mput the tables in be understood, as the two Tables of the Law were contained in it at the time Moses delivered this discourse. It is probable, that prior to his ascending the mount the second time, he gave express orders to get the Ark ready by his return; and having superintended its construction, he speaks as if he had actually framed it with his own hands, which we know was not the case. The command in ver. 16, to "circumcise the foreskin of their hearts," and to be no more "stiff-necked," signifies the removal of the blindness of understanding and culpable obstinacy which had hitherto distinguished them, ren-the ark which I had made; and ²there they be, as the LORD commanded me.

6 ¶ And the children of Israel ⁶took their journey from Beeroth of the children of Jaakan to ⁷Mosera: ⁸there Aaron died, and there he was buried; and Eleazar his son ministered in the priest's office in his stead.

7 From thence they journeyed unto Gudgodah; and from Gudgodah to Jotbath, a land of rivers of waters.

8 ¶ At that time ¹the LORD separated the tribe of Levi, to ²bear the ark of the covenant of the LORD, to stand before the LORD to minister unto him, and ³to bless in his name, unto this day.

9 Wherefore ¹Levi hath no part nor inheritance with his brethren; the LORD ²is his inheritance, according as the LORD thy God promised him.

10 ¶ And ¹I stayed in the mount, according to the ²first time, forty days and forty nights; and ³the LORD hearkened unto me at that time also, and the LORD would not destroy thee.

11 And the LORD said unto me, ¹Arise, ²take thy journey before the people, that they may go in and possess the land which I swore unto their fathers to give unto them.

12 ¶ And now, Israel, ¹what doth the LORD thy God require of thee, but ²to fear the LORD thy God, ³to walk in all his ways, and ⁴to love him, and to serve the LORD thy God ⁵with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, 13 To keep the commandments of the LORD, and his statutes, which I command thee this day ⁶for thy good?

14 Behold, ¹the heaven, and the heaven of heavens, ²is the LORD's thy God, ³the earth also, with all that therein is.

15 Only the LORD ¹had a delight in thy fathers to love them, and he chose their seed after them, ²even you above all people, ³as it is this day.

16 ¹Circumcise therefore the foreskin of your heart, and be no more ²stiff-necked.

17 For the LORD your God is ¹God of gods, and ²Lord of lords, ³a great God, a mighty, and a terrible, which ⁴regardeth not persons, nor taketh reward.

18 He ¹doth execute the judgment of the fatherless and widow, and ²loveth the stranger, in giving him food and raiment.

19 ¹Love ye therefore the stranger: for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt.

20 Thou shalt ¹fear the LORD thy God; him shalt thou serve, and to him shalt thou ²cleave, and ³swear by his name.

21 He ¹is thy praise, and he ²is thy God,

CHAPTER XI.

1 An exhortation to obedience. 26 A blessing and a curse are set before them.

THEREFORE ¹thou shalt love the LORD thy God, and ²keep his charge, and ³his statutes, and his judgments, and his commandments, ⁴always.

2 And ¹know ye this day: for ²I speak not with your children which have not known, and which have not seen ³the chastisement of the LORD your God, ⁴his greatness, ⁵his mighty hand, and his stretched-out arm,

3 And ¹his miracles, and his acts, which he did in the midst of Egypt unto Pharaoh the king of Egypt, and unto all his land;

4 And what he did unto the army of Egypt, unto their horses, and to their chariots: ¹how he made the water of the Red sea to overflow them, as they pursued after you, and ²how the LORD hath destroyed them unto this day;

5 And ¹what he did unto you in the wilderness, until ye came into this place;

6 And what ¹he did unto Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab, the son of Reuben: how the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up, and their households, and their tents, and all the ²substance that was ³in their possession, in the midst of all Israel.

7 But ¹your eyes have seen all the great acts of the LORD which he did.

8 ¹Therefore shall ye keep all the commandments which I command you this day, ²that ye may be strong, and go in and possess the land whither ye go to possess it;

9 And that ye may ¹prolong your days in the land which the LORD ²swore unto your fathers to give unto them, and to their seed, ³a land that floweth with milk and honey.

10 ¶ For the land, whither thou goest in to possess it, ¹is not as the land of Egypt, from whence ye came out, where thou sowedst thy seed, and ²wateredst it with thy foot, as a garden of herbs:

11 But ¹the land, whither ye go to possess it, ²is a land of hills and valleys, and drinketh water of the rain of heaven:

12 A land which the LORD thy God ¹careth for: ²the eyes of the LORD thy God ³are always upon it, from the begindering them disobedient and rebellious. This act, therefore, like repentance and faith, in the New Testament Scriptures, is the subject both of promise and precept; that which men are commanded to do, they are disposed and enabled to do. "The carnal mind is enmity against God; it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be," without the change which the Holy Spirit works, and his own indwelling power and presence, after it has been wrought. Man is everywhere treated as a reasonable creature; but he is so wicked as to despise reason; and it is only when the grace of God accompanies the commandment, that he submits to it.

Chap. XI. 1-32. The term "foot," mentioned in ver. 10, is probably a metaphor signifying labour. It has been thought by some to refer to a particular method of watering fields, which then obtained, and still prevails in some places in the East. The earth is laid out in ning of the year, even unto the end of the year.

13 ¶ And it shall come to pass, if ye shall hearken ²diligently unto my commandments, which I command you this day, ³to love the LORD your God, and to serve him with all your heart, and with all your soul, 14 That ¹I will give you the rain of your land in his due season, the first rain, and the latter rain, that thou mayest gather in thy corn, and thy wine, and thine oil.

15 And ¹I will ⁴send grass in thy fields for thy cattle, that thou mayest ⁵eat, and be full.

16 ⁶Take heed to yourselves, that ⁷your heart be not deceived, and ye turn aside, and serve other gods, and worship them ;

17 And ⁸then ⁹the LORD's wrath be kindled against you, and he ¹⁰shut up the heaven, that there be no rain, and that the land yield not her fruit; and ¹¹lest ¹²ye perish quickly from off the good land which the LORD giveth you.

18 ¶ Therefore shall ¹³ye lay up these my words in your heart, and in your soul, and bind them for ¹⁴a sign upon your hand, that they may be as frontlets between your eyes.

19 And ¹⁵ye shall teach them your children, speaking of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, when thou liest down, and when thou risest up.

20 And thou shalt write them upon the door-posts of thine house, and upon thy gates;

21 That ¹⁶your days may be multiplied, and the days of your children, in the land which the LORD sware unto your fathers to give them, ¹⁷as the days of heaven upon the earth.

22 ¶ For ¹⁸if ye shall diligently keep all these commandments which I command you, to do them, ¹⁹to love the LORD your God, to walk in all his ways, and ²⁰to cleave unto him;

23 Then will the LORD ²¹drive out all these nations from before you, and ye shall possess greater nations and mightier than yourselves.

24 ²²Every place whereon the soles of your feet shall tread shall be yours: from the wilderness and Lebanon, from the river, the river Euphrates, even unto the uttermost sea, shall your coast be.

25 There shall ¹no man be able to stand before you: ²for the LORD your God shall lay the fear of you, and the dread of you, upon all the land that ye shall tread upon, ³as he hath said unto you.

26 ¶ Behold, ⁴I set before you this day a blessing and a curse;

27 ⁵A blessing, if ye obey the commandments of the LORD your God, which I command you this day:

28 And ⁶a curse, if ye will not obey the commandments of the LORD your God, but turn aside out of the way which I command you this day, to go after other gods, which ye have not known.

30 ⁸Are they not on the other side Jordan, by the way where the sun goeth down, in the land of the Canaanites, which dwell in the champaign over against ⁹Gilgal, beside the plains of Moreh?

31 For ¹⁰ye shall pass over Jordan, to go in to possess the land which the LORD your God giveth you, and ye shall possess it, and dwell therein.

32 And ¹¹ye shall observe to do all the statutes and judgments which I set before you this day.

CHAPTER XII.

1 Monuments of idolatry are to be destroyed. 5 The place of God's service is to be kept. 15 Blood forbidden. 17 Holy things to be eaten in the holy place. 19 The Levite not to be forsaken.

THESE are ¹the statutes and judgments which ye shall observe to do in the land which the LORD God of thy fathers giveth thee to possess it, ²all the days that ye live upon the earth.

2 Ye shall ³utterly destroy all the places wherein the nations which ye shall ⁴possess served their gods, ⁵upon the high mountains, and upon the hills, and under every green tree.

3 And ye shall ⁶overthrow their altars, and break their pillars, ⁷and burn their groves with fire; and ye shall hew down the graven images of their gods, ⁸and destroy the names of them out of that place.

beds, separated by narrow ridges; the water is let flow on the first bed; and when that is sufficiently moistened, a little dyke is driven down by the bare foot of the cultivator, and the water let in upon the beds more remote from the river, canal, or reservoir, successively. Niebuhr, however, and some others, with much more probability, suppose it alludes to a machine for raising water to distribute over the dry ground by canals. It is a sort of tread-pump, worked by the foot. Niebuhr actually saw such machines in the gardens of Cairo. The probability, therefore, is that it is to something of this kind that Moses refers. In the history of the Christian, the past and the future should never be separated; the former admits of being uniformly brought to bear upon the latter. The remembrance of the Lord's goodness will prompt to gratitude, and the remembrance of our own shortcoming will work humility. The more we know of ourselves, the less will we trust: the more we know of God, the more will we confide in his wisdom, truth, mercy, and grace.

Chap. XII. 1-32. Nothing can exceed the imperative character of the injunctions with which this chapter opens to uproot the monuments of idolatry: and they are fraught with the utmost force, as spiritually applying to every wicked man who has forsaken his way, and to every unrighteous man who has abandoned his thoughts. There must be no tampering, no dalliance, else the convert is undone. By "putting his name," is meant, the place where the Lord shall set up his worship; thither shall men repair for inquiry and supplication. In ver. 8, Moses gives the people to understand, that the whole body of religious service and worship, when settled in the promised land, must be much more complete,

4 ¶ Ye shall not do so unto the LORD your God.

5 But ^aunto the place which the LORD your God shall choose out of all your tribes to put his name there, even unto his habitation shall ye seek, and thither thou shalt come:

6 And thither ye shall bring ^ayour burnt-offerings, and your sacrifices, and your tithes, and heave-offerings of your hand, and your vows, and your free-will-offerings, and the firstlings of your herds and of your flocks:

7 And there ^aye shall eat before the LORD your God; and ^aye shall rejoice in all that ye put your hand unto, ye and your households, wherein the LORD thy God hath blessed thee.

8 Ye shall not do after all the things that we do here this day, ^aevery man whatsoever is right in his own eyes.

9 For ye are not as yet come to the ^arest and to the inheritance which the LORD your God giveth you.

10 But when ^aye go over Jordan, and dwell in the land which the LORD your God giveth you to inherit, and when he giveth you rest from all your enemies round about, so that ^aye dwell in safety:

11 Then there shall be ^aa place which the LORD your God shall choose to cause his name to dwell there: thither shall ye bring all that I command you; your burnt-offerings, and your sacrifices, your tithes, and the heave-offering of your hand, and all ^ayour choice vows which ye vow unto the LORD.

12 And ^aye shall rejoice before the LORD your God, ye, and your sons, and your daughters, and your men-servants, and your maid-servants, and ^athe Levite that is within your gates; ^aforasmuch as he hath no part nor inheritance with you.

13 Take heed to thyself that thou offer not thy burnt-offerings in every place that thou seest:

14 But ^ain the place which the LORD shall choose in one of thy tribes, there thou shalt offer thy burnt-offerings, and there thou shalt do all that I command thee.

15 ¶ Notwithstanding ^athou mayest kill and eat flesh in all thy gates, whatsoever thy soul lusteth after, according to the blessing of the LORD thy God which he hath given thee: ^athe unclean and the clean may eat thereof, as of the roe-buck, and as of the hart.

16 Only ^aye shall not eat the blood; ye shall pour it upon the earth as water.

17 ¶ Thou mayest not eat within thy gates ^athe tithe of thy corn, or of thy wine, or of thy oil, or the firstlings of thy herds, or of thy flock, nor any of thy vows which thou vowest, nor thy free-will-offerings, or heave-offering of thine hand:

18 But ^athou must eat them before the LORD thy God in the place which the LORD thy God shall choose, thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, and thy man-servant, and thy maid-servant, and the Levite that is within thy gates: and thou shalt ^arejoice before the LORD thy God in all that thou puttest thine hands unto.

19 Take heed to thyself that thou forsake not the Levite ^aas long as thou livest upon the earth.

20 ¶ When the LORD thy God shall enlarge thy border, ^aas he hath promised thee, and thou shalt say, ^aI will eat flesh, (because thy soul longeth to eat flesh,) thou mayest eat flesh, whatsoever thy soul lusteth after.

21 If the place which the LORD thy God hath chosen ^ato put his name there be too far from thee, then thou shalt kill of thy herd, and of thy flock, which the LORD hath given thee, as I have commanded thee, and thou shalt eat in thy gates whatsoever thy soul lusteth after.

22 Even ^aas the roe-buck and the hart is eaten, so thou shalt eat them; the unclean and the clean shall eat of them alike.

23 Only be ^asure that thou eat not the blood: for ^athe blood is the life; and thou mayest not eat the life with the flesh.

24 Thou shalt not eat it; ^athou shalt pour it upon the earth as water.

25 Thou shalt not eat it; ^athat it may go well with thee, and with thy children after thee, ^awhen thou shalt do that which is right in the sight of the LORD.

26 Only thy ^aholy things which thou hast, and thy ^avows, thou shalt take, and go unto the place which the LORD shall choose.

27 And thou shalt offer ^athy burnt-offerings, the flesh and the blood, upon the altar of the LORD thy God: ^aand the blood of thy sacrifices shall be poured out upon the altar of the LORD thy God, and thou shalt eat the flesh.

and every way better ordered, than it had been in the wilderness, where they had so many difficulties to contend with, which constituted an apology for their neglect, which the Lord was pleased to receive. According to what a man hath, and not according to what he hath not, are the Divine requirements. He is just, as well as merciful. In the matter of food the licence is great, but the injunction on no account "to eat the blood," but to "pour it upon the earth as water," is repeated as a thing that deserves particular attention. The closing exhortations of the chapter are of great moment, both for the people and for their children. The presenting in sacrifice, by the heathen, of their sons and daughters, shews how inhumanly cruel, at that early period, were the practices of idolatry. The closing verse constitutes a lasting beacon to mankind, to beware of all liberties with the Word of God. From the commencement of the Jewish dispensation to its close, all attempts at altering the Scriptures were treated as a heinous offence; and the crime is alike great in the New Testament. Through no medium are the iniquities of Popery more distinctly seen than this: first perverting, then mutilating, and at last withholding the Word of God from his people! From the whole chapter, Christians are taught that God must be inquired of in his own way, and sought unto in the appointed means of grace. Christian parents and 29 ¶ When the LORD thy God shall cut off the nations from before thee, whither thou goest to possess them, and thou succeedest them, and dwellest in their land;

30 Take heed to thyself that thou be not snared by following them, after that they be destroyed from before thee; and that thou enquire not after their gods, saying, How did these nations serve their gods? even so will I do likewise.

31 Thou shalt not do so unto the LORD thy God: for every abomination to the LORD which he hateth have they done unto their gods; for even their sons and their daughters they have burnt in the fire to their gods.

32 What thing soever I command you, observe to do it: thou shalt not add thereto, nor diminish from it.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 Enticers to idolatry must be put to death; 6 even near relations must accuse them, and lead the way in stoning them. 12 Idolatrous cities must be utterly destroyed.

If there arise among you a prophet, or a dreamer of dreams, and giveth thee a sign or a wonder,

2 And the sign or the wonder come to pass, whereof he spake unto thee, saying, Let us go after other gods, which thou hast not known, and let us serve them;

3 Thou shalt not hearken unto the words of that prophet, or that dreamer of dreams: for the LORD your God proveth you, to know whether ye love the LORD your God with all your heart, and with all your soul.

4 Ye shall walk after the LORD your God, and fear him, and keep his commandments, and obey his voice, and ye shall serve him, and cleave unto him.

5 And that prophet, or that dreamer of dreams, shall be put to death; because he hath spoken to turn you away from the LORD your God, which brought you out of the land of Egypt, and redeemed you out of the house of bondage, to thrust thee out of the way which the LORD thy God commanded thee to walk in: so shalt thou put the evil away from the midst of thee.

6 ¶ If thy brother, the son of thy mother, or thy son, or thy daughter, or the wife of thy bosom, or thy friend, which is as thine own soul, entice thee secretly, saying, Let us go and serve other gods, which thou hast not known, thou, nor thy fathers;

7 Namely, of the gods of the people which are round about you, nigh unto thee, or far off from thee, from the one end of the earth even unto the other end of the earth;

8 Thou shalt not consent unto him, nor hearken unto him; neither shalt thine eye pity him, neither shalt thou spare, neither shalt thou conceal him:

9 But thou shalt surely kill him; thine hand shall be first upon him to put him to death, and afterwards the hand of all the people.

10 And thou shalt stone him with stones, that he die; because he hath sought to thrust thee away from the LORD thy God, which brought thee out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage.

11 And all Israel shall hear, and fear, and shall do no more any such wickedness as this is among you.

12 ¶ If thou shalt hear say in one of thy cities, which the LORD thy God hath given thee to dwell there, saying,

13 Certain men, the children of Belial, are gone out from among you, and have withdrawn the inhabitants of their city, saying, Let us go and serve other gods, which ye have not known;

14 Then shalt thou enquire, and make search, and ask diligently: and, behold, if it be truth, and the thing certain, that masters are likewise to have regard to the spiritual welfare of their children and domestics, equally with their own. The support of Divine worship is also to be provided for with system and liberality. Christians are to make a conscience of the equitable support of those who labour for their spiritual good; and in everything the Word of God is the great arbiter between truth and falsehood.

Chap. XIII. 1-5. By the "prophet," mentioned at the outset, must be meant a pretender, since for a long period there was a constant line of prophets among the Jews. Dreams, too, were often from the Lord, and in them were frequently communicated his mind and purposes. Wherever such prophets, however, or such dreamers, suggested to men transgression, there was no need to hesitate in pronouncing them impostors, and treating them accordingly. We have the authority of an apostle, that should an angel, professing to be from heaven, contradict the Sacred Scriptures, he must be to us anathema. The power of God can never present itself in a state of antagonism to the truth of God. Power has ever been exercised to support, not to overthrow Inspiration. Ver. 6-11. There are some great points comprised here, which, as applied to the Christian dispensation, must not be strained too far. The children of Israel and Christians are placed in circumstances altogether different, and that determines the position they now occupy. There is no authority whatever, either from precept or example, in the New Testament, requiring, or permitting, kings or governors to inflict punishment on their subjects in matters of conscience. Human power is limited to the support of human laws, and such laws must never contravene the higher laws of Heaven. All persecution, therefore, for conscience' sake, has been just so much transgression against the Most High. Ver. 12-18. The command set forth here touching idolatry is most stringent, which shews its inexpressible importance. Several Expositors have so glossed it as to soften it down, but for this there is no authority; and there is danger in the attempt. It was, nevertheless, an exercise which required more faith, and more regard for the Divine honour and authority, than the Israelites possessed; and it is probable that this was one of their greatest national sins, which led to their departure from God, and, as a punishment, to their Babylonian captivity. A greater measure of obedience would have been the prevention of much idolatry, in itself a great and crying sin, and the fruitful source of many others. Christians must still set their faces as a flint against every thing which would tend to draw them from God, or to set up an idol, no matter of what material it may be fashioned, in their hearts. God alone is to possess the soul; such abomination is wrought among you;

15 Thou shalt surely smite the inhabitants of that city with the edge of the sword, ^adestroying it utterly, and all that is therein, and the cattle thereof, with the edge of the sword.

16 And thou shalt gather all the spoil of it into the midst of the street thereof, and shalt burn with fire the city, and all the spoil thereof every whit, for the LORD thy God: and it shall be ^aan heap for ever; it shall not be built again.

17 And there shall ^acleave nought of the ^acursed thing to thine hand: that ^athe LORD may turn from the fierceness of his anger, and shew thee mercy, and have compassion upon thee, and multiply thee, ^aas he hath sworn unto thy fathers;

18 When thou shalt hearken to the voice of the LORD thy God, ^ato keep all his commandments which I command thee this day, to do that which is right in the eyes of the LORD thy God.

YE are ^athe children of the LORD your God. ^bYe shall not cut yourselves, nor make any baldness between your eyes for the dead.

every saint is a temple of his, inhabited through the Spirit.

Chap. XIV. 1-29. The custom of cutting themselves for the dead in those days prevailed amongst many nations. Travellers tell us, that in the East many people try to make the eye-brows meet; it might, therefore, be a sign of mourning to separate them. The tithe of the third year was probably designed to correct a spirit of covetousness and distrust in God, as well as to promote friendliness, liberality, and good fellowship. It, moreover, constituted a perpetual fund for the poor; and taught the people, that in order to enjoy the good things of this life, they must be shared with their more needy friends. This taught them to convert the products of the earth, the gifts of God, into a means of diffusing happiness amongst his impoverished children, and their own friends and fellow-creatures. From that hour to this, God has always connected blessing with the kind remembrance of the poor; and visited covetousness and hard-heartedness with displeasure. These laws have been properly referred to gates; thou shalt not forsake him: for he hath no part nor inheritance with thee.

28 ¶ At the end of three years thou shalt bring forth all the tithe of thine increase the same year, and shalt lay it up within thy gates:

29 And the Levite, (because he hath no part nor inheritance with thee,) and the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, which are within thy gates, shall come, and shall eat and be satisfied; that the LORD thy God may bless thee in all the work of thine hand which thou doest.

CHAPTER XV.

1 The seventh year, a year of release for the poor. 7 It must be no hindrance to lending or giving.

At the end of every seven years thou shalt make a release.

2 And this is the manner of the release: Every creditor that lendeth ought unto his neighbour shall release it; he shall not exact it of his neighbour, or of his brother; because it is called the LORD's release.

3 Of a foreigner thou mayest exact it again: but that which is thine with thy brother thine hand shall release;

4 Save when there shall be no poor among you; for the LORD shall greatly bless thee in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance to possess it:

5 Only if thou carefully hearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to observe to do all these commandments which I command thee this day.

6 For the LORD thy God blesseth thee, as he promised thee: and thou shalt lend unto many nations, but thou shalt not borrow; and thou shalt reign over many nations, but they shall not reign over thee.

7 ¶ If there be among you a poor man of one of thy brethren within any of thy gates, in thy land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, thou shalt not harden thine heart, nor shut thine hand from thy poor brother;

8 But thou shalt open thine hand wide unto him, and shalt surely lend him sufficient for his need, in that which he wanteth.

9 Beware that there be not a thought in thy wicked heart, saying, The seventh year, the year of release, is at hand; and thine eye be evil against thy poor bro-

10 Thou shalt surely give him, and thine heart shall not be grieved when thou givest unto him: because that for this thing the LORD thy God shall bless thee in all thy works, and in all that thou puttest thine hand unto.

11 For the poor shall never cease out of the land: therefore I command thee, saying, Thou shalt open thine hand wide unto thy brother, to thy poor, and to thy needy, in thy land.

12 ¶ And if thy brother, an Hebrew man, or an Hebrew woman, be sold unto thee, and serve thee six years, then in the seventh year thou shalt let him go free from thee.

13 And when thou sendest him out free from thee, thou shalt not let him go away empty:

14 Thou shalt furnish him liberally out of thy flock, and out of thy floor, and out of thy wine-press: of that wherewith the LORD thy God hath blessed thee thou shalt give unto him.

15 And thou shalt remember that thou wast a bond-man in the land of Egypt, and the LORD thy God redeemed thee: therefore I command thee this thing to-day.

16 And it shall be, if he say unto thee, I will not go away from thee; (because he loveth thee and thine house, because he is well with thee;)

17 Then thou shalt take an awl, and thrust it through his ear unto the door, and he shall be thy servant for ever: and also unto thy maid-servant thou shalt do likewise.

18 It shall not seem hard unto thee when thou sendest him away free from thee; for he hath been worth a double hired servant to thee, in serving thee six years: and the LORD thy God shall bless thee in all that thou doest.

19 ¶ All the firstling males that come of thy herd, and of thy flock, thou shalt sanctify unto the LORD thy God: thou shalt do no work with the firstling of thy bullock, nor shear the firstling of thy sheep:

20 Thou shalt eat it before the LORD thy God year by year, in the place which the LORD shall choose, thou and thy household.

as an argument in favour of social festivity, conducted in the spirit of piety, love, and moderation. Reason and religion alike approve of such things; but it must not thence be inferred that they support the expensive, luxurious, and wicked orgies, which are but another name for many modern banquets. Nothing really good is denied to men; the interdict only appears when they approach the precincts of danger.

Chap. XV. 1-13. This chapter is full of humanity, presenting a most lovely picture of the philanthropy of salvation. No such arrangements as those of Moses ever occurred to any law-giver, or existed before amongst any people. The whole system was based upon the fraternal character sustained by the nation: they were a fellowship of brothers and sisters; and the principles which ought to govern an individual family, were those which were to govern an entire people. With what force, and what beauty, the fact shadows forth the true character of the Church of God! How unutterably tender these words, "If there be among you a poor man of one of thy brethren within any of thy gates, in thy land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, thou shalt not harden thine heart, nor shut thine hand, from thy poor brother; but thou shalt open thine hand wide unto him, and shalt surely lend him sufficient for his need, in that which he wanteth!" To fill the world with even the Gospel of Moses would go far to banish all sorrow, and to bless the whole human race. Ver. 14-23. No two things can be more unlike each other

21 And ^aif there be any blemish therein, as if it be lame, or blind, or have any ill blemish, thou shalt not sacrifice it unto the LORD thy God:

22 Thou shalt eat it within thy gates; 'the unclean and the clean person shall eat it alike, as the roe-buck, and as the hart.

23 Only ^athou shalt not eat the blood thereof; thou shalt pour it upon the ground as water.

CHAPTER XVI.

1 The feast of the passover; 9 of weeks; 13 and of tabernacles. 18 Of judges and justice. 21 Groves and images are forbidden.

OBERVE ^athe month of Abib, and keep the passover unto the LORD thy God: ^bfor in the month of Abib the LORD thy God brought thee forth out of Egypt by night.

2 Thou shalt therefore ^asacrifice the passover unto the LORD thy God, of the flock and the herd, ^din the place which the LORD shall choose to place his name there.

3 Thou shalt eat ^ano leavened bread with it: seven days shalt thou eat unleavened bread therewith, even 'the bread of affliction; (for ^athou camest forth out of the land of Egypt in haste;) that thou ^amayest remember the day when thou camest forth out of the land of Egypt all the days of thy life.

4 And ^athere shall be no leavened bread seen with thee in all thy coasts seven days; ^aneither shall there any thing of the flesh, which thou sacrificedst the first day at even, remain all night until the morning.

5 Thou mayest not ^asacrifice the passover within any of thy gates, which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

6 But at the place which the LORD thy God shall choose to place his name in, there thou shalt sacrifice the passover ^aat even, at the going down of the sun, at the season that thou camest forth out of Egypt.

7 And thou shalt ^mroast and eat it ^ain the place which the LORD thy God shall choose; and thou shalt turn in the morning, and go unto thy tents.

8 ^aSix days thou shalt eat unleavened bread, and on the seventh day shall be a solemn assembly to the LORD thy God; thou shalt do no work therein.

than our system of modern Pauperism and the plan of Moses. The question of Pauperism is still one of a vexed character; and it may be doubted whether time or experience will ever do much to solve its more perplexing problems. Nothing can put down the worst species of it but that which renovates the heart, and reforms the character of man. To Christianise the world, would be, almost in one year, to extinguish its Pauperism. Nothing would be left but that which results from physical conditions, and which neither Law nor Gospel can cure.

Chap. XVI. 1-22. At the commencement of the Passover one lamb was all that was enjoined to a family; it was afterwards permitted to increase the amount, so as to meet the wants of any number; but it was necessary that the whole should be "eaten before the Lord." The religious character of the ordinance was not to be lost in a general banquet. The feast of weeks was held seven weeks after the passover, and was called Pentecost, because it was fifty days subsequently. It was to last seven days, as an expression of gratitude to the God of Providence, for the benefits of the earth received in harvest. In ancient times, and long after, the gates of cities were the Courts of Justice, whither the people repaired with their causes for judgment: there the governors and rulers of cities sat to adjudicate in all such matters, as also to convey titles to estates, and to transact all public business. The Jews on being settled, had three Courts of Law—the Great Sanhedrim, consisting of seventy Judges, before whom matters of special importance were brought; there was also a Court of

of the wise, and pervert the ⁶ words of the righteous.

20 ⁷ That which is ⁸ altogether just shalt thou follow, that thou mayest live, and inherit the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

21 Thou shalt not ⁹ plant thee a grove of any trees near unto the altar of the LORD thy God, which thou shalt make thee.

22 Neither shalt thou set thee ¹⁰ up any ¹¹ image, which the LORD thy God hateth.

CHAPTER XVII.

1 Things sacrificed must be sound. 2 Idolaters must be slain. 3 Of hard controversies. 14 The election, 16 and duty of a king.

THOU shalt not sacrifice unto the LORD thy God ¹² any bullock or ¹³ sheep wherein is blemish, or ¹⁴ any evil-favouredness: ¹⁵ for that is an abomination unto the LORD thy God.

2 ¹⁶ If there be found among you, within any of thy gates which the LORD thy God giveth thee, ¹⁷ man or woman, that hath wrought wickedness in the sight of the LORD thy God, ¹⁸ in transgressing his covenant,

3 And hath gone and served other gods, and worshipped them, either ¹⁹ the sun, or moon, or any of the host of heaven, ²⁰ which I have not commanded;

4 And it be told thee, and thou hast heard of it, and ²¹ enquired diligently, and, behold, ²² it be true, and the thing certain, that such abomination is wrought in Israel;

5 Then shalt thou bring forth that man or that woman, which have committed that wicked thing, unto thy gates, ²³ even that man or that woman, and shalt ²⁴ stone them with stones, till they die.

6 At ²⁵ the mouth of two witnesses, or three witnesses, shall he that is worthy of death be put to death; ²⁶ but at the mouth of one witness he shall not be put to death.

7 The ²⁷ hands of the witnesses shall be first upon him to put him to death, and afterward the hands of all the people: ²⁸ so thou shalt put the evil away from among you.

8 ²⁹ If there ³⁰ arise a matter too hard for thee in judgment, ³¹ between blood and blood, between plea and plea, and between stroke and stroke, ³² being matters of controversy, within thy gates; then shalt thou arise, and ³³ get thee up into the place which the LORD thy God shall choose:

10 And ³ thou shalt do according to the sentence which they of that place which the LORD shall choose shall shew thee; and thou shalt observe to do according to all that they inform thee:

11 According to ⁴ the sentence of the law which they shall teach thee, and according to the judgment which they shall tell thee, thou shalt do: thou shalt not decline from the sentence which they shall shew thee, ⁵ to the right hand, nor to the left.

12 And the man that ⁶ will do presumptuously, ⁷ and will not hearken unto ⁸ the priest that standeth to minister there before the LORD thy God, or unto the judge, even that man shall die: and ⁹ thou shalt put away the evil from Israel.

13 And all the people ¹⁰ shall hear, and fear, and do no more ¹¹ presumptuously.

14 ¹² When ¹³ thou art come unto the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, and shalt possess it, and shalt dwell therein, and shalt say, ¹⁴ I will set a king over me, like as all the nations that are about me:

15 Thou shalt in any wise set ¹⁵ him king over thee ¹⁶ whom the LORD thy God shall choose; ¹⁷ one ¹⁸ from among thy brethren shalt thou set king over thee: thou mayest not set a stranger over thee, which is not thy brother.

16 But he shall not ¹⁹ multiply horses to himself, nor cause the people to return to Egypt, to the end that he should multiply horses: forasmuch as the LORD hath said unto you, ²⁰ Ye shall henceforth return no more that way.

17 Neither ²¹ shall he multiply wives to himself, that his heart turn not away; ²² neither shall he greatly multiply to himself silver and gold.

18 And it shall be, when he sitteth upon the throne of his kingdom, ²³ that he shall write him a copy of this law in a book, ²⁴ out of that which is before the priests the Levites:

19 And ²⁵ it shall be with him, and he shall read therein all the days of his life; that he may learn to fear the LORD his God, to keep all the words of this law, and these statutes, to do them:

20 That ²⁶ his heart be not lifted up above his brethren, and that he turn not twenty-three, who chiefly attended on the Temple, that all things might be done according to the law; and in every village containing above 120 persons there was a Court of twenty-three Judges; but where the numbers of the population were smaller, the Judges were reduced to three—the lowest number, according to the Jews, that could pass a decision agreeably to the law. It is curious to observe how large a provision is here made for the dispensation of justice; where the numbers were so great, it was probable that the decision would seldom fail to be according to truth. The order of things here established gives an exalted view of the equity which prevailed in the Mosaic system; the will of God is recognised through the whole as the regulating principle of everything; the Judges had no concern other than in his sight to do what, in their consciences, they held to be just between man and man.

Chap. XVII. 1-20. There is one peculiarity of the Mosaic law, that it was at once the rule of conscience, and the law of the land. In all human affairs, of a judicial character, there must be finality; litigation cannot go on for ever. In some cases, even after causes have been appealed, the decision may be felt to be unjust; and it is possible that, in point of fact, it may be so; but there is no help for the real or imaginary sufferer but to submit. Under the Mosaic system, the Most High was himself the Sovereign; and hence it has aside from the commandment, to ¹the right hand or to the left: to the end that he may prolong his days in his kingdom, he, and his children, in the midst of Israel.

CHAPTER XVIII.

¹ The priests and Levites shall have no inheritance: ³ their portion. ¹⁵ Christ the Prophet is to be heard. ²⁰ The presumptuous prophet must be put to death.

THE priests the Levites, and all the tribe of Levi, ^ashall have no part nor inheritance with Israel: ^bthey shall eat the offerings of the LORD made by fire, and his inheritance.

² Therefore shall they have no inheritance among their brethren: ^cthe LORD is their inheritance, as he hath said unto them.

³ ¶ And this shall be the priest's due from the people, from them that ^doffer a sacrifice, whether it be ox or sheep; and they shall give unto the priest the shoulder, and the two cheeks, and the maw.

⁴ The ^efirst-fruit also of thy corn, of thy wine, and of thine oil, and the first of ^fthe fleece of thy sheep, shalt thou give him.

⁵ For the LORD thy God hath ^gchosen him out of all thy tribes, to stand to minister in the name of the LORD, him and his sons for ever.

⁶ ¶ And if ^ha Levite ⁱcome from any of thy gates out of all Israel, where he sojourned, and ^jcome with all the desire of his mind unto the place which the LORD shall choose;

⁷ Then he shall minister in the name of the LORD his God, ^kas all his brethren the Levites do, which stand there before the LORD.

⁸ They shall have ^llike portions to eat, besides ^mthat which cometh of the sale of his patrimony.

⁹ ¶ When thou art come into the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, ⁿthou shalt not learn to do after the abominations of those nations.

¹⁰ There shall not be found among you ^oany one that ^pmaketh his son or his daughter to pass through the fire, or ^qthat useth divination, or an observer of times, or an enchanter, or a witch,

CHAPTER XIX.

¹ Of the cities of refuge: ⁴ their privileges. ¹⁴ Land-marks not to be removed. ¹⁵ Two witnesses required. ¹⁶ The punishment of a false witness.

WHEN the LORD thy God ^ahath cut off the nations, whose land the LORD been called a "Theocracy," or Government chiefly by God. Kings and their representatives are still under the authority of Heaven, inasmuch as Government, whatever its precise character, is a Divine ordinance.

Chap. XVIII. 1-14. Divination extensively prevailed in ancient times, as it does still in Heathen countries; and hence the care with which Moses excluded such imposture. The thing presented a great variety of aspects. Star-gazers professed to derive their information from the heavens; the enchanter inspected the entrails of beasts, and the flight of birds; witches dealt in herbs, drugs, and perfumes; the charmers employed words, amulets, and other things; the necromancer professed to commune with the invisible world; the wizards were persons laying claim to wonderful wisdom, penetrating far beyond the view of common observation. All these measures were employed for ascertaining the mind of the "gods," and imposing on the people. The practitioners of these divers arts were everywhere an important class, in favour with the multitude, and in the confidence of the rulers, whose government they upheld. Ver. 15-22. The most important prediction in the books of Moses, is that contained in ver. 15, 18, 19, which clearly and incontestably point to the Lord Jesus Christ. These words indicate alike his character and his position, the superiority of his claims, and the fearful consequences of rejecting him. Jesus, in being like unto Moses, was much greater than the greatest of the prophets, since Moses excelled them all by uniting in himself the functions of King, Priest, Mediator, Legislator, and Teacher—attributes all combined, and all perfected in the Lord Jesus Christ, who surpassed Moses infinitely more than Moses surpassed the prophets of the Lord.

Chap. XIX. 1-21. To remove the land-mark was a great offence, since it affected property. Stones indi-thy God giveth thee, and thou¹ succeedest them, and dwellest in their cities, and in their houses;

2 Thou shalt² separate three cities for thee in the midst of thy land, which the LORD thy God giveth thee to possess it.

3 Thou shalt³ prepare thee a way, and divide the coasts of thy land, which the LORD thy God giveth thee to inherit, into three parts, that every slayer may flee thither.

4 ¶ And this is the case of⁴ the slayer which shall flee thither, that he may live: Whoso killeth his neighbour ignorantly, whom he hated not⁵ in time past;

5 As when a man goeth into the wood with his neighbour to hew wood, and his hand fetcheth a stroke with the axe to cut down the tree, and the⁶ head slippeth from the⁷ helve, and⁸ lighteth upon his neighbour, that he die; ⁹he shall flee unto one of those cities, and live:

6 Lest¹⁰ the avenger of the blood pursue the slayer, while his heart is hot, and overtake him, because the way is long, and¹¹ slay him; whereas he was¹² not worthy of death, inasmuch as he hated him not¹³ in time past.

7 Wherefore I command thee, saying, Thou shalt separate three cities for thee.

8 And if the LORD thy God¹⁴ enlarge thy coast, as he hath sworn unto thy fathers, and give thee all the land which he promised to give unto thy fathers;

9 ¶ If thou shalt keep all these commandments to do them, which I command thee this day, to love the LORD thy God, and to walk ever in his ways; then shalt thou add three cities more for thee, besides these three:

10 That¹⁵ innocent blood be not shed in thy land, which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance, and so blood be upon thee.

11 ¶ But¹⁶ if any man hate his neighbour, and lie in wait for him, and rise up against him, and smite him¹⁷ mortally that he die, and fleeth into one of these cities;

12 Then the elders of his city shall send and fetch him thence, and deliver him into the hand of the avenger of blood, that he may die.

13 Thine eye shall not pity him; but¹⁸ thou shalt put away the guilt of innocent blood from Israel, that it may go well with thee.

1 The priest's exhortation to encourage the people to battle. 10 How to use the cities that accept or refuse the proclamation of peace. 16 What cities must be destroyed.

WHEN thou¹ goest out to battle against thine enemies, and seest² horses and chariots, and a people more than thou, be not afraid of them: for³ the LORD thy God is with thee, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

2 And it shall be, when ye are come nigh unto the battle, that⁴ the priest shall approach and speak unto the people,

3 And shall say unto them, Hear, O Israel; Ye approach this day unto battle against your enemies: ⁵let not your hearts faint; fear not, and do not⁶ tremble, neither⁷ be ye terrified because of them:

4 For the LORD your God is he that goeth with you, ⁸to fight for you against your enemies, to save you.

5 ¶ And the⁹ officers shall speak unto the people, saying, What man is there that hath built a new house, and hath not cating boundaries were sacred among the Romans, which most materially tended to the preservation of property in its integrity. To meddle with these landmarks was a very great transgression; and more especially so in Palestine, where the territory was allocated directly by the lot of the Lord. Society cannot exist without laws; and laws cannot be administered without testimony. False witness, or perjury, therefore, is the most obnoxious of crimes; and as such deserves the severest punishment. God is specially pointed to as the God of truth, by whom actions are weighed. It is amongst the principal characteristics of his children "that they will not lie." Disregard to truth, and the fear of God, are utterly incompatible. Christianity, therefore, is the antagonist of falsehood, which its universal prevalence would banish from the earth. "Lie not one to another," is a command which the "First-born" addresses to the whole family of heaven; a command which regenerated nature will everywhere spontaneously obey.

Chap. XX. 1-20. We have here a statement of the laws of defensive war: wars of aggression were not permitted to the Jews, unless for the recovery of their own land, which had been promised to their father Abraham, and in the meantime seized and appropriated by strangers. But at that time the children of Israel had no chariots or horses; their fighting men were all what are now called infantry, or foot soldiers. The injunction in ver. 17 is to be explained by considerations set forth in previous verses; in addition to being intruders on the property of the Israelites, they were pre-eminently 7 And what man is there that hath ¹betrothed a wife, and hath not taken her? let him go and return unto his house, ²lest he die in the battle, and another man take her.

8 And the officers shall speak further unto the people, and they shall say, What man is there that is ²fearful and faint-hearted? let him go and return unto his house, ⁴lest his brethren's heart ⁴faint as well as his heart.

9 And it shall be, when the officers have made an end of speaking unto the people, that they shall make captains of the armies ⁶to lead the people.

CHAPTER XXI.

¹ The expiation of an uncertain murder. ¹⁵ The first-born is not to be disinherited upon private affection. ¹⁸ A stubborn son is to be stoned to death.

IF one be ⁶found slain in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee to possess it, lying in the field, and it be not known who hath slain him;

2 Then ²thy elders and thy judges shall come forth, and they shall measure unto the cities which are round about him that is slain.

3 And it shall be, that the city which is next unto the slain man, even the elders of that city shall take ⁶an heifer, which hath not been wrought with, and which hath not drawn in the yoke;

4 And the elders of that city shall bring down the heifer unto a rough valley, which is neither eared nor sown, and ⁴shall strike off the heifer's neck there in the valley:

5 And the priests, the sons of Levi, shall come near; ⁶(for them the LORD thy God hath chosen to minister unto him, and to bless in the name of the LORD;) and ¹by their ¹word shall every controversy and every stroke be tried.

6 And all the elders of that city, that are next unto the slain man, shall ²wash their hands over the heifer that is beheaded in the valley:

7 And they shall answer and say, ²Our hands have not shed this blood, neither have our eyes seen it.

8 Be merciful, O LORD, unto thy people Israel, whom thou hast redeemed, and ¹lay not innocent blood ²unto thy people of Israel's charge. And the blood shall be forgiven them.

9 So ²thou shalt put away the guilt of innocent blood from among you, ¹when thou shalt do that which is right in the sight of the LORD.

10 ¶ When ²thou goest forth to war against thine enemies, and the LORD thy God hath delivered them into thine hands, and thou hast taken them captive,

11 And seest among the captives a beautiful woman, and hast ²a desire unto transgressors against the Lord. Ver. 11 and 18 clearly point to their extermination.

Chap. XXI. 1-23. The object of this law was to increase the public horror of murder. The heifer constituted a public protest touching the guilt of the murderer. The mode of killing the creature was awfully expressive of abhorrence, and much calculated to impress the mind of the people with the guilt of the crime. The "washing of hands" has, in every age, been symbolical of innocence. Ver. 23 is important, from its relation to the crucifixion of the Saviour. None but malefactors deserving to die were to be crucified; and hence the declaration, "Cursed is every one that hangeth on a tree." The import of the expression is that he is devoted to destruction for his sin, and destroyed accordingly. The passage has, of course, no reference to his future condition: it regards the man simply in his relation to her, °that thou wouldest have her to thy wife;

12 Then thou shalt bring her home to thine house; and °she shall shave her head, and °pare her nails;

13 And she shall put the raiment of her captivity from off her, and shall remain in thine house, and °bewail her father and her mother a full month: and after that thou shalt go in unto her, and be her husband, and she shall be thy wife.

14 And it shall be, if thou have no delight in her, then thou shalt let her go whither she will; but °thou shalt not sell her at all for money, thou shalt not make merchandise of her, °because thou hast humbled her.

15 ¶ If a man have °two wives, one beloved, and another hated, and they have born him children, °both the beloved and the hated; and if the first-born son be her's that was hated:

16 Then it shall be, °when he maketh his sons to inherit °that which he hath, °that he may not make the son of the beloved first-born before the son of the hated, °which is indeed the first-born:

17 But he shall acknowledge the son of the hated for the first-born, °by giving him a double portion of all °that he hath: for he is °the beginning of his strength; the right of the first-born is his.

18 ¶ If a man have °a stubborn and rebellious son, which will not °obey the voice of his father, or the voice of his mother, and °that, °when they have chastened him, °will not hearken unto them;

19 Then shall his father and his mother lay hold on him, °and bring him out unto the elders of his city, and unto the gate of his place:

20 And they shall say unto the elders of his city, This our son is stubborn and rebellious, he will not obey our voice; °he is a glutton and a drunkard.

21 And °all the men of his city shall stone him with stones, that he die: °so shalt thou put evil away from among you; and all Israel shall hear, and fear.

22 ¶ And if a man have committed °a sin worthy of death, and he be to be put to death, and °thou hang him on a tree;

23 His body shall not remain all night upon the tree, but thou shalt in any wise bury him that day; (for °he that is hanged is °accursed of God;) that °thy

CHAPTER XXII.

1 Of humanity toward brethren. 5 Divers laws. 22 Of adultery. 25 Of rape. 28 Of fornication. 30 Of incest.

THOU °shalt not see thy brother's ox or his sheep go astray, and °hide thyself from them: thou shalt in any case bring them again unto thy brother.

2 And if thy brother be not nigh unto thee, or if thou know him not; then thou shalt bring it unto thine own house, and it shall be with thee until thy brother seek after it, and °thou shalt restore it to him again.

3 In like manner shalt thou do with his ass, and so shalt thou do with his raiment; and with all lost thing of thy brother's, which he hath lost, and thou hast found, shalt thou do likewise: thou mayest not hide thyself.

4 ¶ Thou shalt not see thy brother's ass or his ox fall down by the way, and hide thyself from them; °thou shalt surely help him to lift them up again.

5 ¶ The °woman shall not wear that which pertaineth unto a man, neither shall a man put on a woman's garment: for all that do so are °abomination unto the LORD thy God.

6 ¶ If a bird's nest chance to be before thee in the way in any tree, or on the ground, °whether they be young ones or eggs, and the dam sitting upon the young, or upon the eggs, °thou shalt not take the dam with the young:

7 But thou shalt in any wise let the dam go, and take the young to thee; °that it may be well with thee, and °that thou mayest prolong thy days.

8 ¶ When thou buildest a new house, °then thou shalt make a battlement for °thy roof, that °thou bring not blood upon thine house, if any man fall from thence.

9 ¶ Thou °shalt not sow thy vineyard with divers seeds; lest the fruit of thy seed which thou hast sown, and the °fruit of thy vineyard, be defiled.

10 ¶ Thou shalt not plough with an ox and an ass together.

11 ¶ Thou shalt not wear a garment of divers sorts, as of woollen and linen together.

12 ¶ Thou shalt make thee °fringes the law. It deserves to be particularly noticed, that the laws of Moses fix public attention on the guilt of the murderer; and not a word is anywhere uttered to create sympathy with the murderer on his being subjected to punishment. Unhappily, in our times, we have often strange demonstrations of a contrary character. While silent as to the sufferings of the slain, and the wrongs and sorrows of the survivors, many are loud in their execration of the barbarity of the laws in executing the man who has been the cause of it.

Chap. XXII. 1-30. Moses was always minutely studious of the proprieties of life, well knowing that it was necessary that the sexes should be distinguished by their dress and costume. The most insignificant of creatures were not beneath his notice; even the birds of the hedge claimed his attention. In thus enacting, Moses had reference to man; and the extinction of divers beasts and birds might have been a source of serious inconvenience to the people. Even creatures the most odious have their use; the vulture itself, in destroying putrid bodies, prevents pestilence; and the ibis, by devouring snakes, has rendered service to society; the owl keeps down the mice, the sparrow the caterpillar, and others the locust. God has made nothing in vain; his wisdom and goodness rule over all. This chapter should lead Christians to cultivate whatever makes for purity of heart, as the only sure guarantee for purity of life. It behoves them, as much as may be, to keep the young and tender from the society of the wicked, and to preserve their mind from contact with all impure and debasing literature, which is eminently fitted to corrupt upon the four ²quarters of thy vesture, wherewith thou coverest thyself.

13 ¶ If any man take a wife, and °go in unto her, and hate her,

14 And give ³occasions of speech against her, and bring up an evil name upon her, and say, I took this woman, and when I came to her I found her not a maid :

15 Then shall the father of the damsel, and her mother, take and bring forth the tokens of the damsel's virginity unto the elders of the city in the gate :

16 And the damsel's father shall say unto the elders, I gave my daughter unto this man to wife, and he hateth her ;

17 And, lo, he hath given occasions of speech against her, saying, I found not thy daughter a maid ; and yet these are the tokens of my daughter's virginity. And they shall spread the cloth before the elders of the city.

18 And the elders of that city shall take that man and chastise him ;

19 And they shall amerce him in an hundred shekels of silver, and give them unto the father of the damsel, because he hath brought up an evil name upon a virgin of Israel ; and she shall be his wife : °he may not put her away all his days.

20 But if this thing be true, and the tokens of virginity be not found for the damsel :

21 Then they shall bring out the damsel to the door of her father's house, and the men of her city shall °stone her with stones that she die ; because °she hath wrought folly in Israel, to play the whore in her father's house : °so shalt thou put evil away from among you.

22 ¶ If °a man be found lying with a woman married to an husband, then they shall both of them die, both the man that lay with the woman, and the woman : so shalt thou put away evil from Israel.

23 ¶ If a damsel that is a virgin be °betrothed unto an husband, and a man find her in the city, and lie with her ;

24 Then ye shall bring them both out unto the gate of that city, and ye shall stone them with stones that they die ; the damsel, because she cried not, being in the city ; and the man, because he hath humbled his neighbour's °wife : °so thou shalt put away evil from among you.

25 ¶ But if a man find a betrothed damsel in the field, and the man °force her, and lie with her ; then the man only that lay with her shall die :

26 But unto the damsel thou shalt do nothing ; there is in the damsel °no sin worthy of death : for as when a man riseth against his neighbour, and slayeth him, even so is this matter :

27 For he found her in the field, and the betrothed damsel °cried, and there was none to save her.

28 ¶ If a man find °a damsel that is a virgin, which is not betrothed, and lay hold on her, and lie with her, and they be found ;

29 Then the man that lay with her shall give unto the damsel's father fifty shekels of silver, and she shall be his wife ; °because he hath humbled her, he may not put her away all his days.

30 ¶ A °man shall not take his father's wife, nor °discover his father's skirt.

CHAPTER XXIII.

1 Who may, or may not, enter into the congregation. 9 Uncleaness to be avoided in the host. 21 Of vows. 24 Of trespasses.

HE that is °wounded in the stones, or hath his privy member cut off, shall not enter into the congregation of the LORD.

2 A °bastard shall not enter into the congregation of the LORD ; even to his tenth generation shall he not enter into the congregation of the LORD.

3 ¶ °An Ammonite or Moabite shall not enter into the congregation of the LORD ; even to their tenth generation shall they not enter into the congregation of the LORD for ever :

4 °Because they met you not with bread and with water in the way, when ye came forth out of Egypt ; and °because they hired against thee Balaam the son of Beor, of Pethor of Mesopotamia, to curse thee.

5 Nevertheless °the LORD thy God would not hearken unto Balaam ; but the LORD thy God turned the curse into a blessing unto thee, °because the LORD thy God loved thee.

6 Thou shalt °not seek their peace nor their °prosperity all thy days for ever.

7 ¶ Thou shalt not abhor an Edomite ; for °he is thy brother : thou shalt not abhor an Egyptian ; °because thou wast a stranger in his land.

8 The children that are begotten of them shall °enter into the congregation of the LORD in their third generation.

9 ¶ When the host goeth forth against thine enemies, then °keep thee from every wicked thing.

10 ¶ If there be among you any man the heart. The greatest enemies of a country are its impure writers ; and the greatest service that can be done to mankind, is to check the progress of their pestilent productions.

Chap. XXIII. 1-25. Moses here determines, at the outset, who were to be accounted of the Jewish nation, and who were not. None who were not so recognised could be admitted to the public service in any capacity whatever. The laws of Moses, however, opened the door of admission to the worship of God to all the Gentiles ; and he has been at special pains to secure for the strangers, not merely justice, but humanity. Alien laws however, are essential to the peace and safety of society ; and, accordingly, all nations possessed and acted upon them. From the whole we learn the direction in which the current of human depravity, in every age, has run : there lies the weakness of society, and there lies the duty of the religious teacher, the moralist, and the law-giver. The second and the third may do somewhat considerable to restrain corruption ; but the first alone, as exhibiting the mercy of God in the blood of Christ, can dry up the springs of iniquity. All attempts to work the regeneration of man, without the grace of God, have hitherto "that is not clean, by reason of uncleanness that chanceth him by night, then shall he go abroad out of the camp; he shall not come within the camp:

11 But it shall be, when evening cometh on, he shall wash himself with water; and when the sun is down, he shall come into the camp again.

12 ¶ Thou shalt have a place also without the camp, whither thou shalt go forth abroad:

13 And thou shalt have a paddle upon thy weapon; and it shall be, when thou wilt ease thyself abroad, thou shalt dig therewith, and shalt turn back and cover that which cometh from thee:

14 For the LORD thy God walketh in the midst of thy camp, to deliver thee, and to give up thine enemies before thee; therefore shall thy camp be holy: that he see no unclean thing in thee, and turn away from thee.

15 ¶ Thou shalt not deliver unto his master the servant which is escaped from his master unto thee:

16 He shall dwell with thee, even among you, in that place which he shall choose in one of thy gates, where it liketh him best: thou shalt not oppress him.

17 ¶ There shall be no whore of the daughters of Israel, nor a sodomite of the sons of Israel.

18 ¶ Thou shalt not bring the hire of a whore, or the price of a dog, into the house of the LORD thy God for any vow; for even both these are abomination unto the LORD thy God.

19 ¶ Thou shalt not lend upon usury to thy brother; usury of money, usury of victuals, usury of any thing that is lent upon usury.

20 Unto a stranger thou mayest lend upon usury, but unto thy brother thou shalt not lend upon usury; that the LORD thy God may bless thee in all that thou settest thine hand to in the land whither thou goest to possess it.

21 ¶ When thou shalt vow a vow unto the LORD thy God, thou shalt not slack to pay it: for the LORD thy God will surely require it of thee; and it would be sin in thee.

22 But if thou shalt forbear to vow, it shall be no sin in thee.

23 That which is gone out of thy lips thou shalt keep and perform; even a free-will-offering, according as thou hast vowed unto the LORD thy God, which thou hast promised with thy mouth.

24 ¶ When thou comest into thy neighbour's vineyard, then thou mayest eat grapes thy fill at thine own pleasure; but thou shalt not put any in thy vessel.

CHAPTER XXIV.

1 Of divorce. 6, 10 Of pledges. 7 Of man-slayers. 8 Of leprosy. 14 Servant's hire to be given. 17 Of justice. 19 Of charity.

WHEN a man hath taken a wife, and married her, and it come to pass that she find no favour in his eyes, because he hath found some uncleanness in her; then let him write her a bill of divorcement, and give it in her hand, and send her out of his house.

2 And when she is departed out of his house, she may go and be another man's wife.

3 And if the latter husband hate her, and write her a bill of divorcement, and giveth it in her hand, and sendeth her out of his house; or if the latter husband die, which took her to be his wife;

4 Her former husband, which sent her away, may not take her again to be his wife, after that she is defiled; for that is abomination before the LORD: and thou shalt not cause the land to sin, which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance.

5 ¶ When a man hath taken a new wife, he shall not go out to war, neither shall he be charged with any business; but he shall be free at home one year, and shall cheer up his wife which he hath taken.

6 ¶ No man shall take the nether or the upper millstone to pledge: for he taketh a man's life to pledge.

7 ¶ If a man be found stealing any of his brethren of the children of Israel, and maketh merchandise of him, or selleth him: then that thief shall die: and thou shalt put evil away from among you.

8 ¶ Take heed in the plague of leprosy, that thou observe diligently, and do according to all that the priests the Levites shall teach you: as I commanded them, so ye shall observe to do.

9 ¶ Remember what the LORD thy God did unto Miriam by the way, after that ye were come forth out of Egypt.

10 ¶ When thou dost lend thy brother any thing, thou shalt not go into his house to fetch his pledge.

11 Thou shalt stand abroad, and the man to whom thou dost lend shall bring out the pledge abroad unto thee.

12 And if the man be poor, thou shalt not sleep with his pledge:

13 In any case thou shalt deliver him the pledge again when the sun goeth failed; and they will fail to the end. The Gospel alone is "the power of God to salvation to every one that believeth;" and it behoves the people of God, boldly acting on this great truth, to carry it out to the extent of the means which Providence may put into their hands. This, however, is a truth humbling to human pride; and hence it was not for nothing that the Apostle said he was not "ashamed" of it. This Gospel brings to man all imaginable good, while it deprives him of all grounds whatever of boasting.

Chap. XXIV. 1-22. Here again the consideration of Moses appears on the subject of taking pledges. Neither of the millstones must be taken, forasmuch as "it is a man's life." Among the Arabians most families still grind their own corn, wheat, and barley, having down, that he may sleep in his own raiment, and bless thee: and it shall be righteousness unto thee before the LORD thy God.

14 ¶ Thou shalt not oppress an hired servant that is poor and needy, whether he be of thy brethren, or of thy strangers that are in thy land within thy gates:

15 At his day thou shalt give him his hire, neither shall the sun go down upon it; for he is poor, and setteth his heart upon it: lest he cry against thee unto the LORD, and it be sin unto thee.

16 ¶ The fathers shall not be put to death for the children, neither shall the children be put to death for the fathers: every man shall be put to death for his own sin.

17 ¶ Thou shalt not pervert the judgment of the stranger, nor of the fatherless, nor take a widow's raiment to pledge:

18 But thou shalt remember that thou wast a bond-man in Egypt, and the LORD thy God redeemed thee thence: therefore I command thee to do this thing.

19 ¶ When thou cuttest down thine harvest in thy field, and hast forgot a sheaf in the field, thou shalt not go again to fetch it: it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherless, and for the widow; that the LORD thy God may bless thee in all the work of thine hands.

20 When thou beatest thine olive-tree, thou shalt not go over the boughs again: it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherless, and for the widow.

21 When thou gatherest the grapes of thy vineyard, thou shalt not glean it afterward: it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherless, and for the widow.

22 And thou shalt remember that thou wast a bond-man in the land of Egypt: therefore I command thee to do this thing.

cause him to lie down, and to be beaten before his face, according to his fault, by a certain number.

3 Forty stripes he may give him, and not exceed: lest, if he should exceed, and beat him above these with many stripes, then thy brother should seem vile unto thee.

4 ¶ Thou shalt not muzzle the ox when he treadeth out the corn.

5 ¶ If brethren dwell together, and one of them die, and have no child, the wife of the dead shall not marry without unto a stranger: her husband's brother shall go in unto her, and take her to him to wife, and perform the duty of an husband's brother unto her.

6 And it shall be, that the first-born which she beareth shall succeed in the name of his brother which is dead, that his name be not put out of Israel.

7 And if the man like not to take his brother's wife, then let his brother's wife go up to the gate unto the elders, and say, My husband's brother refuseth to raise up unto his brother a name in Israel, he will not perform the duty of my husband's brother.

8 Then the elders of his city shall call him, and speak unto him: and if he stand to it, and say, I like not to take her;

9 Then shall his brother's wife come unto him in the presence of the elders, and loose his shoe from off his foot, and spit in his face, and shall answer and say, So shall it be done unto that man that will not build up his brother's house.

10 And his name shall be called in Israel. The house of him that hath his shoe loosed.

11 ¶ When men strive together one with another, and the wife of the one draweth near for to deliver her husband out of the hand of him that smiteth him, and putteth forth her hand, and taketh him by the secrets;

12 Then thou shalt cut off her hand, °thine eye shall not pity her.

13 ¶ Thou shalt not have divers weights, a great and a small.

14 Thou shalt not have in thine house divers measures, a great and a small.

15 But thou shalt have a perfect and just weight, a perfect and just measure shalt thou have: that thy days may be two portable mill-stones for that purpose, the uppermost of which is turned round by a small handle. These stones, therefore, might easily be taken in pledge; but to take them was to prevent the preparation of food for the household. Great delicacy is shewn in the provision made for the recovery of pledges. The house of the poor man might not be entered, and the lender was to take only what the borrower could spare. Christianity has put an end to the distinction of nations, and has taught its disciples to look upon all men as brethren. They are, therefore, bound to carry out the fraternal principle in the whole of their conduct; but this is at utter and everlasting variance with that "sum of all villainies," that chief of all thefts, the stealing of men! Moses here especially provides that the thief who is found stealing any of his brethren should die. It is the climax of impiety, therefore, to repair to the Word of God, whether to the Old Testament or to the New, in search of scriptures to warrant traffic in the souls and bodies of men.

Chap. XXV. 1-19. The humanity of Moses never forsakes him, even when providing punishment. Ver. 3 shews that stripes must not exceed forty. The scourge consisted of three lashes, so that thirteen strokes were counted as thirty-nine; hence the expression, "forty stripes save one." It has been thought that the term "forty," as well as "seven," has some mystic meaning attached to it. Moses twice fasted and prayed forty days and forty nights; Elias and Christ did the same: Israel was afflicted forty years in the wilderness; Egypt was desolate forty years; forty days and nights of rain preceded the flood; Ezekiel bore the iniquity of Judah forty days; Jonah preached forty days at Nineveh: forty lengthened in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

16 For all that do such things, and ^rall that do unrighteously, are an abomination unto the LORD thy God.

17 ¶ Remember ^{what} Amalek did unto thee by the way, when ye were come forth out of Egypt;

18 How he met thee by the way, and smote the hindmost of thee, even all that were feeble behind thee, when thou wast faint and weary; and ^{he} feared not God.

19 Therefore it shall be, "when the LORD thy God hath given thee rest from all thine enemies round about, in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance to possess it, that ^{thou} shalt blot out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven; thou shalt not forget it.

CHAPTER XXVI.

1 The confession of him that offereth the basket of first-fruits. 16 The covenant between God and the people.

AND it shall be, "when thou art come in unto the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance, and possessest it, and dwellest therein,

2 That ^{thou} shalt take of the first of all the fruit of the earth, which thou shalt bring of thy land that the LORD thy God giveth thee, and shalt put it in a basket, and shalt go unto the place which the LORD thy God shall choose to place his name there.

3 And thou shalt go unto ^{the} priest that shall be in those days, and say unto him, I profess this day unto the LORD thy God, that I am come unto the country ^{which} the LORD swore unto our fathers for to give us.

4 And the priest shall take the basket out of thine hand, and set it down ^{before} the altar of the LORD thy God.

5 And thou shalt speak and say before the LORD thy God, "A Syrian ^{ready} to perish was my father; and ^{he} went down into Egypt, and sojourned there with ^a few, and ^{became} there a nation, great, mighty, and populous:

6 And ^{the} Egyptians evil entreated us, and afflicted us, and laid upon us hard bondage:

7 And when ^{we} cried unto the LORD God of our fathers, the LORD heard our voice, and ^{looked} on our affliction, and our labour, and our oppression:

days were allowed them for repentance; the old world was allowed three times forty years; and forty years were suffered to expire, after the resurrection of Christ, before the destruction of the City and the Temple. Whatever there may be in the term, there is something remarkable in these facts. The injunction about the muzzling of the ox is explained by the Apostle Paul, in his Epistle to the Corinthians. It was a custom in the East, as also among the Greeks and Romans, to employ oxen in treading out their corn, either with their feet, or by driving a cart, or other instrument, over it. Sometimes they were muzzled to prevent them eating too much; but the muzzle must be removed in order that the creature might satisfy its hunger. The precept, as explained by the Apostle, is not to be limited to oxen; it embraces a principle extending to every species of 9 And ^{he} hath brought us into this place, and hath given us this land, even a land that floweth with milk and honey.

10 And now, behold, "I have brought the first-fruits of the land which thou, O LORD, hast given me. ^{And} thou shalt set it before the LORD thy God, ^{and} worship before the LORD thy God.

11 And thou shalt ^{rejoice} in every good thing which the LORD thy God hath given unto thee, and unto thine house, thou, and the Levite, and the stranger that is among you.

12 ¶ When thou hast made an end of tithing all the tithes of thine increase ^{the} third year, which is the year of tithing, and ^{hast} given it unto the Levite, the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow, that they may eat within thy gates, and be filled;

13 Then thou shalt say before the LORD thy God, I have brought away the hallowed things out of mine house, and also have given them unto the ^{Levite}, and unto the stranger, to the fatherless, and to the widow, according to all thy commandments which thou hast commanded me: ^I have not transgressed thy commandments, neither have I ^{forgotten} them.

14 I have not ^{eaten} thereof in my mourning, neither have I taken away ought thereof for any unclean use, nor given ought thereof for ^{the} dead: but I have hearkened to the voice of the LORD my God, and have done according to all that thou hast commanded me.

15 Look down from thy holy habitation, from heaven, and ^{bless} thy people Israel, and the land which thou hast given us, as thou swarest unto our fathers, a land that floweth with milk and honey.

16 ¶ This day the LORD thy God hath commanded thee to do these statutes and judgments: thou shalt therefore ^{keep} and do them with all thine heart, and with all thy soul.

17 Thou hast ^{avouched} the LORD this day to be thy God, ^{and} to walk in his ways, and to keep his statutes, and his labour. Whether man or beast, all have a right to replenish their wants from the product of their own toil.

Chap. XXVI. 1-19. The earlier part of this chapter is eminently fitted to excite the spirit of piety. The people are here taught, in terms the most touching, to acknowledge their obligations to the distinguishing grace and boundless mercy of God. The condition comprised in ver. 8-11, is imitatively affecting; and so long as these facts are kept firmly in the memory, and often pondered with the heart, the spirit of devotion could never flag. The expression, "flowing with milk and honey," is, of course, poetical; nevertheless, the country abounded with these articles. Among the Hebrews, Funeral Feasts were prepared by the relations of the dead. Josephus states, in relation to Archelaus, that seven commandments, and his judgments, and to ^hhearken unto his voice :

18 And ^{the} LORD hath avouched thee this day to be his peculiar people, as he hath promised thee, and that thou shouldst keep all his commandments;

19 And to make thee ^{high} above all nations which he hath made, in praise, and in name, and in honour; and that thou mayest be an holy people unto the LORD thy God, as he hath spoken.

CHAPTER XXVII.

¹ The people are to write the law upon stones; 5 and to build an altar of whole stones. 14 The curses from mount Ebal.

AND Moses, with the elders of Israel, commanded the people, saying, ^{Keep} all the commandments which I command you this day.

2 And it shall be, ^{on} the day when ye shall pass over Jordan ^{unto} the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, that thou shalt set thee up ^{great} stones, and plaster them with plaster.

3 And ^{thou} shalt write upon them all the words of this law, when thou art passed over; that thou mayest go in unto the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, ^a land that floweth with milk and honey; as the LORD God of thy fathers hath promised thee.

4 Therefore it shall be, when ye be gone over Jordan, that ye shall set up these stones, which I command you this day, ⁱⁿ mount Ebal, and thou shalt plaster them with plaster.

5 And ^{there} shalt thou build an altar unto the LORD thy God, an altar of stones: ^{thou} shalt not lift up any iron tool upon them.

6 Thou shalt build the altar of the LORD thy God of whole stones; and thou shalt offer ^{burnt} offerings thereon unto the LORD thy God:

7 And thou shalt offer ^{peace} offerings, and shalt eat there, and ^{rejoice} before the LORD thy God.

8 And ^{thou} shalt write upon the stones all the words of this law ^{very} plainly.

9 ¶ And Moses, and the priests the Levites, spake unto all Israel, saying, Take heed, and hearken, O Israel; ^{This} day thou art become the people of the LORD thy God.

12 These shall stand upon ^{mount} Gerizim to bless the people, when ye are come over Jordan; ^{Simeon}, and Levi, and Judah, and Issachar, and Joseph, and Benjamin.

13 And these shall stand upon ^{mount} Ebal ^{to} curse; ^{Reuben}, Gad, and Asher, and Zebulun, Dan, and Naphtali.

14 ¶ And ^{the} Levites shall speak, and say unto all the men of Israel with a loud voice, 15 ^{Cursed} be the man that ^{maketh} any graven or molten image, ^{an} abomination unto the LORD, the work of the hands of the craftsman, ^{and} putteth it in a secret place: ^{and} all the people shall answer and say, Amen.

16 Cursed be ^{he} that setteth light by his father or his mother: and all the people shall say, Amen.

17 Cursed be ^{he} that removeth his neighbour's land-mark: and all the people shall say, Amen.

18 Cursed be ^{he} that maketh the blind to wander out of the way: and all the people shall say, Amen.

19 Cursed be he that ^{perverteth} the judgment of the stranger, fatherless, and widow: and all the people shall say, Amen.

20 Cursed be ^{he} that lieth with his father's wife; because he uncovereth his father's skirt: and all the people shall say, Amen.

21 Cursed be ^{he} that lieth with any manner of beast: and all the people shall say, Amen.

25 Cursed be he that ^{taketh} reward to days being spent in mourning, and a lengthened succession of funeral banquets being given, he proceeded to the Temple clothed in a white garment. The religion of the Israelites was intended to be emphatically a religion of joy: in ver. 11 this comes beautifully out. We must not suppose, however, that the joy here enjoined and experienced was that of the unholy revels of a wicked world. It was pure and spiritual—the action of truth on the soul, under the influence of the Eternal Spirit. No two objects, however, under the sun, present contrasts more striking than such festivities, and the godless bacchanals and midnight orgies of the heathen. The expression, “outstretched arm,” mentioned in ver. 8, is noticeable. In India, at the present time, it continues to be an expression of faithfulness and courage. By this sign the leader of a company of travellers diffuses spirit when they pass a river, encounter beasts of prey, or an army of plunderers; and it is stated, that it is reported to quell fears in the minds of persons threatened with the dangers of the ocean. The same action is employed to seal compacts, and confirm bargains, which, until that be done, are considered insecure.

Chap. XXVII. 1-26. It would seem as if Moses knew not how to make an end of urging obedience on the people. In this we have proofs alike of his affection for them, and his reverence for the God of Abraham. He had already seen, in a manner the most terrible, the consequences of transgression. Throughout the whole period of his official life, he had been daily the mortified witness of the people's proneness to evil. We have here a stream of terrible denunciation against all manner of iniquity. The announcement of these curses might well make the ears of the people to tingle. The tribes descending from the chief wives of Jacob were permitted to stand on Mount Gerizim; while Reuben, who had for-slay an innocent person: and all the people shall say, Amen.

26 ^cCursed be he that confirmeth not all the words of this ^plaw to do them: and all the people shall say, Amen.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

1 The blessings for obedience. 15 The curses for disobedience.

AND it shall come to pass, ^aif thou shalt hearken diligently unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to observe ^band ^cto do all his commandments which I command thee this day, that the LORD thy God ^cwill set thee on high above all nations of the earth:

2 And all these blessings shall ^dcome on thee, and overtake thee, if thou shalt hearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God.

3 Blessed ^eshalt thou be in the city, and blessed shalt thou be ^fin the field.

4 Blessed shall be the ^gfruit of thy body, and the fruit of thy ground, and the fruit of thy cattle, the increase of thy kine, and the flocks of thy sheep.

5 Blessed shall be ^hthy basket and thy ⁱstore.

6 Blessed shalt thou ^jbe when thou comest in, and blessed shalt thou be when thou goest out.

7 The LORD ^kshall cause thine enemies that rise up against thee to be smitten before thy face: they shall come out against thee one way, and ^lflee before thee seven ways.

8 The LORD shall ^mcommand the blessing upon thee ⁿin thy ^ostore-houses, and in all that thou ^psettest thine hand unto; and he shall bless thee in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

9 The LORD shall ^qestablish thee an holy people unto himself, ^ras he hath sworn unto thee, if thou shalt keep the commandments of the LORD thy God, and walk in his ways.

10 And all people of the earth shall see that thou art ^scalled by the name of the LORD; ^tand they shall be afraid of thee.

11 And the LORD shall make thee ^uplenteous ^vin goods, in the fruit of thy ^wbody, and in the fruit of thy cattle, and in the fruit of thy ground, in the land which the LORD swore unto thy fathers to give thee.

21 The LORD shall make ^tthe pestilence cleave unto thee, until he have consumed thee from off the land whither thou goest to possess it.

22 The LORD shall smite thee with ^ua consumption, and with a fever, and with an inflammation, and with an extreme burning, and with the ^vsword, and with ^wblasting, and with mildew; and they shall pursue thee until thou perish.

feited his birth-right, was properly placed with the sons of the bond-women on Ebal. This was, doubtless, a mortifying circumstance, but iniquity will never fail, sooner or later, to be followed by its due reward. The curses here mentioned have ministered to the folly of Infidelity, which has alike overlooked the guilt of transgression, and the precepts of the Creator of the ends of the earth. If he has a right to punish transgressors, has he not a right to pronounce sentence upon them? The function of the Levites, who are here commanded to speak, is simply ministerial: so far from malignantly imprecating judgments, they are simply pronouncing sentence on the guilty. Under the Gospel dispensation, there is no curse to them who receive the truth, and submit to the righteousness of God: whereas, "if any man love not the Lord Jesus Christ, let him be Anathema Maran-atha."

Chap. XXVIII. 1-14. While Moses, faithful to his Lord, had no hesitation in pronouncing "curses," greater still was his pleasure in pronouncing blessings. In the one capacity, the Most High appears as the God of justice: in the other, as the God of mercy. The God of justice acts without a mediator, whereas the God of mercy requires the blood of the covenant. Ver. 15-48. The diseases specified in ver. 27-29 are very terrible. "The botch" was thought to be a sort of leprosy frequent among the Egyptians; and at the present day it is but too well known in many islands of the South Seas. These diseases were to be immediately inflicted by the hand of God, and consequently irremovable by human skill; and so intolerable was the anguish arising from them as to render their victims both "mad and blind," and to fill them with "astonishment of heart." It is impossible for us to form an accurate conception of the fearful state of 24 The LORD shall ^amake the rain of thy land powder and dust: from heaven shall it come down upon thee, until thou be destroyed.

25 The LORD shall ^acause thee to be smitten before thine enemies: thou shalt go out one way against them, and flee seven ways before them; ^aand shalt be ^aremoved into all the kingdoms of the earth.

26 And ^athy carcase shall be meat unto all fowls of the air, and unto the beasts of the earth, and no man shall fray ^athem away.

27 The LORD will smite thee with the botch of Egypt, and with the emerods, and with the scab, and with the itch, whereof thou canst not be healed.

28 The LORD shall smite thee ^awith madness, and blindness, and astonishment of heart:

29 And thou shalt ^agrope at noon-day, as the blind gropeth in darkness, and thou shalt not prosper in thy ways; and ^athou shalt be only oppressed and spoiled evermore, and no man shall save ^athee.

30 Thou shalt betroth a wife, and another man shall lie with her: thou ^ashalt build an house, and thou shalt not dwell therein: thou shalt plant a vineyard, and shalt not ^agather the grapes thereof.

31 Thine ox ^ashall be slain before thine eyes, and thou shalt not eat thereof: thine ass ^ashall be violently taken away from before thy face, and shall not be ^arestored to thee: thy sheep ^ashall be given unto thine enemies, and thou shalt have none to rescue ^athem.

32 Thy ^asons and thy daughters ^ashall be given unto another people, and thine eyes shall look, and fail ^awith longing for them all the day long; and ^athere shall be no might in thine hand.

33 The fruit of thy land, and all thy labours, shall a nation which thou knowest not eat up; and thou shalt be only oppressed and crushed away:

34 So that thou shalt be ^amad for the sight of thine eyes which thou shalt see.

35 The LORD shall smite thee in the knees, and in the legs, with a sore botch that cannot be healed, from the sole of thy foot unto the top of thy head.

36 The LORD shall ^abring thee, and thy king, which thou shalt set over thee, unto a nation which neither thou nor thy fathers have known; and ^athere shalt thou serve other gods, wood and stone.

37 And thou shalt ^abecome an astonishment, a proverb, and a by-word, among all nations whither the LORD shall lead thee.

53 And thou shalt eat ^athe fruit of thine own ^abody, the flesh of thy sons and of thy daughters, which the LORD thy God hath given thee, in the siege, and in the straitness, wherewith thine enemies shall distress thee:

the case here set forth. Ver. 49-68. There may be some difficulty in ascertaining precisely the calamities to which reference is here made; if, however, the preceding passage describe the calamities resulting from the Babylonian captivity, this may announce the second dispersion of the Jews by the Romans. Let not the Christian reader set lightly by either the curses or the blessings here contained; for it will be found that, however changed the dispensation, the principle is unalterable. "The way of transgressors is" still "hard,"

54 So that the man that is tender among you, and very delicate, his eye shall be evil toward his brother, and toward the wife of his bosom, and toward the remnant of his children which he shall leave:

55 So that he will not give to any of them of the flesh of his children whom he shall eat; because he hath nothing left him in the siege, and in the straitness, wherewith thine enemies shall distress thee in all thy gates.

56 The tender and delicate woman among you, which would not adventure to set the sole of her foot upon the ground for delicateness and tenderness, her eye shall be evil toward the husband of her bosom, and toward her son, and toward her daughter,

57 And toward her young one that cometh out from between her feet, and toward her children which she shall bear: for she shall eat them for want of all things secretly in the siege and straitness, wherewith thine enemy shall distress thee in thy gates.

58 If thou wilt not observe to do all the words of this law that are written in this book, that thou mayest fear this glorious and fearful name, THE LORD THY GOD;

59 Then the LORD will make thy plagues wonderful, and the plagues of thy seed, even great plagues, and of long continuance, and sore sicknesses, and of long continuance.

60 Moreover, he will bring upon thee all the diseases of Egypt, which thou wast afraid of; and they shall cleave unto thee:

61 Also every sickness, and every plague, which is not written in the book of this law, them will the LORD bring upon thee, until thou be destroyed.

62 And ye shall be left few in number, whereas ye were as the stars of heaven for multitude; because thou wouldest not obey the voice of the LORD thy God.

63 And it shall come to pass, that as the LORD rejoiced over you to do you good, and to multiply you; so the LORD will rejoice over you to destroy you, and to bring you to nought: and ye shall be plucked from off the land whither thou goest to possess it.

64 And the LORD shall scatter thee among all people, from the one end of the earth even unto the other; and there thou shalt serve other gods, which neither thou nor thy fathers have known, even wood and stone.

65 And among these nations shalt thou find no ease, neither shall the sole of

CHAPTER XXIX.

2 An exhortation to obedience. 10 The people enter into a covenant before the Lord.

THESE are the words of the covenant which the LORD commanded Moses to make with the children of Israel in the land of Moab, beside the covenant which he made with them in Horeb.

2 ¶ And Moses called unto all Israel, and said unto them, Ye have seen all that the LORD did before your eyes in the land of Egypt unto Pharaoh, and unto all his servants, and unto all his land;

3 The great temptations which thine eyes have seen, the signs, and those great miracles;

4 Yet the LORD hath not given you an heart to perceive, and eyes to see, and ears to hear, unto this day.

5 And I have led you forty years in the wilderness: your clothes are not waxen old upon you, and thy shoe is not waxen old upon thy foot.

6 Ye have not eaten bread, neither have ye drunk wine or strong drink; that ye might know that I am the LORD your God.

7 And when ye came unto this place, Sihon the king of Heshbon, and Og the king of Bashan, came out against us unto battle, and we smote them:

8 And we took their land, and gave it for an inheritance unto the Reubenites, and to the Gadites, and to the half-tribe of Manasseh.

9 Keep therefore the words of this covenant, and do them, that ye may prosper in all that ye do.

10 ¶ Ye stand this day all of you before the LORD your God; your captains of your tribes, your elders, and your officers, with all the men of Israel,

11 Your little ones, your wives, and thy stranger that is in thy camp, from the Chap. XXIX. 1-29. The covenant here mentioned is, in principle, the covenant of mercy. Properly speaking, there has been but one covenant, however various the time and manner of its dispensation. The covenant, therefore, made with this new generation was, to all intents, the same as that which had been made with Abraham, and renewed from time to time, to Isaac, Jacob, and the patriarchs. The 4th verse clearly indicates the need of Divine teaching; these hardened people hewer of thy wood unto the drawer of thy water;

12 That ¹thou shouldest ¹enter into covenant with the LORD thy God, and ²into his oath, which the LORD thy God maketh with thee this day;

13 That he may establish thee to-day for a people unto himself, and that ³he may be unto thee a God, as he hath said unto thee, and as he hath sworn unto thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob.

14 Neither with you only ⁴do I make this covenant and this oath;

15 But with him that standeth here with us this day before the LORD our God, and ⁵also with him that is not here with us this day:

16 (For ye know how we have dwelt in the land of Egypt, and how we came through the nations which ye passed by;

17 And ye have seen their abominations, and their ⁶idols, wood and stone, silver and gold, which were among them:)

18 Lest there ⁷should be among you man, or woman, or family, or tribe, whose heart turneth away this day from the LORD our God, to go and serve the gods of these nations; ⁸lest there should be among you a root that beareth ⁹gall and wormwood;

19 And it come to pass, when he heareth the words of this curse, ¹⁰that he bless himself in his heart, saying, I shall have peace, ¹¹though I walk in the ¹²imagination of mine heart, ¹³to add ¹⁴drunkenness to thirst:

20 The LORD ¹⁵will not spare him; but then the anger of the LORD and ¹⁶his jealousy shall smoke against that man, and all the curses that are written in this book shall lie upon him, and the LORD shall ¹⁷blot out his name from under heaven.

21 And the LORD shall ¹⁸separate him unto evil out of all the tribes of Israel, according to all the curses of the covenant that ¹⁹are written in this book of the law:

22 So that the generation to come of your children that shall rise up after you, and the stranger that shall come from a far land, shall say, when they see the plagues of that land, and the ²⁰sicknesses which the LORD hath laid upon it;

23 And that the whole land thereof is ²¹brimstone, and ²²salt, and burning, that

CHAPTER XXX.

1 Great mercies promised to the penitent. 11 The commandment is manifest. 15 Death and life set before them.

AND ¹it shall come to pass, when all ²these things are come upon thee, ³the blessing and the curse, which I have set before thee, and ⁴thou shalt call them to mind among all the nations ⁵whither the LORD thy God hath driven thee,

2 And shalt ⁶return unto the LORD thy God, and shalt obey his voice, according to all that I command thee this day, thou and thy children, ⁷with all thine heart, and with all thy soul;

3 That ⁸then the LORD thy God will turn thy captivity, and have compassion upon thee, and will return, and ⁹gather thee from all the nations whither the LORD thy God hath scattered thee.

4 If any of thine be driven out ¹⁰unto the outmost parts of heaven, from thence will the LORD thy God gather thee, and from thence will he fetch thee.

had not received "a heart to perceive, eyes to see, and ears to hear." They were still perverse, and nothing but the grace of God could soften them. They were of the earth earthy; and resolutely excluded the countless proofs of the Divine love, grace, and mercy. Moses again returns, in ver. 18, with great energy to the subject of Idolatry, with its guilt and its dangers. The subject of Antinomianism also, or the abuse of the grace of God, is brought forward with great prominence in ver. 19-21. Nowhere is a curse more terrible denounced against the man who is disposed to do evil that good may come, and to sin that grace may abound. Of all sins the most heinous is that which consists in turning the grace of God into lasciviousness, or making the Lord Jesus Christ the minister of sin. The closing verse of this chapter is fraught with much instruction to a class, always numerous, and largely to be found amongst the unsanctified youth of the land. Multitudes earnestly concern themselves with matters not revealed, while they recklessly overlook great and vital points, which are written as with a sunbeam. One of these points is, that all flesh has corrupted its way; another, that without shedding of blood there is no remission of sins; another, that he that believeth shall be saved; and another, that he that believeth not shall be damned. Combined with these momentous testimonies, is another, "God commandeth all men everywhere to repent," and to believe in his Son; and they that do so shall never come into condemnation.

Chap. XXX. 1-15. There seems reason to believe, from Paul's interpretation of ver. 11-14, that we have here a prophecy of the ultimate restoration of the Jews, and their conversion to the Gospel. But if this view be

5 And the LORD thy God will bring thee into the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt possess it; and he will do thee good, and multiply thee above thy fathers.

6 And the LORD thy God ^kwill circumcise thine heart, and the heart of thy seed, ^lto love the LORD thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, that thou mayest live.

7 And the LORD thy God will ^mput all these curses upon thine enemies, and on them that hate thee, which persecuted thee.

8 And ⁿthou shalt return, and obey the voice of the LORD, and do all his commandments, which I command thee this day.

9 And the LORD thy God will ^omake thee plenteous in every work of thine hand, in the fruit of thy body, and in the fruit of thy cattle, and in the fruit of thy land, for good: for the LORD will again ^prejoice over thee for good, as he rejoiced over thy fathers;

10 If thou shalt ^qhearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to keep his commandments and his statutes, which are written in this book of the law, and if thou ^rturn unto the LORD thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul.

11 ¶ For this commandment, which I command thee this day, it is not hidden ^sfrom thee, neither is it far off:

12 It is ^tnot in heaven, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go up for us to heaven, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it?

13 Neither is it beyond the sea, that thou shouldest say, ^uWho shall go over the sea for us, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it?

14 But the word is ^vvery nigh unto thee, ^win thy mouth, and in thy heart, that thou mayest do it.

15 ¶ See, ^xI have set before thee this day life and good, and death and evil;

16 In that I command thee this day ^yto love the LORD thy God, to walk in his ways, and to keep his commandments, and his statutes, and his judgments, that thou mayest live and multiply: and the LORD thy God shall bless thee in the land whither thou goest to possess it.

CHAPTER XXXI.

1 Moses encourageth the people and Joshua: 9 he delivereth the law unto the priests. 19 God giveth Moses a song to testify against the people. 23 Joshua receiveth a charge.

AND Moses went and spake these words unto all Israel.

2 And he said unto them, ^aI am an hundred and twenty years old this day; ^bI can no more go out and come in: also the LORD hath said unto me, ^cThou shalt not go over this Jordan.

3 The LORD ^dthy God, he will go over before thee, ^eand he will destroy these nations from before thee, and thou shalt possess them: ^fand Joshua, he shall go over before thee, as the LORD hath said.

4 And ^gthe LORD shall do unto them as he did to Sihon and to Og, kings of the Amorites, and unto the land of them, whom he destroyed.

5 And the LORD shall give them up before your face, that ye may do unto them ^haccording unto all the commandments which I have commanded you.

6 ⁱBe strong, and of a good courage, ^jfear not, nor be afraid of them: for the LORD thy God, he ^kis that doth go with thee; ^lhe will not fail thee, nor forsake thee.

7 ¶ And Moses called unto Joshua, and said unto him in the sight of all Israel, ^mBe strong, and of a good courage: ⁿfor thou must go with this people unto the land which the LORD hath sworn unto accurate, the "land" must be understood figuratively of heaven, or at least of the Christian Church; the import which it generally bears in all prophecies pointing to the age of the Messiah, when every part of the earth shall be alike holy. The commandment in ver. 11 is a term significant of the whole body of Inspiration, including the promises of the Saviour, and everything appertaining to his person, offices, and work. Paul's exposition of it in Romans x. 5-9, is very remarkable; he sets it forth as a solemn commandment to believe in the Lord Jesus, combining therewith an assurance to every believer of everlasting life. Ver. 16-20. Here again the terms, "Commandments," "Statutes," and "Judgments," are necessarily comprehensive of all Scripture, which is given by inspiration of God, doctrinal, promissory, preceptive, historic, and prophetic. The great Law-giver rises into awful sublimity in ver. 18-20. Nothing can add to the emphasis of the warning which is here presented; and no words of man's utterance can possibly produce a greater impression than these on the heart of the intelligent believer. "Life and death" are terms which must not be limited to the body; they clearly have reference to a future world, to the felicity connected with faith, and the misery resulting from disobedience. There can be no peace for a rational being until he be pardoned; there can be no pardon where there is no penitence; there can be no penitence which "needeth not to be repented of," which does not issue in the faith of the Son of God, forasmuch as he "is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth."

Chap. XXXI. 1-13. We now approach a period in the history of Moses unutterably affecting. Behold him, with trembling dignity, rehearsing his own age, and their fathers to give them; and thou shalt cause them to inherit it.

8 And the LORD, "he it is that doth go before thee: "he will be with thee, he will not fail thee, neither forsake thee: fear not, neither be dismayed.

9 ¶ And Moses wrote this law, and delivered it unto "the priests the sons of Levi, "which bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and unto all the elders of Israel.

10 And Moses commanded them, saying, "At the end of every seven years, in the solemnity of the year of release, in the feast of tabernacles, 11 When all Israel is come "to appear before the LORD thy God "in the place which he shall choose, "thou shalt read this law before all Israel in their hearing.

12 "Gather the people together, "men, and women, and children, and thy stranger that is within thy gates, "that they may hear, and that they may learn, and fear the LORD your God, and observe to do all the words of this law;

13 And that "their children, which have not known any thing, may hear, and learn to fear the LORD your God, as long as ye live in the land whither ye go over Jordan to possess it.

14 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Behold, thy days approach "that thou must die: call Joshua, and present yourselves in the tabernacle of the congregation, that "I may give him a charge. And Moses and Joshua went, and presented themselves in the tabernacle of the congregation.

15 And the LORD "appeared in the tabernacle in a pillar of a cloud: and the pillar of the cloud stood over the door of the tabernacle.

16 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Behold, "thou shalt sleep with thy fathers; and this people will rise up, "and go a whoring after the gods of the strangers of the land whither they go to be among them, and will "forsake me, and "break my covenant which I have made with them.

17 Then "my anger shall be kindled against them in that day, and "I will forsake them, and I will "hide my face from them, and they shall be devoured, and many evils and troubles shall "befall them; so that they will say in that day, "Are not these evils come upon us, because our God is not among us?

18 And "I will surely hide my face in that day, for all the evils which they shall have wrought, in that they are turned unto other gods.

19 ¶ Now therefore write ye "this song for you, "and teach it the children of Israel: "put it in their mouths, that this song may be "a witness for me against the children of Israel.

20 For "when I shall have brought them into the land which I swear unto their fathers, "that floweth with milk and honey, and they shall "have eaten, and filled themselves, and "waxed fat; "then will they turn unto other gods, and serve them, and provoke me, and break my covenant.

21 And it shall come to pass, when many evils and troubles are befallen them, that "this song shall testify "against them as a witness; for it shall not be forgotten out of the mouths of their seed: for "I know their imagination which they "go about, even now, before I have brought them into the land which I swear.

22 ¶ Moses therefore wrote this song the same day, and taught it the children of Israel.

23 And he gave Joshua the son of Nun a charge, and said, Be strong, and of a good courage: for "thou shalt bring the children of Israel into the land which I swear unto them; and I will be with thee.

24 ¶ And it came to pass, when Moses had made an end of writing the words of this law in a book, until they were finished,

25 That Moses commanded the Levites, which bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, saying, 26 Take this book of the law, and put it "in the side of the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God, that it may be there for a witness against thee.

27 For I know thy rebellion, and thy "stiff neck: behold, while I am yet alive with you this day, ye have been rebellious against the LORD; and how much "more after my death?

28 "Gather unto me all the elders of your tribes, and your officers, that I may speak these words in their ears, and call heaven and earth to record against them.

29 For I know that after my death ye will utterly "corrupt yourselves, and turn aside from the way which I have commanded you; "and evil will befall you in the latter days; because ye will do evil in intimating, that he "can no more go out and come in." With what fervour and affection he exhorts the people to be of good courage, and to trust in the God of their fathers, who would go before them, not failing nor forgetting them! The charge given to Joshua is touching in the extreme. Taught by a prolonged experience, he knew the weak part of man, as also the proper course for man to pursue to replenish his strength. How soothing and animating his words as contained in ver. 7, 81 Ver. 14-29. The most serious moment of the life of the Jewish Law-giver now approached, the hour that he "must die." Although rendered deeply solemn, the venerable man was ready for the summons of his Master.

He was told that he should "sleep with his fathers;" but then the people, in spite of all that he had said, and all that they had seen, were to go "after the gods of the strangers of the land," and to break the "covenant" which God had made with them, and judgments, in consequence, would ensue. Sad conclusion this; but it was not without consolation, for although there might be chastisement, there would not be destruction. Moses having been enjoined to write a Song, lost no time in accomplishing it, after which he gave the charge to Joshua. How deep must have been the grief of Moses, as he said to the people, "I know that after my death ye will utterly corrupt yourselves, and turn aside from the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger through the work of your hands.

30 And Moses spake in the ears of all the congregation of Israel the words of this song, until they were ended.

CHAPTER XXXII.

1 Moses' song, which setteth forth God's mercy and vengeance. 46 He exhorteth them to set their hearts upon it.

GIVE ear, O ye heavens, and I will speak; and hear, O earth, the words of my mouth.

2 My doctrine shall ^adrop as the rain, my speech shall distil as the dew; as the small rain upon the tender herb, and as the showers upon the grass:

3 Because ^bI will publish the name of the LORD; ascribe ye greatness unto our God.

4 He is ^cthe Rock, his work is perfect; for ^dall his ways are judgment: ^ea God of truth, and without iniquity; just and right is he.

5 ^fThey have ^gcorrupted themselves; ^htheir spot is not the spot of his children: they are a perverse and crooked generation.

6 Do ye thus ⁱrequite the LORD, O foolish people and unwise? is not he ^jthy father that ^khath bought thee? hath he not made thee, and established thee?

7 ^lRemember the days of old, consider the years of ^mmany generations: ⁿask thy father, and he will shew thee; thy elders, and they will tell thee.

8 When the most High ^odivided to the nations their inheritance, when he separated the sons of Adam, he set the bounds of the people according to the number of the children of Israel:

9 For ^pthe LORD's portion is his people; Jacob is the ^qlot of his inheritance.

10 He found him in a desert land, and in the waste howling wilderness; he ^rled him about, ^she instructed him, he kept him as the apple of his eye.

11 As ^tan eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, beareth them on her wings;

12 So the LORD alone did lead him, and there was no strange god with him.

13 He made him ride on the high places of the earth, that he might eat the increase of the fields; and he made him to suck ^uhoney out of the rock, and oil out of the flinty rock;

14 ^vButter of kine, and milk of sheep, with fat of lambs, and rams of the breed of Bashan, and goats, with the fat of kidneys of wheat: and thou didst drink the pure ^wblood of the grape.

the way which I have commanded you; and evil will befall you in the latter days!" He foretells the fact as if full of yearning compassion and anxiety, if by any means to avert such a catastrophe.

Chap. XXXII. 1-43. Moses was not merely the soundest of Legislators, but the greatest of Poets: in sublimity and beauty, piety and patriotism, nothing can equal this, and his other compositions of a kindred character. It were unfair, however, to compare Moses 15 [¶] But Jeshurun waxed fat, and kicked: thou art waxen fat, thou art grown thick, thou art covered with fatness: ^athen he forsook God which made him, and lightly esteemed the Rock of his salvation.

16 They provoked him to jealousy with strange gods, with abominations provoked they him to anger.

17 They ^bsacrificed unto devils, ^cnot to God; to gods whom they knew not, to new gods that came newly up, whom your fathers feared not.

18 Of the Rock that begat thee thou art unmindful, and hast forgotten God that formed thee.

19 And ^dwhen the LORD saw it, he ^eabhorred them, because of the provoking of his sons and of his daughters.

20 And he said, I will hide my face from them, I will see what their end shall be: for they are a very froward generation, children in whom is no faith.

21 They have moved me to jealousy with that which is not God; they have provoked me to anger with their vanities: and ^fI will move them to jealousy with those which are not a people; I will provoke them to anger with a foolish nation.

22 For ^ga fire is kindled in mine anger, and ^hshall burn unto ⁱthe lowest hell, and ^jshall consume the earth with her increase, and set on fire the foundations of the mountains.

23 I will heap mischiefs upon them; I will spend mine arrows upon them.

24 They shall be ^kburnt with hunger, and devoured with ^lburning heat, and with bitter destruction: I will also send ^mthe teeth of beasts upon them, with the poison of serpents of the dust.

25 The ⁿsword without, and terror ^owithin, shall ^pdestroy both the young man and the virgin, the suckling also, with the man of gray hairs.

26 I said, ^qI would scatter them into corners, I would make the remembrance of them to cease from among men.

27 Were it not that I feared the wrath of the enemy, lest their adversaries should behave themselves strangely, and lest they should say, ^rOur hand is high, and the LORD hath not done all this.

28 For they are ^sa nation void of counsel, neither is there any understanding in them.

29 Oh that they were wise, that they understood this, that they would consider their latter end!

30 How should one chase a thousand, and two put ten thousand to flight, with the poets whose inspiration is drawn from their own genius; he was the mere amanuensis of the Spirit of God. Where all is grand-ur it is difficult to specify peculiar excellence; but ver. 22-25 are entitled to peculiar consideration, as surpassing everything known in the history of poetry. The thoughts are great beyond all greatness, terrible beyond all terror. Ver. 40-43 would clearly point to the future glory of the Messiah, which would commence with the rejection of the children of Israel. The whole of the Jews, however, would not except their Rock had 'sold them, and the LORD had shut them up?

31 For 'their rock is not as our Rock, even our enemies themselves being judges.

32 For their vine is 'of the vine of Sodom, and of the fields of Gomorrah: their grapes are grapes of gall, their clusters are bitter:

33 Their wine is 'the poison of dragons, and the cruel venom of asps.

34 Is not this 'laid up in store with me, and sealed up among my treasures?

35 'To me belongeth vengeance and recompence; 'their foot shall slide in due time: for the day of their calamity is at hand, and 'the things that shall come upon them make haste.

36 For the LORD shall judge his people, and 'repent himself for his servants, when he seeth that their 'power is gone, and there is none shut up, or left.

37 And he shall say, Where are their gods, their rock in whom they trusted;

38 Which did 'eat the fat of their sacrifices, and drank the wine of their drink-offerings? let them rise up and help you, and be 'your protection.

39 See now that 'I, even I, am he, and there is no god with me: 'I kill, and I make alive; I wound, and I heal: neither is there any that can deliver out of my hand.

40 For 'I lift up my hand to heaven, and say, I live for ever.

41 If I 'whet my glittering sword, and mine hand take hold on judgment, 'I will render vengeance to mine enemies, and will reward 'them that hate me.

42 I will 'make mine arrows drunk with blood, and my sword shall devour flesh; and that with the blood of the slain, and of the captives, from the beginning of revenges upon the enemy.

43 'Rejoice 'O ye nations, with his people; for he will 'avenge the blood of his servants, and will render vengeance to his adversaries, and will be merciful unto his land, and to his people.

44 ¶ And Moses came and spake all the words of this song in the ears of the people, he and 'Hoshea the son of Nun.

45 And Moses made an end of speaking all these words to all Israel:

46 And he said unto them, 'Set your hearts unto all the words which I testify among you this day, which ye shall command your children to observe to do, all the words of this law.

47 For it is 'not a vain thing for you; because it is your life: and through this thing ye shall prolong your days in the land whither ye go over Jordan to possess it.

52 Yet 'thou shalt see the land before thee; but thou shalt not go thither unto the land which I give the children of Israel.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

1 The majesty of God. 6 The blessings of the twelve tribes. 26 The excellency of Israel.

AND this is 'the blessing wherewith Moses 'the man of God blessed the children of Israel before his death.

2 And he said, The LORD 'came from Sinai, and rose up from Seir unto them; he shined forth from mount Paran, and he came with 'ten thousands of saints: from his right hand went 'a fiery law for them.

3 Yea, 'he loved the people; 'all his saints are in thy hand: and they sat down at thy feet; every 'one shall receive of thy words.

4 'Moses commanded us a law, even the inheritance of the congregation of Jacob.

5 And he was 'king in Jeshurun, when the heads of the people and the tribes of Israel were gathered together.

6 ¶ Let 'Reuben live, and not die; and let not his men be few.

7 ¶ And this is the blessing of Judah: and he said, Hear, LORD, the voice of Judah, 'and bring him unto his people:

be cast out, since multitudes would receive the Gospel, forming the elements of the first churches, and supplying the whole "College of Apostles." Ver. 44-52. The command to Moses to proceed to Mount Nebo was very solemn. He was already a dead man, not borne on men's shoulders, but walking afoot to his tomb. There was an analogy between his death and that of Aaron. Both were to die on mountains, both to expire, without previous affliction or present disease, in peace and hope, and to be gathered to their fathers. Moses is here reminded, that the reason of the refusal to permit him to enter the promised land was grounded upon his transgressions at the waters of Meribah. Thus Moses was not permitted to forget that he had sinned; and through him the people of God to the end of the world will be reminded that sin is exceeding sinful, and that it cannot be winked at even in the greatest, the most beloved, and the most honoured of mankind.

Chap. XXXIII. 1-8. The blessing set forth here seems prophetic, and pointing to the Messiah. The language bespeaks burning zeal in the tribe of Levi, which raised them beyond the regards of relationship, leading them to look at men simply as the friends or the enemies of God. It seems clear, however, that the Messiah is the grand subject in the mind of the Spirit; and indeed the language remarkably corresponds with his own words in Matt. xii. 46-50. The literal translation of the language also conducts to the same result. Ver. 12-29. It was the glory of Benjamin that the temple was erected in his inheritance. The mountains chosen for the Lord's own dwelling-place, belonged to him—a circumstance

^m let his hands be sufficient for him; ⁿ and be thou an help to him from his enemies.

8 ¶ And of Levi he said, ^o Let thy Thummim and thy Urim be ^p with thy holy one, whom thou didst ^q prove at Massah, and with whom thou didst strive at the waters of Meribah;

9 Who ^r said unto his father, and to his mother, I have not seen him; neither did he acknowledge his brethren, nor knew his own children: for they have observed thy word, and kept thy covenant.

10 ¶ They shall teach Jacob thy judgments, and Israel thy law: ^s they shall put incense ^t before thee, and whole burnt-sacrifice upon thine altar.

11 Bless, LORD, ^u his substance, and accept the work of his hands: ^v smite through the loins of them that rise against him, and of them that hate him, that they rise not again.

12 ¶ And of Benjamin he said, The beloved of the LORD shall dwell in safety by him; and the LORD shall cover him all the day long, and he shall dwell between his shoulders.

13 ¶ And of ^w Joseph he said, Blessed of the LORD be his land, for the precious things of heaven, for the dew, and for the deep that coucheth beneath,

14 And for the precious fruits brought forth by the sun, and for the precious things ^x put forth by the ^y moon,

15 And ^z for the chief things of the ancient mountains, and for the precious things of the lasting hills,

16 And for the precious things of ^a the earth, and fulness thereof, and for ^b the good will of him that dwelt in the bush: let the blessing come upon the head of Joseph, and upon the top of the head of him that was separated from his brethren.

17 His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and ^c his horns are like the horns of ^d unicorns: with them ^e he shall push the people together to the ends of the earth; and they are ^f the ten thousands of Ephraim, and they are the thousands of Manasseh.

18 ¶ And of Zebulun he said, Rejoice, Zebulun, in thy going out; and, Issachar, in thy tents.

19 They shall call the people unto the mountain; there ^g they shall offer sacrifices of righteousness: for they shall suck of the abundance of the seas, and of treasures hid in the sand.

20 ¶ And of Gad he said, ^h Blessed be he that enlargeth Gad: he dwelleth as a 27 The ^m eternal God is thy ⁿ refuge, and ^o underneath are the everlasting arms: and he shall ^p thrust out the enemy from before thee, and shall say, Destroy them.

28 Israel then shall dwell in safety alone: the fountain of Jacob shall be upon a land of corn and wine; also his heavens shall drop down dew.

29 ^q Happy art thou, O Israel: who is like unto thee, O people saved by the LORD, ^r the shield of thy help, and who is the sword of thy excellency! and thine enemies shall be ^s found liars unto thee; and thou shalt tread upon their high places.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

1 Moses from mount Nebo vieweth the land. 5 He died there. 6 His burial. 7 His age. 8 Thirty days' mourning for him. 9 Joshua succeedeth him. 10 The praise of Moses.

AND Moses went up from the plains of Moab unto ^a the mountain of Nebo, to the top of ^b Pisgah, that is over against Jericho: and the LORD ^c shewed him all the land of Gilead, ^d unto Dan,

2 And all Naphtali, and the land of Ephraim, and Manasseh, and all the land of Judah, ^e unto the utmost sea,

3 And the south, and the plain of the valley of Jericho, ^f the city of palm-trees, unto ^g Zoar.

4 And the LORD said unto him, ^h This is the land which I swear unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, saying, I will give it unto thy seed: ⁱ I have caused thee to see it with thine eyes, but thou shalt not go over thither.

which raised him high above his brethren. There is no bliss apart from God. The security and felicity of the ancient Church, their abounding privileges, and enriching promises, were all emblematic of the better blessings reserved for the Children of the Kingdom.

Chap. XXXIV. 1-12. Pisgah was an elevated point of Mount Nebo, which was supposed to be the highest mountain of the chain called Abarim. Thither went Moses at the command of the Lord, who graciously permitted him to overlook a considerable portion of the promised land. The man of God having cast his eyes over the long looked-for territory, closed them in death, and ascended to paradise; and the fact is not a little remarkable, that the sepulchre of Moses was concealed, and never subsequently discovered. Moses and Aaron, the two Chiefs of the Kingdom of Israel, had neither of them a monument to record the spot in which their dust reposed. There was, of course, a reason for this, founded in the knowledge of human nature: the people who burnt incense to the brazen serpent would probably have erred in the matter of their great Prophet and Law-giver.

5 ¶ ¹So Moses, the servant of the LORD, died there, in the land of Moab, according to the word of the LORD.

6 And ²he buried him in a valley in the land of Moab, over against Beth-peor: but no man knoweth of his sepulchre unto this day.

7 ¶ And Moses was an hundred and twenty years old when he died: ¹his eye was not dim, nor his ²natural force abated.

8 ¶ And the children of Israel ^mwept for Moses in the plains of Moab thirty days: so the days of weeping and mourning for Moses were ended.

THE BOOK OF JOSHUA.

This Book covers a period of about 30 years, comprising the whole administration of Joshua. Properly speaking, it is a continuation of the Five Books of Moses, and is frequently referred to by Sacred Writers in after ages. The voice of antiquity assigns the authorship to Joshua himself, several expressions having been inserted by inspired men after his decease. The work presents a beautiful display of the faithfulness of the God of Abraham in the fulfilment of the promises which had been made to the tribes of Israel.

CHAPTER I.

1 The Lord appointeth Joshua to succeed Moses. 8 Extent of the promised land. 6 God encourageth Joshua. 10 Joshua prepareth the people to pass over Jordan.

NOW, after ^athe death of Moses, the servant of the LORD, it came to pass, that the LORD spake unto ^bJoshua the son of Nun, ^cMoses' minister, saying,

2 ^dMoses my servant is dead; now therefore ^earise, go over this Jordan, thou, and all this people, unto the land which I do give to them, even to the children of Israel.

3 Every place that ^fthe sole of your foot shall tread upon, that have I given unto you, as I said unto Moses.

4 From ^gthe wilderness and this Lebanon, even unto the great river, the river Euphrates, all the land of the Hittites, and unto the great sea, toward the going down of the sun, shall be your coast.

5 There ^hshall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life: ⁱas I was with Moses, so I will be with thee: ^jI will not fail thee, nor forsake thee.

6 ^kBe strong, and of a good courage: for ^lunto this people shalt thou ^mdivide for an inheritance the land ⁿwhich I swear unto their fathers to give them.

7 Only be thou strong, and very courageous, that thou mayest observe to do according to all the law ^owhich Moses my servant commanded thee: ^pturn not from it to the right hand or to the left, ^qthat thou mayest ^rprosper whithersoever thou goest.

8 This ^sbook of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth; but ^tthou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest ^uobserve to do according to all that is written therein: for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalt ^vhave good success.

9 ^wHave not I commanded thee? Be strong, and of a good courage; ^xbe not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the LORD thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest.

10 ¶ Then Joshua commanded the officers of the people, saying,

11 Pass through the host, and command the people, saying, Prepare you victuals; for within ^ythree days ^zye shall pass over this Jordan, to go in to possess the land, which the LORD your God giveth you to possess it.

There must be an end of the longest service; and the most renowned of mankind must be gathered to their fathers. The work of Moses was now accomplished; and it was meet that he should appear in the world of spirits, giving place to a man selected of God to carry on the work. While the servants must die, yet the cause lives; and the Lord is never at a loss for instruments to accomplish the purposes of his providence.

Chap. I. 1-9. The people are here again reminded that the land was God's gift to them, and that, consequently, they were only tenants at will. The charge given to Joshua is, on divers grounds, very remarkable. Called upon to perform the work of Moses, he receives a pledge of the same help. As the Lord was with Moses, so would he be with him, neither failing nor forsaking him. A work so great as that of managing the children of Israel, besides making war against the nations of Canaan, might well appal the mind of Joshua; thence the urgent exhortation here given, to "be strong, and of a good courage." The injunction to make the Law his constant study, with the promise of the happy results which would flow from it, deserves particular attention. The mere act of pondering the Law had no merit in it; it was only important as a means to an end, namely, "that thou mayest observe to do according to all the law." Scripture studies should be employed to nourish Scripture feelings, with a view to holy conduct and conversation. Ver. 10-18. Joshua presents a striking contrast to Moses as to the manner in which he received his commission: there was no gainsaying; what he was bid do, he did at once, promptly and cordially. The 12 ¶ And to the Reubenites, and to the Gadites, and to half the tribe of Manasseh, spake Joshua, saying,

13 Remember ^athe word which Moses, the servant of the LORD, commanded you, saying, The LORD your God hath given you rest, and hath given you this land.

14 Your wives, your little ones, and your cattle, shall remain in the land which Moses gave you on this side Jordan; but ye shall pass before your brethren ^aarmed, all ^bthe mighty men of valour, and help them;

15 Until ^cthe LORD have given your brethren rest, as he hath given you, and they also have possessed the land which the LORD your God giveth them; ^dthen ye shall return unto the land of your possession, and enjoy it, which Moses, the LORD's servant, gave you on this side Jordan, toward the sun-rising.

16 ¶ And they answered Joshua, saying, ^eAll that thou commandest us we will do, and whithersoever thou sendest us we will go.

17 According as we hearkened unto Moses in all things, so will we hearken unto thee: ^fonly the LORD thy God be with thee, as he was with Moses.

18 Whosoever he be ^gthat doth rebel against thy commandment, and will not hearken unto thy words, in all that thou commandest him, he shall be put to death: ^honly be strong, and of a good courage.

2 And it was ^ftold the king of Jericho, saying, Behold, there came men in hither to-night of the children of Israel to search out the country.

3 And the king of Jericho sent unto Rahab, saying, ^gBring forth the men that are come to thee, which are entered into thine house: for they be come ^hto search out all the country.

4 And the woman ⁱtook the two men, and hid them, and said thus, There came principle enjoined by Moses on the Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh, was promptly carried out by them. The spirit of the people here displayed is most praiseworthy. Their promise of obedience was absolute; but they gave themselves credit for a measure of obedience to Moses not warranted by the facts of the history. Their exhortation to Joshua to rely on the Most High, as Moses did, is beautiful, indicating the excellent frame of mind in which the new Ruler found them. Society is the proper guardian of its own rights, and is strong in proportion to the popular confidence and co-operation.

Chap. II. 1-7. It has been supposed that Rahab was an innkeeper. She speaks as a woman who feared God, and the supposition that she had been converted from idolatry and its wickedness is highly probable. It has men unto me, but I wist not whence they were:

5 And it came to pass, about the time ^aof shutting of the gate, when it was dark, that the ^bmen went out; whither the men went, I wot not: pursue after them quickly; for ye shall overtake them.

6 But she had brought them up ^cto the roof of the house, and ^dhid them with the stalks of flax, which she had laid in order upon the roof.

7 And the men pursued after them the way to Jordan unto ^ethe fords: and as soon as they which pursued after them were gone out, ^fthey shut the gate.

8 ¶ And, before they were laid down, she came up unto them upon the roof;

9 And she said unto the men, ^gI know ^hthat the LORD hath given you the land, and that ⁱyour terror is fallen upon us, and that all the inhabitants of the land ^jfaint because of you.

10 For ^kwe have heard how the LORD dried up the water of the Red sea for you, when ye came out of Egypt; and ^lwhat ye did unto the two kings of the Amorites, that were on the other side Jordan, Sihon and Og, whom ye utterly destroyed.

11 And as soon as we had heard these things, ^mour hearts did melt, neither ⁿdid there remain any more courage in any man, because of you; ^ofor the LORD your God, he is God in heaven above, and in earth beneath.

12 Now therefore, I pray you, ^pswear unto me by the LORD, since I have shewed you kindness, ^qthat ye will also shew kindness unto ^rmy father's house, and ^sgive me a true token:

13 And that ye will save alive my father, and my mother, and my brethren, and my sisters, and all that they have, and deliver our lives from death.

14 And the men answered her, Our life ^tfor yours, if ye utter not this our business. And it shall be, ^uwhen the LORD hath given us the land, that we will deal kindly and truly with thee.

15 Then ^vshe let them down by a cord through the window; ^wfor her house was upon the town-wall, and she dwelt upon the wall.

16 And she said unto them, ^xGet you to the mountain, lest the pursuers meet you; and hide yourselves there three days, Pa.

been further argued, that her subsequent marriage, and issue in the line of David, is proof that she was not, as the term harlot would seem to imply, a person of profligate character. The report of the approach of the children of Israel had reached Jericho, and excited fearful apprehensions. There is difficulty in satisfactorily explaining the conduct of Rahab consistently with truth. It would, nevertheless, be hazardous to pronounce her guilty of deliberate falsehood. She is reckoned in the Epistle to the Hebrews amongst the noble spirits who acted from faith—a circumstance which clears her from treachery to her country. But the passage, as it stands, requires more explanation than at this distant period, it is possible to gain, fully to vindicate her integrity. The inspired historian exhibits her not, in this respect, as a model, any more than other saints, whose infirmities are fairly recorded. Var. 8-24. Rahab speaks positively until the pursuers be returned: and afterward may ye go your way.

17 And the men said unto her, ^aWe will be blameless of this thine oath which thou hast made us swear:

18 Behold, ^{when} we come into the land, thou shalt bind this line of ^bscarlet thread in the window which thou didst let us down by: and thou shalt ^cbring thy father, and thy mother, and thy brethren, and all thy father's household, home unto thee.

19 And it shall be, ^{that} ^kwhosoever shall go out of the doors of thy house into the street, ^lhis blood shall be upon his head, and we will be guiltless; and whosoever shall be with thee in the house, ^mhis blood shall be on our head, if ^{any} hand be upon him.

20 And if thou utter this our business, then ⁿwe will be quit of thine oath which thou hast made us to swear.

21 And she said, According unto your words, so be it. And she sent them away, and they departed: ^oand she bound the scarlet line in the window.

22 And they went, and came unto the mountain, and abode there three days, until the pursuers were returned. And the pursuers sought ^{them} throughout all the way, but ^pfound them not.

23 ¶ So the two men returned, and descended from the mountain, and passed over, and came to Joshua the son of Nun, and told him all ^{things} that befell them:

24 And they said unto Joshua, ^qTruly the LORD hath delivered into our hands all the land: for even ^rall the inhabitants of the country do ^sfaint because of us.

5 ¶ And Joshua said unto the people, ⁱSanctify yourselves: for to-morrow ^jthe LORD will do wonders among you.

6 And Joshua spake unto the priests, saying, ^kTake up the ark of the covenant, and pass over before the people. And they took up the ark of the covenant, and went before the people.

7 ¶ And the LORD said unto Joshua, This day will I begin to ^lmagnify thee in the sight of all Israel, that they may know ^mthat, as I was with Moses, so I will be with thee.

12 Now therefore ^xtake you twelve men out of the tribes of Israel, out of every tribe a man.

13 And it shall come to pass, as soon as ^ythe soles of the feet of the priests that bear the ark of the LORD, the Lord of all the earth, shall rest in the waters of Jordan, ^zthat the waters of Jordan shall be cut off ^{aa}from the waters that come down as to the Lord's gift of the land to the people, and frankly reveals the state of public feeling regarding them and their doings; as also the works of Jehovah on their behalf. The people appear to have been paralysed; their hearts melting, and their courage expiring, they became an easy prey to the invaders. Such information was peculiarly calculated to encourage Joshua and the children of Israel. The conduct of Rahab, in the prospect of the invasion and the victory, was highly honourable to her. She appears to have been most affectionately concerned for her parents, brothers, and sisters, and did her utmost to secure the preservation of their lives, on the ground of her own kindness to the spies. They, in turn, acted with the highest honour, instructing her as to the method of procedure, which we shall see was completely successful. They who make common cause with the people of God, will always find their account in it; labour and love are never lost.

Chap. III. 1-6. The people were to take their instructions from the movements of the Ark, which they were not to approach too nearly. It is proper that God's providence should be observed and studied by his people, and used as supplemental to the Sacred Scriptures, which they wonderfully confirm and illustrate. Such providences, however, must, like the Ark, sometimes be removed to a little distance to be rightly apprehended. Depraved humanity requires to be sanctified for holy service. Ver. 7-17. None of those great works which distinguished Moses, and confirmed his authority, had taken place with respect to Joshua; but the time was now come to magnify him in the sight of all the people. The work of driving out the nations, although the tribes were employed in the instrumentality, was God's; and this they were to remember, lest pride should lift them up. The analogy between this and the work of salvation is obvious and striking. "We are his workmanship." "All our works thou hast wrought in us." Joshua imitated Moses in the equity of his movements; there was no partiality manifested towards the tribes; a man was chosen from each. The miracle was as complete as in the case of the Red Sea, and the intelligence was well from above; and they shall ^astand upon an heap.

14 ¶ And it came to pass, when the people removed from their tents, to pass over Jordan, and the priests ^bbearing the ark of the covenant before the people;

15 And as they that bare the ark were come unto Jordan, and ^cthe feet of the priests that bare the ark were dipped in the brim of the water, (for ^dJordan overfloweth all his banks ^eall the time of harvest.)

16 That the waters, which came down from above, stood, and ^frose up upon an heap, very far from the city Adam, that ^gis beside ^hZaretan: and those that came down toward the sea of the plain, even ⁱthe salt sea, failed, and were cut off; and the people passed over right against Jericho.

17 And ^jthe priests, that bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, ^kstood firm on dry ground in the midst of Jordan, and ^lall the Israelites passed over on dry ground, until all the people were passed clean over Jordan.

CHAPTER IV.

1 Twelve stones taken for a memorial out of Jordan.
9 Twelve other stones are set up in the midst thereof.
10 The people pass over. 14 God magnifieth Joshua.

AND it came to pass, when all the people ^awere clean passed over Jordan, that the LORD spake unto Joshua, saying,

2 Take you ^btwelve men out of the people, out of every tribe a man;

3 And command ye them, saying, Take you hence out of the midst of Jordan, out of the place where ^cthe priests' feet stood firm, ^dtwelve stones; and ye shall carry them over with you, and ^eleave them in the lodging-place where ye shall lodge this night.

4 Then Joshua called the twelve men, whom he had ^fprepared of the children of Israel, out of every tribe a man;

5 And Joshua said unto them, Pass over before the ark of the LORD your God into the midst of Jordan, and take you up every man of you a stone upon his shoulder, according unto the number of the tribes of the children of Israel:

6 That this may be ^ga sign among you, that ^hwhen your children ask their fathers ⁱin time to come, saying, What mean ye by these stones?

7 Then ye shall answer them, That ^jthe waters of Jordan were cut off before the ark of the covenant of the LORD; when it passed over Jordan, the waters of Jordan were cut off: ^aand these stones shall be for a memorial unto the children of Israel for ever.

8 And the children of Israel ^bdid so as Joshua commanded, and took up twelve stones out of the midst of Jordan, as the LORD spake unto Joshua, according to the number of the tribes of the children of Israel, and carried them over with them unto the place where they lodged, and laid them down there.

9 ¶ And Joshua ^cset up twelve stones in the midst of Jordan, in the place where the feet of the priests which bare the ark of the covenant stood: and ^dthey are there unto this day.

10 ¶ For the priests which bare the ark ^estood in the midst of Jordan, until every thing was finished that the LORD commanded Joshua to speak unto the people, according to all that ^fMoses commanded Joshua: and the people ^ghasted and passed over.

11 And it came to pass, when all the people were clean passed over, ^hthat the ark of the LORD passed over, and the priests, in the presence of the people.

12 And ⁱthe children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh, passed over armed before the children of Israel, as Moses spake unto them.

13 About forty thousand, ^jprepared for war, passed over before the LORD unto battle, ^kto the plains of Jericho.

14 ¶ On that day the LORD ^lmagnified Joshua in the sight of all Israel; and ^mthey feared him, as they feared Moses, all the days of his life.

15 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Joshua, saying,

16 Command ⁿthe priests that bear the ark of the testimony, that they come up out of Jordan.

17 Joshua therefore commanded the priests, saying, ^oCome ye up out of Jordan.

18 And it came to pass, when the priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD were come up out of the midst of Jordan, and ^pthe soles of the priests' feet were ^qlifted up unto the dry land, ^rthat the waters of Jordan returned unto their place, ^sand ^tflowed over all his banks, as they did before.

19 ¶ And the people came up out of Jordan on the tenth day of the ^ufirst month, and encamped in ^vGilgal, in the east border of Jericho.

calculated to fill all who heard it with the utmost dismay. But for the Divine interposition it had been all but impossible, within a limited period, to have conveyed upwards of two and a half millions of people, old and young, across the mighty river overflowing its banks. The display was much fitted, also, to strengthen the faith of the people, the bulk of whom were not born when their fathers passed through the Red Sea; and to whom, therefore, that marvellous event was only a thing of testimony. But here they saw for themselves, on a diminished, but still on a mighty scale, an exhibition of the same Almighty power.

Chap. IV. 1-9. The memorial of the twelve stones, prepared by a representative of each of the twelve tribes, was a matter of deep interest to that generation, as it would be to those that were to follow. Children should ask questions, and parents should be prepared to answer them, concerning the things of God. It is to be desired, that there might be more of this conversation both in and out of doors, both in seasons of leisure and activity, between parents and children. An incredible amount of precious time is lost, which, properly employed, might be made to redound to the welfare of the rising generation. Here it is assumed that the Jewish children would naturally 20 ¶ And 'those twelve stones, which they took out of Jordan, did Joshua pitch in Gilgal.

21 And he spake unto the children of Israel, saying, 'When your children shall ask their fathers ⁵in time to come, saying, What mean these stones?

23 Then ye shall let your children know, ⁵saying, Israel came over this Jordan on dry land.

23 For the LORD your God dried up the waters of Jordan from before you, until ye were passed over, as the LORD your God did to the Red sea, ¹which he dried up from before us, until we were gone over;

24 That ²all the people of the earth might know the hand of the LORD, ¹that it is mighty; that ³ye might fear the LORD your God ⁶for ever.

CHAPTER V.

1 The Canaanites are afraid. 2 Circumcision renewed. 10 The passover is kept at Gilgal. 13 The manna ceaseth. 15 An angel appeareth to Joshua.

AND it came to pass, when ²all the kings of the ¹Amorites, which were on the side of Jordan westward, and all the kings of the ³Canaanites, ⁴which were by the sea, ⁵heard that the LORD had dried up the waters of Jordan from before the children of Israel, until we were passed over, that their heart melted; ⁶neither was there spirit in them any more, because of the children of Israel.

2 ¶ At that time the LORD said unto Joshua, Make thee ¹sharp knives, and ²circumcise again the children of Israel the second time.

3 And Joshua ¹made him sharp knives, and circumcised the children of Israel at ²the hill of the foreskins.

4 And this is the cause why Joshua did circumcise: ¹All the people that came out of Egypt, that were males, even all the men of war, died in the wilderness by the way, after they came out of Egypt.

5 Now all the people that came out were circumcised; but all the people that were born in the wilderness by the way as they came forth out of Egypt, them ¹they had not circumcised.

6 For the children of Israel ¹walked forty years in the wilderness, till all the people that were men of war, which came out of Egypt, were consumed, because they obeyed not the voice of the LORD: unto whom the LORD ²swore that he would not shew them the land which the LORD swore unto their fathers that he would give us, a land that floweth with milk and honey.

7 And their children, whom he raised up in their stead, them Joshua circumcised: for they were uncircumcised, because they had not circumcised them by the way.

8 And it came to pass, ³when they had done circumcising all the people, that they abode in their places in the camp till they were whole.

9 And the LORD said unto Joshua, This day have I ¹rolled away the reproach of Egypt from off you: wherefore the name of the place is called ⁴Gilgal unto this day.

10 ¶ And the children of Israel encamped in Gilgal, and ⁵kept the passover on the fourteenth day of the month at even, in the plains of Jericho.

11 And they did eat of the old corn of the land on the morrow after the passover, ⁶unleavened cakes, and parched corn in the self-same day.

12 ¶ And ⁴the manna ceased on the morrow after they had eaten of the old corn of the land; neither had the children of Israel manna any more; ⁷but they did eat of the fruit of the land of Canaan that year.

13 ¶ And it came to pass, when Joshua was by Jericho, that ¹he lifted up his eyes and looked, and, behold, there stood ²a man over against him, with ³his sword drawn in his hand: and Joshua went unto him, and said unto him, Art thou for us, or for our adversaries?

14 And he said, Nay; ⁴but as ⁵captain of the host of the LORD am I now come. And Joshua ⁷fell on his face to the earth, and did worship, and said unto him, What saith ⁶my Lord unto his servant?

15 And the captain of the LORD's host put questions touching the memorials of the history of their fathers. Joshua provided for posterity a further object of interest in the twelve stones to be set up in the midst of Jordan, to point out the spot on which the priests stood. These stones, especially in the summer weather, when the streams of the Jordan were clear and abated, might probably be seen from the banks, and constitute a memorial to them which time would not soon destroy. Ver. 10-22. From ver. 14, we see the effect of the Lord's magnifying Joshua; his authority was confirmed all the days of his life, and his Divine appointment admitted of no more dispute than did that of Moses.

Chap. V. 1. The miracle fulfilled the promise that the Lord would go before his people, and fill the land with the fear of them. Such Scripture exemplified the language of Paul: "If God be for us, who can be against us?" Ver. 2-9. Death triumphed over the whole of the men of war, notwithstanding they consisted of some 600,000, who were progressively cut down, till not one remained. The neglect of circumcision in the wilderness was overlooked, probably because of the circumstances of the people; now, however, when they were to be settled every man under his own vine and his own fig-tree, this negligence would no longer be tolerated; and the people must walk in the commandments and ordinances of the Lord. It deserves to be noticed, that, in this great matter, the law must be observed previously to their settlement; and accordingly, before the war commenced, the whole body of the people were circumcised. The act was one of obedience to a command expressly given to Joshua. Ver. 10-15. The time for the Passover having arrived, it was to be observed in the plains of Jericho. This ordinance was of a character to remind the people of the awful night when the first-born of Egypt were all destroyed, and thus to strengthen their hearts for the conflict in which they were so soon to be engaged. The people's wants were not supplied by manna, until the provisions they had carried with them from Egypt had failed. God will never work miracles where means are available. The manna ceased so soon as the produce of the land could be procured. The great personage mentioned at the close of the chapter, was, doubtless, the Angel of the Covenant, the Lord Jesus, said unto Joshua, ^aLoose thy shoe from off thy foot; for the place whereon thou standest is holy. And Joshua did so.

CHAPTER VI.

1 Jericho is shut up. 20 The walls fall down. 22 Rahab is saved. 26 The rebuilders of Jericho are cursed.

NOW Jericho ¹was straitly shut up ²'because of the children of Israel: none went out, and none came in.

2 ¶ And ^bthe LORD said unto Joshua, ^c'See, I have given into thine hand Jericho, and the king thereof, and the mighty men of valour.

3 And ^dye shall compass the city, all ye men of war, and go round about the city once. Thus shalt thou do six days.

4 And seven priests shall bear before the ark seven ^e'trumpets of rams' horns; and the seventh day ye shall compass the city ^f'seven times, and the priests shall blow with the trumpets.

5 And it shall come to pass, that when they ^g'make a long blast with the ram's horn, and when ye hear the sound of the trumpet, all ^hthe people shall shout with a great shout; and ⁱ'the wall of the city shall fall down ^j'flat, and the people shall ascend up, every man straight before him.

6 ¶ And Joshua the son of Nun called the priests, and said unto them, ^k'Take up the ark of the covenant, and let seven priests bear seven trumpets of rams' horns before the ark of the LORD.

7 And he said unto the people, Pass on, and compass the city, and let him ^l'that is armed pass on before the ark of the LORD.

8 ¶ And it came to pass, when Joshua had spoken unto the people, that the seven priests, bearing the seven trumpets of rams' horns, passed on ^m'before the LORD, and blew with the trumpets; and the ark of the covenant of the LORD followed them.

9 And the armed men went before the priests that blew with the trumpets, ⁿ'and the ^o'rere-ward came after the ark, the priests going on, and blowing with the trumpets.

10 And Joshua had commanded the people, saying, Ye shall not shout, nor make ^p'any noise with your voice, neither shall any word proceed out of your mouth, ^q'until the day I bid you shout; then shall ye shout.

11 So the ark of the LORD compassed the city, going about ^uit once: and they came into the camp, and lodged in the camp.

12 ¶ And ^vJoshua rose early in the morning, and ^w'the priests took up the ark of the LORD.

13 And seven priests, bearing seven trumpets of rams' horns before the ark of the LORD, ^x'went on continually, and blew with the trumpets: and the armed men went before them; but the rere-ward came after the ark of the LORD, the priests going on, and blowing with the trumpets.

14 And ^y'the second day they compassed the city once, and returned into the camp: so they did six days.

15 And it came to pass on the seventh day, that they rose early, ^z'about the dawning of the day, and compassed the city after the same manner seven times: ^{aa}'only on that day they compassed the city seven times.

16 And it came to pass at the seventh time, when the priests blew with the trumpets, Joshua said unto the people, ^{ab}'Shout; for the LORD hath given you the city.

17 ¶ And the city shall be ^{ac}'accursed, even it, and all that are therein, to the LORD: ^{ad}'only Rahab the harlot shall live, she and all that are with her in the house, ^{ae}'because she hid the messengers that we sent.

18 And ye, ^{af}'in any wise keep yourselves from the accursed thing, ^{ag}'blest ye make yourselves accursed, when ye take of the accursed thing, and ^{ah}'make the camp of Israel a curse, ^{ai}'and trouble it.

19 But ^{aj}'all the silver, and gold, and vessels of brass and iron, ^{ak}'are consecrated unto the LORD: they shall come into ^{al}'the treasury of the LORD.

20 ¶ So the people shouted when the priests blew with the trumpets: and it came to pass, when the people heard the sound of the trumpet, and the people shouted with a great shout, that ^{am}'the wall fell down ^{an}'flat, so that the people went up into the city, every man straight before him, and they took the city.

21 And they ^{ao}'utterly destroyed all that was in the city, both man and woman, young and old, and ox, and sheep, and ass, with the edge of the sword.

who had appeared unto Moses in the bush. Such an appearance was eminently calculated to strengthen the hands and encourage the heart of Joshua.

Chap. VI. 1-17. There was no reason given for the course of action here prescribed, and the people asked none; the obedience was implicit, both as to silence and speech, motion and action; and the Lord fulfilled his promise in all its parts. While the process proved on the part of the people faith, it tended in a very extraordinary degree to strengthen it, and thus to prepare them for all that was yet to come. The whole affair was one of the deepest interest, and the most awful anticipation. Joshua went about his duties with the utmost regularity and activity, rising early, and late taking rest, full of solicitude for the issue. At the same time, he manifests the strongest faith in the giving of his commands; and the people shared with him in confidence that all would be as God had said. Ver. 18-27. The destruction, which was complete, was in accordance with the Divine command. The cup of the iniquity of the people was now full, and the day of vengeance had at length arrived. Rahab benevolently made the most of her privilege; in addition to her parents and brothers, she brought all her kindred, and they were saved every one. Their sense of obligation to her may easily be conceived, since otherwise they must all have perished. She, instrumentally, preserved them from death. How innumerable the families who have first been brought into contact with the Gospel through an individual, and thus saved from a destruction infinitely more terrible than that of Jericho! Rahab presents a beautiful example to daughters and sisters who have found the Lord for themselves, but whose relatives are still exposed to the wrath to come.

23 ¶ But Joshua had said unto the two men that had spied out the country, Go into the harlot's house, and bring out thence the woman, and all that she hath, as ye sware unto her.

23 And the young men that were spies went in, and brought out Rahab, and her father, and her mother, and her brethren, and all that she had; and they brought out all her kindred, and left them without the camp of Israel.

24 And they burnt the city with fire, and all that was therein: only the silver, and the gold, and the vessels of brass and of iron, they put into the treasury of the house of the LORD.

25 And Joshua saved Rahab the harlot alive, and her father's household, and all that she had; and she dwelleth in Israel even unto this day; because she hid the messengers which Joshua sent to spy out Jericho.

26 ¶ And Joshua adjured them at that time, saying, Cursed be the man before the LORD that riseth up and buildeth this city Jericho: he shall lay the foundation thereof in his first-born, and in his youngest son shall he set up the gates of it.

27 So the LORD was with Joshua; and his fame was noised throughout all the country.

CHAPTER VII.

1 The Israelites smitten at Ai. 6 Joshua's complaint. 10 God instructeth him what to do. 16 Achan is taken by lot. 19 His confession. 22 He and all he hath are destroyed in the valley of Achor.

BUT the children of Israel committed a trespass in the accursed thing: for Achan, the son of Carmi, the son of Zabdi, the son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, took of the accursed thing: and the anger of the LORD was kindled against the children of Israel.

2 ¶ And Joshua sent men from Jericho to Ai, which is beside Beth-aven, on the east side of Beth-el, and spake unto them, saying, Go up and view the country. And the men went up and viewed Ai.

3 And they returned to Joshua, and said unto him, Let not all the people go up; but let about two or three thousand men go up and smite Ai; and make not all the people to labour thither; for they are but few.

4 So there went up thither of the people about three thousand men; and they fled before the men of Ai.

Were all such as earnest as Rahab for their salvation, the desire would be attended with the happiest results. The curse pronounced by Joshua on the man that should build the city was long unfulfilled: but at length the time arrived when it should receive a terrible completion. By the awful events here recorded, the surrounding nations were admonished of the folly of resistance, and apprised of the Divine power which attended the strangers. But while the terror was great, it wrought no repentance; iniquity continued, and judgment followed.

Chap. VII. 1-15. The discomfiture of the 3000 men that went up to Ai was incomprehensible to Joshua, and created in his mind the deepest distress. The Searcher

5 And the men of Ai smote of them about thirty and six men: for they chased them from before the gate even unto Shebarim, and smote them in the going down; wherefore the hearts of the people melted, and became as water.

6 ¶ And Joshua rent his clothes, and fell to the earth upon his face before the ark of the LORD until the even-tide, he and the elders of Israel, and put dust upon their heads.

7 And Joshua said, Alas, O Lord God, wherefore hast thou at all brought this people over Jordan, to deliver us into the hand of the Amorites, to destroy us? would to God we had been content, and dwelt on the other side Jordan!

8 O Lord, what shall I say, when Israel turneth their backs before their enemies?

9 For the Canaanites, and all the inhabitants of the land, shall hear of it, and shall environ us round, and cut off our name from the earth: and what wilt thou do unto thy great name?

10 ¶ And the LORD said unto Joshua, Get thee up; wherefore liest thou thus upon thy face?

11 Israel hath sinned, and they have also transgressed my covenant which I commanded them: for they have even taken of the accursed thing, and have also stolen, and dissembled also, and they have put it even among their own stuff.

12 Therefore the children of Israel could not stand before their enemies, but turned their backs before their enemies, because they were accursed; neither will I be with you any more, except ye destroy the accursed from among you.

13 Up, sanctify the people, and say, Sanctify yourselves against to-morrow; for thus saith the LORD God of Israel, There is an accursed thing in the midst of thee, O Israel: thou canst not stand before thine enemies, until ye take away the accursed thing from among you.

14 In the morning therefore ye shall be brought according to your tribes; and it shall be, that the tribe which the LORD taketh shall come according to the families thereof: and the family which the LORD shall take shall come by households; and the household which the LORD shall take shall come man by man.

15 And it shall be, that he that is taken with the accursed thing shall be of hearts, however, soon relieved him, by informing him of the true cause. That Eye, from which nothing can be hid, perceived both the stealth and the dissimulation; and it was necessary, at the outset, that the great doctrines of the Divine Omniscience, and the exceeding sinfulness of sin, should be deeply impressed upon the people. Until guilt was purged from the camp, the Lord would no longer be with them, and His absence would leave them weak, and like other men. Nothing beyond the general fact was told Joshua, while he was directed to the means of discovering particulars. Ver. 16-20. Achan, from the first, anticipated detection. When addressed by Joshua, he conducted himself with great candour, at once confessing that he had sinned before the Lord, and specifying the particulars of his transburnt with fire, he and all that he hath: because he hath transgressed the covenant of the LORD, and because he hath wrought^a folly in Israel.

16 ¶ So Joshua rose up early in the morning, and brought Israel by their tribes; and the tribe of Judah was taken:

17 And he brought the family of Judah; and he took the family of the Zarahites: and he brought the family of the Zarahites man by man; and Zabdi was taken:

18 And he brought his household man by man; and Achan, the son of Carmi, the son of Zabdi, the son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, was taken.

19 And Joshua said unto Achan, My son, give, I pray thee, glory to the LORD God of Israel, and make confession unto him; and tell me now what thou hast done; hide it not from me.

20 And Achan answered Joshua, and said, Indeed I have sinned against the LORD God of Israel, and thus and thus have I done:

21 When I saw among the spoils a goodly Babylonish garment, and two hundred shekels of silver, and a wedge of gold of fifty shekels weight, then I coveted them, and took them; and, behold, they are hid in the earth in the midst of my tent, and the silver under it.

22 ¶ So Joshua sent messengers, and they ran unto the tent; and, behold, it was hid in his tent, and the silver under it.

23 And they took them out of the midst of the tent, and brought them unto Joshua, and unto all the children of Israel, and laid them out before the LORD.

24 And Joshua, and all Israel with him, took Achan the son of Zerah, and the silver, and the garment, and the wedge of gold, and his sons, and his daughters, and his oxen, and his asses, and his sheep, and his tent, and all that he had; and they brought them unto the valley of Achor.

25 And Joshua said, Why hast thou troubled us? the LORD shall trouble thee this day. And all Israel stoned him with stones, and burned them with fire, after they had stoned them with stones.

26 And they raised over him a great heap of stones unto this day. So the LORD turned from the fierceness of his anger: wherefore the name of that place was called The valley of Achor, unto this day.

CHAPTER VIII.

1 God encourageth Joshua. 3 The stratagem whereby Ai was taken. 30 Joshua buildeth an altar. 32 Hewerith the law on stones, and pronounceth blessings and curings.

AND the LORD said unto Joshua, Fear not, neither be thou dismayed: take all the people of war with thee, and arise, go up to Ai: see, I have given into thy hand the king of Ai, and his people, and his city, and his land.

2 And thou shalt do to Ai and her king as thou didst unto Jericho and her king: only the spoil thereof, and the cattle thereof, shall ye take for a prey unto yourselves: lay thee an ambush for the city behind it.

3 ¶ So Joshua arose, and all the people of war, to go up against Ai: and Joshua chose out thirty thousand mighty men of valour, and sent them away by night.

4 And he commanded them, saying, Behold, ye shall lie in wait against the city, even behind the city: go not very far from the city, but be ye all ready:

5 And I, and all the people that are with me, will approach unto the city; and it shall come to pass, when they come out against us, as at the first, that we will flee before them,

6 (For they will come out after us,) till we have drawn them from the city; for they will say, They flee before us, as at the first: therefore we will flee before them.

7 Then ye shall rise up from the ambush, and seize upon the city: for the LORD your God will deliver it into your hand.

8 And it shall be, when ye have taken the city, that ye shall set the city on fire: according to the commandment of the LORD shall ye do. See, I have commanded you.

9 ¶ Joshua therefore sent them forth: and they went to lie in ambush, and abode between Beth-el and Ai, on the west side of Ai: but Joshua lodged that night among the people.

10 And Joshua rose up early in the morning, and numbered the people, and gression. In this he is an example to the guilty in every age. In cloaking sin there is danger, which may end in destruction; but in confessing it, there is forgiveness with the Lord, that he may be feared. In the present case, however, for reasons connected with the Divine Government, it was necessary that punishment should follow, notwithstanding confession; but this is an exceptional case. Under the New Testament Dispensation there is none of this: "If we confess our sins, God is faithful and just to forgive us our sins;" and the blood of Christ cleanseth from all iniquity. It must not be inferred, however, that because Achan was punished, he descended into perdition: from the candour he manifested, there seems reason to believe that his repentance was sincere, and that he found mercy of God, notwithstanding his public chastisement. It is probable that his household partook of his guilt, and, therefore, shared his punishment. It is a serious question how far hidden wickedness in the Church of God may grieve the Holy Spirit, and impede the progress of the Gospel.

Chap. VIII. 1-30. Under the circumstances, Joshua required to be encouraged, and the Lord was gracious. The law having been magnified through the punishment of the transgressor, he returned to his people, once more clothing them with power, and filling their enemies with dismay. Although Joshua did not depend on human valour, yet, in obedience to the Divine command, he employed means to accomplish ends; and in this he presents a lesson of the power of God under the Christian dispensation. Here again we find Joshua up betimes, putting everything in motion, and preparing for the event of the day. Those who have great things to manage should banish sloth, and put forth their utmost power. The success was complete. The wicked people were cut off, and the doomed city was destroyed. Ver. 31-35. Joshua immediately made a public and an ap-went up, he and the elders of Israel, before the people to Ai.

11 And ^{all} the people, even the people of war that were with him, went up, and drew nigh, and came before the city, and pitched on the north side of Ai: now there was a valley between them and Ai.

12 And he took about ^{five thousand} men, and sent them to lie in ambush between Beth-el and Ai, on the west side ^{of} the city.

13 And when they had set the people, even all the host that was on the north of the city, and their ^{liars} in wait ^{on} the west of the city, Joshua went that night into the midst of the valley.

14 ¶ And it came to pass, when the king of ^{Ai} saw ^{it}, that they hasted, and rose up early; and the men of the city went out against Israel to battle, he and all his people, at a time appointed, before the plain: but ^{he} wist not that there were liars in ambush against him behind the city.

15 And Joshua and all Israel made as if they were beaten before them, and fled ^{by} the way of the wilderness.

16 And all the people that were in Ai were ^{called} together to pursue after them: and they pursued after Joshua, and were ^{drawn} away from the city.

17 And there was not ^a man left in Ai or Beth-el that went not out after Israel: and they left the city open, and pursued after Israel.

18 And the LORD said unto Joshua, ^{Stretch} out the spear that is in thy hand toward Ai; for I will give it into thine hand. And Joshua stretched out the spear that he had in his hand toward the city.

19 And ^{the} ambush arose quickly out of their place, and they ran as soon as he had stretched out his hand: and they entered into the city, and took it, and hasted and set the city on fire.

20 And when the men of Ai looked behind them, they saw, and, behold, ^{the} smoke of the city ascended up to heaven; and they had no ^{power} to flee this way or that way: and the people that fled to the wilderness turned back upon the pursuers.

21 And when Joshua and all Israel saw that the ambush had taken the city, and that the smoke of the city ascended, then they turned again, and slew the men of Ai.

22 And the other issued out of the city against them; so they were in the midst of Israel, some on this side, and some on that side: and they smote them, so that they ^{let} none of them remain or escape.

23 And ^{the} king of Ai they took alive, and brought him to Joshua.

24 And it came to pass, when Israel had made an end of slaying all the inhabitants of Ai in the field, in the wilderness wherein they chased them, and when they were all fallen on the edge of the sword, until they were consumed, that all the Israelites ^{returned} unto Ai, and smote it with the edge of the sword.

25 And so it was, that all that fell that day, both of men and women, were twelve thousand, even all the men of Ai.

26 For Joshua ^{drew} not his hand back, wherewith he stretched out the spear, until he had utterly destroyed all the inhabitants of Ai.

27 Only ^{the} cattle, and the spoil of that city, Israel took for a prey unto themselves, according unto the word of the LORD which he commanded Joshua.

28 And Joshua burnt Ai, and made it ^{an} heap for ever, even a desolation ^{unto} this day.

29 And ^{the} king of Ai he hanged on a tree until even-tide: and ^{as} soon as the sun was down, Joshua commanded that they should take his carcase down from the tree, and cast it at the entering of the gate of the city, and raise thereon ^a great heap of stones, that remaineth unto this day.

30 ¶ Then Joshua ^{built} an altar unto the LORD God of Israel ⁱⁿ mount Ebal;

31 As Moses, the servant of the LORD, commanded the children of Israel, ^{as} it is written in the book of the law of Moses, An ^{altar} of whole stones, over which no man hath lift up any iron; ^{and} they offered thereon burnt-offerings unto the LORD, and sacrificed peace-offerings.

32 And he ^{wrote} there, upon the stones, a copy of the law of Moses, which he wrote in the presence of the children of Israel.

33 And ^{all} Israel, and their elders, and officers, and their judges, stood on this side the ark, and on that side, before ^{the} priests the Levites, which bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, as well ^{the} stranger, as he that was born among them; half of them over against mount Gerizim, and half of them over against mount Ebal; ^{as} Moses, the servant of the LORD, had commanded before, that they should bless the people of Israel.

34 And afterward ^{he} read all the words of the law, ^{the} blessings and cursings, according to all that is written in the book of the law.

35 There ^{was} not a word of all that Moses commanded, which Joshua read appropriate acknowledgment that the victory was the Lord's, by rearing an altar, and offering burnt-offerings. A sense of obligation is never sufficiently strong, unless it prompts thankfulness to the Giver of all good. But while Joshua sacrificed to the Lord, he likewise taught the people, writing a copy of the Law of Moses in the presence of Israel, at the same time reading all the words of the Law, the blessings and the cursings, according to what was written in the book. Knowing the importance of thoroughly impressing the female mind, as well as of possessing the hearts of the children, he was careful to rehearse the instructions of Moses in the hearing of all the people. That moral power may be cultivated and sustained, it is necessary that the minds of Christians should be constantly kept under the influence of Divine truth. In proportion as the Church of God has good teaching, and plenty of it, there will be an abundance of right feelings and good works. The example of Joshua not before all the congregation of Israel, ^awith the women, and the little ones, and the strangers that ^bwere conversant among them.

CHAPTER IX.

1 The kings combine against Israel. 3 The Gibeonites obtaining a league by craft, 16 are condemned to perpetual bondage.

AND it came to pass, when ^aall the kings which ^bwere on this side Jordan, in the hills, and in the valleys, and in all the coasts ^cof the great sea over against ^dLebanon, ^ethe Hittite, and the Amorite, the Canaanite, the Perizzite, the Hivite, and the Jebusite, heard thereof,

2 That they ^fgathered themselves together, to fight with Joshua and with Israel, with one ^gaccord.

3 ¶ And when the inhabitants of ^hGibeon heard what Joshua had done unto ⁱJericho and to Ai,

4 They did ^jwork wilily, and went and made as if they had been ambassadors, and took old sacks upon their asses, and ^kwine-bottles, old, and rent, and bound up;

5 And ^lold shoes and clouted upon their feet, and old garments upon them; and all the bread of their provision was dry and mouldy.

6 And they went to Joshua unto ^mthe camp at Gilgal, and said unto him, and to the men of Israel, ⁿ"We be come from a far country; now therefore make ye a league with us.

7 And the men of Israel said unto ^othe Hivites, Peradventure ye dwell among us; and ^phow shall we make a league with you?

8 And they said unto Joshua, ^q"We are thy servants. And Joshua said unto them, Who are ye? and from whence come ye?

9 And they said unto him, From a very far country thy servants are come ^r'because of the name of the LORD thy God: for ^s"we have heard the fame of him, and all that he did in Egypt,

10 And all that he did to the ^ttwo kings of the Amorites, that ^uwere beyond Jordan, to Sihon king of Heshbon, and to Og king of Bashan, which ^vwas at ^w"Ash-taroth.

11 Wherefore our elders, and all the inhabitants of our country, spake to us, saying, ^x"Take victuals ^ywith you for the journey, and go to meet them, and say unto them, ^z"We are your servants: therefore now make ye a league with us.

12 This ^aour bread we took ^bfor our provision out of our houses on the day we came forth to go unto you; but now, behold, it is dry, and it is mouldy:

13 And these bottles of wine which we filled ^cwere new; and, behold, they be rent: and these our garments and our shoes are become old by reason of the very long journey.

14 And ^dthe men took of their victuals, and ^easked not ^fcounsel at the mouth of the LORD.

15 And Joshua ^gmade peace with them, and made a league with them, to let them live: and the princes of the congregation swore unto them.

16 ¶ And it came to pass, at the end of three days after they had made a league with them, ^hthat they heard that they ⁱwere their neighbours, and ^jthat they dwelt among them.

17 And the children of Israel journeyed, and came unto their cities on the third day. Now their cities ^kwere ^lGibeon, and Chephirah, and Beeroth, ^mand Kirjath-jearim.

18 And the children of Israel smote them not, because the princes of the congregation ⁿhad sworn unto them by the LORD God of Israel. And all the congregation murmured against the princes.

19 But all the princes said unto all the congregation, ^o"We have sworn unto them by the LORD God of Israel: now therefore we may not touch them.

20 This we will do to them; we will even let them live, ^plest wrath be upon us, because of the oath which we swore unto them.

21 And the princes said unto them, Let them live; but ^qlet them be hewers of wood, and drawers of water, unto all the congregation; as the princes had promised them.

22 ¶ And Joshua called for them, and he spake unto them, saying, ^r"Wherefore have ye beguiled us, saying, We are very far from you; when ye dwell among us?

23 Now therefore ye are ^scursed; and there shall ^tnone of you be freed from being bond-men, and hewers of wood, and drawers of water, for the house of my God.

24 And they answered Joshua, and said, Because it was certainly told thy servants, how that ^uthe LORD thy God commanded his servant Moses to give you all the land, and to destroy all the inhabitants of the land from before you,

Chap. IX. 1-22. Wine-bottles made of skins are still used by the Arabs, as well as in Africa and other countries, for preserving water, milk, and other liquids. Necessity amongst these people is the mother of invention. When the animal is killed, they cut off its feet and head, and then draw it out of the skin without laying open the belly. They then sew up the places where the legs were cut off, and the tail, and thus it became a convenient instrument, requiring only to be tied about the neck. The Gibeonites displayed great craft, by which they secured the favour of the children of Israel. The ready lie met all the difficulties of their case, and the success of their imposture was complete. The expression in ver. 14 is very remarkable, as indicating what was the practice of people that feared God in that early period. "The men took of their victuals, and asked not counsel at the mouth of the Lord." This act, which was noticed by the children of Israel, ought to have suggested doubts as to the spiritual condition of these pretended strangers. Joshua, nevertheless, made peace with them, and a league to let them live, and thus falsehood triumphed. But within the short space of three days, their imposture was discovered, when they therefore ^awe were sore afraid of our lives because of you, and have done this thing.

25 And now, behold, ^owe are in thine hand: ^pas it seemeth good and right unto thee to do unto us, do.

26 And so did he unto them, and delivered them out of the hand of the children of Israel, that they slew them not.

27 And Joshua ^bmade them that day hewers of wood, and drawers of water, for the congregation, and for the altar of the LORD, even unto this day, ^qin the place which he should choose.

CHAPTER X.

1 Five kings war against Gibeon; 6 Joshua rescueth it.
12 The sun and moon stand still at the word of Joshua.

NOW it came to pass, when ^aAdonizadek king of Jerusalem had heard how Joshua had taken Ai, and had utterly destroyed it; ^bas he had done to Jericho and her king, so he had done to Ai and her king; and ^chow the inhabitants of Gibeon had made peace with Israel, and were among them;

2 That ^dthey feared greatly, because Gibeon was a great city, as one of ^ethe royal cities, ^fand because it was greater than Ai, and all the men thereof were mighty.

3 Wherefore Adonizadek ^gking of Jerusalem sent unto Hoham king of Hebron, and unto Piram king of Jarmuth, and unto Japhia king of Lachish, and unto Debir king of Eglon, saying,

4 Come up unto me, ^hand help me, that ⁱwe may smite Gibeon: for it hath made peace with Joshua, and with the children of Israel.

5 Therefore the five ^jkings of the Amorites, the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, the king of Eglon, gathered themselves together, and went up, they and all their hosts, and encamped before Gibeon, and made war against it.

6 ¶ And the men of Gibeon sent unto Joshua ^kto the camp to Gilgal, saying, ^lSlack not thy hand ^mfrom thy servants; come up to us quickly, and save us, and help us: for all the kings of the Amorites, that dwell in the ⁿmountains, are gathered together against us.

7 So ^oJoshua ascended from Gilgal, he, and all the people of war with him, and all the mighty men of valour.

8 And the LORD said unto Joshua, were in danger of swift destruction. Mercy, however, prevailed. Because "the princes of the congregation had sworn unto them by the God of Israel," they were spared. In cases of iniquity, it is sometimes expedient to consider not only what is due to individuals, but also what is due to the cause of God. Mercy is occasionally exercised at the expense of truth. That was an hour of great peril to these deceivers, for "all the congregation murmured against the princes." The princes, however, stood by their oath: "We have sworn unto them by the Lord God of Israel: now therefore we may not touch them." They were, nevertheless, to receive punishment for their falsehood. Ver. 23-27. The remonstrance of Joshua was frank, and yet compassionate, while he pronounced upon them the sentence which doomed them to permanent bondage. The reply of the trembling trans-¶ Fear them not: for I have delivered them into thine hand; there shall not a man of them stand before thee.

9 Joshua therefore came unto them suddenly, and went up from Gilgal ^aall night.

10 And ^bthe LORD discomfited them before Israel, and slew them with a great slaughter ^cat Gibeon, and chased them along the way that goeth up to ^dBeth-horon, and smote them to ^eAzekah, and unto ^fMakkedah.

11 And it came to pass, as they fled from before Israel, and were in the going down to Beth-horon, that ^gthe LORD cast down great stones from heaven upon them unto Azekah, and they died: they were more which died with hail-stones than they whom the children of Israel slew with the sword.

12 ¶ Then spake Joshua to the LORD, in the day when the LORD delivered up the Amorites before the children of Israel, and he said in the sight of Israel, ^hSun, ⁱstand thou still upon Gibeon; and thou, Moon, in the valley of ^jAjalon.

13 And the sun stood still, and the moon stayed, ^kuntil the people had avenged themselves upon their enemies. ^lIs not this written in the book of ^mJasher? So ⁿthe sun stood still in the midst of heaven, and hasted not to go down about a whole day.

14 And ^othere was no day like that before it, or after it, that ^pthe LORD hearkened unto the voice of a man: ^qfor the LORD fought for Israel.

15 ¶ And ^rJoshua returned, and all Israel with him, unto the camp to Gilgal.

16 But these five kings fled, ^sand hid themselves ^tin a cave at Makkedah.

17 And it was told Joshua, saying, The five kings are found hid in a cave at Makkedah.

18 And Joshua said, ^uRoll great stones upon the mouth of the cave, and set men by it for to keep them;

19 And stay ye not, ^vbut pursue after your enemies, and smite the ^whindmost of them; ^xsuffer them not to enter into their cities: for the LORD your God hath delivered them into your hand.

20 And it came to pass, when Joshua and the children of Israel ^yhad made an end of slaying them with a very great slaughter, till they were consumed, that gressors was frank and humble. They seemed well pleased with the destiny, which, although severe, was yet better than destruction.

Chap. X. 1-27. The account here given is one of the most sublime and awful contained even in the Divine records. The King of Jerusalem, in his haste for vengeance, brought upon himself destruction. The alliance between him and the other four kings was quickly formed, to be as quickly dissolved by their utter ruin. Intent on the annihilation of the poor Gibeonites, they little thought how near was the hour when they should be executed together at the same time, and in the same place! An overthrow so signal, a carnage so terrible, must have filled the whole region with consternation, and have prepared the way of Joshua on all sides to fur-the rest which remained of them entered into fenced cities.

21 And all the people returned ^qto the camp to Joshua at Makkedah in peace: ^rnone moved his tongue against any of the children of Israel.

22 ¶ Then said Joshua, ^s"Open the mouth of the cave, and bring out those five kings unto me out of the cave.

23 And they did so, and brought forth those five kings unto him out of the cave, ^tthe king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, and the king of Eglon.

24 And it came to pass, when they brought out those kings unto Joshua, that Joshua called for all the men of Israel, and said unto the captains of the men of war which went with him, Come near, ^u"put your feet upon the necks of these kings. And they came near, and put their feet upon the necks of them.

25 And Joshua said unto them, ^v"Fear not, nor be dismayed; be strong, and of good courage: for ^wthus shall the LORD do to all your enemies against whom ye fight.

26 And afterward ^xJoshua smote them, and slew them, and ^yhanged them on five trees: and they were hanging upon the trees until the evening.

27 And it came to pass at the time of the going down of the sun, ^zthat Joshua commanded, and ^{aa}they took them down off the trees, and cast them into the cave wherein they had been hid, and laid great stones in the cave's mouth, which remain ^{ab}"until this very day.

28 ¶ And that day Joshua took Makkedah, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and the king thereof he utterly destroyed, ^{ac}them, and all the souls that were therein; he let none remain: ^{ad}"and he did to the king of Makkedah as he did unto the king of Jericho.

29 ¶ Then Joshua passed from Makkedah, and all Israel with him, unto ^{ae}Libnah, and fought against Libnah:

30 And the LORD delivered it also, and the king thereof, into the hand of Israel; and he smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the souls that were therein: he let none remain in it; but did unto the king thereof ^{af}"as he did unto the king of Jericho.

31 ¶ And Joshua passed from Libnah, and all Israel with him, unto ^{ah}Lachish, and encamped against it, and fought against it:

32 And the LORD delivered Lachish into the hand of Israel, which took it on the second day, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the souls that were therein, according to all that he had done to Libnah.

33 ¶ Then Horam king of ^{ai}Gezer came up to help Lachish; and Joshua smote him and his people, until he had left him none remaining.

34 ¶ And from Lachish Joshua passed unto ^{aj}Eglon, and all Israel with him; and they encamped against it, and fought against it:

35 And they took it ^{ak}on that day, and smote it with the edge of the sword; and all the souls that were therein he ^{al}utterly destroyed that day, according to all that he had done to Lachish.

36 ¶ And Joshua went up from Eglon, and all Israel with him, unto ^{am}Hebron; and they fought against it:

37 And they took it, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and the king thereof, and all the cities thereof, and all the souls that were therein; he left none remaining, according to all that he had done to Eglon, but destroyed it utterly, and all the souls that were therein.

38 ¶ And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, to ^{an}Debir, and fought against it:

39 And he took it, and the king thereof, and all the cities thereof, and they smote them with the edge of the sword, and utterly destroyed all the souls that were therein; ^{ao}he left none remaining: as he had done to Hebron, so he did to Debir, and to the king thereof; as he had done also to Libnah, and to her king.

40 ¶ So Joshua smote ^{ap}all the country of the hills, and of the south, and of the vale, and of the springs, and all their kings: he left none remaining, but ^{aq}utterly destroyed all that breathed, ^{ar}"as the LORD God of Israel commanded.

41 And Joshua smote them from ^{as}Kadesh-barnea even unto ^{at}Gaza, and all the country of Goshen, even unto Gibeon.

42 And all these kings, and their land, did Joshua take at one time, ^{au}"because the LORD God of Israel fought for Israel.

ther conquests. The miracle here set forth is one of a nature so extraordinary, that it could not fail to excite the attention of the infidel world. Various explanations have been attempted with a view to divest it of its supernatural character, but all to no purpose. The words must be taken in their literal import, or else viewed as a mere figure. We have no doubt whatever as to their truth. The occasion was great, and in the councils of the Most High it was deemed expedient to signalise it in a corresponding manner. So far as the student of the Bible is concerned, it is simply a question of interpretation: what do these words mean? The answer is obvious, plain alike to the ripe Philosopher and to the Sunday Scholar. There is a very remarkable circumstance connected with this event; the knowledge of it is not confined to the Scriptures of the Jews. It has been recorded by the poets and historians of other countries. A great ancient writer states that it was a tradition in his time, and was supposed to have occurred about the same period as the Theban war. The chronology of the Chinese also perpetuates the memory of the circumstance, stating that in the reign of the Emperor Way, the sun did not set for ten days. Amidst the fiction set forth by these words, it is easy to discover the fact of the exaggeration, which is in perfect keeping with the Chinese chronology generally. The errors of their chronology are corrected by the circumstance that in calculating the annals of the world, the date actually corresponds with the Jewish account of the matter. But why should faith stumble at such a narrative? Is not the universe in the hands of its Creator? And can he not stop its movements at pleasure, modifying it accord-king thereof with the sword: for Hazor beforetime was the head of all those kingdoms.

11 And they smote all the souls that were therein with the edge of the sword, utterly destroying them; there was not ^aany left to breathe: and he burnt Hazor with fire.

12 And ^ball the cities of those kings, and all the kings of them, did Joshua take, and smote them with the edge of the sword; and he utterly destroyed them, ^cas Moses, the servant of the LORD, commanded.

13 But as for the cities that stood still ^din their strength, Israel burned none of them, save Hazor only; that did Joshua burn.

14 And all ^ethe spoil of these cities, and the cattle, the children of Israel took for a prey unto themselves; but every man they smote with the edge of the sword, until they had destroyed them, neither left they any to breathe.

15 As ^fthe LORD commanded Moses his servant, ^gso did Moses command Joshua, ^hand so did Joshua: ⁱhe ^jleft nothing undone of all that the LORD commanded Moses.

16 ¶ So Joshua took ^kall that land, the hills, and all the south country, and all the land of Goshen, and the valley, and the plain, and the ^lmountain of Israel, and the valley of the same;

17 Even from ^mthe mount Halak, ⁿthat goeth up to Seir, even unto Baal-gad in the valley of Lebanon, under mount Hermon: and all their kings he took, and smote them, and slew them.

18 Joshua made war a long time with all those kings.

19 There was not a city that made peace with the children of Israel, save the Hivites, the inhabitants of Gibeon: all other they took in battle.

20 For ^oit was of the LORD to harden their hearts, that they should come ing to his own infinite wisdom to accomplish his own benevolent purposes? Ver. 23-43. The results of this dreadful day went far to clear the country, and to give the people a resting-place. Joshua, in this as in other things, "followed the Lord fully." He studiously guarded against all temporising, admitting no other rule of action than the Divine command. The whole narrative is important to the Church of God, and to every individual, on his passing from death unto life. By declaring himself on the Lord's side, and uniting himself with His people, he will often expose himself, it may be, to grievous wrong, and to cruel persecution. But no matter: God is for him, and, therefore, none can be permanently against him. His very sufferings will be made salutary, prompting prayer, and leading him to lean upon a strength greater than his own. The chapter is, moreover, fraught with warning to the wicked, shewing that, though hand join in hand, iniquity shall not prosper. It is vain to fight against God. The example of Joshua is full of encouragement to earnest supplication for special help under peculiar circumstances.

Chap. XI. 1-9. We have here another alliance and combination against the people of God, well calculated to excite solicitude in the breast of Joshua, notwithstanding his marvellous triumphs in the past; but here again, at the needful moment, the Lord speaks to him in words of high encouragement, commanding him not to fear, and assuring him, that on the morrow he should vanquish all his adversaries, and "burn their chariots with fire." This was enough. The chosen Commander believed, hoped, and triumphed. Here, again, the strict obedience of Joshua is recorded: "He did unto them as the Lord bade him." Ver. 10-23. The havoc and the victory went on. Joshua, as he had been enjoined at the outset, was studiously careful to observe the Divine commandments, "leaving nothing undone of all that the Lord commanded." Victory succeeded to victory, and the sphere of conquest was daily extended. It is a notable circumstance, that notwithstanding the alarming success of Joshua, none of the surrounding kings sought peace; not a city did so save the inhabitants of Gibeon. In this we see a Divine hand. It was the Lord that hardened their heart, "that they should come against Israel in battle, that they might be utterly destroyed because of their iniquity." The destruction of the Anakims is a highly noticeable circumstance; they were at one time objects of terror, but, assailed by the Most High, they were speedily subdued. It has been remarked, however, that as enemies of great power, they were reserved for the later conflicts, when the people had become experienced in the matter of war, and had also against Israel in battle, that he might destroy them utterly, and that they might have no favour, but that he might destroy them, as the LORD commanded Moses.

21 ¶ And at that time came Joshua, and cut off ^athe Anakims from the mountains, from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, and from all the mountains of Judah, and from all the mountains of Israel: ¹Joshua destroyed them utterly with their cities.

22 There was none of the Anakims left in the land of the children of Israel: ^aonly in Gaza, in Gath, and in Ashdod, there remained.

23 ¶ So Joshua took the whole land, according to all that the LORD said unto Moses, and Joshua gave it for an inheritance unto Israel, ^aaccording to their divisions by their tribes. ^aAnd the land rested from war.

LORD, and the children of Israel, smite: and Moses, the servant of the LORD, ^agave it for a possession unto the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh.

7 ¶ And these are the kings of the country which Joshua and the children of Israel smote ^aon this side Jordan on the west, ^afrom Baal-gad in the valley of Lebanon, even unto the mount Halak, that goeth up to ^aSeir; which ^aJoshua gave unto the tribes of Israel for a possession, according to their divisions:

learned to trust in Divine power. As our day, our strength is; and as our strength, our labour. Such as are fitted in a high degree either to do or to suffer, generally, sooner or later, are placed in circumstances which exercise their graces. The closing words, "And the land rested from war," form an affecting portion of the people's history. Notwithstanding they were everywhere more than conquerors, yet the work was terrible, and, doubtless, peace was welcome. An assurance is given to believers, that He who has "begun a good work in them will carry it on till the day of Christ;" they that have believed do also, in a measure, enter into rest; but still there is a higher "rest remaining for the people of God," when they shall "cease from their labours, and their works shall follow them."

Chap. XII. 1-24. Kings in those days were very numerous; we have here thirty-one, but the whole of these united wielded but a very limited power. Previous to the rise of the Great Monarchies, kings, or chiefs, through the whole of Asia and of Europe, were numerous. By degrees, however, the work of consolidation went on, as in our own country, where diffused power, both in England and Scotland, gave place to a national unity, till at length the two unities were happily formed into one kingdom. A corresponding process has everywhere marked the progress of society. These kings, with their people, had all been living in rebellion against the Lord; and now came the hour of judgment. They repented not, but resisted the Leader of the chosen people, and, as the penalty of their transgression, they were attacked and overcome. The course of Joshua happily exemplified the duty of the faithful in Christ Jesus; he warred on continually, now with this power, and then with that, never staying till he had subdued whatever stood opposed to him. So should the Christian steadfastly crucify the flesh, with its affections and lusts; there must be no truce with wickedness. The Christian must go forward in the strength of his God, conquering and to conquer, until all his enemies shall have been put under his feet.

CHAPTER XIII.

² The boundaries of the land not yet conquered. 14, 33
The Lord and his sacrifices are the Levites' inheritance.
²³ Balaam is slain.

NOW Joshua ¹was old and stricken in years; and the LORD said unto him, Thou art old and stricken in years, and there remaineth yet very much ¹land to be possessed.

² This is ^bthe land that yet remaineth: all ^cthe borders of the Philistines, and all ^dGeshuri,

⁷ Now therefore divide ^uthis land for an inheritance unto the nine tribes, and the half-tribe of Manasseh;

⁸ With whom the Reubenites and the Gadites have received their inheritance, which ^vMoses gave them, beyond Jordan eastward, ^weven as Moses, the servant of the LORD, gave them;

Maachathites; but the Geshurites and the Maachathites dwell among the Israelites until this day.

¹⁴ Only ^bunto the tribe of Levi he gave none inheritance; the sacrifices of the LORD God of Israel made by fire are their inheritance, as he said unto them.

¹⁵ ¶ And Moses gave unto the tribe of the children of Reuben inheritance according to their families.

²² ¶ ^jBalaam also the son of Beor, the soothsayer, did the children of Israel slay with the sword among them that were slain by them.

²³ And the border of the children of Reuben was Jordan, and the border thereof. This was the inheritance of the children of Reuben after their families, the cities and the villages thereof.

²⁴ ¶ And Moses gave inheritance ^kunto the tribe of Gad, ^leven unto the children of Gad, according to their families:

²⁵ And their coast was Jazer, and all the cities of Gilead, and ^mhalf the land of the children of Ammon, unto Aroer that is before ⁿRabbah;

Chap. XIII. 1-33. Everything must have an end; and so must the life of man. Joshua now approached extreme old age, and was no longer fit for the toils and the tumults of war. His Divine Master, accordingly, apprised him of his gracious intention to discharge him, after the accomplishment of a given object. The history of Joshua, added to that of Moses, supplies an impressive admonition to ministers of the Word, and to the people of God generally, to work while it is called day, since the night will soon come to all, even to those whose span is the most extended, when they can work no more. Were men wise, they would never forget that this is not their home, but remember that there is a rest remaining for the people of God, for which it behoves them diligently and constantly to prepare. Did Christian people possess a stronger faith, both as to their pilgrimage state and their future prospects, they would act very differently. The multitude at present live as if this world were all, and to be followed by none other. The sight of a man who entirely believed in a future state, and in the possession of the half-tribe of the children of Manasseh by their families.

30 And ¹their coast was from Mahanaim, all Bashan, all the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, and all the towns of Jair, which are in Bashan, threescore cities;

31 And half Gilead, and ²Ashtaroth, and Edrei, cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan, were pertaining unto the children of Machir, the son of Manasseh, even to the one half of the children of Machir by their families.

32 These are the countries which Moses did distribute for inheritance in the plains of Moab, on the other side Jordan, by Jericho, eastward.

33 But unto ³the tribe of Levi Moses gave not any inheritance: the LORD God of Israel was their inheritance, as he said unto them.

CHAPTER XIV.

1 The nine tribes and a half are to have their inheritance by lot. 6 Caleb, by privilege, obtaineth Hebron.

AND these are the countries which the children of Israel inherited in the land of Canaan, ⁴which Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel, distributed for inheritance to them.

2 By ⁵lot was their inheritance, as the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses, for the nine tribes, and for the half-tribe.

3 For Moses ⁶had given the inheritance of two tribes and an half-tribe on the other side Jordan; ⁷but unto the Levites he gave none inheritance among them.

4 For ⁸the children of Joseph were two tribes, Manasseh and Ephraim; therefore they gave no part unto the Levites in the land, ⁹save cities to dwell in, with their suburbs for their cattle and for their substance.

5 As the LORD commanded Moses, so the children of Israel did, and they divided the land.

6 ¶ Then the children of Judah came unto Joshua in ¹⁰Gilgal: and ¹¹Caleb the son of Jephunneh ¹²the Kenezite said unto him, ¹³Thou knowest the thing that the LORD said unto Moses, ¹⁴the man of God, concerning me and thee, in ¹⁵Kadesh-barnea.

the servant of the LORD, ³sent me from Kadesh-barnea to spy out the land; and ⁴I brought him word again as it was in mine heart.

8 Nevertheless my brethren that went up with me made the heart of the people melt: but I ⁵wholly followed the LORD my God.

9 And Moses sware on that day, saying, ⁶Surely the land whereon thy feet have trodden shall be thine inheritance, and thy children's for ever, because thou hast wholly followed the LORD my God.

10 And now, behold, the LORD hath kept me alive, as he said, these ⁷forty and five years, even since the LORD spake this word unto Moses, while the children of Israel ⁸wandered in the wilderness; and now, lo, I am this day fourscore and five years old.

11 As ⁹yet I am as strong this day as I was in the day that Moses sent me: as my strength was then, even so is my strength now, for war, both to go out, and to come in.

12 Now therefore give me this mountain, whereof the LORD spake in that day: (for thou heardest in that day how ¹⁰the Anakims were there, and that the cities were great and fenced;) ¹¹if so be the LORD will be with me, then I shall be able to drive them out, as the LORD said.

13 And Joshua ¹²blessed him, and ¹³gave unto Caleb the son of Jephunneh Hebron for an inheritance.

14 Hebron therefore became the inheritance of Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenezite unto this day, ¹⁴because that he wholly followed the LORD God of Israel.

CHAPTER XV.

1 The borders of the lot of Judah. 13 Caleb's portion and conquest. 16 Othniel's valour and reward. 21 The cities of Judah. 63 The Jebusites not conquered.

THIS then was ¹the lot of the tribe of the children of Judah by their families; ²even to the border of Edom, the wilderness of Zin, southward, was the uttermost part of the south coast.

2 And their south border was from the a judgment to come, and who acted accordingly, would present a spectacle which would astonish even the most watchful and devoted of God's people.

Chap. XIV. 1-15. The appeal of Caleb here is deeply affecting. With what humility, gratitude, and dignity he refers to events long gone by! Happy the man who could say concerning the greatest event of his life, "I wholly followed the Lord my God!" He refers, with evident delight, to the promise made by Moses, that on account of his obedience the land whereon his feet had trodden should be his inheritance, and that of his children for ever. How touching the language of ver. 10 and 11! We remember nothing like it in any part even of the Old Testament Scriptures. On the anniversary of his birth, he would seem to have made his extraordinary speech, and never was birthday speech more interesting, edifying, and every way remarkable. He served the Lord his God with all his heart, and soul, and strength, and mind, and the honour conferred upon him was such as to constitute the highest reward. The courage displayed in ver. 12, for a man in his eighty-fifth year, is admirable. All his confidence was in God; and, through the Divine assistance, he had no fear of the Anakims; neither did he doubt that he should clear the land of them. The speech touched the noble heart of Joshua, his companion in honourable decision, when the hearts of their associates failed them. What encouragement is thus furnished to the rising race to follow the Lord fully! If they will but sow such seed, they may rest assured that in due time they will reap corresponding consolation.

Chap. XV. 1-63. The inheritance of Judah was very large, indicating the Divine purpose that this tribe should have the presidency; his being the most numerous shore of the ^csalt sea, from the ¹bay that looketh southward:

3 And it went out to the south side to ¹Maaleh-acrabim, and passed along to ²Zin, and ascended up on the south side unto Kadesh-barnea, and passed along to Hebron, and went up to Adar, and fetched a compass to Karkaa:

4 From thence it passed toward ^cAzmon, and went out unto ¹the river of Egypt; and the goings out of that coast were at the sea. This shall be your south coast.

5 And ^cthe east border was the salt sea, even unto the end of Jordan: and their border in the north quarter was from the bay of the sea, at the uttermost part of Jordan.

6 And the border went up to ^bBeth-hogla, and passed along by the north of Beth-arabah; and the border went up to ¹the stone of Bohan the son of Reuben.

7 And the border went up toward ¹Debir, from ¹the valley of Achor, and so northward, looking toward ^mGilgal, that is before the going up to Adummim, which is on the south side of the river: and the border passed toward the waters of En-shemesh, and the goings out thereof were at ^bEn-rogel.

8 And the border went up by the ^cvalley of the son of Hinnom unto the south side of ^bthe Jebusite; the same is Jerusalem: and the border went up to the top of the mountain that lieth before the valley of Hinnom westward, which is at the end of ^cthe valley of the giants northward.

9 And the border was drawn from the top of the hill unto the fountain of the water of ^cNephtoa, and went out to the cities of mount Ephron; and the border was drawn to ^bBaalath, which is ^cKirjath-jearim.

10 And the border compassed from Baalath westward unto mount Seir, and passed along unto the side of mount Jearim, (which is Chesalon,) on the north side, and went down to ^bBeth-shemesh, and passed on to ^cTimnah.

11 And the border went out unto the side of ^cEkron northward; and the border was drawn to Shicron, and passed along to ^cmount Baalath, and went out unto Jabneel; and the goings out of the border were at the sea.

12 And the west border was to ^cthe great sea, and the coast thereof. This is the coast of the children of Judah round about, according to their families.

13 ¶ And unto ^bCaleb the son of Jephunneh he gave a part among the children of Judah, according to the commandment of the LORD to Joshua, even ¹the city of Arba, the father of Anak, which city is Hebron.

14 And Caleb drove thence ^cthe three sons of Anak, Sheshai, and Ahiman, and Talmi, the children of Anak.

15 And he went ⁴up thence to the inhabitants of Debir: and the name of Debir before was Kirjath-sepher.

16 ¶ And Caleb said, He that smiteth Kirjath-sepher, and taketh it, to him will I give Achsah my daughter to wife.

17 And ^cOthniel the son of ^cKenaz, the brother of Caleb, took it: and he gave him ^cAchsah his daughter to wife.

18 And it came to pass, as she came unto him, that she moved him to ask of her father a field: and ^bshe lighted off her ass; and Caleb said unto her, What wouldest thou?

19 Who answered, ¹Give me a ^k blessing: for thou hast given me a south land; give me also springs of water. And he gave her the upper springs, and the nether springs.

20 This is ¹the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Judah, according to their families.

21 ¶ And the uttermost cities of the tribe of the children of Judah, toward the coast of Edom, southward, were ^mKabzeel, and ^bEder, and Jagur,

22 And Kinah, and Dimonah, and Adadah,

23 And ^cKedesh, and Hazor, and Ithnan, of all the tribes, it was proper that he should receive the largest territory. The relative situation of the tribes was decided by lot, but there would seem to have been some sort of discretion as to the proportion of land to be assigned to each. Among the names of the cities that fell to the lot of Judah, no mention is made of Bethlehem, probably for the reason that it was the "least among the thousands of Judah." As to Jerusalem, it still continued in the hands of the Jebusites. In due season, however, it was given them, since, as the events of Providence shewed, it was destined to be "the city of the Great King."

40 And Cabbon, and Lahmam, and Kithlish,

41 And Gederoth, Beth-dagon, and Naamah, and ⁹Makkedah: sixteen cities with their villages.

42 ⁹Libnah, and Ether, and Ashan, 43 And Jiphtah, and Ashnah, and Nezib, 44 And ⁹Keilah, and ⁹Achzib, and Mareshah: nine cities with their villages.

45 ⁹Ekrone, with her towns and her villages.

46 From Ekron even unto the sea, all that lay ⁴near ⁹Ashdod, with their villages.

47 Ashdod with her towns and her villages, ⁹Gaza with her towns and her villages, unto ⁷the river of Egypt, and the great sea, and the border thereof.

48 And in the mountains, Shamir, and Jattir, and Socoh,

49 And Dannah, and ⁹Kirjath-sannah, which is Debir,

50 And Anab, and Eshtemoth, and Anim,

51 And Goshen, and Holon, and Giloh: eleven cities with their villages.

52 Arab, and Dumah, and Eshean,

53 And ⁶Janum, and Beth-tappuah, and Aphekah,

54 And Humtah, and ⁹Kirjath-arba, (which is Hebron,) and Zior: nine cities with their villages.

55 Maon, Carmel, and Ziph, and Juttah,

56 And Jezreel, and Jokdeam, and Zanoah,

57 Cain, Gibeath, and ⁹Timnah: ten cities with their villages.

58 Halhul, Beth-zur, and Gedor,

59 And Maarath, and Beth-anoth, and Eltekon: six cities with their villages.

60 ⁹Kirjath-baal, (which is Kirjath-jearim,) and Rabbah: two cities with their villages.

61 In the wilderness, Beth-arabah, Middin, and Secacah,

62 And Nibshan, and the city of Salt, and En-gedi: six cities with their villages.

63 ¶ As for ⁴the Jebusites, the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the children of Judah could not drive them out: but the Jebusites dwell with the children of Judah at Jerusalem unto this day.

CHAPTER XVI.

1 The general borders of the sons of Joseph. 5 The border of the inheritance of Ephraim. 10 The Canaanites not conquered.

AND the lot of the children of Joseph ¹fell from Jordan by Jericho, unto ⁴the water of Jericho on the east, to the wilderness that goeth up from Jericho, throughout mount Beth-el.

2 And goeth out from ⁹Beth-el to Luz, and passeth along unto the borders of ⁹Archi to Ataroth.

3 And goeth down westward to the coast of Japhleti, unto the coast of ⁴Beth-horon the nether, and to Gezer: and the goings out thereof are at ⁶the sea.

4 So ⁴the children of Joseph, Manasseh and Ephraim, took their inheritance.

5 ¶ And the border of the children of Ephraim, according to their families, was thus: even the border of their inheritance on the east side was ⁹Ataroth-adar, unto Beth-horon the upper;

6 And the border went out toward the sea to ⁹Michmethah on the north side; and the border went about eastward unto ¹Taanath-shiloh, and passed by it on the east to Janohah;

7 And it went down from Janohah to ⁹Ataroth, and to Naarath, and came to ¹Jericho, and went out at Jordan.

8 The border went out from ²⁰Tappuah westward unto the ⁹river Kanah; and the goings out thereof were at ⁶the sea. This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Ephraim by their families.

9 And ⁹the separate cities for the children of Ephraim were among the inheritance of the children of Manasseh, all the cities with their villages.

10 ¶ And ⁹they drave not out the Canaanites that dwell in Gezer; but ⁹the Canaanites dwell among the Ephraimites unto this day, and serve under tribute.

CHAPTER XVII.

1 The lot of Manasseh: 7 his coast. 12 The Canaanites not driven out. 14 The children of Joseph obtain another lot.

THERE was also a lot for the tribe of Manasseh, (for he was ⁹the first-born of Joseph,) to wit, for ⁹Machir, the first-born of Manasseh, the father of Gilead: because he was a man of war, therefore he had ⁹Gilead and Bashan.

2 There was also a lot for ⁴the rest

Chap. XVI. 1-10. It is a thing worthy of notice, that the tribe of Ephraim, and the half-tribe of Manasseh, were placed next to that of Judah, probably for the reason that Joseph was the chief of all Jacob's children; a circumstance which commanded a measure of distinction for his descendants. They were second only in point of position and honour to the tribe of Judah, out of which the Lord was to spring. Everything is calculated to impress on our minds the great thing, that the disposal of the lot of each individual is with the Lord. It is our mercy that it is so; if it lay with us, we would frequently, perhaps generally, do just the thing which we ought not, and, while intent on securing our welfare, would bring upon ourselves untold calamities. There can be no doubt, that God settles for us the question of property as well as place; every part of our individual lot is determined for us by his unerring wisdom and sovereign compassion; and when our history shall have been finished, there is not among us one who will not be forward to exclaim, "He hath done all things well."

Chap. XVII. 1-18. Chariots of iron in those days were favourite instruments of war. By means of their scythes, they made frightful havoc among the undisciplined multitudes that formed the foot soldiery. The skilful discipline, however, of properly constituted troops was sufficient to baffle the fury of the charioteers. Occasionally, indeed, the horses, by being wounded, were maddened, and became wholly unmanageable, often rushing backwards, and thereby producing the utmost confusion and great destruction in their own army. On these grounds, in process of time, chariots were disused, as not only unwieldy, but perilous to those who employed them. The discontent in ver. 14 is a feeling which of the children of Manasseh by their families; for ^athe children of ¹Abiezer, and for the children of Helek, and for the children of Asriel, and for the children of Shechem, and for the children of Hopher, and for the children of Shemida: these were the male children of Manasseh the son of Joseph by their families.

3 ¶ But ^aZelophehad, the son of Hopher, the son of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, had no sons, but daughters: and these are the names of his daughters, Mahlah, and Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah.

4 And they came near before ^aEleazar the priest, and before Joshua the son of Nun, and before the princes, saying, ^bThe Lord commanded Moses to give us an inheritance among our brethren: therefore, according to the ^ccommandment of the Lord, he gave them an inheritance among the brethren of their father.

5 And there fell ^aten portions to Manasseh, ^bbesides the land of Gilead and Bashan, which were on the other side Jordan;

6 Because the daughters of Manasseh had an inheritance among his sons: and the rest of Manasseh's sons had the land of Gilead.

7 ¶ And the coast of Manasseh was from Asher to ¹Michmethah, that lieth before ^mShechem; and the border went along on the right hand unto the inhabitants of En-tappuah.

8 Now Manasseh had the land of ^aTappuah: but Tappuah, on the border of Manasseh, belonged to the children of Ephraim;

9 And the coast descended unto the ^ariver Kanah, southward of the river: ^bthese cities of Ephraim are among the cities of Manasseh: the coast of Manasseh also was on the north side of the river, and ^cthe outgoings of it were at the sea:

10 Southward it was Ephraim's, and northward it was Manasseh's, and the sea is his border; and they met together in Asher on the north, and in Issachar on the east.

11 And ^aManasseh had in Issachar, and in Asher, ^bBeth-shean and her towns, and ^cIbleam and her towns, and the inhabitants of ^dDor and her towns, and the inhabitants of ^eEn-dor and her towns, and the inhabitants of ^fTaanach and her towns, and the inhabitants of ^gMegiddo and her towns, even three countries.

12 ¶ Yet the children of Manasseh ^acould not drive out the inhabitants of those cities; but the Canaanites would dwell in that land.

13 Yet it came to pass, when the children of Israel were ^awaxen strong, that they ^bput the Canaanites to tribute; but did not utterly drive them out.

14 ¶ And the children of Joseph spake unto Joshua, saying, Why hast thou given me ^abut ^bone lot and one portion to inherit, seeing I am ^aa great people, ^cforasmuch as the Lord hath blessed me hitherto?

15 And Joshua answered them, If thou be a great people, then get thee up to the wood country, and cut down for thyself there in the land of ^athe Perizzites, and of ^bthe giants, if mount Ephraim be too narrow for thee.

16 And the children of Joseph said, The hill is not enough for us: and all the Canaanites that dwell in the land of the valley have ^achariots of iron, both they who are of ^bBeth-shean and her towns, and they who are of the valley of ^cJezreel.

17 And Joshua spake unto the house of Joseph, even to Ephraim and to Manasseh, saying, ^aThou art a great people, and hast great power; thou shalt not have one lot only:

18 But ^athe mountain shall be thine; for it is a wood, and thou shalt cut it down; and the outgoings of it shall be thine: ^bfor thou shalt drive out the Canaanites, though they have iron chariots, and though they be strong.

CHAPTER XVIII.

1 The tabernacle is set up at Shiloh. 2 The remainder of the land is described: 10 and divided by lot. 11 The cities of Benjamin.

AND the whole congregation of the children of Israel assembled together at ^aShiloh, and ^bset up the tabernacle of the congregation there: and the land was subdued before them.

2 ¶ And there remained among the children of Israel seven tribes, which had not yet received their inheritance.

3 And Joshua said unto the children of Israel, ^aHow long are ye slack to go to possess the land, which the Lord God of your fathers hath given you?

4 Give out from among you ^athree men for each tribe: and I will send them, and they shall rise and go through the land, and ^bdescribe it, according to the inheritance of them; and they shall come again to me.

originates more frequently in covetousness than in injury. The children of Joseph were puffed up by their descent. They entertained exalted notions of their own importance. The retort of Joshua is suggestive: "If thou be a great people, then get thee up to the wood country, and cut down for thyself." It will be found that exertion is much more gainful than lamentation. Many persons spend more time in quarrelling about the small adjustments of property, than the difference is worth. Their answer was still to their discredit, which brought forth from Joshua again the sarcasm—"Thou art a great people, and hast great power: go and cut down the wood, and drive out the Canaanites." It is seldom wise for men to talk much of their own greatness; it is much better by deeds to give proof of it. Vanity is always equal to speak greatness; inherent power alone can act it.

Chap. XVIII. 1-28. Shiloh is a place of importance in history, since it became the seat of the tabernacle and of public worship. It is probably the name of a district rather than a town, and accordingly the principal meetings of the congregation seem to be named from the adjacent towns and cities. Ver. 2 and 3 reveal a fact for which, from the energy which had been displayed, the reader is hardly prepared. The delay was probably created by circumstances. Difficulties of all sorts, many of which we cannot now comprehend, had to be con-

5 And they shall divide it into seven parts: ¹Judah shall abide in their coast on the south, and ²the house of Joseph shall abide in their coasts on the north.

6 Ye shall therefore describe the land into seven parts, and bring the description hither to me, ³that I may cast lots for you here before the LORD our God.

7 But ⁴the Levites have no part among you; for the priesthood of the LORD ⁵is their inheritance: ⁶and Gad, and Reuben, and half the tribe of Manasseh, have received their inheritance beyond Jordan on the east, which Moses, the servant of the LORD, gave them.

8 ¶ And the men arose, and went away: and Joshua charged them that went to describe the land, saying, Go and walk through the land, and describe it, and come again to me, ⁷that I may here cast lots for you before the LORD in Shiloh.

9 And the men went and passed through the land, and described it by cities into seven parts in a book, and came again to Joshua to the host at Shiloh.

10 ¶ And Joshua ⁸cast lots for them in Shiloh ⁹before the LORD: and there Joshua divided the land unto the children of Israel, according to their divisions.

11 ¶ And the lot of the tribe of the children of Benjamin came up according to their families: and the coast of their lot came forth ¹⁰between the children of Judah and the children of Joseph.

12 And their border on the north side was from Jordan; and the border went up to the side of ¹¹Jericho on the north side, and went up through the mountains westward; and the goings out thereof were at ¹²the wilderness of Beth-aven.

13 And the border went over from thence toward Luz, to the side of ¹³Luz, (which is Beth-el,) southward; and the border descended to Ataroth-adar, near the hill that ¹⁴lieth on the south side of the nether ¹⁵Beth-horon.

14 And the border was drawn thence, and compassed the corner of the sea southward, from the hill that ¹⁶lieth before Beth-horon southward; and the goings out thereof were at ¹⁷Kirjath-baal, (which is Kirjath-jearim,) a city of the children of Judah. This was the west quarter.

15 And the south quarter was from the end of Kirjath-jearim, and the border went out on the west, and went out to the well of waters of ¹Nephtoah;

16 And the border came down to the end of the mountain that ²lieth before ³the valley of the son of Hinnom, and which is in ⁴the valley of the giants on the north, and descended to the valley of Hinnom, to the side of ⁵Jebusi on the south, and descended to ⁶En-rogel,

17 And was drawn from the north, and went forth to En-shemesh, and went forth toward Geliloth, which is over against the going up of Adummim, and descended to ⁷the stone of Bohan the son of Reuben,

18 And passed along toward the side over against ⁸Arabah northward, and went down unto Arabah;

19 And the border passed along to the side of Beth-hoglah northward: and the outgoings of the border were at the north ⁹bay of the ¹⁰salt sea, at the south end of Jordan. This was the south coast.

20 And Jordan was the border of it on the east side. ¹¹This was the inheritance of the children of Benjamin, by the coasts thereof round about, according to their families.

21 ¶ Now the cities of the tribe of the children of Benjamin, according to their families, were ¹²Jericho, and ¹³Beth-hoglah, and the valley of Keziz,

22 And ¹⁴Beth-arabah, and ¹⁵Zemaraim, and ¹⁶Beth-el,

23 And Avim, and Parah, and ¹⁷Ophrah, 24 And Chephar-haammonai, and Ophni, and ¹⁸Gaba: twelve cities with their villages.

25 ¹⁹Gibeon, and ²⁰Ramah, and Beeroth, 26 And Mizpeh, and ²¹Chephirah, and Mozah, 27 And Mizem, and Irpeel, and Taralah, 28 And ²²Zelah, Eleph, and ²³Jebusi, (which is Jerusalem,) ²⁴Gibeath, and Kirjath: fourteen cities with their villages. This is the inheritance of the children of Benjamin, ²⁵according to their families.

CHAPTER XIX.

1 The lot of Simeon, 10 of Zebulun, 17 of Issachar, 24 of Asher, 32 of Naphtali, 40 and of Dan. 49 The children of Israel give an inheritance to Joshua.

AND the ¹second lot came forth to the children of Simeon, according to their families: and their inheritance was ²with- in the inheritance of the children of Judah.

tended with. It is plain, however, that a considerable amount of the land was still to be cleared of the Canaanites. The surveyors selected by Joshua would seem to have been employed in constructing a map of the land, as well as in writing a description of it. The Egyptians were expert in this work, and it is not improbable that some of the children of Israel acquired facility in the same. It deserves notice, that Joshua's first care, on settling the people in the promised land, was to set up the tabernacle among them. This was a token for good; a people mindful of God will never be forgotten by him. The "slackness" which is here condemned by Joshua has a very close spiritual bearing. Too often may the same language be addressed to the Lord's own people. The Ministers of the Word may often say to a portion of their flocks, "How long are ye slack to go to possess the land, which the Lord God has given you?" Unless our sanctification constitute a prime portion of the business of our existence, we shall make but little progress in "putting off the old man, and in putting on the new." Let us, therefore, in the strength of God, determine on the steadfast cultivation of that "holiness without which no man shall see the Lord."

Chap. XIX. 1-51. The division of the country which is recorded in this chapter, was doubtless a very great help. It was a primary step in the settlement of the people, and in the constitution of the kingdom of Israel. Now, for the first time, each knew where he was destined to live, and labour, and die. They had long traversed the weary wilderness, where they endured much; they had since they entered the Promised Land spent

2 And they had in their inheritance
Beer-sheba, and Sheba, and Moladah,

3 And ^aHazar-shual, and Balah, and ^aAzem,

4 And Ektolad, and Bethul, and ^aHormamah,

5 And ^aZiklag, and Beth-marcaboth, and ^bHazar-susah,

6 And ^aBeth-lebaoth, and Sharuhén:
thirteen cities and their villages:

7 Ain, ^aRemmon, and ^aEther, and Ashan: four cities and their villages.

8 And all the villages that were round about these cities to ^aBaalath-beer, ^aRamath of the south. This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Simeon, according to their families.

9 Out of the portion of the children of Judah was the inheritance of the children of Simeon: for the part of the children of Judah was too much for them; therefore the children of Simeon had their inheritance within the inheritance of them.

10 ¶ And the ^athird lot came up for the children of ^aZebulun, according to their families; and the border of their inheritance was unto Sarid.

11 And their border went up toward the sea, and Maralah, and reached to Dab-batheth, and reached to the river that is before ^aJokneam;

12 And turned from Sarid eastward, toward the sun-rising, unto the border of ^aChisloth-tabor, and then goeth out to ^aDaberath, and goeth up to Japhia,

13 And from thence passeth on along on the east to ^aGittah-hepher, to Ittahkazin, and goeth out to ^aRemmon-methoar, to Neah;

14 And the border compasseth it on the north side to Hannathon; and the outgoings thereof are in the valley of Jiphthah-el;

15 And ^aKattath, and Nahallal, and ^aShimron, and Idalah, and Beth-lehem:
twelve cities with their villages.

16 This is the inheritance of the children of Zebulun, according to their families, these cities with their villages.

17 ¶ And the fourth lot came out to Issachar, for the children of Issachar, according to their families.

18 And their border was toward ^aJez-reel, and Chesulloth, and ^aShunem,

19 And Haphraim, and Shihon, and Anaharath,

20 And Rabbith, and Kishion, and Abez,

21 And Remeth, and ^bEn-gannim, and En-haddah, and Beth-pazzez;

22 And the coast reacheth to ^aTabor, and Shahazimah, and ^aBeth-shemesh; and the outgoings of their border were at Jordan: sixteen cities with their villages.

24 ¶ And the fifth lot came out for the tribe of the children of Asher, according to their families.

25 And their border was ^aHelkath, and Hali, and Beten, and ^aAchshaph,

26 And Alammelech, and Amad, and ^aMisheal; and reacheth to ^aCarmel westward, and to Shihor-libnath; to Beth-dagon, and reacheth to Zebulun, and to the ^avalley of Jiphthah-el, toward the north side of Beth-emek, and Neiel, and goeth out to ^aCabul on the left hand;

28 And Hebron, and ^aRehob, and Hammon, and ^aKanah, even unto ^agreat Zidon;

29 And then the coast turneth to Ramah, and to the strong city ^aTyre; and the coast turneth to Hosah; and the outgoings thereof are at the sea, from the coast to ^aAchzib:

30 Ummah also, and ^aAphek, and ^aRehob: twenty and two cities with their villages.

31 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Asher, according to their families, these cities with their villages.

32 ¶ The sixth lot came out to the children of Naphtali, even for the children of Naphtali, according to their families.

33 And their coast was from Heleph, from Allon to ^aZaanannim, and Adami, Nekeb, and Jabneel, unto Lakum; and the outgoings thereof were at Jordan:

34 And then the coast turneth westward to Aznoth-tabor, and goeth out from thence to Hukkok, and reacheth to Zebu-lun on the south side, and reacheth to Asher on the west side, and to Judah upon Jordan toward the sun-rising.

35 And the fenced cities are Ziddim, Zer, and ^aHammath, Rakkath, and ^aChinnereth,

36 And Adamah, and Ramah, and ^aHazor,

37 And ^aKedesh, and Edrei, and En-hazor,

38 And Iron, and Migdal-el, Horem, and Beth-anath, and ^bBeth-shemesh:
nineteen cities with their villages.

39 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Naphtali, according to their families, the cities and their villages.

40 ¶ And the seventh lot came out for the tribe of the children of Dan, according to their families.

41 And the coast of their inheritance was ^aZorah, and Eshtaol, and Ir-shemesh,

42 And Shaalabbin, and Ajalon, and Jethlah,

their time in continual conflict, being reduced to the serious alternative of destroying or being destroyed. At last, however, by the good hand of their God upon them, they are more than conquerors. Just so it is now with the children of God, the heirs of the "kingdom which cannot be moved." In this world they must have tribulation: it is part of the promise, and an instrument of their good. Let them be steadfast, and go forward, fighting the good fight of faith, and in due season they will lay hold on life eternal, and enter into rest. In this as in everything, Joshua presents a noble example. His own interests were the last thing he regarded. With

43 And Elon, and Thimnathah, and Ekron,

44 And Eltekeh, and Gibbethon, and Baalath,

45 And Jehud, and Bene-berak, and Gath-rimmon,

46 And Me-jarkon, and Rakkon, with the border before Japho.

47 And ^athe coast of the children of Dan went out too little for them; therefore the children of Dan went up to fight against Leshem, and took it, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and possessed it, and dwelt therein, and called ^aLeshem, Dan, after the name of Dan their father.

48 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Dan, according to their families, these cities with their villages.

49 ¶ When they had made an end of dividing the land for inheritance by their coasts, the children of Israel ^agave an inheritance to Joshua the son of Nun among them:

50 According to the word of the LORD, they gave him the city which he asked, even ^aTimnath-serah in mount Ephraim; and he built the city, and dwelt therein.

51 ^bThese are the inheritances, which Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel, divided for an inheritance by lot ^ain Shiloh before the LORD, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation. So they made an end of dividing the country.

CHAPTER XX.

1 God commandeth, 7 and the Israelites appoint six cities of refuge.

THE LORD also spake unto Joshua, saying,

2 Speak to the children of Israel, saying, ^bAppoint out for you cities of refuge, whereof I spake unto you by the hand of Moses;

3 That the slayer that killeth any person unawares, and unwittingly, may flee thither: and they shall be ^ayour refuge from the avenger of blood.

4 And when he that doth flee unto one of those cities shall stand ^aat the entering of the gate of the city, and shall declare his cause in the ears of the elders of that city, they shall ^atake him into the city

5 And if the avenger of blood pursue after him, then they shall not deliver the slayer up into his hand; because he smote his neighbour unwittingly, and hated him not beforetime.

6 And he shall dwell in that city, ^auntil he stand before the congregation for judgment, and until the death of the high priest that shall be in those days: then shall the slayer return, and come unto his own city, and unto his own house, unto the city from whence he fled.

7 ¶ And they ^aappointed ^aKedesh in Galilee in mount Naphtali, and ^bShechem in mount Ephraim, and ^cKirjath-arba (which is Hebron) in the ^amountain of Judah.

8 And on the other side Jordan, by Jericho eastward, they assigned Bezer ^ain the wilderness upon the plain out of the tribe of Reuben, and ^bRamoth in Gilead out of the tribe of Gad, and ^cGolan in Bashan out of the tribe of Manasseh.

9 These were ^athe cities appointed for all the children of Israel, and for the stranger that sojourneth among them, that whosoever killeth any person at unawares might flee thither, and not die by the hand of the avenger of blood, ^auntil he stood before the congregation.

CHAPTER XXI.

1 Eight and forty cities given by lot out of the other tribes unto the Levites. 43 God gave the land, and rest, to the Israelites.

THEN came near ^athe heads of the fathers of the Levites unto ^bEleazar the priest, and unto Joshua the son of Nun, and unto the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel;

2 And they spake unto them at ^aShiloh, in the land of Canaan, saying, ^aThe LORD commanded, by the hand of Moses, to give us cities to dwell in, with the suburbs thereof for our cattle.

3 And the children of Israel gave ^aunto the Levites, out of their inheritance, at the commandment of the LORD, these cities and their suburbs.

4 And the lot came out for the families of the Kohathites: and ^athe children of Aaron the priest, which were of the Levites, had by lot, out of the tribe of Judah, and out of the tribe of Simeon, him the primary question was, the welfare of the people, the whole people. In this respect he was a striking type of our most glorious Saviour, who "came not to be ministered unto, but to minister."

Chap. XX. 1-19. Special care is here taken touching the Cities of Refuge. No sooner were the people settled in their several locations than these were appointed. When the manslayer reached those Cities, he had to "declare his cause in the ears of the elders of the city." It is to be particularly noticed, that in this case, which is what we now call homicide, the gates were opened only for him who "smote his neighbour unwittingly, and hated him not beforetime;" and then, even, he was only to be preserved "till he stood before the congregation for judgment." In the event of the decision being against him as guilty of murder, he was delivered up to the law; he might no further plead the immunity of the City of Refuge. The wilful murderer found no protection; having shed the innocent blood of his fellow-creature, nothing could satisfy the law but his own. This City of Refuge has ever been deemed a type of the Son of God. All who flee to him for safety will be sure of admittance, and the curse of the law cannot follow them. They are beyond the reach of condemnation; whatever their transgressions, they are all washed away by the blood of the Lamb. None can separate them from the love of God, and none can harm them, forasmuch as they are kept, by his power, as in the hollow of his hand.

Chap. XXI. It is to be remembered that the Levites had received no inheritance of the land among their brethren, and were, therefore, as justly entitled to the tithes, first-fruits, and holy things, and also to cities of and out of the tribe of Benjamin, thirteen cities.

5 And ^athe rest of the children of Kohath had by lot, out of the families of the tribe of Ephraim, and out of the tribe of Dan, and out of the half tribe of Manasseh, ten cities.

6 And the children of ^bGershon had by lot, out of the families of the tribe of Issachar, and out of the tribe of Asher, and out of the tribe of Naphtali, and out of the half tribe of Manasseh in Bashan, thirteen cities.

7 The children of ^cMerari, by their families, had out of the tribe of Reuben, and out of the tribe of Gad, and out of the tribe of Zebulun, twelve cities.

8 And the children of Israel gave ^dby lot unto the Levites these cities with their suburbs, ^eas the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses.

9 ¶ And they gave, out of the tribe of the children of Judah, and out of the tribe of the children of Simeon, ^fthese cities which are here ^gmentioned by name,

10 Which ^hthe children of Aaron, being of the families of the Kohathites, who were of the children of Levi, had: for theirs was the first lot.

11 And they gave them ⁱthe city of Arba, the father of Anak, (which city ^jis Hebron,) in the hill country of Judah, with the suburbs thereof round about it.

12 But ^kthe fields of the city, and the villages thereof, gave they to Caleb the son of Jephunneh for his possession.

13 Thus they gave to the children of Aaron the priest, Hebron with her suburbs, to be ^la city of refuge for the slayer, and ^mLibnah with her suburbs,

14 And ⁿJattir with her suburbs, and ^oEshtemoa with her suburbs,

15 And ^pHolon with her suburbs, and ^qDebir with her suburbs,

16 And ^rAin with her suburbs, and ^sJuttah with her suburbs, and ^tBethshemesh with her suburbs: nine cities out of those two tribes.

17 And out of the tribe of Benjamin, ^uGibeon with her suburbs, ^vGeba with her suburbs, 18 ^wAnathoth with her suburbs, and ^xAlmon with her suburbs: four cities.

19 All the cities of the children of Aaron, the priests, were thirteen cities with their suburbs.

20 ¶ And ^ythe families of the children of Kohath, the Levites which remained of the children of Kohath, even they had the cities of their lot out of the tribe of Ephraim.

21 For they gave them ⁱShechem with her suburbs, in mount Ephraim, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and ^jGezer with her suburbs, 22 And Kibzaim with her suburbs, and ^kBeth-horon with her suburbs: four cities.

23 And out of the tribe of Dan, ^lEltekeh with her suburbs, Gibbethon with her suburbs, 24 ^mAijalon with her suburbs, Gath-rimmon with her suburbs: four cities.

25 And out of the half tribe of Manasseh, ⁿTaanach with her suburbs, and Gath-rimmon with her suburbs: two cities.

26 All the cities were ten, with their suburbs for the families of the children of Kohath that remained.

27 ¶ And unto the children of Gershon, of the families of the Levites, out of the other half tribe of Manasseh, they gave ^oGolan in Bashan with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Beesh-terah with her suburbs: two cities.

28 And out of the tribe of Issachar, Kishon with her suburbs, ^pDabareh with her suburbs, 29 ^qJarmuth with her suburbs, Engannim with her suburbs: four cities.

30 And out of the tribe of Asher, ^rMishal with her suburbs, Abdon with her suburbs, 31 Helkath with her suburbs, and Rehob with her suburbs: four cities.

32 And out of the tribe of Naphtali, ^sKedesh in Galilee with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and ^tHamoth-dor with her suburbs, and Kartan with her suburbs: three cities.

33 All the cities of the Gershonites, according to their families, were thirteen cities with their suburbs.

34 ¶ And unto the families of the children of Merari, the rest of the Levites, out of the tribe of Zebulun, ^uJokneam with her suburbs, and Kartah with her suburbs, 35 Dimnah with her suburbs, Nahalal with her suburbs: four cities.

36 And out of the tribe of Reuben, ^vBezer with her suburbs, and ^wJahazah with her suburbs,

residence, as the other Israelites were to their lands. The cities were made subservient to the common welfare of the people, and the Levites were thus dispersed throughout the country for purposes of public instruction and example, as also to watch over the people in the exercise of a species of pastoral superintendence. The Levites were well cared for while the people continued faithful, but their provision was dependent on the fidelity of the nation to God. Forgetting the Lord, they soon set lightly by his servants. It seems probable that they had no other properties in the city than a life interest of certain houses; they could finally alienate nothing, and if the possessor of such a house having sold it, and did not return it at the year of jubilee, it came back to the Levites. The great point brought forth in the chapter is the obligation of the flock of God to support the shepherds. We are accustomed to call this "voluntary support." It is voluntary, so far as earthly authorities are concerned; but it is obligatory in its relation to God. There are few principles less understood than that which is known as the "Voluntary Principle," which very many people seem to interpret as a thing which may 39 *Heshbon with her suburbs, ^bJazer with her suburbs : four cities in all.

40 So all the cities for the children of Merari, by their families, which were remaining of the families of the Levites, were, by their lot, twelve cities.

41 All the cities of the Levites, ^cwithin the possession of the children of Israel, were forty and eight cities with their suburbs.

42 These cities were every one with their suburbs round about them : thus were all these cities.

43 ¶ And the LORD ^dgave unto Israel all the land which he swore to give unto their fathers ; and they possessed it, and dwelt therein.

44 And the LORD gave them rest round about, according to all that he swore unto their fathers : and there stood not a man of all their enemies before them ; the LORD ^edelivered all their enemies into their hand.

45 There ^ffailed not ought of any good thing which the LORD had spoken unto the house of Israel ; all came to pass.

CHAPTER XXII.

1 The two tribes and a half dismissed with a blessing : 10 they build an altar of testimony in their journey by the borders of Jordan ; 11 contention thereupon. 12 The deputies satisfied.

THEN ^aJoshua called the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh,

2 And said unto them, ^bYe have kept all that Moses, the servant of the LORD, commanded you, and have ^cobeyed my voice in all that I commanded you :

3 Ye ^dhave not left your brethren these many days unto this day, but have kept the charge of the commandment of the LORD your God.

4 And now the LORD your God hath ^egiven rest unto your brethren, as he promised them : therefore now return ye, and ^fget you unto your tents, and unto the land of your possession, which Moses, the servant of the LORD, gave you on the other side Jordan.

5 But ^gtake diligent heed to do the commandment, and the law, which Moses, the servant of the LORD, charged you, ^hto love the LORD your God, and to walk in all his ways, and to keep his commandments, and to ⁱcleave unto him, and to ^jserve him with all your heart, and with all your soul.

6 So Joshua ^kblessed them, and sent them away : and they went unto their tents.

7 ¶ Now ^mto the one half of the tribe of Manasseh Moses had given possession in Bashan ; but unto the other half thereof gave Joshua among their brethren on this side Jordan westward. And when Joshua sent them away also unto their tents, then he blessed them ;

8 And he spake unto them, saying, ^aReturn with much riches unto your tents, and with very much cattle, with silver, and with gold, and with brass, and with iron, and with very much raiment : ^bdivide the spoil of your enemies with your brethren.

9 And the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and the half tribe of Manasseh, returned, and departed from the children of Israel out of Shiloh, which ^cis in the land of Canaan, to go unto ^dthe country of Gilead, to the land of their possession, whereof they were possessed, according to the word of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

10 ¶ And when they came unto the borders of Jordan, that ^eare in the land of Canaan, the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and the half tribe of Manasseh, ^fbuilt there an altar by Jordan, a great altar to see to.

11 ¶ And the children of Israel ^gheard say, Behold, the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and the half tribe of Manasseh, have built an altar over against the land of Canaan, in the borders of Jordan, ^hat the passage of the children of Israel.

12 And when the children of Israel heard of ⁱit, ^jthe whole congregation of the children of Israel gathered themselves together at Shiloh, to go up to war against them.

13 And the children of Israel ^ksent unto the children of Reuben, and to the children of Gad, and to the half tribe of Manasseh, into the land of Gilead, ^lPhinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, 14 And with him ten princes, of each ^mchief house a prince, throughout all the tribes of Israel ; and each one ⁿwas ^oan head of the house of their fathers among the thousands of Israel.

15 And they came unto the children of Reuben, and to the children of Gad, and to the half tribe of Manasseh, unto the land of Gilead, and they spake with them, saying, 16 Thus saith ^pthe whole congregation of the LORD, What ^qtrespass is this that ye have committed against the God of Israel, ^rto turn away this day from following the LORD, in that ye have builded you an altar, that ye might ^srebel this day against the LORD ?

17 ^tIs the iniquity of Peor too little for us, ^ufrom which we are not cleansed until be done, or may not be done, at pleasure. Such is not the fact. The Son of God has ordained, that "they who preach the Gospel should live of the Gospel," and the flock are solemnly cautioned to remember that "God is not mocked ;" whatsoever they sow, that they shall also reap ; they who sow sparingly shall reap sparingly. The rest of the tribes of Jacob had a lot for each of its families. We may hence gather that there is in the New Testament kingdom a particular Providence regulating the movements of the Ministers of the Word, whom the Master holds in his own hands, disposing of them severally as he will.

Chap. XXII. 1-20. This chapter opens with much beauty. The testimony borne to the obedience of the two tribes and a half is much to their honour. The venerable Ruler appears to record facts to their credit with great satisfaction. His exhortation in ver. 5, corre-this day, although there was a plague in the congregation of the LORD, 18 But that ye must turn away this day from 'following the LORD? And it will be, seeing ye rebel to-day against the LORD, that to-morrow 'he will be wroth with the whole congregation of Israel.

19 Notwithstanding, if the land of your possession be ^hunclean, then pass ye over unto the land of the possession of the LORD, 'wherein the LORD's tabernacle dwelleth, and take possession among us; but rebel not against the LORD, nor rebel against us, in building you an altar, besides the altar of the LORD our God.

20 Did not ^hAchan the son of Zerah commit a trespass in the accursed thing, and wrath fell on all the congregation of Israel? and that man perished not alone in his iniquity.

21 ¶ Then the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and the half tribe of Manasseh, 'answered and said unto the 'heads of the thousands of Israel,

22 The 'LORD God of gods, the LORD God of gods, 'he knoweth, and 'Israel he shall know, 'if it be in rebellion, or if in transgression against the LORD, (save us not this day.)

23 That we have built us an altar to turn from following the LORD, or if to offer thereon burnt-offering or meat-offering, or if to offer peace-offerings thereon, 'let the LORD himself require it;

24 And if we have not rather done it 'for fear of this thing, saying, 'In time to come your children might speak unto our children, saying, What have ye to do with the LORD God of Israel?

25 For the LORD hath made Jordan a border between us and you, ye children of Reuben, and children of Gad; 'ye have no part in the LORD: so shall your children 'make our children cease from fearing the LORD.

26 Therefore we said, Let us now prepare to build us an altar, not for burnt-offering, nor for sacrifice:

27 But that it may be 'a witness between us and you, and our generations after us, 'that we might do the service of the LORD before him with our burnt-offerings, and with our sacrifices, and with our peace-offerings; that your children may not say to our children in

CHAPTER XXIII.

1 Joshua's exhortation before his death, 3 by former benefits, 5 by promises, 11 and by threatnings.

AND it came to pass, a long time after that 'the LORD had given rest unto Israel from all their enemies round about, that Joshua 'waxed old and 'stricken in age.

sponding with that which had been given to himself at the opening of his own commission, is full of tenderness, and very forcible. This was one of the happiest moments of his life, and to them his praise must have been passing sweet. But their felicity was of short duration; they were speedily alarmed by a false report which had been brought against them. Their conduct on that important occasion was marked by discretion. The rest of the tribes were in danger of proceeding to perilous extremities. They had, nevertheless, the good sense to seek for explanation, and the result was a complete clearing up of the misunderstanding, and a restoration of confidence, harmony, and love. One portion of the Church of God should never act upon an evil report against another without communicating with the reported offenders, when it will be often found that the representations are either wholly untrue or greatly exaggerated, or that explanations are capable of being furnished such as greatly to modify adverse appearances. In a word, would each one only do as he would be done by, it would avoid much error, and greatly redound both to the peace of society and to the honour of religion.

Chap. XXIII. 1-16. We now reach the close of the wonderful career of this most honoured Servant of the Lord. This gathering of the nation around him was a deeply affecting step, and in its own nature valedictory. It was much fitted to remind both himself and the people of the occurrences which had taken place on the dismissal of Moses. Joshua was then young and strong: he had now "waxed old and stricken in age." He gratefully records the past, and confidently speaks as to the future, assuring them that the entire land should be possessed as the Lord their God had promised. This,

2 And Joshua called for ^aall Israel, and for their elders, and for their heads, and for their judges, and for their officers, and said unto them, I am old and stricken in age:

3 And ^aye have seen all that the LORD your God hath done unto all these nations because of you: for ^athe LORD your God ^ais he that hath fought for you.

4 Behold, ^aI have divided unto you by lot these nations that remain, to be an inheritance for your tribes, from Jordan, with all the nations that I have cut off, even unto the great sea ^awestward.

5 ^a¶ And the LORD your God, ^ahe shall expel them from before you, and drive them from out of your sight; and ye shall possess their land, ^aas the LORD your God hath promised unto you.

6 Be ye therefore ^avery courageous to keep and to do all that is written in the book of the law of Moses, ^athat ye turn not aside therefrom to the right hand or to the left;

7 That ^aye come not among these nations, these that remain among you; ^aneither make mention of the name of their gods, nor cause ^ato swear by them, neither serve them, nor bow yourselves unto them:

8 ^aBut ^acleave unto the LORD your God, as ye have done unto this day.

9 ^a¶ For the LORD hath driven out from before you great nations and strong: but ^aas for you, ^ano man hath been able to stand before you unto this day.

10 ^aOne man of you shall chase a thousand: for the ^aLORD your God, he ^ais that fighteth for you, as he hath promised you.

11 ^aTake good heed therefore unto ^ayourselves, that ye ^alove the LORD your God.

12 ^a¶ Else, if ye do in any wise go back, and cleave unto the remnant of these nations, ^aeven these that remain among you, and shall make marriages with them, and go in unto them, and they to you:

13 Know for a certainty, that the LORD your God will no more drive out ^aany of these nations from before you; but they shall be snares and traps unto you, and scourges in your sides, and thorns in your eyes, until ye perish from off this good land which the LORD your God hath given you.

however, would depend on their fidelity; and hence the earnest exhortations he here gives to obedience. For nothing was he so earnest as for their preservation from the polluting intercourse of the Heathen. Hitherto none had been able to resist them, and their success for the future would be equally great. "One man of them would chase a thousand," since the Lord their God would fight for them. Disobedience, however, would be utter ruin. The language in ver. 13 was a warning much calculated to penetrate all hearts. His deeply affecting reference, in the next verse, to his own departure, and the fidelity of the Lord God, was such as became both his own position and theirs. While the God of Abraham had been faithful in his promises of good, he would not be less faithful in his threatenings of evil against transgression. The spiritual bearings of the whole are great and important. Our strength for

CHAPTER XXIV.

14 He renews a covenant between them and God.

29 His death.

AND Joshua gathered all the tribes of Israel to ^aShechem, and ^acalled for the elders of Israel, and for their heads, and for their judges, and for their officers; and they ^apresented themselves before God.

2 ^a¶ And Joshua said unto all the people, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, ^aYour fathers dwelt on the other side of the flood in old time, ^aeven Terah, the father of Abraham, and the father of Nahor: and ^athey served other gods.

3 And ^aI took your father Abraham from the other side of the flood, and led him throughout all the land of Canaan, and multiplied his seed, and ^agave him Isaac.

4 And ^aI gave unto Isaac Jacob and Esau: and ^aI gave unto Esau mount Seir, to possess it; but ^aJacob and his children went down into Egypt.

5 I ^asent Moses also and Aaron, and ^aI plagued Egypt, according to that which I did among them; and afterward I brought you out.

good will be in proportion to our faith, love, and consecration. Holiness is power; depravity is impotence: the basis of all moral victory is our own heart; ourselves once subdued, nothing external will be able to stand before us. We shall be "strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might," and through him we shall prove more than conquerors.

Chap. XXIV. 1-25. The spirit and deportment of Joshua lose nothing by comparison even with those of Moses, notwithstanding its wondrous piety, and dignity, and grandeur. Its beauty is inimitable. The position of these two divinely favoured men was such as, in the nature of things, none other could ever fill; but had it been otherwise, it had been impossible for them to have done so in a manner more calculated to reflect lustre on their personal character, and upon the religion of which 7 And when they cried unto the LORD, he put darkness between you and the Egyptians, and brought the sea upon them, and covered them; and ¹your eyes have seen what I have done in Egypt: and ²ye dwelt in the wilderness a long season.

8 And ¹I brought you into the land of the Amorites, which dwell on the other side Jordan; and they fought with you: and I gave them into your hand, that ye might possess their land; and I destroyed them from before you.

9 Then ¹Balak the son of Zippor, king of Moab, arose, and warred against Israel, and sent and called Balaam the son of Beor to curse you:

10 But ¹I would not hearken unto Balaam; therefore he blessed you still: so I delivered you out of his hand.

11 And ¹ye went over Jordan, and came unto Jericho: and ²the men of Jericho fought against you, the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Girgashites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites; and I delivered them into your hand.

12 And ¹I sent the hornet before you, which drove them out from before you, ²and the two kings of the Amorites; but ³not with thy sword, nor with thy bow.

13 And I have given you a land for which ye did not labour, and ¹cities which ye built not, and ye dwell in them; of the vineyards and oliveyards which ye planted not do ye eat.

14 ¹Now therefore ²fear the LORD, and ³serve him in sincerity and in truth: and ⁴put away the gods which your fathers served on the other side of the flood, and ⁵in Egypt; and serve ye the LORD.

15 And if it seem evil unto you to serve the LORD, ¹choose you this day whom ye will serve; whether the gods which your fathers served, that ²were on the other side of the flood, or ³the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell: but ⁴as for me and my house, we will serve the LORD.

16 And the people answered and said, ¹God forbid that we should forsake the LORD, to serve other gods;

the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage, and which did those great signs in our sight, and preserved us in all the way wherein we went, and among all the people through whom we passed:

18 And the LORD drove out from before us all the people, even the Amorites which dwell in the land: ¹therefore ²will we also serve the LORD; for he ³is our God.

19 And Joshua said unto the people, ¹Ye cannot serve the LORD: for he ²is an ³holy God; he ⁴is ⁵a jealous God; ⁶he will not forgive your transgressions nor your sins.

20 If ye forsake the LORD, and serve strange gods, then ¹he will turn and do you hurt, and consume you, after that he hath done you good.

21 And the people said unto Joshua, ¹Nay; but we will serve the LORD.

22 And Joshua said unto the people, ¹Ye are witnesses against yourselves, that ²ye have chosen you the LORD, to serve him. And they said, ³We are witnesses.

23 Now therefore ¹put away (²said he) the strange gods which ³are among you, and incline your heart unto the LORD God of Israel.

24 And the people said unto Joshua, The LORD our God will we serve, and his voice will we obey.

25 So Joshua ¹made a covenant with the people that day, and set them a statute and an ordinance in Shechem.

26 ¹And Joshua ²wrote these words in the book of the law of God, and ³took a great stone, and ⁴set it up there ⁵under an oak that ⁶was by the sanctuary of the LORD.

27 And Joshua said unto all the people, Behold, ¹this stone shall be a witness unto us; for ²it hath heard all the words of the LORD which he spake unto us: it shall be therefore a witness unto you, lest ye ³deny your God.

28 So ¹Joshua let the people depart, every man unto his inheritance.

29 ¹And it came to pass ²after these things, that Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of the LORD, died, ³being ⁴an hundred and ten years old.

30 And they buried him in the border of his inheritance in ¹Timnath-serah, which ²is in mount Ephraim, on the north side of the hill of ³Gaash.

they were the teachers and the models. Neither appear to have had the slightest solicitude as to his own personal salvation. They had no fear whatever relative to another world; their hearts were altogether bound up in the Nation. The spirit they so strongly breathed is that of the Apostle, who said for himself and his brethren, addressing the primitive Christians, "Now we live, if ye stand fast in the Lord." What obliviousness of every thing personal! What solicitude for the People's welfare! What zeal for the Divine glory! The language of ver. 19 does not imply absolute impossibility, but serious improbability, from the inborn perversity of the people. That they perfectly understood Joshua, is obvious from their response to his appeal, "Nay, but we will serve the Lord!" The Patriarchal Ruler had gained his object, and hence he replied, "Ye are witnesses against yourselves, that ye have chosen you the Lord to serve him;" and they said, "We are witnesses." Ver. 26-33. The last act of Joshua was to record the words we have just cited, and to set up a pillar as a memorial of the high transaction. By a strong figure he represents the solid stone as sentient, intelligent, and cognisant of all that had passed. "It hath heard all the words of the Lord which he spake unto us; it shall be, therefore, a witness unto you, lest ye deny your God." Thus the glorious career of Joshua ended; and in his 110th year he was gathered to his fathers. This was incomparably the best period of the Jewish Church; no future generation might be compared with it. There is much implied in the testimony borne in ver. 31, that "Israel served the Lord all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the Elders that overlived Joshua." "Like priest, like people," was strikingly exemplified in this case: the Elders were worthy of their Chief, and the people of days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders that ¹overlived Joshua, and ^mwhich had known all the works of the LORD, that he had done for Israel.

THE BOOK OF JUDGES.

This Book comprises an account of the most eminent Judges that ruled Israel from the time of Joshua till about that of Samuel, who is generally considered the author. The period to which it extends seems determined by the fact, that the latest events recorded in it transpired when there was "no king in Israel." It does not profess to be a regular history, but a memoir presenting the principal events of the time. The period during which Israel might be said to be enthralled was about 111 years. If to this we add 339, during which they were governed well by the series of thirteen Judges, extending from Joshua to Samuel, we have 450 years, a considerable portion of the entire history of the people in the Promised Land.

CHAPTER I.

1 The acts of Judah and Simeon. 7 Adoni-bezek justly requited. 8 Jerusalem 10 and Hebron taken.

NOW, ^aafter the death of Joshua, it came to pass, that the children of Israel ^basked the LORD, saying, Who shall go up for us against the Canaanites first, to fight against them?

2 And the LORD said, ^cJudah shall go up: behold, I have delivered the land into his hand.

3 And Judah said unto ^dSimeon his brother, Come up with me into my lot, that we may fight against the Canaanites; and ^eI likewise will go with thee into thy lot. So Simeon went with him.

4 And Judah went up; and the ^fLORD delivered the Canaanites and the Perizzites into their hand: and they slew of them in ^gBezek ten thousand men.

5 And they found Adoni-bezek in Bezek; and they fought against him, and they slew the Canaanites and the Perizzites.

6 But Adoni-bezek fled: and they pursued after him, and caught him, and cut off his thumbs and his great toes.

7 And Adoni-bezek said, Threescore and ten kings, having ¹their thumbs and their great toes cut off, ²gathered their meat under my table: ³as I have done, ⁴so God hath requited me. And they brought him to Jerusalem, and there he died.

8 ¶ Now ⁵the children of Judah had fought against Jerusalem, and had taken it, and smitten it with the edge of the sword, and set the city on fire.

9 And ⁶afterward the children of Judah went down to fight against the Canaanites, Chap. I. 1-36. Where God commands, his people may act without fear. Unity is strength. Where individual power is not sufficient, people do well to associate for common objects. The cruelty of Adoni-bezek was peculiar; that he should have mutilated so many as seventy kings all in the same manner was not a little remarkable; consistently with the preservation of life, it had been difficult to inflict a greater evil than to remove the thumbs and the great toes, since it would most materially interfere with the capacity both of action and of motion. 23 And the house of Joseph ^jsent to descry Beth-el: (now the name of the city before was ^kLuz.)

24 And the spies saw a man come forth out of the city, and they said unto him, Shew us, we pray thee, the entrance into the city, and ^lwe will shew thee mercy.

25 And when he shewed them the entrance into the city, they smote the city with the edge of the sword; but they let go the man and all his family.

26 And the man went into ^mthe land of the Hittites, and built a city, and called the name thereof Luz: which is the name thereof unto this day.

CHAPTER II.

1 An angel rebuketh the people at Bochim. 6 The wickedness of the new generation after Joshua. 14 Their punishment.

AND ^aan ^bangel of the LORD came up from Gilgal to Bochim, and said, ^cI made you to go up out of Egypt, and ^dhave brought you unto the land which I swear unto your fathers; and I said, ^eI will never break my covenant with you.

2 And ^fye shall make no league with the inhabitants of this land; ye shall throw down their altars: ^gbut ye have not obeyed my voice; ^hwhy have ye done this?

3 Wherefore ⁱI also said, I will not drive them out from before you; but they shall be ^jas ^kthorns in your sides, and ^ltheir gods shall be a snare unto you.

4 And it came to pass, when the angel of the LORD spake these words unto all the children of Israel, that ^mthe people lifted up their voice, and wept.

5 And they called the name of that place ⁿBochim: and they sacrificed there unto the LORD.

6 ¶ And when ^oJoshua had let the people go, the children of Israel went every man unto his inheritance to possess the land.

7 And ^pthe people served the LORD all the days of Joshua, and all the days of clearly saw the hand of God in it. After the death of Joshua, Caleb still remained to console and to animate the nation. The triumphs of Judah at the outset are explained by the fact that "the Lord was with him;" but from the lack of faith, even he sustained a check from the inhabitants of the valley, with their chariots of iron. A portion of the tribes suddenly waxed feeble, and instead of removing the idolaters as they had been commanded, they agreed to their remaining joint-occupants of the land with themselves. Carnal policy often puts on the guise of humanity, generosity, and even religion; but it never ends well; there is no safety but in obedience. He that walketh uprightly, walketh surely, God's commandments "concerning all things are right," and not only so, but good. Nothing is forbidden to man that is not injurious. Barriers are never reared in his path till he has reached the limit of safety. The principle is very strikingly exemplified in the next chapter. Ever since men were upon the earth, the law of retribution has been in operation. As men have meted unto others, it has been meted unto them again.

Chap. II. 1-5. The Angel here mentioned was none other than the Lord Jesus Christ. Any league with the people of the land was most solemnly forbidden. The highest welfare of the Israelites was involved in it. Such leagues were necessarily attended with intercourse, entailing corruption, which led to sin, and this sin to misery. The strength of idolatry was its sacrifices, and hence the command to throw down its altars; but instead of this they were everywhere spared, and not only so, but patronised. The reproof of the Angel out the the elders that ³outlived Joshua, who had seen all the great works of the LORD that he did for Israel.

8 And ³Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of the LORD, died, being an hundred and ten years old.

9 And they buried him in the border of his inheritance in ^oTimnath-heres, in the mount of Ephraim, on the north side of the hill Gaash.

10 And also all that generation were ³gathered unto their fathers: and there arose another generation after them, which ⁴knew not the LORD, nor yet the works which he had done for Israel.

11 ¶ And the children of Israel ⁷did evil in the sight of the LORD, ⁸and served Baalim:

12 And they ⁴forsook the LORD God of their fathers, which brought them out of the land of Egypt, and followed ⁵other gods, of the gods of the people that were round about them, and ⁶bowed themselves unto them, and provoked the LORD to anger.

13 And they forsook the LORD, and ⁷served Baal and Ashtaroth.

14 ¶ And ⁴the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel, and ⁵he delivered them into the hands of spoilers that spoiled them, and he ⁶sold them into the hands of their enemies round about, so that they ⁷could not any longer stand before their enemies.

15 Whithersoever they went out, the hand of the LORD was ⁴against them for evil, as the LORD had said, and as the LORD had ⁵sworn unto them: and they were ⁶greatly distressed.

16 ¶ Nevertheless ⁵the LORD raised up judges, which ⁶delivered them out of the hand of those that spoiled them.

17 And yet ²they would not hearken unto their judges, but they went a ³whoring after other gods, and bowed themselves unto them: they turned quickly out of the way ⁴which their fathers walked in, obeying the commandments of the LORD; but they did not so.

18 And when the LORD raised them up judges, then ¹the LORD was with the judge, and delivered them out of the hand of their enemies all the days of the judge: for it ²repented the LORD because of ³their groanings, by reason of them that oppressed them, and vexed them.

19 And it came to pass, when the judge was dead, that they returned, and ⁴corrupted themselves ⁵more than their fathers, in following other gods to serve them, and to bow down unto them; they ⁶ceased not from their own doings, nor from their ⁷stubborn way.

20 ¶ And ⁴the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel; and he said, Because that this people hath ⁷transgressed my covenant which I commanded their fathers, and have not hearkened unto my voice, 21 I also ⁵will not henceforth drive out any from before them of the nations which Joshua left when he died:

22 That through them I may ⁴prove Israel, whether they will keep the way of the LORD, to walk therein, as their fathers did keep it, or not.

23 Therefore the LORD ⁷left those nations, without driving them out hastily; neither delivered he them into the hand of Joshua.

CHAPTER III.

1 The nations left to prove Israel. 5 By communion with them they commit idolatry. 9 Of Othniel, 15 Ehud, 31 and Shamgar.

NOW these are ⁴the nations which the LORD left, to ⁵prove Israel by them; (even as many of Israel as had not known all the wars of Canaan;

2 Only that the generations of the children of Israel ⁶might know to teach them war, at the least such as before knew nothing thereof;)

3 Namely, ⁴five lords of the Philistines, and all the ⁵Canaanites, and the ⁶Sidonians, and the Hivites that dwelt ⁷in mount Lebanon, from mount Baal-hermon unto the entering in of Hamath.

4 And they were ⁵to prove Israel by them, to know whether they would transgressors to the heart; tears followed in abundance, and penitential prayers ascended accompanied by sacrifices, for the sin they now confessed and deplored. Ver. 6-15. More depends on the leaders than on the laws of a people. So long as the elders, the teachers, the pastors, and rulers of a land are faithful, the people are never guilty of very gross departure from God; but when the former decline, the latter invariably follow. The falling away in the present case was both quick and general; darkness seems to have rested on the entire nation, not only obliterating the memory of the miracles, and the mercies of the God of their Fathers, and their own God, but his very name! They gave themselves up, heart and soul, to idolatry. Priests and people, they all sank together, without shame, and without fear, and brought on themselves the judgment due to their iniquity. Ver. 16-23. These judgments, however, were mingled with mercy, but mercy was lost on them. "They turned quickly out of the way which their fathers walked in." Backsliding is easy, and the widest departure from God may soon be accomplished. There is no safety for individuals, or communities, but in watchfulness and prayer. In the neglect of these, within the space of two generations, after the most powerful religious revival, the sense of piety may be greatly deadened. Conversion may come to a stand, and a whole nation be overthrown with heretical doctrine, to the threatened extinction of the true Gospel. Our own country, at this moment, has reached the stage of peril; during the latter half of the last century, England was visited from on high in a manner the most extraordinary, and glorious were the effects of the Divine Baptism then so graciously bestowed. The force of that impulse, however, is now spent. The Joshuas of that day, and all the Elders who outlived them, are dead, and a new generation has grown up without any personal knowledge of those events, and the mighty majority neither know God, nor his works. The alternative, therefore, is, that we must have a fresh baptism from on high, or a rapid and general decline of true piety must ensue.

Chap. III. 1-11. The league which had been formed with the people of the land led to mixed marriages, which completed the apostasy of Israel, and for a season extinguished the true religion. The fruit of this was slavery and misery, from which they could not extricate themselves. The God of Abraham, however, was mindful of his covenant, and sent them a saviour in the person of the courageous brother of Caleb. Ver. 12-31.

hearken unto the commandments of the LORD, which he commanded their fathers by the hand of Moses.

5 ¶ And the children of Israel dwelt among the ¹Canaanites, Hittites, and Amorites, and Perizzites, and Hivites, and Jebusites :

6 And ²they took their daughters to be their wives, and gave their daughters to their sons, and served their gods.

7 And the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the LORD, and forgot the LORD their God, and served Baalim and ³the groves.

8 ¶ Therefore the anger of the LORD ⁴was hot against Israel, and ⁵he sold them into the hand of Chushan-rishathaim king of ⁶Mesopotamia: and the children of Israel served Chushan-rishathaim eight years.

9 And when the children of Israel ⁷cried unto the LORD, the LORD raised up a ⁸deliverer to the children of Israel, who delivered them, even Othniel the son of Kenaz, Caleb's younger brother.

10 And ⁹the Spirit of the LORD ¹⁰came upon him, and he judged Israel, and went out to war: and the LORD delivered Chushan-rishathaim king of ¹¹Mesopotamia into his hand; and his hand prevailed against Chushan-rishathaim.

11 And ¹²the land had rest forty years; and ¹³Othniel the son of Kenaz died.

12 ¶ And the children of Israel ¹⁴did evil again in the sight of the LORD: and ¹⁵the LORD strengthened Eglon ¹⁶the king of Moab against Israel, because they had done evil in the sight of the LORD.

13 And he gathered unto him the children of ¹⁷Ammon and Amalek, and went and smote Israel, and possessed ¹⁸the city of palm-trees.

14 So the children of Israel ¹⁹served Eglon the king of Moab eighteen years.

15 But when the children of Israel ²⁰cried unto the LORD, the LORD raised them up a deliverer, Ehud the son of Gera, ²¹a Benjamite, a man ²²left-handed: and by him the children of Israel ²³sent a present unto Eglon the king of Moab.

16 But Ehud made him a dagger which had ²⁴two edges, of a cubit length; and he did gird it under his raiment ²⁵upon his right thigh.

17 And he brought the present unto Eglon king of Moab: and Eglon ²⁶was ²⁷a very fat man.

18 And when he had made an end to offer the present, he sent away the people that bare the present.

19 But he himself turned again from the ¹quarries that were by Gilgal, and said, I have ²a secret errand unto thee, O king: who said, Keep silence. And all that stood by him went out from him.

20 And Ehud came unto him; and he was sitting in ³a summer parlour, which he had for himself alone: and Ehud said, ⁴I have a message from God unto thee. And ⁵he arose out of his seat.

21 And Ehud put forth his left hand, and took the dagger from his right thigh, and ⁶thrust it into his belly.

22 And the haft also went in after the blade; and the fat closed upon the blade, so that he could not draw the dagger out of his belly; and ⁷the dirt came out.

23 Then Ehud went forth through the porch, and shut the doors of the parlour upon him, and locked them.

24 When he was gone out, his servants came; and when they saw that, behold, the doors of the parlour were locked, they said, Surely he ⁸covereth his feet in his summer-chamber.

25 And they tarried till they were ashamed; and, behold, he opened not the doors of the parlour: therefore they took a key, and opened them: and, behold, their lord was fallen down dead on the earth.

26 And Ehud escaped while they tarried, and passed beyond the quarries, and escaped unto Seirath.

27 And it came to pass, when he was come, that ⁹he blew a trumpet in the mountain of Ephraim, and the children of Israel went down with him from the mount, and he before them.

28 And he said unto them, Follow after me; for ¹⁰the LORD hath delivered your enemies the Moabites into your hand. And they went down after him, and took ¹¹the fords of Jordan toward Moab, and suffered not a man to pass over.

29 ¶ And they slew of Moab at that time about ten thousand men, all ¹²lusty, and all men of valour; and there escaped not a man.

30 So Moab was subdued that day under the hand of Israel. And the land had rest fourscore years.

31 ¶ And after him was Shamgar the son of Anath, which slew of the Philistines six hundred men with ¹³an ox-goad: and he also delivered Israel.

The death of Othniel once more tried the people, and proved what was in them. After enjoying the blessings of peace and liberty throughout a space of forty years, the moment their benefactor was removed, they hastened after other gods; and, as a penalty, they were subjected to another long period of bondage. Again they sought relief in prayer. The Lord heard them, and sent them deliverance in the person of Ehud, who destroyed their oppressor with all his force. The result of this victory was rest once more for the long period of fourscore years, which ought to have led to great improvements both social and religious; but such was not the result. Mercies abused never fail to become the seeds of suffering. Men who refuse to be happy, must submit to be miserable. Sin and sorrow cannot be separated. If men will abandon iniquity, it will not be their ruin; but, if they cleave to it, they must reap the fruit of their own sowing, and none can prevent it.

Chap. IV. 1-24. The death of Ehud once more put

3 And the children of Israel ^ecried unto the LORD; for he had nine hundred ^fchariots of iron: and twenty years he ^gmightily oppressed the children of Israel.

4 ¶ And ^hDeborah, a prophetess, the wife of Lapidoth, she judged Israel at that time.

5 And she dwelt under the palm-tree of Deborah, ⁱbetween Ramah and Beth-el in mount Ephraim: and the children of Israel ^jcame up to her for judgment.

6 And she sent and called ^kBarak the son of Abinoam out of ^lKedesh-naphtali, and said unto him, ^mHath not the LORD God of Israel commanded, saying, Go and draw toward mount Tabor, and take with thee ten thousand men of the children of Naphtali, and of the children of Zebulun?

7 And ⁿI will draw unto thee, to the river ^oKishon, Sisera, the captain of Jabin's army, with his chariots, and his multitude; and ^pI will deliver him into thine hand.

8 And Barak said unto her, ^qIf thou wilt go with me, then I will go; but if thou wilt not go with me, then I will not go.

9 And she said, I will surely go with thee: ^rnotwithstanding the journey that thou takest shall not be for thine honour; for the LORD shall sell Sisera ^sinto the hand of a woman. And Deborah arose, and went with Barak to Kedesh.

10 ¶ And Barak called Zebulun and Naphtali to Kedesh; and he went up with ten thousand men ^tat his feet: and Deborah went up with him.

11 Now ^uHeber the Kenite, which was of the children of ^vHobab, the father-in-law of Moses, had severed himself from the Kenites, and pitched his tent unto the plain of ^wZaanaim, which is by Kedesh.

12 And they shewed Sisera that Barak the son of Abinoam was gone up to ^xmount Tabor.

13 And Sisera ^ygathered together all his chariots, even nine hundred chariots of iron, and all the people that were with him, from Harosheth of the Gentiles unto the river of Kishon.

17 Howbeit Sisera ^{ah}fled away on his feet to the tent of Jael the wife of Heber the Kenite: for there was ^{ai}peace between Jabin the king of Hazor and the house of Heber the Kenite.

18 ¶ And Jael went out to meet Sisera, and said unto him, Turn in, my lord, turn in to me; fear not. And when he had turned in unto her into the tent, she covered him with a ^{aj}mantle.

19 And he said unto her, ^{ak}Give me, I pray thee, a little water to drink; for I am thirsty. And she opened a bottle of milk, and gave him drink, and covered him.

20 Again he said unto her, Stand in the door of the tent; and it shall be, when any man doth come and enquire of thee, and say, ^{al}Is there any man here? that thou shalt say, No.

21 Then Jael, Heber's wife, took a nail of the tent, and ^{am}took an hammer in her hand, and went softly unto him, and smote the nail into his temples, and fastened it into the ground: (for he was fast asleep and weary:) so he died.

22 And, behold, as Barak pursued Sisera, Jael came out to meet him, and said unto him, Come, ^{an}and I will shew thee the man whom thou seekest. And when he came into her tent, behold, Sisera lay dead, and the nail was in his temples.

23 So God subdued on that day Jabin the king of Canaan before the children of Israel.

24 And the hand of the children of Israel ^{ao}prospered, and prevailed against Jabin the king of Canaan, until they had destroyed Jabin king of Canaan.

CHAPTER V.

The song of Deborah and Barak.

THEN ^{ap}sang Deborah and Barak the son of Abinoam on that day, saying, the people to the test, and once more they shewed their perverseness and wickedness by immediately returning to sin, as the punishment of which they were given up to their enemies, by whom they were "mightily oppressed" for the long period of twenty years. Wretched and helpless, as always, they had but one course left: to "cry to the Lord." Their oppression had never been more afflictive than in the present case, and their deliverance was never more signal and complete. Jabin was a powerful king, but he was driven as chaff before the wind. The Spirit of the Lord is a free Spirit, speaking as well as working by whom he will, regardless of considerations of either sex or station, and hence the selection of Deborah for the distinguished office of judging Israel. The conduct of Jael, while in its outward aspect treacherous and cruel, was yet the means appointed by Divine wisdom to complete the catastrophe which constituted the punishment of Jabin, king of the Canaanites, for his wickedness, and all his cruelty to the seed of Abraham. Although Jael and her people might have nothing personal to complain of at that moment, the cup of the transgression of their oppressors was full, and the Lord might stir up an individual as well as a nation to accomplish the purposes of Divine justice. That she acted not from personal feelings is clear; her sympathies were with the people of God, and she availed herself of the opportunity supplied by Providence to promote their liberty and happiness.

Chap. V. 1-22. This song of thanksgiving is one of the finest things of the sort upon record. All the calamities set forth at the outset are the punishment of the 2 Praise ye the LORD ^bfor the avenging of Israel, ^cwhen the people willingly offered themselves.

7 The inhabitants of the villages ceased, they ceased in Israel, until that I Deborah arose, that I arose a ^lmother in Israel.

8 They chose ^mnew gods; then was war in the gates: ⁿwas there a shield or spear seen among forty thousand in Israel?

12 Awake, ^uawake, Deborah; awake, awake; utter a song: arise, Barak, and ^vlead thy captivity captive, thou son of Abinoam.

13 Then ^whe made him that remaineth have dominion over the nobles among the people: the LORD made me have dominion over the mighty.

1 For the divisions of Reuben there were great searchings of heart.

17 Gilead abode beyond Jordan: and why did Dan remain in ships? ^{aa}Asher continued on the ^{ab}sea-shore, and abode in his ^{ac}breaches.

18 Zebulun and Naphtali were a people that ^{ad}jeoparded ^{ae}their lives unto the death in the high places of the field.

19 The ^{af}kings came and fought; then fought the kings of Canaan in Taanach by the waters of Megiddo; they took no gain of money.

20 They ^{ag}fought from heaven; the stars in their ^{ah}courses fought against Sisera.

21 The river of Kishon swept them away, that ancient river, the river Kishon. O my soul, thou hast trodden down strength.

22 Then were the ^{ai}horse-hoofs broken by the means of the ^{aj}prancings, the prancings of their mighty ones.

23 ^{ak}Curse ye Meroz, (said the angel of the LORD,) curse ye bitterly the inhabitants thereof; because ^{al}they came not to the help of the LORD, to the help of the LORD against the mighty.

24 ^{am}Blessed above women shall Jael the wife of Heber the Kenite be; blessed shall she be above women in the tent.

25 He asked water, and she gave him milk; she brought forth butter in a lordly dish.

26 She put her hand to the nail, and her right hand to the workmen's hammer; and ^{an}with the hammer she smote Sisera: ^{ao}she smote off his head, when she had pierced and stricken through his temples.

27 ^{ap}At her feet he bowed, he fell, he lay down; at her feet he bowed, he fell: where he bowed, there he fell down ^{aq}dead.

28 The mother of Sisera looked out at a window, and cried ^{ar}through the lattice, Why is his chariot so long in coming? why tarry the wheels of his chariots?

29 Her wise ladies answered her, yea, she returned ^{as}answer to herself, 30 ^{at}Have they not sped? have they not divided the prey; to ^{au}every man a damsel or two? to Sisera a prey of divers colours, a prey of divers colours of needle-work, of divers colours of needle-work on both sides, meet for the necks of them that take the spoil?

31 ^{av}So let all thine enemies perish, O LORD: but ^{aw}let ^{ax}them that love him be as ^{ay}the sun when he goeth forth in his might. And the land had rest forty years.

people for their idolatry; "they chose new gods," and forthwith their sorrows were multiplied. Ver. 23-31. Of Meroz nothing is known with certainty; but from the importance which here attaches to the conduct of its inhabitants, the presumption is, that it was then a place of considerable magnitude, with a large population. They thought it good to stand neutral; and thus, since they were not with the Lord, they were to be treated as being against him. The eulogy here pronounced upon the conduct of Jael deserves notice, as a proof that in so acting she did not sin, but in a pre-eminent degree promoted the Divine glory. Deborah at the first, speaking under the impulse of the Spirit, told Barak that the Lord would "sell Sisera into the hand of a woman," which would materially derogate from his honour. The prediction shewed that the advent of Sisera to the residence of Jael was part of the Divine plan, and that it was there appointed him to finish his course. Great is the error of standing aloof from the cause of God in seasons of affliction and danger. None were ever yet losers by the espousal of it: and he will do well who prefers suffering affliction with the people of God, to the enjoy-

CHAPTER VI.

1 The Israelites, for their sin, are oppressed by Midian. 7 A prophet rebuketh them. 11 An angel sendeth Gideon to deliver them.

AND the children of Israel ^adid evil in the sight of the LORD: and the LORD delivered them into the hand of ^bMidian seven years.

2 And ^cthe hand of Midian ^dprevailed against Israel: and because of the Midianites the children of Israel made them the dens which are in the mountains, and caves, and strongholds.

3 And so it was, ^ewhen Israel had sown, that the Midianites came up, and the Amalekites, and ^fthe children of the east, even they came up against them;

4 And they encamped against them, and destroyed the increase of the earth, till thou come unto Gaza; and ^gleft no sustenance for Israel, neither ^hsheep, nor ox, nor ass.

5 For they came up with their cattle and their ⁱtents, and they came as grasshoppers for multitude; for both they and ^jtheir camels were without number: and they entered into the land to destroy it.

6 And Israel was greatly ^kimpoverished because of the Midianites; and the children of Israel ^lcried unto the LORD.

7 ¶ And it came to pass, when the children of Israel cried unto the LORD because of the Midianites,

8 That the LORD sent ^ma prophet unto the children of Israel, which said unto them, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, I brought you up from Egypt, and brought you forth out of the house of bondage;

9 And I delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and out of the hand of all that oppressed you, and ⁿdrave them out from before you, and gave you their land;

10 And I said unto you, I am the LORD your God; ^ofear not the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell: but ^pye have not obeyed my voice.

11 ¶ And there came an angel of the LORD, and sat under an oak which was in Ophrah, that pertained unto Joash the Abiezrite: and his son ^qGideon thrashed wheat by the wine-press, to ^rhide it from the Midianites.

12 And the angel of the LORD appeared unto him, and said unto him, ^sThe LORD is with thee, thou mighty man of valour.

13 And Gideon said unto him, Oh my Lord, if the LORD be with us, ^twhy then is all this befallen us? and where be all his miracles which ^uour fathers told us of, saying, Did not the LORD bring us up from Egypt? but now the LORD hath ^vforsaken us, and delivered us into the hands of the Midianites.

14 And the LORD looked upon him, and said, Go in this thy might, and thou shalt save Israel from the hand of the Midianites: have not I sent thee?

15 And he said unto him, Oh my Lord, ^wwherewith shall I save Israel? behold, ^xmy ^yfamily is poor in Manasseh, and I am ^zthe least in my father's house.

16 And the LORD said unto him, Surely I will be with thee, and thou shalt smite the Midianites as one man.

17 And he said unto him, If now I have found grace in thy sight, then ^{aa}show me a sign that thou talkest with me.

18 Depart not hence, I pray thee, until I come unto thee, and bring forth my ^{ab}present, and set it before thee. And he said, I will tarry until thou come again.

19 And Gideon went in, and made ready ^{ac}a kid, and ^{ad}unleavened cakes of an ephah of flour: the flesh he put in a basket, and he put the broth in a pot, and brought it out unto him under the oak, and presented it.

20 And the angel of God said unto him, Take the flesh and the unleavened cakes, and lay them upon this rock, and ^{ae}pour out the broth. And he did so.

21 ¶ Then the angel of the LORD put forth the end of the staff that was in his hand, and touched the flesh and the unleavened cakes; and there ^{af}rose up fire out of the rock, and consumed the flesh and the unleavened cakes. Then the angel of the LORD departed out of his sight.

22 And when Gideon perceived that he was an angel of the LORD, Gideon said, Alas, O Lord God! for ^{ag}because I have seen an angel of the LORD face to face.

23 And the LORD said unto him, ^{ah}Peace be unto thee; fear not: thou shalt not die.

24 Then Gideon ^{ai}built an altar there unto the LORD, and called it ^{aj}Jehovahshalom: unto this day it is yet in Ophrah of the Abiezrites.

25 ¶ And it came to pass the same night, that the LORD said unto him, ^{ak}Take thy father's young bullock, ^{al}even the second bullock of seven years old, and ^{am}throw down the altar of Baal that ^{an}thy father hath, and ^{ao}cut down the grove that is by it;

ment of pleasure or profit, obtained by making light of their sorrows, and refusing to make common cause with them in the day of their distress.

Chap. VI. 1-27. Here again we have more sin and more misery. The Midianites were as numerous as they were hostile, although they were disorderly, and knew but little of the methods of disciplined warfare. They were more terrible from their hunger than from their wrath; they devoured the substance of Israel, bringing them to the verge of famine. Gideon displayed great composure during his interview with the Angel of the Lord, and framed his answers with much discretion. Both his thought and his language bespeak a man of intelligence and judgment. The Angel shewed great condescension, and exercised much patience. His act in the matter of the sacrifice was greatly fitted to impress the mind of Gideon with the conviction that he was a Divine, or, at least, a heavenly personage; it transcended the power of mortals. The sons of irreligious men are sometimes selected for high and holy work. Gideon's father was an idolater; and the first act of duty commanded him was to throw down his father's altar, and to destroy its grove. Such an act could not fail to exas-

26 And ¹build an altar unto the LORD thy God upon the top of this ¹rock, in ²the ordered place, and take the second bullock, and offer a burnt-sacrifice with the wood of the grove which thou shalt cut down.

27 Then Gideon took ten men of his servants, ^mand did as the LORD had said unto him: and so it was, because he feared his father's household, and the men of the city, that he could not do ^{it} by day, that ^{he} did ^{it} by night.

28 ¶ And when the men of the city arose early in the morning, behold, the altar of Baal was cast down, and the grove was cut down that ^{was} by it, and the second bullock was offered upon the altar ^{that was} built.

29 And they said one to another, Who hath done this thing? And when they enquired and asked, they said, Gideon the son of Joash hath done this thing.

30 Then the men of the city said unto Joash, ^oBring out thy son, that he may die; because he hath cast down the altar of Baal, and because he hath cut down the grove that ^{was} by it.

31 And Joash said unto all that stood against him, ^pWill ye plead for Baal? will ye save him? he that will plead for him, ^qlet him be put to death whilst ^{it is yet} morning: ^rif he be a god, let him plead for himself, because ^{one} hath cast down his altar.

32 Therefore on that day he called him ^sJerubbaal, saying, Let Baal plead against him, because he hath thrown down his altar.

33 ¶ Then ^tall the Midianites, and the Amalekites, and the ^uchildren of the east, were gathered together, and ^wwent over, and pitched in ^xthe valley of Jezreel.

34 But ^ythe Spirit of the LORD ^zcame upon Gideon, and he ^{blew} a trumpet; and ^{Abi-ezer} was ^{gathered} after him.

35 And he sent ^bmessengers throughout all Manasseh; who also was gathered after him: and he sent messengers unto Asher, and unto Zebulun, and unto Naphtali; and they came up to meet them.

36 ¶ And Gideon said unto God, ^oIf thou wilt save Israel by mine hand, as thou hast said,

37 ^aBehold, I will put a fleece of wool in the floor; and if the dew be on the 38 And it was so: for he rose up early on the morrow, and thrust the fleece together, and wringed the dew out of the fleece, a bowl-full of water.

39 And Gideon said unto God, ^tLet not thine anger be hot against me, and I will speak but this once: let me prove, I pray thee, but this once with the fleece; let it now be ^udry only upon the fleece, and upon all the ground let there be dew.

40 And God did so that night: for it was dry upon the fleece only, and there was dew on all the ground.

CHAPTER VII.

1 Gideon's army. 9 He is encouraged by the dream and interpretation of the barley-cake. 24 Oreb and Zeeb.

THEN ^vJerubbaal, (who is Gideon), and all the people that ^{were} with him, ^brose up early, and pitched beside the well of Harod: so that the host of the Midianites were on the north side of them, by the hill of ^cMoreh, in the valley.

2 And the LORD said unto Gideon, The people that ^{are} with thee ^{are} ^dtoo many for me to give the Midianites into their hands, lest ^eIsrael vaunt themselves against me, saying, ^fMine own hand hath saved me.

3 Now therefore go to, proclaim in the ears of the people, saying, ^gWhosoever is fearful and afraid, let him return and depart early from mount Gilead. And there returned of the people ^htwenty and two thousand; and there remained ten thousand.

4 And the LORD said unto Gideon, The people ^{are} yet ^{too} many; bring them down unto the water, and ⁱI will try them for thee there: and it shall be, ^{that} of whom I say unto thee, This shall go with thee, the same shall go with thee; and of whomsoever I say unto thee, This shall not go with thee, the same shall not go.

5 So he brought down the people unto the water: and the LORD said unto Gideon, Every one that lappeth of the water with his tongue, as a dog lappeth, him shalt thou set by himself; likewise every one that boweth down upon his knees to drink.

perate the idolaters of the country. It is, therefore, no marvel, if they called on the father to bring forth his son, that he might be slain. The father's reply is remarkable alike for its beauty and its wisdom; he represented, or ridiculed, the idea of the men of the city taking Baal, their god, under their protection. "Will ye plead for Baal? will ye save him? He that will plead for Baal, let him be put to death while it is yet morning! If he be a god, let him plead for himself." The idolatry of a man of such intelligence and decision must have hung very loosely on him. Such a father was worthy of such a son; and great was the honour of his house in being permitted to furnish such an instrument of breaking his country's fetters, and promoting the glory of the God of Abraham.

Chap. VII. 1-8. The Gospel principle of keeping down the pride of man is very strikingly exemplified in this chapter. Had a large army been engaged in a great battle, ending in a great victory, however much the vanquished might have outnumbered the victors, the proportion between means and ends would have been so great as to admit of boasting. The proclamation of permission to the fearful to return, tested courage; and the vast majority fell before it. More than two-thirds of the large army went back; but the number of brave men who remained behind, amounting to ten thousand, was still too great, and must be further reduced. The courage of Gideon is deserving of notice; he was not at all disconcerted by the diminution of his army, knowing that it was to be the Lord's battle, and that it was all one with him to save by many or by few. Neither did the handful of men themselves seem to be dismayed. They, too, were animated by the same invincible courage, arising from the same confidence in the truth and power of Almighty God. Ver. 9-25. How manifold are the 6 And the number of them that lapped, putting their hand to their mouth, were three hundred men: but all the rest of the people bowed down upon their knees to drink water.

7 And the LORD said unto Gideon, ¹By the three hundred men that lapped will I save you, and deliver the Midianites into thine hand: and let all the other people go every man unto his place.

8 So the people took victuals in their hand, and their ¹trumpets: and he sent all the rest of Israel every man unto his tent, and retained those three hundred men. And the host of Midian was beneath him ^min the valley.

9 ¶ And it came to pass ^athe same night, that the LORD said unto him, ^cArise, get thee down unto the host; for ^bI have delivered it into thine hand.

10 But ^qif thou fear to go down, go thou with Phurah thy servant down to the host:

11 And ^tthou shalt hear what they say; and afterward shall ^tthine hands be strengthened to go down unto the host. Then went he down with Phurah his servant unto the outside of the ¹armed men that were in the host.

12 And ^tthe Midianites, and the Amalekites, and all the children of the east, lay along in the valley like ^ugrasshoppers for multitude; and their camels were without number, as the sand by the sea-side for multitude.

13 And when Gideon was come, behold, there was a man that told a dream unto his fellow, and said, Behold, I dreamed a dream, and, ²lo, a cake of barley-bread tumbled into the host of Midian, and came unto a tent, and smote it, that it fell, and overturned it, that the tent lay along.

14 And his fellow answered and said, This is nothing else save the sword of Gideon the son of Joash, a man of Israel: for ²into his hand hath God delivered Midian, and all the host.

15 ¶ And it was so, when Gideon heard the telling of the dream, and the ²interpretation thereof, that he ²worshipped, and returned into the host of Israel, and said, Arise; for the LORD hath delivered into your hand the host of Midian.

16 ¶ And he divided the three hundred men into three companies, and he put ^aa trumpet in every man's hand, with empty pitchers, and ⁴lamps within the pitchers.

Lord's ways of working! The dream and the interpretation, in this case, were both from him, and eminently calculated to confirm the faith of the weary. He heard, understood, believed, rejoiced, and magnified his God. It is always meet, in the anticipation of assured mercies, to thank the Lord, as well as after they have come to hand. While the instructions of Gideon were, like everything belonging to the Gospel, simple and explicit, the obedience was prompt and hearty. He and his men were troubled by neither doubts nor fears. After the fate of the day had been determined by the Lord alone, then the people were permitted to come in and share the victory, since then they would have but little to glory in. The analogies here supplied to the Gospel system are beautiful, small causes producing mighty effects—man nothing; God all in all! The preaching of the Gospel

19 ¶ So Gideon, and the hundred men that were with him, came unto the outside of the camp in the beginning of the middle watch; and they had but newly set the watch: and they blew the trumpets, and ^bbrake the pitchers that were in their hands.

20 And the three companies ^cblew the trumpets, and ^dbrake the pitchers, and held the lamps in their left hands, and the trumpets in their right hands to blow withal: and they cried, ^eThe sword of the LORD, and of Gideon.

21 And they ^estood every man in his place round about the camp: and ^fall the host ran, and cried, and fled.

22 And the three hundred blew the trumpets, and ^gthe LORD set every man's sword against his fellow, even throughout all the host: and the host fled to Beth-shittah ^hin Zererah, and to the ⁱborder of Abel-meholah, unto Tabbath.

23 And the men of Israel gathered themselves together out of Naphtali, and out of Asher, and out of all Manasseh, and pursued after the Midianites.

24 ¶ And Gideon ^hsent messengers throughout all mount Ephraim, saying, Come down against the Midianites, and take before them the waters unto Beth-barah and Jordan. Then all the men of Ephraim gathered themselves together, and took the waters unto Beth-barah and Jordan.

25 And they took two princes of the Midianites, Oreb and Zeeb: and they slew Oreb upon the ⁱrock Oreb, and Zeeb they slew at the wine-press of Zeeb; and pursued Midian, and brought the heads of Oreb and Zeeb to Gideon on the other side Jordan.

CHAPTER VIII.

¹ The Ephraimites pacified. ⁴ Zebah and Zalmunna put to death. ³⁵ Gideon's death, and the Israelites' idolatry and ingratitude.

AND ^athe men of Ephraim said unto him, ¹Why hast thou served us thus, is, in the eyes of the world a puny instrument, aptly symbolized by the blowing of trumpets in order to level walls or vanquish armies; but under God, it is mighty to the pulling down of strongholds, and the renovation of a disordered world.

Chap. VIII. 1-21. "A word fitly spoken, how good is it!" The men of Ephraim thought themselves slighted; but a brief conciliatory address soon appeased them. The slaughter of so immense a multitude was an event that might well fill all the surrounding nations with amazement and dread. The destruction of the remainder, and the capture of both the kings, completed the dreadful enterprise. The punishment of the two kings was gone about in a manner well fitted to fill the minds of the surrounding rulers with dismay, and also that thou calledst us not when thou wentest to fight with the Midianites? And they did chide with him ^{sharply}.

2 And he said unto them, ^bWhat have I done now in comparison of you? ^{Is} not the gleanings of the grapes of Ephraim better than the vintage of Abi-ezer?

3 ^cGod hath delivered into your hands the princes of Midian, Oreb and Zeeb: and what was I able to do in comparison of you? ^dThen their ^eanger was abated toward him when he had said that.

4 ^fAnd Gideon came to Jordan, and passed over, he, and the three hundred men that ^gwere with him, ^hfaint, yet pursuing them.

5 And he said unto the men of Succoth, Give, I pray you, ⁱloaves of bread unto the people that follow me; for they be faint, and I am pursuing after Zebah and Zalmunna, kings of Midian.

6 And the princes of Succoth said, ^jAre the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna now in thine hand, that we should give bread unto thine army?

7 And Gideon said, Therefore, when the LORD hath delivered Zebah and Zalmunna into mine hand, then I will ^ktear your flesh with the thorns of the wilderness, and with briers.

8 And he went up thence to ^lPenuel, and spake unto them likewise: and the men of Penuel answered him as the men of Succoth had answered him.

9 And he spake also unto the men of Penuel, saying, When I come again in peace, I will break down this tower.

10 ^mNow Zebah and Zalmunna ⁿwere in Karkor, and their hosts with them, about fifteen thousand ^omen, all that were left of all the hosts of the children of the east: for there fell ^pan hundred and twenty thousand men that drew sword.

11 And Gideon went up by the way of them that dwelt in tents on the east of Nobah and Jogbehah, and smote the host: for the host was ^qsecure.

12 And when Zebah and Zalmunna fled, he pursued after them, and ^rtook the two kings of Midian, Zebah and Zalmunna, and ^sdiscomfited all the host.

13 ^tAnd Gideon the son of Joash returned from battle before the sun ^uwas up, 14 And caught a young man of the men of Succoth, and enquired of him: and he ^vdescribed unto him the princes of Succoth, and the elders thereof, ^weven threescore and seventeen men.

16 And he took ^{the} elders of the city, and thorns of the wilderness, and briers, and with them he ^{taught} the men of Succoth.

17 And he beat down the tower of Penuel, and slew the men of the city.

18 ^fThen said he unto Zebah and Zalmunna, What manner of men ^{were} they whom ye slew at ^mTabor? And they answered, ⁿAs thou art, so ^{were} they; each one ^{resembled} the children of a king.

19 And he said, They ^{were} my brethren, ^{even} the sons of my mother: ^{as} the LORD liveth, if ye had saved them alive, I would not slay you.

20 And he said unto Jether his first-born, ^{Up, and} slay them: but the youth drew not his sword; for he feared, because he ^{was} yet a youth.

21 Then Zebah and Zalmunna said, Rise thou, and fall upon us: for as the man is, so is his strength. And Gideon arose, and slew Zebah and Zalmunna, and took away the ^{ornaments} that ^{were} on their camels' necks.

22 ^fThen the men of Israel said unto Gideon, Rule thou over us, both thou and thy son, and thy son's son also; for thou hast delivered us from the hand of Midian.

23 And Gideon said unto them, ^I will not rule over you, neither shall my son rule over you: ^{the} LORD shall rule over you.

24 And Gideon said unto them, I would desire a request of you, that ye would ^{give} me every man the ear-rings of his prey: (for they had golden ear-rings, ^{because} they ^{were} Ishmaelites.)

25 And they answered, We will willingly give them. And they spread a garment, and did cast therein every man the ear-rings of his prey.

26 And the weight of the golden ear-rings that he requested was a thousand and seven hundred ^{shekels} of gold; besides ornaments, and ^{collars}, and ^{purple} raiment that ^{was} on the kings of Midian, and besides the ^{chains} that ^{were} about their camels' necks.

27 And Gideon made ^{an} ephod thereof, and put it in his city, ^{even} in ^lOphrah; to teach them magnanimity in their future conflicts with Israel. Ver. 22-35. Successful war was generally the foundation of rule in earlier times; it was the highest reward that a people had to offer those who had done them great public service. The same feeling which selects the head, leads the people to render the sovereignty hereditary, as if it were felt that it was not enough that the first only should enjoy the pre-eminence; he must be further honoured in his posterity. This is the first indication of the feeling, which reached a crisis in the days of Samuel, when the people clamoured for a king. Gideon had no desire to rule, and in declining their request, he reminded them that they had a king already in the God of Abraham; but in their zeal to magnify Gideon, they seemed to have overlooked the Most High God. In making the ephod, Gideon doubtless meant well, but the result was mischievous. The nature of man is such, that it is of the first importance to maintain the utmost simplicity in worship. The constant tendency of the human heart is to idolatry. The blessing of peace, for forty years, followed the destruction of the Midianites. The death of Gideon once more tested the character of Israel. As aforetime, they went astray, forgetting their God, and all his goodness, and treating with disgraceful neglect the family of Gideon, notwithstanding "all the goodness which he had shewn unto Israel." If the and all Israel went thither ^a a whoring after it: which thing became ^a a snare unto Gideon, and to his house.

28 ¶ Thus ^b was Midian subdued before the children of Israel, so that they lifted up their heads no more: and the country was in quietness ^c forty years in the days of Gideon.

29 ¶ And ^d Jerubbaal the son of Joash went and dwelt ^e in his own house.

30 And Gideon had ^f threescore and ten sons ^g of his body begotten: for he had ^h many wives.

31 And his ⁱ concubine that was in Shechem, she also bare him a son, whose name he ^j called ^k Abimelech.

32 ¶ And Gideon the son of Joash ^l died in a good old age, and was buried in the sepulchre of Joash his father, in ^m Ophrah of the Abiezrites.

33 And it came to pass, ⁿ as soon as Gideon was dead, that the children of Israel turned again, and ^o went a whoring after Baalim, and made ^p Baal-berith their god.

34 And the children of Israel ^q remembered not the LORD their God, who had delivered them out of the hands of all their enemies on every side:

35 Neither ^r shewed they kindness to the house of Jerubbaal, namely, Gideon, according to all the goodness which he had shewed unto Israel.

sons of Jerubbaal, being threescore and ten persons, upon one stone: notwithstanding, yet Jotham, the youngest son of Jerubbaal, was left; for he hid himself.

6 And all the men of Shechem gathered together, and all the ^m house of Millo, and went and made Abimelech king, by the ⁿ plain of the pillar that was in Shechem.

7 ¶ And when they told ^o it to Jotham, he went and stood in the top of ^p mount Gerizim, and lifted up his voice and cried, and said unto them, ^q Hearken unto me, ye men of Shechem, that God may hearken unto you.

8 ^r The trees went forth on a time to anoint a king over them; and they said unto the olive-tree, ^s Reign thou over us.

9 But the olive-tree said unto them, Should I leave my fatness, ^t wherewith by me they honour God and man, and go ^u to be promoted over the trees?

10 And the trees said to the fig-tree, Come thou, and reign over us.

11 But the fig-tree said unto them, ^v Should I forsake my sweetness, and my good fruit, and go to be promoted over the trees?

12 Then said the trees unto the vine, Come thou, and reign over us.

13 And the vine said unto them, Should I leave my wine, which ^w cheereth God and man, and go to be promoted over the trees?

14 Then said all the trees unto the ^x bramble, Come thou, and reign over us.

15 And the bramble said unto the trees, If in truth ye anoint me king over you, then come and put your trust in my ^y shadow; and if not, ^z let fire come out of the bramble, and devour ^a the cedars of Lebanon.

16 Now therefore, if ye have done truly and sincerely, in that ye have made Abimelech king, and if ye have dealt well with Jerubbaal and his house, and have done unto him ^b according to the deserving of his hands;

17 (For my father ^c fought for you, and ^d adventured his life far, and delivered you out of the hand of Midian:

19 If ye then have dealt truly and sincerely with Jerubbaal and with his house this day, then ^h rejoice ye in Abimelech, and let him also rejoice in you:

20 But if not, ⁱ let fire come out from widows and families of meritorious office-bearers and pastors of the Church of God be sometimes neglected, even when good offices are very necessary to their comfort, let them remember the case of Gideon, and in patience possess their souls. Their Master in heaven will not forget them.

Chap. IX. 1-6. Abimelech, in point of infamy and cruelty, far surpasses the most revolting cases of human wickedness that have yet come before us. The narrative is full of horror. His instruments, "vain and light persons," paid out of the idol treasury, were worthy of him and of his work. His seventy brothers would appear to have been killed on the altar of Baal, and offered to that idol in sacrifice. Ver. 7-57. The parable of Jotham is inimitable for its propriety, prudence, and force. He shews how deeply he felt the conduct of the people to his father's house. That people had proposed to crown him, and to make his sons princes, and now they were parties to their destruction in cold blood! But no hands can Abimelech, and devour the men of Shechem, and the house of Millo; and let fire come out from the men of Shechem, and from the house of Millo, and devour Abimelech.

21 And Jotham ran away, and fled, and went to Beer, and dwelt there, for fear of Abimelech his brother.

22 ¶ When Abimelech had reigned three years over Israel,

23 Then God sent an evil spirit between Abimelech and the men of Shechem; and the men of Shechem dealt treacherously with Abimelech:

24 That the cruelty done to the three-score and ten sons of Jerubbaal might come, and their blood be laid upon Abimelech their brother, which slew them; and upon the men of Shechem, which aided him in the killing of his brethren.

25 And the men of Shechem set liers in wait for him in the top of the mountains, and they robbed all that came along that way by them; and it was told Abimelech.

26 And Gaal the son of Ebed came with his brethren, and went over to Shechem: and the men of Shechem put their confidence in him.

27 And they went out into the fields, and gathered their vineyards, and trode the grapes, and made merry, and went into the house of their god, and did eat and drink, and cursed Abimelech.

28 And Gaal the son of Ebed said, Who is Abimelech, and who is Shechem, that we should serve him? is not he the son of Jerubbaal? and Zebul his officer? Serve the men of Hamor the father of Shechem; for why should we serve him?

29 And would to God this people were under my hand! then would I remove Abimelech. And he said to Abimelech, Increase thine army, and come out.

30 ¶ And when Zebul, the ruler of the city, heard the words of Gaal the son of Ebed, his anger was kindled.

31 And he sent messengers unto Abimelech privily, saying, Behold, Gaal the son of Ebed, and his brethren, be come to Shechem; and, behold, they fortify the city against thee.

32 Now therefore up by night, thou and the people that is with thee, and lie in wait in the field:

33 And it shall be, that in the morning, as soon as the sun is up, thou shalt rise early, and set upon the city; and, behold, when he and the people that is with him come out against thee, then mayest thou do to them as thou shalt find occasion.

34 ¶ And Abimelech rose up, and all the people that were with him, by night, and they laid wait against Shechem in four companies.

35 And Gaal the son of Ebed went out, and stood in the entering of the gate of the city: and Abimelech rose up, and the people that were with him, from lying in wait.

36 And when Gaal saw the people, he said to Zebul, Behold, there come people down from the top of the mountains. And Zebul said unto him, Thou seest the shadow of the mountains as if they were men.

37 And Gaal spake again, and said, See, there come people down by the middle of the land, and another company come along by the plain of Meonenim.

38 Then said Zebul unto him, Where is now thy mouth, wherewith thou saidst, Who is Abimelech, that we should serve him? Is not this the people that thou hast despised? Go out, I pray now, and fight with them.

39 And Gaal went out before the men of Shechem, and fought with Abimelech.

40 And Abimelech chased him, and he fled before him: and many were overthrown and wounded, even unto the entering of the gate.

41 And Abimelech dwelt at Arumah: and Zebul thrust out Gaal and his brethren, that they should not dwell in Shechem.

42 And it came to pass on the morrow, that the people went out into the field; and they told Abimelech.

43 And he took the people, and divided them into three companies, and laid wait in the field, and looked, and, behold, the people were come forth out of the city; and he rose up against them, and smote them.

45 And Abimelech fought against the city all that day; and he took the city, and slew the people that was therein, and beat down the city, and sowed it with salt.

46 ¶ And when all the men of the tower of Shechem heard that, they entered into an hold of the house of the god Berith.

47 And it was told Abimelech, that all the men of the tower of Shechem were gathered together.

48 And Abimelech gat him up to mount Zalmon, he and all the people that were with him; and Abimelech took an axe in his hand, and cut down a bough from bind bad men together. Partners in this unparalleled and frightful massacre, it was meet that they should become mutually the instruments of each others punishment. The first step on the part of the people was, their going into the house of their idol to eat, and drink, and curse Abimelech. This brought upon them wrath and destruction; and then in due season the vengeance of Heaven fell on Abimelech himself. From the hand of a woman he received his death-blow; and to conceal his disgrace, he commanded his armour-bearer to commit a homicide upon him. Abimelech is a type of a class of men who have frequently appeared in the course of the the trees, and took it, and laid it on his shoulder, and said unto the people that were with him, "What ye have seen 'me do, make haste, and do as I have done."

49 And all the people likewise cut down every man his bough, and followed Abimelech, and "put them to the hold, and set the hold on fire upon them: so that all the men of the tower of Shechem died also, about a thousand men and women.

50 ¶ Then went Abimelech to Thebez, and encamped against Thebez, and took it.

51 But there was a strong tower within the city, and thither fled all the men and women, and all they of the city, and shut it to them, and gat them up to the top of the tower.

52 And ^bAbimelech came unto the tower, and fought against it, and went hard unto the door of the tower to burn it with fire.

53 And a certain ¹woman cast a piece of a millstone upon Abimelech's head, and all to brake his skull.

54 Then he called hastily unto the young man his armour-bearer, and said unto him, "Draw thy sword, and slay me, that men say not of me, A woman slew him. And his young man thrust him through, and he died.

55 And ¹when the men of Israel saw that Abimelech was dead, they departed every man unto his place.

56 ¶ Thus ²God rendered the wickedness of Abimelech, which he did unto his father, in slaying his seventy brethren:

57 And all the evil of the men of Shechem did God render upon their heads: and ²upon them came the curse of Jotham the son of Jerubbaal.

CHAPTER X.

¹ Tola judgeth Israel; ³ also Jair. ⁷ The Philistines and Ammonites oppress Israel, 15 upon their repentance, God pitieth them.

AND after Abimelech there ^aarose, to defend Israel, Tola the son of Puah, the son of Dodo, a man of Issachar; and he dwelt in ^bShamir in mount Ephraim.

2 And he judged Israel twenty and three years, and died, and was buried in Shamir.

3 ¶ And after him arose Jair, ^ca Gileadite, and judged Israel twenty and two years.

4 And he had thirty sons that ^drode on thirty ass-colts, and they had thirty cities, which are ^ecalled ³Havoth-jair unto this day, which are in the land of Gilead.

5 And Jair died, and was buried in Camon.

6 ¶ And the children of Israel ¹did evil again in the sight of the LORD, and served ²Baalim, and Ashtaroth, and the gods of Syria, and ³the gods of Zidon, and the gods of Moab, and the gods of the children of Ammon, and ¹the gods of the Philistines, and forsook the LORD, and served not him.

7 And the anger of the LORD ^awas hot against Israel, and ¹he sold them into the hands of the Philistines, and into the hands of the children of Ammon.

8 And ²that year they vexed and ³oppressed the children of Israel eighteen years, all the children of Israel that were on the other side Jordan, in the land of the Amorites, which is in Gilead.

9 Moreover, the children of Ammon ¹passed over Jordan to fight also against Judah, and against Benjamin, and against the house of Ephraim; so that Israel was sore ^cdistressed.

10 ¶ And the children of Israel ²cried unto the LORD, saying, We have sinned against thee, both because we have forsaken our God, and also served Baalim.

11 And the LORD said unto the children of Israel, Did not I deliver you from ^athe Egyptians, and from ^bthe Amorites, from the children of Ammon, and from the Philistines?

12 The Zidonians also, and the Amalekites, and the Maonites, did oppress you; and ye cried to me, and I delivered you out of their hand.

13 ^aYet ye have forsaken me, and served other gods: wherefore I will deliver you no more.

14 Go and ^ccry unto the gods which ye have chosen; let them deliver you in the time of your tribulation.

15 ¶ And the children of Israel said unto the LORD, "We have sinned: ^ado thou unto us whatsoever ^bseemeth good unto thee; ^cdeliver us only, we pray thee, this day.

16 And ^athey put away the ^bstrange gods from among them, and served the LORD: and ^ahis soul was ^cgrieved for the misery of Israel.

17 Then the children of Ammon were ¹gathered together, and encamped in Gilead: and the children of Israel assembled themselves together, and encamped in ^bMizpeh.

18 And the people and princes of Gilead said one to another, "What man is he that last three thousand years: men who, to obtain power, make no scruple of imbruing their hands in the blood of even their brothers; and men who, sooner or later, rarely fail to be overtaken by Divine vengeance in its most awful forms. The career of such men has been generally short as well as wretched, and their end infamous; the voice of posterity has loaded their names with the bitterest execrations; while the memory of the just is blessed, and the righteous is had in everlasting remembrance.

Chap. X. 1-9. On the death of Abimelech there was, for a season, an end to kingship in Israel; but on the death of the second Judge that followed, as in former cases, a great change took place for the worse. Never before, perhaps, did the people plunge so deeply into idolatry: not satisfied with one, they gathered together all the gods of the surrounding nations, and fell down before them, while they "forsook the Lord, and served him not." Their infatuation brought on them the usual punishment; for the long period of eighteen years they were "sore distressed." Ver. 10-18. The usual effect followed; when driven to desperation, they betook themselves to prayer, and for the first time received an answer

2 And Gilead's wife bare him sons: and his wife's sons grew up, and they ^ethrust out Jephthah, and said unto him, Thou shalt not inherit in our father's house; for thou ^fart the son of ^ga strange woman.

3 Then Jephthah fled from ^hhis brethren, and dwelt in the land of ⁱTob: and there were gathered ^jvain men to Jephthah, and went out with him.

4 ¶ And it came to pass ^kin process of time, that the children of Ammon made war against Israel.

5 And it was so, that, when the children of Ammon ^lmade war against Israel, the elders of Gilead went ^mto fetch Jephthah out of the land of Tob:

6 And they said unto Jephthah, Come, and be our captain, that we may fight with the children of Ammon.

7 And Jephthah said unto the elders of Gilead, ⁿDid not ye hate me, and expel me out of my father's house? and why are ye come unto me now when ye are in distress?

8 And ^othe elders of Gilead said unto Jephthah, Therefore ^pwe turn again to thee now, that thou mayest go with us, and fight against the children of Ammon, and be our head over all the inhabitants of Gilead.

9 And Jephthah said unto the elders of Gilead, ^qIf ye bring me home again to fight against the children of Ammon, and the LORD deliver them before me, shall I be your head?

10 And the elders of Gilead said unto Jephthah, ^rThe LORD be ^switness between us, ^tif we do not so according to thy words.

11 Then Jephthah went with the elders of Gilead, and the people made him ^uhead and captain over them: and Jephthah ^vuttered all his words ^wbefore the LORD in Mizpeh.

that thou art come against me to fight in my land?

13 And the king of the children of Ammon answered unto the messengers of Jephthah, ^zBecause Israel took away my land, when they came up out of Egypt, from Arnon even unto ^{aa}Jabbok, and unto Jordan: now therefore restore those ^{ab}lands again peaceably.

14 And Jephthah sent messengers ^{ac}again unto the king of the children of Ammon,

15 And said unto him, Thus saith Jephthah, ^{ad}Israel took not away the land of Moab, nor the land of the children of Ammon:

16 But when Israel came up from Egypt, and ^{ae}walked through the wilderness unto the Red sea, and ^{af}came to Kadesh, 17 Then Israel ^{ag}sent messengers unto the king of Edom, saying, Let me, I pray thee, pass through thy land: but the king of Edom would not hearken ^{ah}thereto. And in like manner they sent unto ^{ai}the king of Moab; but he would not ^{aj}consent: and Israel ^{ak}abode in Kadesh.

18 Then they ^{al}went along through the wilderness, and ^{am}compassed the land of Edom, and the land of Moab, and came by the east side of the land of Moab, and ^{an}pitched on the other side of Arnon, but came not within the border of Moab: for Arnon ^{ao}was the border of Moab.

19 And ^{ap}Israel sent messengers unto Sihon king of the Amorites, the king of Heshbon; and Israel said unto him, Let us pass, we pray thee, through thy land unto my place.

20 But Sihon trusted not Israel to pass through his coast: but Sihon gathered all his people together, and pitched in Jahaz, and fought against Israel.

21 And the ^{aq}LORD God of Israel delivered Sihon and all his people into the hand of Israel, and they smote them: ^{ar}so Israel possessed all the land of the Amorites, the inhabitants of that country.

22 And they possessed all the coasts of the Amorites, from Arnon even unto Jabbok, and from the wilderness even unto Jordan.

23 So now the LORD God of Israel hath dispossessed the Amorites from before his people Israel, and shouldest thou possess it?

24 Wilt not thou possess that which such as they deserved to have had at an earlier period: "Go! cry to your gods; let them deliver you." They confessed, they reformed, they prayed, they "served the Lord, and his soul was grieved for the misery of Israel." Their conduct, while it illustrated human nature, served also to illustrate, in the most extraordinary degree, the ever-during mercy of the God of Abraham. The wickedness of these people baffles description. The love of idolatry would seem to have been hitherto an instinct in their nature; they panted for it as the hart after the water-brooks. Mercy and judgment were alike thrown away on them. As if driven, or drawn, by a force wholly irresistible, they never failed to embrace the first opportunity of returning to it. They were the subjects of a species of infatuation which it is difficult to explain. The compassion of the Lord is still more wonderful; it is impossible to conceive of its being more severely tested, and yet it never failed. Ever and anon they "cried to the Lord in their troubles," and he "saved them out of all their distresses."

Chap. XI. 1-28. Although Jephthah had nothing to recommend him but his military talents, he was a favourite with the "vain men" of the land, persons of an unsettled and worthless character. It is always an awkward thing to ask a favour of those whom we have injured;

^m Chemosh thy god giveth thee to possess? So ^awhomsoever the LORD our God shall drive out from before us, them will we possess.

25 And now, art thou any thing better than ^oBalak the son of Zippor king of Moab? did he ever strive against Israel, or did he ever fight against them, 26 While Israel dwelt in ^pHeshbon and her towns, and in ^qAroer and her towns, and in all the cities that be along by the coasts of Arnon, ^rthree hundred years? why therefore did ye not recover them within that time?

27 Wherefore I have not sinned against thee, but thou doest me wrong to war against me: the LORD ^sthe Judge ^tbe judge this day between the children of Israel and the children of Ammon.

28 Howbeit ^uthe king of the children of Ammon hearkened not unto the words of Jephthah which he sent him.

29 ^vThen ^wthe Spirit of the LORD came upon Jephthah, and he passed over Gilead and Manasseh, and passed over ^xMizpeh of Gilead, and from Mizpeh of Gilead he passed over unto the children of Ammon.

30 And Jephthah ^yvowed a vow unto the LORD, and said, If thou shalt without fail deliver the children of Ammon into mine hands, 31 Then it shall be, that ^zwhatsoever cometh forth of the doors of my house to meet me, when I return in peace from the children of Ammon, ^ashall surely be the LORD's, ^band I will offer it up for a burnt-offering.

32 ^cSo Jephthah passed over unto the children of Ammon to fight against them; and ^dthe LORD delivered them into his hands.

33 And he smote them from ^eAroer, even till thou come to ^fMinnith, ^geven twenty cities, and unto ^hthe plain of the vineyards, with a very great slaughter. Thus the children of Ammon were subdued before the children of Israel.

34 ⁱAnd Jephthah came to ^jMizpeh unto his house, and, behold, ^khis daughter came out to meet him with timbrels and

CHAPTER XII.

1 The Ephraimites quarrelling with Jephthah, and discerned by the word Shibboleth, are slain by the Gileadites. 7 Jephthah dieth.

AND the men of Ephraim ¹gathered themselves together, and went northward, and said unto Jephthah, ²Wherefore passedst thou over to fight against the children of Ammon, and didst not call us to go with thee? ³we will burn thine house upon thee with fire.

2 And Jephthah said unto them, ⁴I and my people were at great strife with the children of Ammon; and when I called you, ye delivered me not out of their hands, the men of Gilead at once overcame the difficulty by frank confession, while they made all the atonement they could for past unkindness. The part of Jephthah was marked by manhood and generosity. The king of Ammon conducted himself with great pride and perverseness, for which he and his people paid very dearly. The deportment of Jephthah, on the contrary, was upright and noble, and such as became a ruler of men. He went to war with a good conscience. When the Lord is judge between men, the righteous have nothing to fear; but evil doers should prepare for the worst. Men who are wrong are generally unreasonable. Such was the king of Ammon, who "hearkened not" to the voice of truth and reason; but he was soon compelled to listen to the voice of Providence. Ver 29-40. The Spirit of the Lord, at the appointed time, came on Jephthah, fitting him for the great work to which he had been called in Providence. The Scriptures clearly shew that talents for war are no less the special gifts of God than are those talents by which men are rendered eminent in the arts of peace. The wars of the Jews were important elements in that course of Providence by which the purposes of the Most High were to be accomplished. The vow of Jephthah was rash and uncalled for, and it may be doubted whether he was required, or even permitted, to observe it. It may be questioned whether his duty was not to break it, and throw himself on the Divine mercy. Great darkness, however, rests on the subject, and very various and contradictory have been the views at which learned men have arrived. It is, nevertheless, impossible to attain to anything like certainty; but the lesson is obvious. Men should be on their guard not only against rash vows, but rash promises, which often lead to unhappy consequences.

Chap. XII. 1-15. The men of Ephraim having displayed a very bad spirit, and acted a part anything but reasonable, no good could come of it. Jephthah had the best of the argument; he had done them no wrong, and right is the sure foundation of reason. These charges against the men of Gilead were wholly unfounded, and such as indicated disregard alike to truth and friendship. The slaughter attending the ancient wars was very terrible; the destruction on the present occasion was

3 And when I saw that ye delivered me not, I ^dput my life in my hands, and passed over against the children of Ammon, and the LORD delivered them into my hand: ^ewherefore then are ye come up unto me this day, to fight against me?

4 Then Jephthah gathered together all the men of Gilead, and fought with Ephraim: and the ^bmen of Gilead smote Ephraim, because they said, Ye Gileadites are ^ffugitives of Ephraim among the Ephraimites, and among the Manassites.

5 And the Gileadites took ^bthe passages of Jordan before the Ephraimites: and it was so, that when those Ephraimites which were escaped said, Let me go over; that the men of Gilead said unto him, Art thou an Ephraimite? If he said, Nay;

6 Then said they unto him, Say now ^bShibboleth; and he said, Sibboleth: for he could not frame to pronounce it right. Then they took him, and slew him at the passages of Jordan: and ^kthere fell at that time of the Ephraimites forty and two thousand.

7 [¶]And Jephthah judged Israel six years: then died Jephthah the Gileadite, and was buried in one of the cities of Gilead.

8 [¶]And after him Ibzan of ^bBeth-lehem judged Israel.

9 And he had ^mthirty sons, and thirty daughters, whom he sent abroad, and took in thirty daughters from abroad for his sons: and he judged Israel seven years.

10 Then died Ibzan, and was buried at Beth-lehem.

11 [¶]And after him Elon, a Zebulonite, judged Israel: and he judged Israel ten years.

12 And Elon the Zebulonite died, and was buried in ⁿAijalon, in the country of Zebulun.

13 [¶]And after him Abdon the son of Hillel, a Pirathonite, judged Israel.

14 And he had forty sons and thirty ⁿnephews, that ^orode on threescore and ten ass-colts: and he judged Israel eight years.

15 And Abdon the son of Hillel the ^pPirathonite died, and was buried in Pirathon, in the land of Ephraim, ^qin the mount of the Amalekites.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 Israel is in the hand of the Philistines. 2 An angel appeareth to Manoah's wife. 3 The angel appeareth to Manoah. 15 Manoah's sacrifice, whereby the angel is discovered. 24 Samson is born.

AND the children of Israel ¹did evil again in the sight of the LORD; and the LORD delivered them ^ainto the hand of the Philistines forty years.

2 [¶]And there was a certain man of ^bZorah, of the family of the Danites, whose name was Manoah; and his wife was ^cbarren, and bare not.

3 And ^dthe angel of the LORD appeared unto the woman, and said unto her, Behold now, thou art barren, and bearest not: ^ebut thou shalt conceive, and bear a son.

4 Now therefore beware, I pray thee, and ^fdrink not wine nor strong drink, and ^geat not any unclean thing:

5 For, lo, thou shalt conceive, and bear a son; and ^hno razor shall come on his head: for the child shall be a Nazarite unto God from the womb; and he shall ⁱbegin to deliver Israel out of the hand of the Philistines.

6 [¶]Then the woman came and told her husband, saying, ^kA man of God came unto me, and his ^lcountenance was like the countenance of an angel of God, very ^mterrible: but I asked him not whence he was, neither told he me ⁿhis name.

7 But he said unto me, Behold, thou shalt conceive, and bear a son; and now drink no wine nor strong drink, neither eat any unclean thing: for the child shall be a Nazarite to God from the womb to the day of his death.

8 [¶]Then Manoah entreated the LORD, and said, O my Lord, let the man of God which thou didst send come again unto us, and ^oteach us what we shall do unto the child that shall be born.

9 And God ^phearkened to the voice of Manoah; and the angel of God came again unto the woman as she sat in the field: but Manoah her husband was not with her.

10 And the woman made haste, and ran, and shewed her husband, and said unto him, ^qBehold, the man hath appeared unto me, that came unto me the other day.

11 And Manoah arose, and went after his wife, and came to the man, and said greater than at many of the most fearful battles of modern times. On the side of the men of Ephraim was all the violence, and all the wrong; and as might be supposed, on their side, too, was the main destruction. The Lord and the truth are never separated. Strong are they, therefore, whatever their numbers, whose consciences bear them witness that they have done no wrong. To secure the help of the Most High, men must see to it that they are walking in the truth, and doing to their fellow-men as they themselves would be done by. The period of Jephthah's rule was, after all, short; and his three successors, severally, enjoyed their distinction a very little longer. Notwithstanding the struggles of men for power, its tenure is generally brief, and the satisfaction derived from it very small, or very mixed, while it lasts. The governors of the world, considered as a whole, are by no means to be viewed as the happiest of men, and objects of envy. Power is not only not essential to felicity, but hardly compatible with it. True religion, and that alone, is true happiness, and thanks be to God, this is within the reach of every soul of man!

Chap. XIII. 1-23. Forty years of thralldom was a very heavy penalty, from which we may infer the magnitude of the transgression; but the mercy of the Lord was not clean gone; deliverance, although still at a great distance, would, without fail, arrive. It began with the birth of Samson, and was consummated by another hand. It is difficult to understand the reason of the injunction given to the wife of Manoah, which was urged in a manner so solemn and peremptory; but it would seem that the order of the Nazarites enjoyed the approbation of God. The kindness of the Angel towards Manoah and unto him, Art thou the man that spakest unto the woman? And he said, I am.

12 And Manoah said, Now let thy words come to pass: ¹how shall we order the child? and ²how shall we do unto him?

13 And the angel of the LORD said unto Manoah, Of all that I said unto the woman let her beware.

14 She may not eat of any thing that cometh of the vine, neither let her drink wine or strong drink, nor eat any unclean thing: ¹all that I commanded her let her observe.

15 ¶ And Manoah said unto the angel of the LORD, I pray thee, ¹let us detain thee, until we shall have made ready a kid ²for thee.

16 And the angel of the LORD said unto Manoah, Though thou detain me, I will not eat of thy bread; and if thou wilt offer a burnt-offering, thou must offer it ¹unto the LORD: for Manoah knew not that he was an angel of the LORD.

17 And Manoah said unto the angel of the LORD, What is thy name, that when thy sayings come to pass we may do thee honour?

18 And the angel of the LORD said unto him, ¹Why askest thou thus after my name, seeing it is ²secret?

19 So Manoah ¹took a kid with a meat-offering, and offered ²it upon a rock unto the LORD: and the angel ³did wondrously; and Manoah and his wife looked on.

20 For it came to pass, ¹when the flame went up toward heaven from off the altar, that the angel of the LORD ascended in the flame of the altar: and Manoah and his wife looked on ²it, and ³fell on their faces to the ground.

21 (But the angel of the LORD did no more appear to Manoah and to his wife.) Then Manoah ¹knew that he was an angel of the LORD.

22 And Manoah said unto his wife, ¹We shall surely die, because ²we have seen God.

23 But ¹his wife said unto him, If the LORD were pleased to kill us, ²he would not have received a burnt-offering and a meat-offering at our hands; neither would ³he have shewed us all these things; nor would, as at this time, have told us such things as these.

24 ¶ And the woman bare a son, and

CHAPTER XIV.

1 Samson desired a wife of the Philistines. 10 His marriage-feast, 12 and riddle. 19 He spoilt thirty Philistines.

AND Samson went down to ¹Timnath, and ²saw a woman in Timnath of the daughters of the Philistines.

2 And he came up, and told his father and his mother, and said, I have seen a woman in Timnath of the daughters of the Philistines: now therefore ¹get her for me to wife.

3 Then his father and his mother said unto him, Is there never a woman among the daughters of ¹thy brethren, or among all my people, that thou goest to take a wife of the ²uncircumcised Philistines? And Samson said unto his father, Get her for me; for ¹she pleaseth me well.

4 But his father and his mother knew not that ¹it was of the LORD, that he sought an occasion against the Philistines: for at that time the Philistines ²had dominion over Israel.

5 ¶ Then went Samson down, and his father and his mother, to Timnath, and came to the vineyards of Timnath; and, behold, a young lion roared ¹against him.

6 And ¹the Spirit of the LORD came mightily upon him, and ²he rent him as he would have rent a kid, and he had nothing in his hand: but ³he told not his father or his mother what he had done.

7 And he went down and talked with the woman; and she pleased Samson well.

8 ¶ And after a time he returned ¹to take her, and he turned aside to see the carcase of the lion; and, behold, there was a swarm of bees and honey in the carcase of the lion.

9 And he took thereof in his hands, and went on eating, and came to his father and mother, and he gave them, and they did eat: but he told not them that he had taken the honey out of the carcase of the lion.

10 ¶ So his father went down unto the woman: and Samson ¹made there a feast; for so used the young men to do.

11 And it came to pass, when they his wife, is very strikingly exemplified; his deportment is full of dignity and condescension. The scene at the altar, which was grand and terrible, contributed much to confirm the faith of Manoah and his wife. As no additional information was required on the subject, there was no further appearance of the Angel. The stronger heart sometimes beats in the weaker vessel; a truly Christian wife is the greatest of this world's blessings, the best gift of God to man. Here the intelligence and the piety of the wife of Manoah appeared to great advantage, as compared with those of her husband. She displayed strong faith, and sound reason; and according to her faith was her mercy. Ver. 24-25. "The Lord blessed him," in language expressive of special favour. The manner of this spiritual movement it is impossible to determine, although it doubtless had to do with feasts of supernatural strength, foreshadowing those marvels which, in due season, he would display.

Chap. XIV. 1-20. Samson's parents, grieved and alarmed by his request, very properly endeavoured to dissuade him from his purpose, not knowing the thing was of the Lord, and to be overruled for the Divine glory, and the good of Israel. Samson's answer was wholly beside their question, shewing that his feelings had completely mastered his judgment. Connections so formed seldom end well. Samson, notwithstanding his marvellous strength, gives no sign of vanity; he made no mention to his parents even of his encounter with the lion. True greatness is not ostentatious. The Greeks were in the habit of proposing riddles at their feasts for amusement or instruction, and the custom prevailed also "saw him, that they brought °thirty companions to be with him.

12 ¶ And Samson said unto them, I will now put forth °a riddle unto you: if ye can certainly declare it me within °the seven days of the feast, and find it out, then I will give you thirty °sheets, and thirty change of garments:

13 But if ye cannot declare it me, then shall ye give me thirty sheets, and °thirty change of garments. And they said unto him, Put forth thy riddle, that we may hear it.

14 And he said unto them, °Out of the eater came forth meat, and out of the strong came forth sweetness. And they could not in three days expound the riddle.

15 And it came to pass on the seventh day, that they said unto Samson's wife, °Entice thy husband, that he may declare unto us the riddle, lest we burn thee and thy father's house with fire: have ye called us to °take that we have? is it not so?

16 And Samson's wife wept before him, and said, Thou dost but hate me, and lovest me not: thou hast put forth a riddle unto the children of my people, and hast not told it me. And he said unto her, Behold, °I have not told it my father nor my mother, and shall I tell it thee?

17 And she wept before him °the seven days, while their feast lasted; and it came to pass on the seventh day, that he told her, because °she lay sore upon him: °and she told the riddle to the children of her people.

18 And the men of the city said unto him on the seventh day, before the sun went down, What is sweeter than honey? and what is stronger than a lion? And he said unto them, If ye had not plowed with my heifer, ye had not found out my riddle.

19 ¶ And °the Spirit of the Lord came upon him, and he went down to Ashkelon, and slew thirty men of them, and took their °spoils, and gave change of garments unto them which expounded the riddle: and his anger was kindled, and he went up to his father's house.

20 But Samson's wife was given to his companion, whom he had used as °his friend.

CHAPTER XV.

1 Samson is denied his wife. 3 He burneth the Philistines' corn. 9 He is bound by the men of Judah, and delivered to the Philistines. 14 He killeth them with a jaw-bone.

BUT it came to pass within a while after, in the time of wheat-harvest, that Samson visited his wife with a °kid; and he said, I will go in to my wife into the chamber: but her father would not suffer him to go in.

2 And her father said, °I verily thought that thou hadst utterly hated her; therefore I gave her to thy companion: is not her younger sister fairer than she? °take her, I pray thee, instead of her.

3 ¶ And Samson said concerning them, °Now shall I be more blameless than the Philistines, though I do them a displeasure.

4 And Samson went and caught °three hundred foxes, and took °firebrands, and turned tail to tail, and put a firebrand in the midst between two tails.

5 And when he had set the brands on fire, °he let them go into the standing corn of the Philistines, and burnt up both the shocks, and also the standing corn, with the vineyards and olives.

6 ¶ Then the Philistines said, Who hath done this? And they answered, Samson, the son-in-law of the Timnite, because he had taken his wife, and given her to his companion. And the Philistines came up, °and burnt her and her father with fire.

7 ¶ And Samson said unto them, Though ye have done this, yet will I be avenged of you, and after that I will cease.

8 And he °smote them hip and thigh with a great slaughter: and he went down and dwelt in the top of the rock Etam.

9 ¶ Then the Philistines went up, and pitched in Judah, and spread themselves in Lehi.

10 And the men of Judah said, Why are ye come up against us? And they answered, To bind Samson are we come up, to do to him as he hath done to us.

11 Then three thousand men of Judah went to the top of the rock Etam, and said to Samson, Knowest thou not that the °Philistines are rulers over us? what is this that thou hast done unto us? And in other countries. But things which begin in jest, sometimes end in earnest. Samson's riddle was so far removed from the ordinary affairs of life as to render solution, without a wisdom higher than that of mortals, impossible; and the men, rather than pay their forfeit, resorted to dishonourable violence. What they said they probably would have done, and the woman, to save her life, performed an act of injustice to her husband. The alternative was two evils, and she chose what she deemed the lesser. Her case presents a remarkable exemplification of the power of importunity. The right of petitioning, in civil society, notwithstanding its seeming weakness, properly exercised, is a thing to the power of which it is impossible to assign limits. How expressive the phrase, "She lay sore upon him!" Her importunity became intolerable; and, to rid himself of the affliction, he revealed his secret, although to his own hurt. The act of the young men was base, and it cost them very dear. Their own people were made to supply the property unjustly wrung from him, at the cost of thirty lives! Samson, in a rage, returned to his country, without his wife, which led her parents to think that he had left her for good; and hence she was given to another. The history supplies an awful warning as to the evil of mixed marriages. This is one of those sins, the punishment of which, generally, extends to the close of life, and the consequences, oft-times, into an eternal world.

Chap. XV. 1-8. Samson had himself, in a measure, to blame in the matter of his wife. Having left her behind, and having made no communication as to his future intentions, her father might well suppose they would see no more of him; but before she was given to another, Samson ought to have been apprised, that, if he chose, he might claim her. The neglect, however, was grievously atoned for, since it brought destruction on both her father and herself. This was done to appease the wrath of Samson, but in vain; he was to prove the instrument of a still more terrible vengeance. Thus the passions of men are made to fulfil the purposes of God. Samson was a host in himself, against whom the forces of the Philistines could not stand. To approach he said unto them, As they did unto me, so have I done unto them.

12 And they said unto him, We are come down ¹to bind thee, that we may deliver thee into the hand of the Philistines. And Samson said unto them, Swear unto me, that ye will not ¹fall upon me yourselves.

13 And they spake unto him, saying, No; but we will bind thee fast, and deliver thee into their hand: but surely we will not kill thee. And they bound him with two new cords, and brought him up from the rock.

14 ¶ And when he came unto Lehi, ¹the Philistines shouted against him: and ¹the Spirit of the LORD came mightily upon him; and ¹the cords that ¹were upon his arms became as flax that was burnt with fire, and his bands ¹loosed from off his hands.

15 And he found a ¹new jaw-bone of an ass, and put forth his hand and took it, and ¹slew a thousand men therewith.

16 And Samson said, With the jaw-bone of an ass have I slain a thousand men.

17 And it came to pass, when he had made an end of speaking, that he cast away the jaw-bone out of his hand, and called that place ¹Ramath-lehi.

18 ¶ And ¹he was sore athirst, and called on the LORD, and said, ¹Thou hast given this great deliverance into the hand of thy servant: and now ¹shall I die for thirst, ¹and fall into the hand of ¹the uncircumcised?

19 But God clave an hollow place that ¹was in ¹the jaw, and there came water thereout; and when he had drunk, his spirit came again, and he revived: wherefore he called the name thereof ¹En-hakkore, which ¹is in Lehi unto this day.

20 And he judged Israel in the days of the Philistines twenty years.

9 (Now ¹there were men lying in wait, abiding with her in the chamber.) And she said unto him, The Philistines ¹be upon thee, Samson. And he brake the withs, as a thread of tow is broken when it ¹toucheth the fire: so his strength was not known.

10 And Delilah said unto Samson, Behold, thou hast mocked me, and told me lies: ¹now tell me, I pray thee, where- with thou mightest be bound.

11 And he said unto her, ¹If they bind me fast with new ropes ¹that never were occupied, then shall I be weak, and be as another man.

him was to perish; and it does not appear from the narrative that he was ever even once wounded. The Divine shield was over him, while Divine power was put forth within him. He was less to be viewed as a warrior, than as an agent of direct and terrible destruction. Ver. 9-17. Nothing can shield greatness from envy. The spirit of his own countrymen was wanting in gratitude as well as in patriotism; they meekly complied with the demands of the Philistines for his surrender, and nothing but the power was wanted to execute the will. Their conduct, however, redounded but little to the interests of their enemies the Philistines, while it materially served to illustrate the Divine power, and to promote the Divine glory. The death of a thousand men was a heavy blow to the enemy. Ver. 18-20. While much is said of Samson's strength, we hear but little of his devotional spirit. The present instance, however, necessarily wrung from him a prayer, and that prayer was heard of the Lord, who performed a miracle to meet the necessities of his chosen servant. Not much is said of Samson's wisdom, although he was, doubtless, a man of exalted intelligence; his tenure of judgeship, extending through twenty years, greatly exceeding the average period of the office.

Chap. XVI. 1-20. This part of Samson's history, while it displays power, presents a melancholy picture of his religious character. Forsaking the paths of virtue, he was beset with anares, which ended in the loss of liberty and life. It is humbling to reflect on the conjunction of so much physical strength with so much moral weakness. Here, as in the former case, we have an example of the force of importunity. The cruel woman to whom he had so unworthily given his heart, ceased not till she had got from him his secret; and then she lost no time in converting her knowledge into the means of his destruction! He deliberately pointed out by what means he might be bereft of his strength, and yet he was astonished to find its departure! The state of his mind, at this moment, indicates much moral 13 And Delilah said unto Samson, Hitherto thou hast mocked me, and told me lies: tell me wherewith thou mightest be bound. And he said unto her, If thou weavest the seven locks of my head with the web.

14 And she fastened it with the pin, and said unto him, The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. And he awaked out of his sleep, and went away with the pin of the beam, and with the web.

15 ¶ And she said unto him, How canst thou say, I love thee, when thine heart is not with me? thou hast mocked me these three times, and hast not told me wherein thy great strength lieth.

16 And it came to pass, when she pressed him daily with her words, and urged him, so that his soul was vexed unto death,

17 That he told her all his heart, and said unto her, There hath not come a razor upon mine head; for I have been a Nazarite unto God from my mother's womb: if I be shaven, then my strength will go from me, and I shall become weak, and be like any other man.

18 And when Delilah saw that he had told her all his heart, she sent and called for the lords of the Philistines, saying, Come up this once; for he hath shewed me all his heart. Then the lords of the Philistines came up unto her, and brought money in their hand.

19 And she made him sleep upon her knees: and she called for a man, and she caused him to shave off the seven locks of his head; and she began to afflict him, and his strength went from him.

20 And she said, The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. And he awoke out of his sleep, and said, I will go out, as at other times before, and shake myself. And he wist not that the LORD was departed from him.

21 ¶ But the Philistines took him, and put out his eyes, and brought him down to Gaza, and bound him with fetters of brass; and he did grind in the prison-house.

22 Howbeit the hair of his head began to grow again after he was shaven.

23 ¶ Then the lords of the Philistines gathered them together for to offer a great sacrifice unto Dagon their god, and to rejoice: for they said, Our god hath delivered Samson our enemy unto our hand.

24 And when the people saw him, they praised their god: for they said, Our god hath delivered into our hands our enemy, and the destroyer of our country, which slew many of us.

25 And it came to pass, when their hearts were merry, that they said, Call for Samson, that he may make us sport. And they called for Samson out of the prison-house; and he made them sport: and they set him between the pillars.

26 ¶ And Samson said unto the lad that held him by the hand, Suffer me that I may feel the pillars whereupon the house standeth, that I may lean upon them.

27 Now the house was full of men and women; and all the lords of the Philistines were there: and there were upon the roof about three thousand men and women, that beheld while Samson made sport.

28 And Samson called unto the LORD, and said, O Lord God, remember me, I pray thee, and strengthen me, I pray thee, only this once, O God, that I may be at once avenged of the Philistines for my two eyes.

29 And Samson took hold of the two middle pillars upon which the house stood, and on which it was borne up, of the one with his right hand, and of the other with his left.

30 And Samson said, Let me die with the Philistines. And he bowed himself with all his might; and the house fell upon the lords, and upon all the people that were therein: so the dead which he slew at his death were more than they which he slew in his life.

31 Then his brethren, and all the house of his father, came down, and took him, and brought him up, and buried him between Zorah and Eshtaol, in the burying-place of Manoah his father: and he judged Israel twenty years.

1 Micah restoring the stolen money to his mother, she maketh images. 7 He hireth a Levite to be his priest.

AND there was a man of mount Ephraim, whose name was Micah.

2 And he said unto his mother, The darkness and great confusion, the meet prelude of his overthrow. Ver. 21-31. There was an end to Samson's glory. For the first time, he experienced a power superior to his own; and the terror of the Philistines, now bound in fetters of brass, was treated as a beast of burden! How humbling the position of the strongest of men! How impressive a type of those who, having left their first love, depart from the living God, through an evil heart of unbelief! This was an hour of high triumph for idolatry. The capture of Samson is ascribed to Dagon, the god of the Philistines, who, in gratitude, received a great sacrifice. The picture here presented of idolatrous devotion is very striking. There is about it an intensity and a simplicity which ought to put many disciples of the true faith to shame. He whom they called to make them sport, brought upon them swift destruction. On this occasion, there was a great gathering of the wealth, rank, and power of the Philistines, forming a vast and most select assembly. Samson was, doubtless, divinely moved to the desire he cherished, and the prayers he presented were prompted by the Spirit of the Lord. His last supplication was heard, and the desire of his heart was realised in the overthrow of his own and his country's enemies. The event was one of a most fearful character, filling the land of the Philistines with consternation, and remembered by them with horror for generations. The catastrophe was fraught with melancholy on both sides; and it reflected somewhat of credit on the Philistines, that they suffered the relatives of their destroyer to remove his body for sepulture. The whole history illustrates the injunction: "Let not the wise man glory in his wisdom, neither let the mighty man glory in his might."

CHAPTER XVIII.

1 The Danites send five men to seek out an inheritance. 7 They search Laish, and bring back an encouraging report. 27 They win Laish, and call it Dan.

IN those days there was ^ano king in Israel: and in those days ^bthe tribe of the Danites sought them an inheritance to dwell in; ^cfor unto that day all their inheritance had not fallen unto them among the tribes of Israel.

2 And the children of Dan sent of their family five men from their coasts, ^dmen of valour, from ^eZorah, and from Eshtaol, ^fto spy out the land, and to search it; and they said unto them, Go, search the land: who, when they came to ^gmount Ephraim, to the house of Micah, they lodged there.

3 When they were by the house of Micah, ^hthey knew the voice of the young man the Levite: and they turned in thither, and said unto him, Who brought thee hither? and what makest thou in this place? ⁱand what hast thou here?

4 And he said unto them, Thus and thus dealeth Micah with me, and hath ^jhired me, and I am his priest.

5 And they said unto him, ^kAsk counsel, we pray thee, ^lof God, that we may know whether our way which we go shall be prosperous.

6 And the priest said unto them, ^mGo in peace: ⁿbefore the LORD is your way wherein ye go.

7 ¶ Then the five men departed, and came to ^oLaish, and saw the people that were therein, ^phow they dwelt careless, after the manner of the Zidonians, quiet and secure; and there was no ^qmagistrate in the land, that might put them to shame in any thing; and they were far from the Zidonians, and had no business with any man.

8 And they came unto their brethren to ^rZorah and Eshtaol; and their brethren said unto them, What say ye?

9 And they said, ^sArise, that we may go up against them: for we have seen the land, and behold, it is very good; and ^tare ye still? ^uBe not slothful to go, and to enter to possess the land.

10 When ye go, ye shall come unto a when the subject of the curse affects religion, whether true or false, the enmity is increased. The mother, on recovering the money, dedicated it to idolatry; while she professed to worship the Lord, she was yet intent on the formation of a graven and a molten image,—a sad type of a class who endeavour to serve God and mammon—at the same time to live after the flesh and after the Spirit! This woman was willing to give a large sum in furtherance of her religion. Micah took the matter of worship into his own hands. Despising the Divine model, he framed a scheme for himself. Civil government, even when of an oppressive character, is yet an exceeding great blessing compared with a state of things in which every man does that which is right in his own eyes. Ver. 7-13. Micah, having constituted one of his own sons his priest, appears to have felt the necessity of carrying the matter a little higher, and hence, when a Levite came in his way, he determined to procure his services. The poor man imagined that this would suffice to obtain for him an overflow of heavenly blessings. He was quite certain that the Lord would do him good, seeing he had a Levite to his priest. When people place their confidence, not in the Saviour, but in his servants, they will find themselves to have forsaken the fountain of living waters, and to have hewn out to themselves cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water. Forms of religion are good, if used simply as channels for Divine communication; but if they be converted into an end instead of a means, the result will be disaster to the erring worshipper. Everything is to be valued only as it leads to the Lord Jesus, out of whose fulness it is the privilege of his people to receive grace for grace.

Chap. XVIII. 1-13. The tribe of Dan were highly culpable for their negligence to possess themselves of their allotted territory. After three hundred years had passed away, they were still, in a great measure, confined to the mountains; while the Amorites occupied the plains, the fine, fat land, adapted alike to agriculture and to pasturage. At length a fit of activity and of people secure, and to a large land: for God hath given it into your hands; a place ^{where there is no want of any thing that is in the earth.}

11 ¶ And there went from thence of the family of the Danites, out of Zorah, and out of Eshtaol, six hundred men appointed with weapons of war.

12 And they went up, and pitched in Kirjath-jearim, in Judah: wherefore they called that place Mahaneh-dan unto this day; behold, it is behind Kirjath-jearim.

13 And they passed thence unto mount Ephraim, and came unto the house of Micah.

14 ¶ Then answered the five men that went to spy out the country of Laish, and said unto their brethren, Do ye know that there is in these houses an ephod, and teraphim, and a graven image, and a molten image? now therefore consider what ye have to do.

15 And they turned thitherward, and came to the house of the young man the Levite, even unto the house of Micah, and saluted him.

16 And the six hundred men appointed with their weapons of war, which were of the children of Dan, stood by the entering of the gate.

17 And the five men that went to spy out the land went up, and came in thither, and took the graven image, and the ephod, and the teraphim, and the molten image: and the priest stood in the entering of the gate, with the six hundred men that were appointed with weapons of war.

18 And these went into Micah's house, and fetched the carved image, the ephod, and the teraphim, and the molten image: then said the priest unto them, What do ye?

19 And they said unto him, Hold thy peace, lay thine hand upon thy mouth, and go with us, and be to us a father and a priest: is it better for thee to be a priest unto the house of one man, or that thou be a priest unto a tribe and a family in Israel?

20 And the priest's heart was glad; and he took the ephod, and the teraphim, and the graven image, and went in the midst of the people.

21 So they turned and departed, and put the little ones, and the cattle, and the carriage, before them.

ambition seemed to seize them, which led to the appointment of a commission to spy out the land. This unlooked-for event turned the Levite into the instrument of mischief to Micah, and to the loss of his idols. Every idol at last must perish; and he is happiest who is first robbed of them, and thereby brought, "in spirit and in truth" to worship the living and true God. Ver. 14-30. The Danites too much resembled Micah. They also, notwithstanding their idolatry, were anxious for a priest to go before them, and to be their guide; and they found in the Levite a man suited to their purpose. No sooner was he called than, with gladness of heart, he took the ephod, and the teraphim, and the graven image, and went in the midst of the people. Poor Micah! He deemed himself undone when he discovered his loss: "Ye have taken away my gods, which I made, and the priest, and ye are gone away, and what have I more?"

22 ¶ And when they were a good way from the house of Micah, the men that were in the houses near to Micah's house were gathered together, and overtook the children of Dan.

23 And they cried unto the children of Dan: and they turned their faces, and said unto Micah, What aileth thee, that thou comest with such a company?

24 And he said, Ye have taken away my gods which I made, and the priest, and ye are gone away; and what have I more? and what is this that ye say unto me, What aileth thee?

25 And the children of Dan said unto him, Let not thy voice be heard among us, lest angry fellows run upon thee, and thou lose thy life, with the lives of thy household.

26 And the children of Dan went their way; and when Micah saw that they were too strong for him, he turned and went back unto his house.

27 ¶ And they took the things which Micah had made, and the priest which he had, and came unto Laish, unto a people that were at quiet and secure: and they smote them with the edge of the sword, and burnt the city with fire.

28 And there was no deliverer, because it was far from Zidon, and they had no business with any man; and it was in the valley that lieth by Beth-rehob: and they built a city, and dwelt therein.

29 And they called the name of the city Dan, after the name of Dan their father, who was born unto Israel: howbeit the name of the city was Laish at the first.

30 ¶ And the children of Dan set up the graven image: and Jonathan, the son of Gershom, the son of Manasseh, he and his sons were priests to the tribe of Dan until the day of the captivity of the land.

31 And they set them up Micah's graven image, which he made, all the time that the house of God was in Shiloh.

CHAPTER XIX.

1 A Levite going to Beth-lehem to fetch his wife, 16 an old man entertaineth him at Gibeath. 22 The Gibeathites abuse his concubine to death.

AND it came to pass in those days, when there was no king in Israel, that there was a certain Levite sojourning on the side of mount Ephraim, who took to him a concubine out of Beth-lehem-judah.

Unhappy man! he had little when he had all that he had lost. They who make this world their idol, however large their share of it, are objects of pity in the midst of their wealth; and when that wealth is taken from them, they are poor indeed! Although Micah himself no longer bowed down to his graven image, yet it became an object of idolatry all the time that the house of God was in Shiloh. It is sad when men, in their life-time, are the promoters of wickedness; but when the deeds they do are productive of iniquity in generations to come, their guilt is to that extent aggravated.

Chap. XIX. 1-28. A concubine was a wife of the second class, not espoused with the same solemnities or doweries as those properly called wives. The concubine, as in the case here mentioned, might, however, be the

2 And his concubine ^aplayed the whore against him, and went away from him unto her father's house to Beth-lehem-judah, and was there ^bfour whole months.

3 And her husband arose, and ^cwent after her, to ^d'speak ^efriendly unto her, and to bring her again, having ^fhis servant with him, and a couple of asses: and she brought him into her father's house; and when the father of the damsel saw him, he rejoiced to meet him.

4 And his father-in-law, the damsel's father, retained him; and he abode with him three days: so they did eat and drink, and lodged there.

5 And it came to pass on the fourth day, when they arose early in the morning, that he rose up to depart: and the damsel's father said unto his son-in-law, ^g'Comfort thine heart ^hwith a morsel of bread, and afterward go your way.

6 And they sat down, and did eat and drink both of them together: for the damsel's father had said unto the man, Be content, I pray thee, and tarry all night, and ⁱlet thine heart be merry.

7 And when the man rose up to depart, his father-in-law urged him; therefore he lodged there again.

8 And he arose early in the morning on the fifth day to depart: and the damsel's father said, Comfort thine heart, I pray thee. And they tarried ^juntil afternoon, and they did eat both of them.

9 And when the man rose up to depart, he, and his concubine, and his servant, his father-in-law, the damsel's father, said unto him, Behold, now the day ^k'draweth toward evening, I pray you tarry all night: behold, the ^l'day groweth to an end; lodge here, that thine heart may be merry; and ^m'to-morrow get you early on your way, that thou mayest go ⁿhome.

10 But the man would not tarry that night, but he rose up and departed, and came ^oover against ^pJebus, (which is Jerusalem,) and ^qthere were with him two asses saddled; his concubine also ^rwas with him.

11 And when they were by Jebus, the day was far spent; and the servant said unto his master, Come, I pray thee, and let us turn in into this city of ^sthe Jebusites, and lodge in it.

12 And his master said unto him, We will not turn aside hither into the city of a stranger, that is not of the children of Israel; we will pass over to Gibeah.

13 And he said unto his servant, Come, and let us draw near to one of these places to lodge all night, in ^cGibeah, or in Ramah.

14 And they passed on, and went their way; and the sun went down upon them ^dwhen they were by Gibeah, which ^ebelongeth to Benjamin.

15 And they turned aside thither, to go in ^fand to lodge in Gibeah: and when he went in, he sat him down in a street of the city; for ^gthere was ^h'no man that took them into his house to lodging.

16 ¶ And, behold, there came an old man from ⁱhis work out of the field at even, which ^jwas also of mount Ephraim; and he sojourned in Gibeah: but the men of the place ^kwere Benjamites.

17 And when he had lifted up his eyes, he saw a wayfaring man in the street of the city: and the old man said, ^l'Whither goest thou? and whence comest thou?

18 And he said unto him, We are passing from Beth-lehem-judah toward the side of mount Ephraim; from thence ^mam I: and I went to Beth-lehem-judah, but I ⁿam now going to ^o'the house of the LORD; and there ^pis no man that ^q'receiveth me to house.

19 Yet there is both straw and provender for our asses; and there is bread and wine also for me, and for thy handmaid, and for the young man ^rwhich is with thy servants; ^sthere is no want of any thing.

20 And the old man said, ^t'Peace be with thee: howsoever, ^u'let all thy wants ^vlie upon me; only ^w'lodge not in the street.

21 So he brought him into his house, and gave provender unto the asses: and ^x'they washed their feet, and did eat and drink.

22 ¶ Now, as they were making their hearts merry, behold, ^y'the men of the city, certain ^z'sons of Belial, beset the house round about, and beat at the door, and spake to the master of the house, the old man, saying, ^{aa}'Bring forth the man that came into thine house, that we may know him.

23 And ^{ab}'the man, the master of the house, went out unto them, and said unto them, Nay, my brethren, ^{ac}nay, I pray you, do not ^{ad}so wickedly; seeing that this man is come into mine house, ^{ae}'do not this folly.

24 Behold, ^{af}here is my daughter, a maiden, and his concubine; ^{ag}'them I will bring out now, and ^{ah}'humble ye them, and do with them what seemeth good unto you: but unto this man do not ^{ai}'so vile a thing.

only wife, as well as additional to a superior. The woman referred to in the text, there is reason to believe, was not guilty of the crime which the term applied to her would indicate. Diverse ancient versions of the Scriptures represent her as angry with him, and as having left him. Had she been guilty of the crime here specified, she would have been liable to punishment, whereas the Levite, going to seek a reconciliation, implies, that she had simply been alienated. Her husband went to "speak kindly unto her, and to bring her again." Her father conducted himself towards his son-in-law with great affection and overflowing generosity, expressive alike of confidence and interest, Ver. 29, 30. The conduct of the men of Gibeon is too horrible for comment; the simple recital makes the reader shudder! The deportment of the old man is beautifully illustrative of the hospitality of early times. Little thought he that his kindness would be the occasion of so much cruelty and criminality. The Levite went about the matter with a calmness and a dignity, which indicated him to be no common man. He was deeply conversant with the workings of human nature—a master in the science of public agitation. The course pursued aroused the land through all its borders. The thoughtfulness in which it 25 But the men would not hearken to him: so the man took his concubine, and brought her forth unto them; and they ¹knew her, ²and abused her all the night until the morning: and when the day began to spring, they let her go.

26 Then came the woman in the dawning of the day, and fell down at the door of the man's house where ³her lord was, till it was light.

27 And her lord rose up in the morning, and opened the doors of the house, and went out to go his way; and, behold, the woman his concubine was fallen down at the door of the house, and her hands were upon the threshold.

28 And he said unto her, Up, and let us be going: ¹but none answered. Then the man took her up upon an ass, and the man rose up, and gat him unto his place.

29 ¶ And when he was come into his house, he took a knife, and laid hold on his concubine, and ²divided her, together ¹with her bones, into twelve pieces, and sent her into all the coasts of Israel.

30 And it was so, that all that saw it said, There was no such deed done nor seen from the day that the children of Israel came up out of the land of Egypt unto this day: ³consider of it, take advice, and speak your minds.

THEN ¹all the children of Israel went out, and the congregation was gathered together ²as one man, ³from Dan

2 And the chief of all the people, even of all the tribes of Israel, presented themselves in the assembly of the people of God, four hundred thousand footmen that ⁷drew sword.

3 (Now ⁸the children of Benjamin heard that the children of Israel were gone up to Mizpeh.) Then said the children of Israel, Tell us, how was this wickedness?

4 And ¹the Levite, the husband of the woman that was slain, answered and said, ²I came into Gibeah that belongeth to
Benjamin, I and my concubine, to lodge.

5 And the men of Gibeah rose against me, and ³beset the house round about ⁴forced, that she is dead.

6 And I took my concubine, and ¹cut her in pieces, and sent her throughout all the country of the inheritance of Israel:
for they have committed lewdness and ²folly in Israel.

7 Behold, ¹ye are all children of Israel;
²give here your advice and counsel.

8 ¶ And all the people arose ³as one man, saying, ⁴We will not any of us go to his tent, neither will we any of us turn into his house:

9 But now, this shall be the thing which we will do to Gibeah; we will go up ⁵by lot against it;

10 And we will take ten men of an hundred throughout all the tribes of Israel, and an hundred of a thousand, and a thousand out of ten thousand, to fetch victual for the people, that they may do, when they come to Gibeah of Benjamin, according to all the folly that they have wrought in Israel.

11 So all the men of Israel were gathered against the city, ⁶knit together as one man.

12 ¶ And the tribes of Israel ⁷sent men through all the tribe of Benjamin, saying,
What wickedness is this that is done among you?

13 Now therefore ⁸deliver us the men,
⁹the children of Belial, which are in Gibeah, that we may put them to death, and ¹⁰put away evil from Israel. But the children of Benjamin ¹¹would not hearken to the voice of their brethren the children of Israel:

14 But the children of Benjamin gathered themselves together out of the cities unto Gibeah, ¹²to go out to battle against the children of Israel.

15 And the children of Benjamin were numbered at that time, out of the cities, ¹³twenty and six thousand men that drew sword, besides the inhabitants of Gibeah, which were numbered seven hundred chosen men.

16 Among all this people there were seven hundred chosen men ¹⁴left-handed; every one could ¹⁵sling stones at an hair-breadth, and not miss.

17 And the men of Israel, besides Benjamin, were numbered ¹⁶four hundred thousand men that drew sword: all these were men of war.

18 ¶ And the children of Israel arose, and went up to the ¹⁷house of God, and ¹⁸asked counsel of God, and said, Which of us shall go up first to the battle against the children of Benjamin? And the LORD said, ¹⁹Judah shall go up first.

19 And the children of Israel ²⁰rose up in the morning, and encamped against Gibeah.

20 And the men of Israel went out to battle against Benjamin; and the men of Israel put themselves in array to fight against them at Gibeah.

originated, characterised the tribes to whom it was sent. There was an awful emphasis in the mutual exhortation, "Consider of it, take advice, and speak your minds." They both spake and acted, and terrible was the vengeance inflicted on the evil doers.

Chap. XX. 1-17. So great was the excitement, that the enormous host of 400,000 footmen, that drew the sword, came together, demanding of the Levite how the wickedness through which his wife perished came to pass. His speech was brief and moderate, but firm and stimulating. How skilfully he appeals to their principles, and their honour, when he says, "Behold, ye are all children of Israel; give your advice and counsel." Great bodies are never moved so powerfully as when they are self-moved. This man impelled with terrific force, by 21 And ¹the children of Benjamin came forth out of Gibeah, and ²destroyed down to the ground of the Israelites that day twenty and two thousand men.

22 ¹And the people, the men of Israel, ¹encouraged themselves, and set their battle again in array, in the place where they put themselves in array the first day.

23 (And the children of Israel went up and ^mwept before the LORD until even, and asked counsel of the LORD, saying, Shall I go up again to battle against the children of Benjamin my brother? And the LORD said, Go up against him.)

24 And the children of Israel came near against the children of Benjamin the second day.

25 And Benjamin went forth against them out of Gibeah the second day, and ²destroyed down to the ground of the children of Israel again eighteen thousand men; all these drew the sword.

26 ¹Then all the children of Israel, and all the people, went up, and came unto the house of God, and ^owept, and sat there before the LORD, and fasted that day until even, and offered burnt-offerings and peace-offerings before the LORD.

27 And the children of Israel ^penquired of the LORD, (for ^qthe ark of the covenant of God was there in those days;

28 And ^rPhinehas, the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron, ^tstood before it in those days,) saying, 'Shall I yet again go out to battle against the children of Benjamin my brother, or shall I cease? And the LORD said, ^uGo up; for to-morrow I will deliver them into thine hand.

29 ¹And Israel set ^vliers in wait round about Gibeah.

30 And the children of Israel went up against the children of Benjamin on the third day, and put themselves in array against Gibeah, as at other times.

31 And the children of Benjamin went out against the people, and were ^wdrawn away from the city; and they began to ^xsmite of the people, and kill, as at other times, in the highways, of which one goeth up to ^ythe house of God, and the other to ^zGibeah in the field, about ³thirty men of Israel.

32 And the children of Benjamin said, They are smitten down before us, as at the first. But the children of Israel said, ^bLet us flee, and draw them from the city unto the highways.

33 And all the men of Israel ^crose up out of their place, and put themselves in array at Baal-tamar; and the liers in wait of Israel came forth out of their places, even out of the meadows of Gibeah.

34 And there came against Gibeah ⁴ten thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and the battle was sore: but they ⁵knew not that evil was near them.

35 And the LORD smote Benjamin before Israel: and the children of Israel destroyed of the Benjamites that day ⁶twenty and five thousand and an hundred men: all these drew the sword.

36 So the children of Benjamin saw that they were smitten: ⁷for the men of Israel gave place to the Benjamites, because they trusted unto the liers in wait which they had set beside Gibeah.

37 And ⁸the liers in wait ^{hasted}, and rushed upon Gibeah; and the liers in wait ⁹drew themselves along, and smote all the city with the edge of the sword.

38 Now there was an appointed ¹⁰sign between the men of Israel ¹¹and the liers in wait, that they should make a great ¹²flame with smoke to rise up out of the city.

39 And ¹³when the men of Israel retired in the battle, Benjamin began to ¹⁴smite and kill of the men of Israel about thirty persons; for they said, Surely they are smitten down before us, as in the first battle.

40 But when the flame began to arise up out of the city with ¹⁵a pillar of smoke, the Benjamites ¹⁶looked behind them, and, behold, the ¹⁷flame of the city ascended up to heaven.

41 And when the men of Israel turned again, the men of Benjamin ¹⁸were amazed: for they saw that evil was ¹⁹come upon them.

42 Therefore they turned their backs before the men of Israel unto the way of the wilderness; but ²⁰the battle overtook them; and them which came out of the cities they destroyed in the midst of them.

43 Thus they ²¹inclosed the Benjamites round about, and chased them, and trode them down ²²with ease ²³over against Gibeah toward the sun-rising.

44 And there fell of Benjamin eighteen thousand men: all these were men of valour.

45 And they turned and fled toward the wilderness unto the rock of ²⁴Rimmon: and they gleaned of them in the highways five thousand men; and pursued hard after them unto Gidom, and slew two thousand men of them.

46 So that all which fell that day of Benjamin were twenty and five thousand simply submitting the case. The facts were of such a nature as to rouse the spirit of the people. The aggravations of eloquence were not necessary. The unity bespoke the conviction, and foreshadowed the fearful effects of the conflict that was to follow. "All the men of Israel, knit together as one man," became a great, a most powerful host. With what rapidity the work of God will spread, when this oneness shall distinguish his people! Ver. 18-25. The people were careful to ask counsel of God respecting the conduct of the battle. The Benjamites, instead of humbling themselves, and making confession of their crime, defended the deed, and dared the embattled host of their offended brethren. It is not a little remarkable, that they succeeded in two battles to overthrow the collective force of Israel, and to slay no fewer than 40,000 men. This frightful success, doubtless, was a ground of boasting with them. From their victory they might be led to believe, that the Lord was on their side. But it is dangerous to judge by appearances; he was against them, and his wrath was forth-men that drew the sword; all these were men of valour.

47 But ^asix hundred men turned and fled to the wilderness unto the rock Rimmon, and abode in the rock Rimmon four months.

48 And the men of Israel turned again upon the children of Benjamin, and ^asmote them with the edge of the sword, as well the men of every city, as the beast, and all that ^acame to hand: also they set on fire all the cities that ^athey came to.

CHAPTER XXI.

¹ The people bewail the desolation of Benjamin. ¹⁶ The elders advise the Benjamites to seize on the virgins that danced at Shiloh.

NOW the men of Israel ^ahad sworn in Mizpeh, saying, ^bThere shall not any of us give ^chis daughter unto Benjamin to wife.

2 And the people came to ^athe house of God, and abode there till even before God, and ^alifted up their voices, and wept sore;

3 And said, O LORD God of Israel, ^awhy is this come to pass in Israel, that there should be to-day one tribe lacking in Israel?

4 And it came to pass on the morrow, that the people ^arose early, and ^bbuilt there an altar, and offered burnt-offerings and peace-offerings.

5 And the children of Israel said, Who is there among all the tribes of Israel that came not up with the congregation unto the LORD? For they had made ^aa great oath concerning him that came not up to the LORD to Mizpeh, saying, He shall surely be put to death.

6 And the children of Israel ^arepented them for Benjamin their brother, and said, There is one tribe cut off from Israel this day.

7 How shall we do for wives for them that remain, seeing we have ^asworn by the LORD, that we will not give them of our daughters to wives?

8 ¶ And they said, What one is there of the tribes of Israel that came not up to Mizpeh to the LORD? And, behold, there came none to the camp from ^aJabesh-gilead to the assembly.

9 For the people were numbered, and, behold, there were none of the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead there.

with the edge of the sword, with the women and the children.

11 And this is the thing that ye shall do, Ye shall utterly destroy ^aevery male, and every woman that ^ahath lain by man.

12 And they found among the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead four hundred young ^avirgins, that had known no man by lying with any male; and they brought them unto the camp to ^aShiloh, which is in the land of Canaan.

13 And the whole congregation sent ^asome to ^aspeak to the children of Benjamin that were in ^athe rock Rimmon, and to ^acall peaceably unto them.

14 And Benjamin came again at that time; and they gave them wives which they had saved alive of the women of Jabesh-gilead; and yet so ^athey sufficed them not.

15 And the people ^arepented them for Benjamin, because that the LORD had made a breach in the tribes of Israel.

16 ¶ Then the elders of the congregation said, How shall we do for wives for them that remain, seeing the women are destroyed out of Benjamin?

17 And they said, There must be ^aan inheritance for them that be escaped of Benjamin, that a tribe be not destroyed out of Israel.

18 Howbeit we may not give them wives of our daughters: for the children of Israel have ^asworn, saying, Cursed be he that giveth a wife to Benjamin.

19 Then they said, Behold, there is ^aa feast of the LORD in Shiloh ^ayearly, in ^aa place which is ^aon the north side of Beth-el, on the east side ^aof the highway that goeth up from Beth-el to Shechem, and on the south of Lebonah.

20 Therefore they commanded the children of Benjamin, saying, Go and lie in wait in the vineyards;

21 And see, and, behold, if the daughters of Shiloh come out to ^adance in dances, then come ye out of the vineyards, and catch ye every man his wife of the daughters of Shiloh, and go to the land of Benjamin.

22 And it shall be, when their fathers or their brethren come unto us to complain, that we will say unto them, ^aBe favourable unto them for our sakes; because we reserved not to ^aeach man his wife in the war: for ye did not ^agive unto them at this time, that ye should be guilty.

with to be poured out to the uttermost. The slaughter, in one day, of more than 25,000 men bespoke his indignation, and constituted the penalty they were called to pay for abetting and defending so grievous an abomination.

Chap. XXI. 1-15. Even ancient history presents few spectacles more terrible than those set forth in the foregoing chapter, in which we behold nearly 70,000 brethren, descendants of Abraham, mutually slaughtered! In this we see the full development of the crime of a set of men, "sons of Belial," who, under a well-constituted government, would have been visited with appropriate punishment, which would have terminated the matter. Sorrow followed slaughter, desolation wrought compassion, and means were devised for obviating the results of a rash oath. The hand of the Most High is here clearly recognised as punishing the evil doers through the instrumentality of the rest of the tribes, who, themselves, were chastised in the very act of chastisement. Ver. 16-25. The expedients devised for recruiting the wasted tribes were successful. At this time polygamy was not generally practised, and provision was made for the allotment of only one wife to each of the survivors. The history of this lamentable transaction reflects nothing but discredit on the Benjamites; and the other tribes 23 And the children of Benjamin did so, and took them wives, according to their number, of them that danced, whom they caught: and they went and returned unto their inheritance, and repaired the cities, and dwelt in them.

THE BOOK OF RUTH.

The name of this Book is derived from its principal subject. There seems reason to believe that the events here recorded took place in the time of the Judges. Josephus, indeed, thinks it was under the government of Eli; but that cannot be, since it is much too late for Boaz, the grandfather of Jesse, the father of King David. It is much more probably assigned to the Judgeship of Gideon. The chief value of the Book is its bearing on the genealogy of Christ; and thus viewed, it held forth hope for the Gentiles, inasmuch as Ruth, the Moabitess, was one of their number. The Book is particularly valuable for the lovely portrait it presents of ancient manners, and the illustration it furnishes of the law of redemption.

CHAPTER I.

1 Elimelech driven by famine into Moab, dieth there.
6 Naomi returning home, 14 Ruth accompanieth her.

NOW it came to pass, in the days when ^athe judges ¹ruled, that there was ^ba famine in the land: and a certain man of ^cBeth-lehem-judah went to sojourn in the country of Moab, he, and his wife, and his two sons.

2 And the name of the man was Elimelech, and the name of his wife ^dNaomi, and the name of his two sons Mahlon and Chilion, ^eEphrathites of Beth-lehem-judah: and they came into the country of Moab, and ²continued there.

3 And Elimelech, Naomi's husband, died; ^fand she was left, and her two sons.

4 And they took them ^gwives of the women of Moab; the name of the one was Orpah, and the name of the other ^hRuth: and they dwelt there about ten years.

5 And ⁱMahlon and Chilion died also both of them; ^kand the woman was left of her two sons and her husband.

6 ¶ Then she arose with her daughters-in-law, that she might return from the country of Moab: for she had heard in the country of Moab how that the LORD had ^lvisited his people ^min giving them bread.

7 Wherefore ^ashe went forth out of the place where she was, and her two daughters-in-law with her; and ^bthey went on the way to return unto the land of Judah.

8 And Naomi said unto her two daughters-in-law, ^cGo, return each to her mother's house: ^dthe LORD deal kindly with you, as ye have dealt with ^ethe dead, and with me.

9 The LORD grant you that ye may find ^frest, each of you in the house of her husband. Then ^gshe kissed them: and they lifted up their voice, and wept.

10 And they said unto her, ^hSurely we will return with thee unto thy people.

11 And Naomi said, Turn again, my daughters; why will ye go with me? are there yet ⁱany more sons in my womb, ^jthat they may be your husbands?

12 Turn again, my daughters; go your way; for I am ^ktoo old to have an husband. If I should say, I have hope, ^lif ^mI should have an husband also to-night, and should also bear sons, clearly prosecuted the matter to extremities. Strife is never so bitter as amongst brethren. Neighbours are the most fierce and inveterate of all enemies. The very reverse of this, however, ought to be the fact, and would, were men the subjects of a right mind, "loving as brethren, pitiful and courteous."

Chap. I. 1-18. The occasional famines which occurred in Old Testament history were attended with important events to the children of Israel. But for the famine mentioned here, there is no probability that Ruth would have ever been united to the people of God, and have shared the honour of constituting a link in the genealogy of Christ. The sons of Naomi were placed in peculiar circumstances. There being none of their own people in the land of Moab, a marriage union could only be effected with the inhabitants of the country. If these were proselytes, there was no sin in such a connexion: otherwise, it was a transgression of the express command of Moses. From what occurs in ver. 16, it seems highly probable that they neither were, nor professed to be, believers in the God of Abraham. Some commentators, indeed, hold that both were proselytes, and that Orpah was an apostate; but for this there is no authority. There is something remarkable in the fact that both the husbands soon died, and both without families. Nor is this all; both these young women appear to have been fatherless, for Naomi, addressing them, exhorted them to return, each to her mother's house. We have here, then, no fewer than five widows! There is something both pathetic and lovely in the prayer with which the venerable Naomi endeavoured to dismiss her daughters, "The Lord deal kindly with you, as ye have dealt with the dead, and with me!" This is a noble testimony to the spirit and conduct of these youthful widows. Well it is when a mother-in-law is in a position to pay such a tribute to her bereaved daughters! Naomi, like Jacob, thought these events were adverse to both her and them, from the pitiful words, "The hand of the Lord is gone out against me." It was not so; but for this widowhood there is no probability that Naomi, with her daughter Ruth, would have returned to the land of Israel, where so much comfort, honour, and privilege awaited them. Nothing was destined for Orpah, and 14 And they lifted up their voice, and wept again: and ^aOrpah kissed her mother-in-law; but ^bRuth clave unto her.

15 And she said, Behold, thy sister-in-law ^cis gone back unto her people, and unto ^dher gods: ^ereturn thou after thy sister-in-law.

16 And Ruth said, ^fEntreat me not ^gto leave thee, or to return from following after thee: for ^hwhither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge: ⁱthy people ^jshall be my people, and ^kthy God my God.

17 Where thou diest, will I die, and there will I be buried: ^lthe LORD do so to me, and more also, if ^mought ⁿbut death part thee and me.

18 ^oWhen she saw that she ^pwas ^qstedfastly minded to go with her, then she left speaking unto her.

19 ^rSo they two went until they came to Beth-lehem. And it came to pass, when they were come to Beth-lehem, that ^sall the city was moved about them; and they said, ^tIs this Naomi?

20 And she said unto them, Call me not ^uNaomi, call me ^vMara: for ^wthe Almighty hath ^xdealt very bitterly with me.

21 I went out full, ^yand the LORD hath brought me home again empty: why ^zthen call ye me Naomi, seeing ^{aa}the LORD hath testified against me, and the Almighty hath afflicted me?

22 So Naomi returned, and Ruth the Moabitess, her daughter-in-law, with her, which returned out of the country of Moab: and they came to Beth-lehem in ^{ab}the beginning of barley-harvest.

¹hap was to light on a part of the field belonging unto Boaz, who was of the kindred of Elimelech.

4 ^rAnd, behold, Boaz came from Beth-lehem, and said unto the reapers, ^sThe LORD be with you. ^tAnd they answered him, The LORD bless thee.

5 Then said ^uBoaz unto his servant that was set over the reapers, Whose damsel is this?

6 And ^vthe servant that was set over the reapers answered and said, ^wIt is the Moabitish damsel that came back with Naomi out of the country of Moab:

7 And she said, ^xI pray you, let me glean and gather after the reapers among the sheaves: so she came, and hath ^ycontinued even from the morning until now, that she tarried a little in the house.

8 Then said Boaz unto Ruth, Hearst thou not, ^zmy daughter? Go not to glean in another field, neither go from hence, but ^{aa}abide here fast by my maidens.

9 ^{ab}Let thine eyes be on the field that they do reap, and go thou after them: have I not charged the young men that they shall not ^{ac}touch thee? and when thou art athirst, ^{ad}go unto the vessels, and drink of ^{ae}that which the young men have drawn.

10 Then she ^{af}fell on her face, and bowed herself to the ground, and said unto him, ^{ag}Why have I found grace in thine eyes, that thou shouldst take knowledge of me, ^{ah}seeing I am a stranger?

11 And Boaz answered and said unto her, It hath fully been shewed me ^{ai}all that thou hast done unto thy mother-in-law since the death of thine husband; and ^{aj}how ^{ak}thou hast left thy father and thy mother, and the land of thy nativity, and art come unto a people which thou knewest not heretofore.

12 The LORD ^{al}recompense thy work, and a full reward be given thee of the LORD God of Israel, under whose ^{am}wings thou art come to trust.

13 Then she said, ^{an}Let me find favour in thy sight, ^{ao}for that thou hast comforted me, and for that thou hast spoken ^{ap}friendly unto thine handmaid, though I be ^{aq}not like unto one of thine handmaidens.

hence she was left to return to her "people and her gods;" but the heart of Ruth was touched, and her mind illumined by the Spirit of God: her declaration, as contained in ver. 16 and 17, is one of the finest things on record. Naomi clearly saw that God had taught her; and hence she desisted in her endeavours to send her back. Ver. 19-22. The return of the poor widow was a great event among her old friends; but the question prompted by her altered appearance and desolate condition stung her, and the spirit she manifests is defective in meek humility and devout submission. In this respect she is not to be imitated; when afflictions do not subdue, they exasperate, and instead of drawing the soul nearer to God, they tend to drive it to a greater distance. Against a result so unhappy it becomes the child of God to watch and pray.

be exalted." Ruth condescended, for the support of Naomi and herself, to glean, and without knowing it, she was conducted by the hand of God to the field of Boaz, the first step in her exaltation. How attractive the spectacle of him and his reapers! Nowhere have we so fine an example of the simplicity and friendliness which characterised society in that early day. How surprised would people be now to find a great farmer addressing his reapers with kindly accent and benevolent look, "The Lord be with you!" and to hear them affectionately responding, "The Lord bless thee!" This is true moral beauty, presenting an affecting contrast to the cold air and supercilious reserve, which but too frequently, now-a-days, appear on the one side, and the heartless indifference and repulsive selfishness to be found on the other. The conduct of Boaz towards the humble stranger reflects on his character the highest credit. Nothing can be more amiable than his benevo-

14 And Boaz said unto her, ^bAt meal-time come thou hither, and eat of the bread, and dip thy morsel in the vinegar. And she sat beside the reapers: and he reached her ^cparched corn, and ^dshe did eat, and was sufficed, and left.

15 And when she was risen up to glean, Boaz commanded his young men, saying, Let her glean even among the sheaves, and ^ereproach her not:

16 And ^flet fall also some of the handfuls of purpose for her, and leave them, that she may glean them, and rebuke her not.

17 So ^gshe gleaned in the field until even, and beat out that she had gleaned: and it was about an ^hephah of barley.

18 ⁱ¶ And she took it up, and went into the city; and her mother-in-law saw what she had gleaned: and she brought forth, and gave to her that ^jshe had reserved after she was sufficed.

19 And her mother-in-law said unto her, Where hast thou gleaned to-day? and where wroughtest thou? ^kBlessed be he that did take knowledge of thee. And she shewed her mother-in-law with whom she had wrought, and said, The man's name with whom I wrought to-day is ^lBoaz.

20 And Naomi said unto her daughter-in-law, ^mBlessed be he of the LORD, who ⁿhath not left off his kindness to the living and to the dead. And Naomi said unto her, The man is near of kin unto us, ^oone of our next kinsmen.

21 And Ruth the Moabitess said, He said unto me also, ^pThou shalt keep fast by my young men, until they have ended all my harvest.

22 And Naomi said unto Ruth her daughter-in-law, ^qIt is good, my daughter, that thou go out with his maidens, that they ^rmeet thee not in any other field.

23 So she ^skept fast by the maidens of Boaz to glean unto the end of barley-harvest, and of wheat-harvest; and dwelt with her mother-in-law.

CHAPTER III.

1 By Naomi's instruction, Ruth lieth at Boaz's feet.
8 Boaz acknowledgeth the right of a kinsman.

THEN Naomi her mother-in-law said unto her, My daughter, ^tshall I not seek rest for thee, that it ^umay be well with thee?

2 And now ^vis not Boaz of our kindred, with whose maidens thou wast? Behold, lence towards her. The manner in which she acknowledged his bounty likewise illustrates the excellence of her own spirit. Seldom have gratitude and humility been more sweetly blended. Ver. 18-23. The piety of Naomi was exemplified in her observations on the success of the gleaner. She received the kindness of Boaz as from the hand of the Lord. As a loving parent she was a wise counsellor, and Ruth was prompt to obey her prudent suggestions. Boaz, Ruth, and Naomi, each in their own sphere, present examples of spirit and deportment worthy of imitation.

Chap. III. 1-18. Naomi was a discreet, far-seeing woman, and a wise teacher; and Ruth was a docile pupil.

he winnoweth barley to-night in the thrashing-floor.

3 Wash thyself therefore, and ^canoint thee, and ^dput thy raiment upon thee, and get thee down to the floor: but make not thyself known unto the man, until he shall have done eating and drinking.

4 And it shall be, when he lieth down, that thou shalt mark the place where he shall lie, and thou shalt go in, and ^euncover his feet, and lay thee down; and he will tell thee what thou shalt do.

5 And she said unto her, All that thou sayest unto me I will do.

6 ^f¶ And she went down unto the floor, and did according to all that her mother-in-law bade her.

7 And when Boaz had eaten and drunk, and ^ghis heart was merry, he went to lie down at the end of the heap of corn; and she came softly, and uncovered his feet, and laid her down.

8 And it came to pass at midnight, that the man was afraid, and ^hturned himself; and, behold, a woman lay at his feet.

9 And he said, Who art thou? And she answered, I am ⁱRuth thine handmaid: ^jspread therefore thy skirt over thine handmaid; for thou art ^ka near kinsman.

14 ^v¶ And she lay at his feet until the morning: and she rose up before one could know another. And he said, ^wLet it not be known that a woman came into the floor.

15 Also he said, Bring the ^xvail that

The thrashing operations of those countries were conducted in the open field, where the wind, freely blowing, might be made available for separating the chaff from the wheat. In Eastern countries, this process is largely carried on in the night season, to avoid the injurious effects of a burning sun. In those days, flails would not seem to have been introduced for thrashing, nor fans for winnowing. Everything presented the most simple and elementary aspect. The mode of sleeping was, and still is, in keeping with it. They do not repose upon featherbeds, placed on wooden frames, as is the custom amongst us; they do not even undress, but merely unwrap themselves, and lie down on a mattress, or it may be on the floor, or the field. Ruth, by uncovering the feet of Boaz, thou hast upon thee, and hold it. And when she held it, ¹he measured six measures of barley, and laid it on her: and she went into the city.

16 And when she came to her mother-in-law, she said, Who art thou, my daughter? And she told her all that the man had done to her.

17 And she said, These six measures of barley gave he me; for he said to me, Go not empty unto thy mother-in-law.

18 Then said she, ²Sit still, my daughter, until thou know how the matter will fall: for the man will not be in rest until he have finished the thing this day.

CHAPTER IV.

¹ Boaz calleth into judgment the next kinsman. ⁶ He refusing the redemption, ¹⁰ Boaz marrieth Ruth.

THEN went Boaz up ^ato the gate, and sat him down there: and, behold, ^bthe kinsman of whom Boaz spake came by; unto whom he said, Ho, such a one! turn aside, sit down here. And he turned aside, and sat down.

2 And he took ten men of ^cthe elders of the city, and said, Sit ye down here. And they sat down.

3 And ^dhe said unto the kinsman, Naomi, that is come again out of the country of Moab, selleth a parcel of land, which ^ewas our brother Elimelech's:

4 And ^fI thought to advertise thee, saying, ^gBuy it before the inhabitants, and before the elders of my people. If thou wilt redeem it, redeem it; but if thou wilt not redeem it, then tell me, that I may know: for ^hthere is none to redeem it besides thee; and I am after thee. And he said, I will redeem it.

5 Then said Boaz, What day thou buyest the field of the hand of Naomi, thou must buy it also of Ruth the Moabitess, the wife of the dead, ⁱto raise up the name of the dead upon his inheritance.

6 ^j¶ And the kinsman said, I cannot redeem it for myself, lest I mar mine own inheritance: redeem thou my right to thyself; for I cannot redeem it.

7 Now this ^kwas the manner in former time in Israel, concerning redeeming, and concerning changing, for to confirm all things; a man plucked off his shoe, and gave it to his neighbour: and this ^lwas a testimony in Israel.

8 Therefore the kinsman said unto Boaz, Buy it for thee: so he drew off his shoe.

9 ^m¶ And Boaz said unto the elders, and unto all the people, ⁿYe are witnesses this day, that I have bought all that ^owas Elimelech's, and all that ^pwas Chilion's and Mahlon's, of the hand of Naomi.

10 Moreover, Ruth the Moabitess, the wife of Mahlon, ^qhave I purchased to be my wife, to raise up the name of the dead upon his inheritance, that ^rthe name of the dead be not cut off from among his brethren, and from the gate of his place: ^sye are witnesses this day.

11 And all the people that ^twere in the gate, and the elders, said, ^uWe are witnesses. ^vThe LORD make the woman that is come into thine house like ^wRachel and like Leah, which two did build the house of Israel; and ^xdo thou worthily in ^yEphratah, and ^zbe famous in Beth-lehem:

12 And let thy house be like the house of Pharez, ^awhom Tamar bare unto Judah, of the seed which the LORD shall give thee of this young woman.

13 ^b¶ So Boaz took Ruth, and she was his wife: and when he went in unto her, ^cthe LORD gave her conception, and she bare a son.

14 And the women said unto Naomi, ^dBlessed be the LORD, which hath not ^eleft thee this day without a ^fkinsman, ^gthat his name may be famous in Israel.

15 And he shall be unto thee a restorer of ^hthy life, and ⁱa nourisher of thine old age: for thy daughter-in-law, which loveth thee, which is ^jbetter to thee than seven sons, hath born him.

performed an act which signified the claiming of his protection. Such a practice seems strange to us, with our notions of propriety; but in the East, it was less objectionable. Among the Hindus, at the present day, all inferiors sleep at the feet of their masters. It has been contended, however, that the conduct of Ruth, even then, was at variance with prudence, and other qualities essential to the character of woman. It was, however, prompted by Naomi, and not found fault with by Boaz, who subsequently bore witness to her modesty and propriety of deportment, and gave the highest proof of esteem and confidence, by making her his wife. Not only so, but public opinion was in her favour, for said he, "All the city of my people doth know that thou art a virtuous woman." It is clear that, notwithstanding the simplicity of the period, the act was not altogether in harmony with the feelings which then regulated social intercourse, for Boaz despatched her quietly at the dawn, adding, "Let it not be known that a woman came into the floor,"—language which indicates that such intercourse was not wholly in accordance with public feeling.

Chap. IV. 1-12. In those days the public concerns of the city were transacted at the gate, which occupied much the same place as our Courts of Justice. The Arabians, to this hour, call a Court of Justice the Gate of Judgment. This matter of the redemption of property was frequently attended with consequences which rendered it serious, as in the present case, which involved the marriage of Ruth. The man next of kin not being able to redeem it, Boaz did so at once, purchasing from Naomi all that belonged to her husband, and her sons, taking Ruth to be his wife, and calling upon the elders of the city to be witnesses. These elders on the occasion breathed a spirit of the highest benevolence, which found a meet expression in appropriate prayer. Ver. 13-22. This was a bright day for Naomi, who once more lifted up her head, no longer murmuring at the doings of the God of her fathers with her. The women of the town soon addressed Naomi in a strain of sincere congratulation on the good providence which had attended her in her old age. The venerable woman's maternal heart once more warmed up as she laid the first-born of Ruth "in her bosom, and became nurse unto it." Poor Naomi was no longer "a widow, indeed, and desolate." Her house was built up, and she herself invested with an importance which had not previously attached to her. The whole history is illustrative of the purity and simplicity of primitive times, adding another to the many proofs existing, that the further back we go, society becomes the more pure. The chief element of the history, however, consists in the fact, that this union constitutes a link in the genealogy of the Son of God. He is our great Kinsman and our Representative, uniting his strength with our weakness, and his Godhead with our manhood, that he may work out our eternal 16 And Naomi took the child, and laid it in her bosom, and became nurse unto it.

THE FIRST BOOK OF SAMUEL,

OTHERWISE CALLED

THE FIRST BOOK OF THE KINGS.

This Book comprises a period of about eighty years, and records the events which occurred to Israel from the birth to the death of Saul. Although it bears the name of Samuel, there is reason to believe that a portion of it was written by the prophets Gad and Nathan. A part of this, and the whole of the next Book, touches on events which took place after his death. Nor is this all: there are things in both Books which refer to a period of still later date, which, of course, must have been supplied by some of the inspired men of an after age.

CHAPTER I.

1 Elkanah and his two wives. 9 Hannah's prayer.
19 Samuel is born; 24 and presented to the Lord.

NOW there was a certain man of Ramathaim-zophim, of ¹mount Ephraim, and his name was ²Elkanah, the son of Jeroham, the son of Elihu, the son of Tohu, the son of Zuph, an ³Ephrathite:

2 And he had ⁴two wives; the name of the one was Hannah, and the name of the other Peninnah: and Peninnah had children, ⁵but Hannah had no children.

3 And this man went up out of his city ¹yearly to worship and to sacrifice unto the LORD of hosts in ²Shiloh. And the ³two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, the priests of the LORD, were there.

4 ¶ And when the time was that Elkanah ¹offered, he gave to Peninnah his wife, and to all her sons and her daughters, portions:

5 But unto Hannah he gave a ²worthy portion; for ³he loved Hannah: but the LORD had ⁴shut up her womb.

6 And her ¹adversary also ²provoked her sore, for to make her fret, because the LORD had shut up her womb.

7 And as he did so ³year by year, ⁴when she went up to the house of the LORD, so she provoked her: therefore she wept, and did not eat.

8 Then said Elkanah her husband to her, Hannah, ¹why weepest thou? and why eatest thou not? and why is thy heart grieved? ¹am not I better to thee than ten sons?

9 ¶ So Hannah rose up after they had eaten in Shiloh, and after they had drunk: (now Eli the priest sat upon a seat by a post of ²the temple of the LORD:)

10 And she was ³in bitterness of soul, and ⁴prayed unto the LORD, ⁵and wept sore.

11 And she ¹vowed a vow, and said, O LORD of hosts, if thou wilt indeed ²look on the affliction of thine handmaid, and ³remember me, and not forget thine handmaid, but wilt give unto thine handmaid a ⁴man-child, then I will give him unto the LORD all the days of his life, and ⁵there shall no razor come upon his head.

12 ¶ And it came to pass, as she ¹continued praying before the LORD, that Eli marked her mouth.

13 Now Hannah, she ¹spake in her heart; only her lips moved, but her voice was not heard: therefore Eli thought she had been drunken.

14 And Eli said unto her, ¹How long wilt thou be drunken? put away thy wine from thee.

15 And Hannah answered and said, No, my lord; I am a woman ²of a sorrowful spirit: I have drunk neither wine nor strong drink, but have ³poured out my soul before the LORD.

16 Count not thine handmaid for a daughter of Belial; for ¹out of the abunddeliverance. He has not only recovered to us our inheritance, and bought us with his own blood; but he has united himself to us by the faith which he works in our hearts, by his own gracious Spirit, through which his people become justified, and sanctified, and made meet for the inheritance of heaven.

Chap. I. 1-18. The best sons have sometimes sprung from the worst fathers. Elkanah was descended from Korah. The evils of polygamy are strikingly manifested in the present case: the conduct of Peninnah was both wicked and cruel. It amounted to a species of persecution of the most intolerable character. She continued to upbraid Hannah with that which was not a crime, and which ought to have been to herself a source of satisfaction, since it prevented the heart-burnings necessarily arising from two families. It is well when persecution prompts prayer, as in the case of Hannah. The vow of Hannah carried the matter to the highest possible pitch. The sons of Peninnah, as Levites, were set apart for the public service from the age of twenty-five to fifty; but Hannah determined, if she had a son, that he should be a Nazarite, and as such should be devoted to the end of his life. Hannah meekly answered the uncourteous address of Eli, who promptly changed his voice to comfort the devout mourner. She clearly believed it would be unto her as the man of God had said; and losing her burden, she was filled with hope and gladness.

ance of my ⁹complaint and grief have I spoken hitherto.

17 Then Eli answered and said, ^oGo in peace: and ⁴the God of Israel grant thee thy petition that thou hast asked of him.

18 And she said, ^oLet thine handmaid find grace in thy sight. So the woman went her way, and did eat, and her countenance was no more sad.

19 ¶ And they rose up in the morning early, and worshipped before the LORD, and returned, and came to their house to Ramah: and Elkanah knew Hannah his wife; ⁵and the LORD remembered her.

20 Wherefore it came to pass, ¹when the time was come about, after Hannah had conceived, that she bare a son, and called his name ²Samuel, saying, ³Because I have asked him of the LORD.

21 And the man Elkanah, and all his house, went up to offer unto the LORD the yearly sacrifice, and his vow.

22 But Hannah went not up; for she said unto her husband, I will not go up until the child be weaned, and ¹then I will bring him, that he may appear before the LORD, and there abide for ever.

23 And Elkanah her husband said unto her, ²Do what seemeth thee good: tarry until thou have weaned him; only ¹the LORD establish his word. So the woman abode, and gave her ³son suck until she weaned him.

24 ¶ And when she had weaned him, ²she took him up with her, with three bullocks, and one ephah of flour, and a bottle of wine, and brought him unto the house of the LORD in Shiloh: and the child was young.

25 And they slew a bullock, and brought the child to Eli.

26 And she said, O my lord! as thy soul liveth, my lord, I am the woman that stood by thee here, praying unto the LORD.

27 ^oFor this child I prayed; and the LORD hath given me my petition which I asked of him:

28 Therefore also I have ¹lent him to the LORD; as long as he liveth he shall be lent to the LORD. And ²he worshipped the LORD there.

horn is exalted in the LORD; ²my mouth is enlarged over mine enemies; because I rejoice in thy salvation.

2 There is none holy as the LORD: for there is ^onone besides thee; neither is there any rock like our God.

3 Talk no more so exceeding proudly; ¹let not ¹arrogancy come out of your mouth: for the LORD is ^oa God of knowledge, and ¹by him actions are weighed.

4 The bows of the mighty men are broken, and they that ²stumbled are girded with strength.

5 They that were full have hired out themselves for bread; and they that were hungry ceased: so that ²the barren hath born seven; and she that hath many children is waxed feeble.

6 The LORD ¹killeth, and maketh alive: ²he bringeth down to the grave, and bringeth up.

7 The LORD maketh poor, and maketh rich: he ¹bringeth low, and lifteth up.

8 He raiseth up ²the poor out of the dust, and lifteth up the beggar from the dunghill, to ²set them among princes, and to make them inherit the throne of glory: for the pillars of the earth are the LORD's, and he hath set the world upon them.

9 He will keep the feet of ^ohis saints, and the wicked shall ²be silent in darkness; for by strength shall no man prevail.

10 The ²adversaries of the LORD shall be broken to pieces; out of heaven shall he thunder upon them: the LORD shall ¹judge the ends of the earth; and ²he shall give strength unto his king, and exalt the horn of his ²anointed.

11 And Elkanah went to Ramah to his house: and the child did minister unto the LORD before Eli the priest.

12 ¶ Now the sons of Eli were sons of Belial; they ²knew not the LORD.

13 And the priest's custom with the people was, that, when any man offered sacrifice, the priest's servant came, while the flesh was in seething, with a flesh-hook of three teeth in his hand;

14 And he struck it into the pan, or kettle, or caldron, or pot; ²all that the flesh-hook brought up the priest took for himself. So they did in Shiloh unto all the Israelites that came thither.

15 Also, before they burnt the fat, the priest's servant came, and said to the man that sacrificed, Give flesh to roast for the priest; for he will not have sodden flesh of thee, but raw.

Ver. 19-23. The choice of the child's name was happy, as it tended to keep in memory the fact that he was given in answer to prayer. Elkanah displayed a laudable spirit of love and kindness towards his wife, whom he left to pursue the course to which she was prompted by her grateful piety. The manner in which she performed her vow, although it deprived her of the company of her much-loved son, was worthy of her character, and reflected credit on her religion. Nor was she unremembered by the God she loved, who gave her, in addition to Samuel, both sons and daughters.

Chap. II. 1-11. No songs are comparable to those of inspiration. This of Hannah bears the strongest resemblance to that of Mary. She clearly looks far higher than the mercy bestowed on herself; the great salvation may be seen through the fervent utterance of the thankful mother. She would even seem to anticipate a repetition of the Divine favour; for she praises the Lord beforehand for the sons and daughters in whom she afterwards rejoiced. Ver. 12-36. It is mournful to see how soon depravity crept into the Church of God. The greatest calamity that can befall a people is an ungodly ministry. These men "knew not the Lord." They were, therefore, influenced neither by fear nor by love. Occupying the holiest of places, they became the wicked-

16 And if any man said unto him, Let them not fail to burn the fat ²presently, and then take as much as thy soul desireth; then he would answer him, Nay; but thou shalt give it me now: and if not, I will take it by force.

17 Wherefore the sin of the young men was very great ⁷before the LORD; for men ⁸abhorred the offering of the LORD.

18 ¶ But Samuel ministered before the LORD, being a child, girded with ^alinen ephod.

19 Moreover, his mother made him a little coat, and brought it to him from year to year, when she came up with her husband to offer the yearly sacrifice.

20 ¶ And Eli ^bblessed Elkanah and his wife, and said, The LORD give thee seed of this woman, for ³the loan which is lent to the LORD. And they went unto their own home.

21 And the LORD ^cvisited Hannah, so that she conceived, and bare three sons and two daughters. And the child Samuel grew before the LORD.

22 ¶ Now Eli was very old, and heard all that his sons did unto all Israel; and how they lay with the women that ⁴assembled at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

23 And he said unto them, Why do ye such things? for ⁵I hear of your evil dealings ^dby all this people.

24 Nay, my sons; for it is no good report that I hear: ^eye make the LORD's people to ⁶transgress.

25 If one man sin against another, the judge shall judge him; but if a man sin against the LORD, who shall entreat for him? Notwithstanding, they ^fhearkened not unto the voice of their father, because the LORD would slay them.

26 And the child Samuel grew on, and ^gwas in favour both with the LORD, and also with men.

27 ¶ And there came a man of God unto Eli, and said unto him, Thus saith the LORD, Did I plainly appear unto the house of thy father, when they were in Egypt in Pharaoh's house?

28 And did I choose him out of all the tribes of Israel to be my priest, to offer upon mine altar, to burn incense, to wear an ephod before me? and did I give unto the house of thy father all the offerings made by fire of the children of Israel?

29 Wherefore ^hkick ye at my sacrifice, and at mine offering, which I have commanded in my habitation; and honourest

CHAPTER III.

1 How the word of the LORD was first revealed to Samuel.
11 God telleth Samuel the destruction of Eli's house.

AND the child Samuel ministered unto the LORD before Eli. And ¹the word of the LORD was precious in those days; ²there was no open vision.

2 And it came to pass at that time, when Eli was laid down in his place, and ³his eyes began to wax dim, that he could not see;

3 And ere ⁴the lamp of God went out in the temple of the LORD, where the ark of God was, and Samuel was laid down to sleep;

4 That the LORD called Samuel: and he answered, Here am I.

5 And he ran unto Eli, and said, Here am I; for thou calledst me. And he said, est of men. Their position fearfully aggravated their guilt. All declension has commenced at the House of God; an unholy nation always indicates an unholy ministry. If the age of Eli be remembered, his address was comparatively sharp and faithful; but it was too late; the hearts of his sons were hardened. Their habits were formed, and they despised the counsels of their aged father. The address of "the man of God" was awful, and soon realised in its most affecting features. The whole is deeply impressive, and entitled to the solemn and prayerful consideration of all Christian parents. Eli himself was doubtless a man that feared the Lord; but mere example is not enough,—there must be instruction, and there must be authority. It was characteristic of Abraham that he would "command his children and his household after him, that they should keep the way of the Lord to do justice and judgment, that the Lord might bring upon Abraham that which he had spoken of him."

Chap. III. 1-21. "The word of the Lord" is the voice of prophecy; by its being precious, is meant its being scarce. Things are valued, not from their abundance, but their lack. This absence of prophetic labours

I called not; lie down again. And he went and lay down.

6 And the LORD called yet again, Samuel. And Samuel arose, and went to Eli, and said, Here am I; for thou didst call me. And he answered, I called not, my son; lie down again.

7 ¹Now Samuel did not yet know the LORD, neither was the word of the LORD yet revealed unto him.

8 And the LORD called Samuel again the third time. And he arose, and went to Eli, and said, Here am I; for thou didst call me. And Eli perceived that the LORD had called the child.

9 Therefore Eli said unto Samuel, Go, lie down: and it shall be, if he call thee, that thou shalt say, ⁴Speak, LORD; for thy servant heareth. So Samuel went and lay down in his place.

10 And the LORD came, and stood, and called as at other times, Samuel, Samuel. Then Samuel answered, Speak; for thy servant heareth.

11 ¹And the LORD said to Samuel, Behold, I will do a thing in Israel, at which ²both the ears of every one that heareth it shall tingle.

12 In that day I will perform against Eli all things which I have spoken concerning his house: ²when I begin, I will also make an end.

13 ²For I have told him, that ¹I will judge his house for ever, for the iniquity which he knoweth; because his sons made themselves ⁴vile, and he ⁵restrained them not.

14 And therefore I have sworn unto the house of Eli, that ⁵the iniquity of Eli's house shall not be purged with sacrifice nor offering for ever.

15 ¹And Samuel lay until the morning, and opened the doors of the house of the LORD. And Samuel feared to shew Eli the vision.

16 Then Eli called Samuel, and said, Samuel, my son. And he answered, Here am I.

20 And all Israel, from Dan even to Beer-sheba, knew that Samuel was ⁹established to be a prophet of the LORD.

21 And the LORD ^oappeared again in Shiloh: for the LORD revealed himself to Samuel in Shiloh by the word of the LORD.

CHAPTER IV.

¹ The Israelites are overcome by the Philistines. ¹⁰ The ark is taken, and Eli's sons slain. ¹² Upon hearing the news, Eli falleth backward, and breaketh his neck.

AND the word of Samuel ¹came to all Israel. Now Israel went out against the Philistines to battle, and pitched beside Eben-ezer: and the Philistines pitched in Aphek.

2 And the Philistines put themselves in array against Israel: and when ²they joined battle, ^aIsrael was smitten before the Philistines; ^band they slew of ³the army in the field about four thousand men.

3 ¹And when the people were come into the camp, the elders of Israel said, ^cWherefore hath the LORD smitten us to-day before the Philistines? ^dLet us ^efetch ^ethe ark of the covenant of the LORD out of Shiloh unto us, that, when it cometh among us, ^fit may save us out of the hand of our enemies.

4 So the people sent to Shiloh, that they might bring from thence the ark of the covenant of the LORD of hosts, ^gwhich dwelleth between ^hthe cherubims: and the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, rendered the duty of the priesthood all the more responsible. If they erred, there were none to protest against, or to correct them, and none to supply their deficiencies. It would appear there were but two prophets throughout the long period in which the Judges reigned over Israel. The import of the term "know," in ver. 7, is not to be understood of the knowledge which is implied in conversion, but of the token of the Lord's presence, or the way in which he revealed his mind to his holy Prophets. The Lord, in addressing Samuel, awfully confirmed the words of the man of God touching the overthrow of the house of Eli. Samuel, even in his boyhood, shewed that tender and humane spirit, which, in after life, so eminently distinguished him. The aged priest feared the worst, and felt very anxious to know it. Samuel could not resist the appeal, and hence, notwithstanding his reluctance, he reported the whole. The words of Eli are full of devout and sorrowful submission; he saw that his house was ruined. His grief was sorely embittered by the fact that the wickedness to which the coming judgment is traced, is set down to the account of his own culpable indulgence: "His sons made themselves vile, and he restrained them not." Here is the sting. The charge was true, and the old man fell under it. Nothing remained but to cast himself on the Divine mercy. "It is the Lord; let him do what seemeth him good." The doom of his sons was sealed, and it could not now be reversed. His own sands were nearly run out, and the days of his sons were numbered. The graves were ready for both; they were to be cut down for their iniquity before they had lived out half their days; and he was to be gathered to his fathers "like as a shock of corn cometh in his season."

Chap. IV. 1-11. Samuel was now virtually installed in the high offices of judge, prophet, and priest. It was not, however, till a little after that his powers were fully developed. Knowing that the people had been "destroyed for lack of knowledge," he was at great pains to provide proper instruction for them, and hence he betakes himself to the establishing of schools of the prophets throughout the land. The cry for the Ark was not the fruit of faith; they viewed it as an idol rather than as an emblem. The holiest of things brought by the hands of the basest of men, in answer to such a spirit, boded no good. Its arrival excited amongst them frantic joy; but we hear nothing of humble supplication to the God of battles to be their helper. Those shouts of a false confidence with which "the earth rang again" only tended to hasten their overthrow. The Philistines, alarmed were there with the ark of the covenant of God.

5 And when the ark of the covenant of the LORD came into the camp, ¹all Israel shouted with a great shout, so that the earth rang again.

6 And when the Philistines heard the noise of the shout, they said, ²What meaneth the noise of this great shout in the camp of the Hebrews? And they understood that the ark of the LORD was come into the camp.

7 And the Philistines ¹were afraid: for they said, God is come into the camp. And they said, Woe unto us! for there hath not been such a thing ²heretofore.

8 Woe unto us! who shall deliver us out of the hand of these mighty Gods? these ³are the Gods that ⁴smote the Egyptians with all the plagues in the wilderness.

9 ⁵Be strong, and quit yourselves like men, O ye Philistines, that ye be not servants unto the Hebrews, as they have been to you: ⁶quit yourselves like men, and fight.

10 ⁷And the Philistines fought, and ⁸Israel was smitten, and they fled ⁹every man into his tent; and there was a very great slaughter: for there fell of Israel thirty thousand footmen.

11 And the ark of God was taken; and the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, ¹⁰were slain.

12 ¹¹And there ran a man of Benjamin out of the army, and came to Shiloh the same day, with his clothes rent, and with earth upon his head.

13 And when he came, lo, Eli sat upon a seat by the way-side watching: for ¹²his heart trembled for the ark of God. And when the man came into the city, and told ¹³it, all the city cried out.

14 And when Eli heard the noise of the crying, he said, What meaneth the noise of this tumult? And the man came in hastily, and told Eli.

15 Now Eli was ninety and eight years old; ¹⁴and his eyes were ¹⁵dim, that he could not see.

16 And the man said unto Eli, I am he that came out of the army, and I fled to-day out of the army. And he said, What ¹⁶is there done, ¹⁷my son?

17 And the messenger answered and said, Israel is fled before the Philistines, 18 And it came to pass, ¹when he made mention of the ark of God, that he fell from off the seat backward by the side of the gate, and ²his neck brake, and he died; for he was an old man, and heavy: and he had judged Israel forty years.

19 ³And his daughter-in-law, Phinehas' wife, was with child, ⁴near to ⁵be delivered: and when she heard the tidings, that the ark of God was taken, and that her father-in-law and her husband were dead, she bowed herself and travailed; for her pains ⁶came upon her.

20 And, about the time of her death, the women that stood by her said unto her, ⁷Fear not; for thou hast born a son. But she answered not, ⁸neither did she regard ⁹it.

21 And she named the child ¹⁰I-chabod, saying, ¹¹The glory is departed from Israel: (because the ark of God was taken, and because of her father-in-law, and her husband:)

22 And she said, ¹²The glory is departed from Israel; for the ark of God is taken.

CHAPTER V.

¹ The Philistines bring the ark into the house of Dagon. ² Dagon falleth down. 6, 9, 12 They are smitten with emerods.

AND the Philistines ¹took the ark of God, and brought it from Eben-ezer unto Ashdod.

2 When the Philistines took the ark of God, they brought it into the house of ²Dagon, and set it by Dagon.

3 ³And when they of Ashdod arose early on the morrow, behold, ⁴Dagon was fallen upon his face to the earth before the ark of the LORD. And they took Dagon, and ⁵set him in his place again.

4 And when they arose early on the morrow morning, behold, Dagon was fallen upon his face to the ground before the ark of the LORD; and ⁶the head of Dagon, and both the palms of his hands, were cut off upon the threshold; only ⁷the stump of Dagon was left to him.

5 Therefore ⁸neither the priests of Dagon, nor any that come into Dagon's house, tread on the threshold of Dagon in Ashdod unto this day.

6 ⁹But ¹⁰the hand of the LORD was thereby, fought with the fury of desperation, and thus fulfilled the Divine threatening. The death of 30,000 men and the two sons of Eli was the fruit of a single day's conflict. In the absence of the Lord of the Ark, the Ark of the Lord stood them in no stead. Poor Eli, trembling under the weight of ninety-eight years, was full of apprehension, and his worst fears were soon realised. His sons slain, the Ark of God taken, and the flower of the people cut down, were tidings which descended on him as a thunderbolt. He fell—he died; and to his death was added that of his daughter-in-law, under circumstances the most melancholy. The picture, as a whole, is one of the most afflicting on record. But where the punishment was so great what must have been the guilt! The stroke is often lighter, but never heavier than the transgression. Iniquity for a time may seem to prosper; but, in the end, vengeance is sure to come. They who, having been often reprov'd, still "harden their necks, will be suddenly destroyed, and that without remedy."

Chap. V. 1-12. The idolatrous Philistines exulted in the capture of the Ark. They considered it a triumph for their own god, Dagon. The events of the temple were full of interest, and not a little calculated to humble the pride of Dagon's worshippers. But if distressed by the prostration of their own god, when the Divine hand fell upon themselves they were overwhelmed with consternation. They became solicitous to know the cause, and to escape the danger which impended. The Lord honoured himself by means of the Ark, which proved a source of fear and death on all sides to the Philistines.

heavy upon them of Ashdod, and he destroyed them, and smote them with emerods, even Ashdod, and the coasts thereof.

7 And when the men of Ashdod saw that it was so, they said, "The ark of the God of Israel shall not abide with us: for his hand is sore upon us, and upon Dagon our god."

8 ¶ They sent therefore, and gathered all the lords of the Philistines unto them, and said, What shall we do with the ark of the God of Israel? And they answered, Let the ark of the God of Israel be carried about unto Gath. And they carried the ark of the God of Israel about thither.

9 And it was so, that, after they had carried it about, the hand of the LORD was against the city with a very great destruction: and he smote the men of the city, both small and great, and they had emerods in their secret parts.

10 ¶ Therefore they sent the ark of God to Ekron. And it came to pass, as the ark of God came to Ekron, that the Ekronites cried out, saying, They have brought about the ark of the God of Israel to us, to slay us and our people.

11 So they sent and gathered together all the lords of the Philistines, and said, Send away the ark of the God of Israel, and let it go again to his own place, that it slay us not, and our people: for there was a deadly destruction throughout all the city; the hand of God was very heavy there.

12 And the men that died not were smitten with the emerods: and the cry of the city went up to heaven.

CHAPTER VI.

1 The Philistines counsel how to send back the ark: 10 they bring it on a new cart to Beth-shemesh. 19 The people smitten.

AND the ark of the LORD was in the country of the Philistines seven months.

2 And the Philistines called for the priests and the diviners, saying, What shall we do to the ark of the LORD? tell us wherewith we shall send it to his place.

3 And they said, If ye send away the ark of the God of Israel, send it not empty; but in any wise return him a trespass-offering: then ye shall be healed, and it shall be known to you why his hand is not removed from you.

4 Then said they, What shall be the trespass-offering which we shall return to him? They answered, Five golden e-rods, and five golden mice, according to the number of the lords of the Philistines: for one plague was on you all, and on your lords.

5 Wherefore ye shall make images of your emerods, and images of your mice that mar the land; and ye shall give glory unto the God of Israel: peradventure he will lighten his hand from off you, and from off your gods, and from off your land.

6 Wherefore then do ye harden your hearts, as the Egyptians and Pharaoh hardened their hearts? When he had wrought wonderfully among them, did they not let the people go, and they departed?

7 Now therefore make a new cart, and take two milch-kine, on which there hath come no yoke, and tie the kine to the cart, and bring their calves home from them:

8 And take the ark of the LORD, and lay it upon the cart; and put the jewels of gold, which ye return him for a trespass-offering, in a coffer by the side thereof; and send it away, that it may go.

9 And see, if it goeth up by the way of his own coast to Beth-shemesh, then he hath done us this great evil: but if not, then we shall know that it is not his hand that smote us; it was a chance that happened to us.

10 ¶ And the men did so; and took two milch-kine, and tied them to the cart, and shut up their calves at home:

11 And they laid the ark of the LORD upon the cart, and the coffer with the mice of gold and the images of their emerods.

12 And the kine took the straight way to the way of Beth-shemesh, and went along the highway, lowing as they went, and turned not aside to the right hand or to the left; and the lords of the Philistines went after them unto the border of Beth-shemesh.

13 And they of Beth-shemesh were reaping their wheat-harvest in the valley; and they lifted up their eyes, and saw the ark, and rejoiced to see it.

14 And the cart came into the field of Joshua, a Beth-shemite, and stood there, where there was a great stone: and they clave the wood of the cart, and offered the kine a burnt-offering unto the LORD.

15 And the Levites took down the ark of the LORD, and the coffer that was with it, wherein the jewels of gold were, and put them on the great stone: and the men

The destruction appears to have been indescribable, and the distress unutterable. Although the Ark failed to bring any deliverance to the children of Israel, because of their iniquities, it stood the representative of the power of the Most High for the destruction of the Philistines. If it was weak to protect the Hebrews, it was strong to punish their enemies. While sin separated between them and their Lord, terrible proof was given that his arm was not shortened, neither his ear heavy. While he paternally chastised his own people, he inflicted the severest judgments on their adversaries. The Ark, like the Gospel, was, in a sense, a saviour either of life unto life, or of death unto death. To receive it, is to be saved; to reject it, is to be destroyed. They who will not have to do with Christ as a Priest, must have to do with him as a King.

Chap. VI. 1-21. These Heathen priests and diviners reasoned with uncommon wisdom. It is clear they were not unacquainted with the history of the Jews in Egypt. They spake as the disciples of a better system, while they exhorted their countrymen to "give glory unto the God of 19 ¶ And ^ehe smote the men of Beth-shemesh, because they had looked into the ark of the LORD, even he smote of the people fifty thousand and threescore and ten men. And the people lamented, because the LORD had smitten ^{many} of the people with a great slaughter.

20 And the men of Beth-shemesh said, 'Who is able to stand before this holy LORD God? and to ^awhom shall he go up from us?

21 ¶ And they sent messengers to the inhabitants of ^bKirjath-jearim, saying, The Philistines have brought again the ark of the LORD; come ye down, and fetch it up to you.

roth from among you, and ^aprepare your hearts unto the LORD, and ^bserve him only; and he will deliver you out of the hand of the Philistines.

4 Then the children of Israel did put away ^bBaalim and Ashtaroth, and served the LORD only.

5 And Samuel said, 'Gather all Israel to ^aMizpeh, and ^I will pray for you unto the LORD.

6 And they gathered together to Mizpeh, and ^adrew water, and poured ^{it} out before the LORD, and ^bfasted on that day, and said there, 'We have sinned against the LORD. And Samuel ^cjudged the children of Israel in Mizpeh.

7 ¶ And when the Philistines heard that the children of Israel were gathered together to Mizpeh, the lords of the Philistines went up against Israel. And when the children of Israel heard ^{it}, they were afraid of the Philistines.

8 And the children of Israel said to Samuel, 'Cease not to cry unto the LORD our God for us, that he will save us out of the hand of the Philistines.

9 ¶ And Samuel took ^aa sucking lamb, and offered ^{it} for a burnt-offering wholly unto the LORD: and Samuel ^ccried unto the LORD for Israel; and the LORD ^dheard him.

10 And as Samuel was offering up the burnt-offering, the Philistines drew near to battle against Israel: but the LORD ^athundered with a great thunder on that day upon the Philistines, and ^bdiscomfited them; and they were smitten before Israel.

11 And the men of Israel went out of Mizpeh, and pursued the Philistines, and smote them, until ^{they} came under Beth-car.

12 Then Samuel ^atook a stone, and set ^{it} between Mizpeh and Shen, and called the name of it ^bEben-ezer, saying, 'Hitherto hath the LORD helped us.

13 ¶ So the Philistines were subdued, and they came no more into the coast of Israel: and the hand of the LORD was against the Philistines all the days of Samuel.

14 And the cities which the Philistines had taken from Israel were restored to Israel," as a means of lightening his hand from off themselves, their gods, and their land. Never before did we read of such counsels issuing from the lips of the Heathen priesthood. The matter of the Ark, and the judgments which accompanied it, were eminently calculated to confound Idolatry, and to strengthen the faith of the Hebrews. It was a fearful thing merely to look on the punishment of the Philistines; but when it came home to themselves at Beth-shemesh, and when multitudes fell under the blow of the Divine hand, it spread dismay through all the country. There has been much controversy touching the figures "50,000," without any satisfactory result, but the thing is without any direct practical bearing. The moral of the whole is, that great fear is due unto God in a meeting of his servants, and that he will be glorified in all who come nigh to him. To the impenitent wicked he is a consuming fire; but to all who approach him through the Lord Jesus Christ, he is the Father of mercies, and the God of all consolation.

Chap. VII. 1-17. The value of mercies is too frequently not understood till they be withdrawn, and this is often done in order to bring ungrateful men to their senses. Twenty years was a long time to be without the Ark, but a shorter period, perhaps, would not have sufficed to bring "all the house of Israel to lament after the Lord." It is well when deprivation is attended with such a result. Samuel here comes out in his true character of a teacher, a reprover, a prophet, and a guide. His early labours are attended with great success; the people promptly complied with his exhortation to put away the strange gods. The Philistines, as if emboldened by the magnitude of their past victories, embraced the first opportunity to attack the assembled Hebrews. On this occasion they pursued the proper course, enlisting the sympathies and the supplications of Samuel on their behalf, that the Lord would save them out of the hand of the Philistines. The prophet cried, and the Lord heard him. The mingled scene of the Israel, from Ekron even unto Gath; and the coasts thereof did Israel deliver out of the hands of the Philistines. And there was peace between Israel and the Amorites.

15 ¶ And Samuel ⁷judged Israel all the days of his life.

16 And he ⁴went from year to year in circuit to Beth-el, and Gilgal, and Mizpeh, and judged Israel in all those places.

17 And ²his return was to Ramah; for there was his house; and there he judged Israel; and there ¹he built an altar unto the LORD.

voice: ³howbeit yet protest solemnly unto them, and shew them ^mthe manner of the king that shall reign over them.

10 ¶ And Samuel told all the words of the LORD unto the people that asked of him a king.

11 And he said, ²This will be the manner of the king that shall reign over you: ^oHe will take your sons, and appoint them for himself, for his chariots, and to be his horsemen; and some ^pshall run before his chariots.

12 And he will ⁴appoint him captains over thousands, and captains over fifties; ^rand will set them to ear his ground, and to reap his harvest, and to make his instruments of war, and instruments of his chariots.

17 He will take the tenth of your sheep: and ye shall be his servants.

18 And ye shall cry out in that day because of your king which ye shall have chosen you; and the LORD ¹will not hear you in that day.

19 ¶ Nevertheless the people ²refused to obey the voice of Samuel: and they said, Nay; but we will have a king over us;

20 That ²we also may be like all the nations; and that our king may judge us, and go out before us, and fight our battles.

thunder and the battle was fearful, and much fitted to impress both armies. No time was lost after the victory in rearing a monument to the glory of the Lord. Few terms in Scripture have been more honoured among the faithful than "Eben-ezer," and few occasions in ancient times arose to which the inscription was more appropriate. This was the first victory under Samuel, and it was so complete, and attended with tokens of the Divine presence so indisputable, as completely to install him in his high office. In ver. 15 we are told that Samuel "judged Israel all the days of his life," although it will subsequently appear that he resigned the government to Saul on his becoming king,—a fact which shews that the sovereignty did not necessarily trench on the judgeship. The period of Samuel's services was one of the happiest in the history of the people. He was a pattern of every excellence, and the hold he had taken on the heart of the nation was such as to indicate the confidence in which he was held, and to render his hands ever strong for purposes of good.

Chap. VIII. 1-9. It was natural for Samuel to desire that his sons might walk in his steps, serving the Lord, and doing good to his people, when he was in his grave.

But here again, as in the case of Eli, it was soon found they were men of another spirit, "who walked not in his ways, but turned aside after lucre, and took bribes, and perverted judgment." The fact here set forth is deeply affecting, shewing that if religious privileges become not a blessing, they will be a curse. The conduct of these men roused the spirit of the whole nation, leading them to desire a king. Had the sons been worthy of the father, no such thought would have entered the popular mind. The reason for the offensive demand was plainly communicated to the venerable prophet: "Thou art old, and thy sons walk not in thy ways: now make us a king to judge us like all the nations." In the present case, Samuel, notwithstanding his zeal, seemed deficient in his usual sagacity. Passing by the serious misconduct of his sons, and their utter disqualification for the office, he thinks only of the disgrace of having the judgeship taken out of his own family. Had he reproved his sons with a view to reform them, he would have acted more wisely; or, failing in that, had recourse to the Lord to appoint a successor, for it was impossible that men of such a spirit could command the confidence of the country. Ver. 10-22. Samuel did what in him lay to drive the notion of a king from the mind of the ken unto their voice, and make them a king. And Samuel said unto the men of Israel, Go ye every man unto his city.

CHAPTER IX.

1 Saul, despairing to find his father's asses, 6 by the counsel of his servant, 11 and directions of young maidens, 16 according to God's revelation, 18 cometh to Samuel.
 19 Samuel entertaineth Saul.

NOW there was a man of Benjamin, whose name was ^aKish, the son of Abiel, the son of Zeror, the son of Bechorath, the son of Aphiah, ¹a Benjamite, a mighty man of ²power.

2 And he had a son, whose name was Saul, a ^bchoice young man, and a goodly; and there was not among the children of Israel a goodlier person than he: ^cfrom his shoulders and upward he was higher than any of the people.

3 And ^dthe asses of Kish, Saul's father, were lost: and Kish said to Saul his son, Take now one of the servants with thee, and arise, go seek the asses.

4 And he passed through ^emount Ephraim, and passed through the land of ^fShalisha, but they found them not; then they passed through the land of ^gShalim, and there they were not; and he passed through the land of the Benjamites, but they found them not.

5 And when they were come to the land of ^hZuph, Saul said to his servant that was with him, Come, and let us return; lest my father leave ⁱcaring for the asses, and ^jtake thought for us.

6 And he said unto him, Behold now, there is in this city ^ka man of God, and he is ^lan honourable man; ^mall that he saith cometh surely to pass: now let us go thither; peradventure he can shew us our way that we should go.

7 Then said Saul to his servant, But, behold, if we go, ⁿwhat shall we bring the man? for the bread is ^ospent in our vessels, and there is not a present to bring to the man of God; what ^phave we?

8 And the servant answered Saul again, and said, Behold, ^qI have here at hand the fourth part of a shekel of silver; that will I give to the man of God to tell us our way.

9 (Beforetime in Israel, when a man went to ^renquire of God, thus he spake, Come, and let us go to the seer: for he that is now called a Prophet, was beforetime called ^sa Seer.)

10 Then said Saul to his servant, ^aWell said; come, let us go. So they went unto the city where the man of God was.

11 ^bAnd as they went up ^cthe hill to the city, they ^dfound young maidens going out to draw water, and said unto them, Is the seer here?

12 And they answered them, and said, He is; behold, he is before you: make haste now, for he came to-day to the city; for there is a ^esacrifice of the people to-day in ^fthe high place.

13 As soon as ye be come into the city, ye shall straightway find him, before he go up to the high place to eat: for the people will not eat until he come, because ^ghe doth bless the sacrifice; and afterwards they eat that he bidden. Now therefore get you up; for about ^hthis time ye shall find him.

14 And they went up into the city: and when they were come into the city, behold, Samuel came out against them, for to go up to the high place.

15 ⁱNow ^jthe LORD had ^ktold Samuel in his ear a day before Saul came, saying, 16 To-morrow, about this time, I will send thee a man out of the land of Benjamin, and ^lthou shalt anoint him to be captain over my people Israel, that he may save my people out of the hand of the Philistines: for I have ^mlooked upon my people, because their cry is come unto me.

17 And when Samuel saw Saul, the LORD said unto him, ⁿBehold the man whom I spake to thee of! this same ^oshall reign over my people.

18 Then Saul drew near to Samuel in the gate, and said, Tell me, I pray thee, where the seer's house is.

19 And Samuel answered Saul, and said, I am the seer: go up before me unto the high place; for ye shall eat with me to-day; and to-morrow I will let thee go, ^pand will tell thee all that is in thine heart.

20 And as for thine asses that were lost ^qthree days ago, ^rset not thy mind on them; for they are found. And ^son whom is all the desire of Israel? ^tIs it not on thee, and on all thy father's house?

21 And Saul answered and said, Am not I ^ua Benjamite, of the smallest of the tribes of Israel? and ^vmy family the least people, by foretelling the evils which would follow in the train of the office. The portrait drawn of the royal procedure is certainly very appalling, and all the more so, as it was the simple truth; yet such was the determination of the people, that they adhered to their original purpose, and in reply to his communication they merely answered, "Nay; but we will have a king over us." They seem to have felt that they could not be worse than they were, and if they were to be robbed and peeled, they resolved that the thing should be gone about with dignity.

Chap. IX. 1-10. The selection of a king from the tribe of Benjamin fulfilled a prophecy contained in Genesis xlix. 27, and signified that he was the choice of the people rather than of the Lord, as another prophecy, Genesis xlix. 10, signified that the sceptre should belong to Judah. Saul eminently possessed the physical attributes which rendered rulers popular. Amongst the ancients, person alone often determined the choice of chiefs and kings. The term "seer" signifies one who sees into futurity, and holds intercourse with the invisible world. The language of Balaam, in Numbers xxiv. ver. 3, 4, supplies an illustration. The word was synonymous with prophet, and both terms were used interchangeably long prior to the death of Samuel. Ver. 11-27. So explicit was the Divine intimation concerning Saul, that Samuel could have no doubt; and when he came to ask after the house of the seer, the Divine plan was plain. The interview was frank on both sides, and laid a foundation for what was to follow. Saul, notwithstanding his peculiar temper, and his personal attributes, displayed a becoming humility with respect both to his tribe and his family. The chapter illus-of all the families of the tribe of Benjamin! wherefore then speakest thou ⁴so to me?

22 And Samuel took Saul and his servant, and brought them into the parlour, and made them sit ⁶in the chiefest place among them that were bidden, which were about thirty persons.

23 And Samuel said unto the cook, 'Bring the portion which I gave thee, of which I said unto thee, Set it by thee.

24 And the cook took up ⁶the shoulder, and that which was upon it, and set it before Saul. And Samuel said, Behold that which is ⁶left! set it before thee, and eat: for unto this time hath it been kept for thee, since I said, I have invited the people. So Saul did eat with Samuel that day.

25 ¶ And when they were come down from the high place into the city, Samuel communed with Saul upon ²the top of the house.

26 And they arose early: and it came to pass, about the spring of the day, that Samuel called Saul to the top of the house, saying, 'Up, that I may send thee away. And Saul arose, and they went out both of them, he and Samuel, abroad.

27 And as they were going down to the end of the city, Samuel said to Saul, 'Bid the servant pass on before us, (and he passed on,) but stand thou still ⁶a while, that I may shew thee the word of God.

CHAPTER X.

1 Samuel anointeth Saul. 2 He confirmeth him by prediction of three signs. 9 Saul's heart is changed, and he prophesieth.

THEN Samuel took a ²vial of oil, and poured it upon his head, and ²kissed him, and said, Is it not because the LORD hath anointed thee to be ²captain over ²his inheritance?

2 When thou art departed from me to-day, then thou shalt find two men by ²Rachel's sepulchre, in the border of ²Benjamin, at ²Zelzah; and they will say unto thee, ²The asses which thou wentest to seek are found: and, lo, thy father hath left the ²care of the asses, and sorroweth for you, saying, What shall I do for my son?

3 Then shalt thou go on forward from thence, and thou shalt come to the plain of ²Tabor, and there shall meet thee three men going up to God to ²Beth-el, one carrying ²three kids, and another carrying three loaves of bread, and another carrying a bottle of wine:

4 And they will ²salute thee, and give thee two ²loaves of bread; which thou shalt receive of their hands.

5 After that thou shalt come to the ²hill of God, where is the garrison of the Philistines: and it shall come to pass, when thou art come thither to the city, that thou shalt meet ²a company of prophets coming down from the high place, with ²a psaltery, and a tabret, and a pipe, and a harp, before them, and they shall prophesy:

6 And the ²Spirit of the LORD will come upon thee, and thou shalt prophesy with them, and shalt be turned into ²another man.

7 And ²let it be, when these ²signs are come unto thee, ²that thou do as occasion serve thee: for ²God is with thee.

8 And thou shalt go down before me ²to Gilgal; and, behold, I will come down unto thee, to offer burnt-offerings, and to sacrifice sacrifices of peace-offerings: ²seven days shalt thou tarry, till I come to thee, and shew thee what thou shalt do.

9 ¶ And it was so, that, when he had turned his ²back to go from Samuel, God ²gave him ²another heart: and ²all those signs came to pass that day.

10 And when ²they came thither to the hill, behold, a company of prophets met him; and the Spirit of God came upon him, and he prophesied among them.

11 And it came to pass, ²when all that knew him beforetime saw that, behold, he prophesied among the prophets, then the people said ²one to another, ²What is this ²that is come unto the son of Kish? ²Is Saul also among the prophets?

12 And one ²of the same place answered and said, But ²who is their father? Therefore it became a proverb, Is Saul also among the prophets?

13 And when he had made an end of prophesying, he came to the high place.

trates the connexion between the smallest events and the greatest, shewing that nothing is small in the history of Divine Providence. While there is something in the conduct of Saul to admire, still more is there in that of Samuel, who displayed no jealousy whatever of the man that God had chosen to reign over his people. He himself had found power to be a burdensome stone, and the service of the people to be a thankless task; but regard for the honour of his Divine Master rendered him willing to submit to anything.

Chap. X. 1-16. Priests, prophets, and kings were thus designated to office. The oil was significant of the gifts of the Holy Spirit necessary to qualify them severally for their work. The cordiality of Samuel towards Saul was wonderful. The minute description of events which were about to occur is remarkable; and as they
